PRAYER USED AT THE ANNUAL MEETINGS OF THE SOCIETY, AND AT THE OPENING OF MEETINGS OF THE GENERAL COMMITTEE.

ALMIGHTY and most merciful FATHER, we give Thee humble thanks for the light of Thy Gospel. Make us more grateful for this Thy mercy, and more zealous for the salvation of all mankind.

Visit in mercy the Church of Christ; enrich it more abundantly with the grace of Thy Holy Spirit; and bless its endeavours to make known Thy Truth. Unite, as one man, all who are truly labouring for Thee. Disappoint the designs of Satan. Let all Christian Societies live in harmony and love; give them wisdom in all their plans; perfect Thy strength in their weakness; and direct their labours to Thy glory.

The harvest truly is great, but the Labourers are few! O Thou Lord of the Harvest, send forth labourers into Thy Harvest! Fill with Thy Spirit those whom Thou hast sent forth; and enable them faithfully and boldly to preach, among Jews and Gentiles, the unsearchable riches of Christ. Keep them from the snares of the world, the flesh, and the devil; deliver them from all evil; and make them wise to win souls.

Upon all the Native Converts whom Thou hast gathered to Thyself, through Thy labouring servants throughout the world, pour out Thy Holy Spirit, that, as Thou hast begotten them again unto a lively hope, so they may ever be followers of Thee as dear children. Deliver them from all remaining darkness and ignorance; destroy and abolish in their hearts all that remains of Satan's kingdom; grant that their faith, and hope, and love may grow exceedingly; make them to be ready to every good work, and more especially to exert themselves for the salvation of those around them; that so, by their zeal and faithful testimony, by their holiness and fruitfulness, they may glorify Thy name before their countrymen, and bring in unto Thee, from the midst of them, such as shall be saved.

Have compassion, O most merciful Father, on all those who have come under instruction, though they be not yet altogether Christians. Convince them effectually, by Thy Word and Spirit, of their sinful and miserable state; pour upon them the spirit of grace and supplication, and draw them to Jesus.

Take away blindness from the Jews. Let them receive Thee, O Jesus, as their Messiah, and proclaim Thy saving Name among the Gentiles.

Deliver all Mohammedans from the delusions of the False Prophet! O Thou True Prophet of Thy Church, enlighten them by Thy Holy Spirit, and bow them down at the foot of Thy Cross!

Pity blind Idolaters who are kept in cruel bondage by the god of this world. Turn them from idols, that they may serve the Living and True God.

O Thou Almighty Saviour, Who by the right hand of God art exalted, and hast received of the Father the promise of the Holy Ghost, shed forth His light and grace on this dark world!

Cause all Christians, we beseech Thee, to sow bountifully; that they may reap also bountifully. O Thou that lovest a cheerful giver, let all grace abound toward them, that they may minister liberally of their substance to the making known of Thy Name!

With these our humble prayers, we join our praises and thanksgiving for what Thou hast already done in making known Thy salvation; perfect Thy work, O Lord; shortly accomplish the number of Thine elect; and hasten the coming of Thy Kingdom.

Be present with us, O Lord, at this time. Give us all a single eye to Thy glory. May Thy blessing rest upon our meeting; and may all our hearts be this day quickened and encouraged to fresh and persevering efforts in Thy Service.

We ask these mercies for the glory of Thy Name, through the merits and mediation of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ; and would ascribe to Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, Three Persons in One God, everlasting praise. Amen.

Our Father, which art in heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done, in earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses, As we forgive them that trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation; But deliver us from evil: For thine is the kingdom, The power, and the glory, For ever and ever. Amen.

PRAYER USED AT THE OPENING OF MEETINGS OF THE COMMITTEE OF CORRESPONDENCE.

Almighty God, our heavenly Father, Who hast purchased to Thyself an Universal Church, by the precious blood of Thy dear Son, we give Thee hearty thanks that it hath pleased Thee to call us to the knowledge of Thy grace and faith in Thee, and to appoint our lot in an age and country where the true light shineth. We bless Thee that Thou hast awakened us in some measure to feel our responsibilities. We praise Thee for what we have seen and heard of the power of Thy Word among the Heathen, we adore Thee for Thy many servants who have gone out from amongst us to toil, and suffer, and die in making known Thy salvation; and we thank Thee that Thou dost allow us, unworthy sinners, to unite together in this work of faith and labour of love.

We humbly confess our past lukewarmness in this Thy service, notwithstanding these Thine inestimable benefits and mercies. For our Lord Jesus Christ's sake, forgive us our past negligences, and so endue us with Thy Holy Spirit, that we may more earnestly seek Thy glory in the salvation of souls.

Grant us, we beseech Thee, Thy very present help at these our meetings. We ask, most gracious God and Father, for a constraining sense of the love of the Lord Jesus, and for wisdom to direct us in all our endeavours. Increase upon us the spirit of power, and of love, and of a sound mind. Give us faith and courage; give us zeal and patience; give us a single eye to Thy glory, and help us to bear and to forbear. The silver and the gold are Thine, O King of kings! Supply us with what is needful for Thy great work, and make us faithful stewards of Thy bounty, for proclaiming to the Gentiles the unsearchable riches of Christ.

We pray also for all who are united with us in the direction of this sacred cause.

May Thine especial blessing rest upon our Committees, with their Secretaries, throughout the world. Bestow on them the help that we feel so needful for ourselves. Enable them to maintain the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace, and ever to find favour in the sight of all with whom they may have to do.

Especially we beseech Thee to look, O most merciful Father, upon our Missionary brethren. Draw out our hearts towards them more and more; and while they are bearing the burden abroad, give us grace to help and succour them by our sympathy and prayers at home. Bless every letter written to them from this house, and all our intercourse with them. We pray for them that they may be filled with Thy Spirit. Grant that the same mind may be in them which was also in Christ Jesus. Let them never lose their first love. Raise them above the cares of this world. Help them to deny themselves and to endure all things for the elect's sake. Give them the tongue of him that is taught. Clothe them with humility. Teach them to follow peace with each other, and with all men. Support them under spiritual distresses, temptations of the adversary, bodily sickness, domestic anxieties, and hope deferred. And so confirm Thy word from their lips by the power of the Holy Ghost, that through them multitudes may be turned from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto Thee, our God.

We commend to Thee the Missionaries' children entrusted to our charge. Bring them all to a saving knowledge of Christ Jesus. Defend them with Thy heavenly grace that they may continue Thine for ever; and daily increase in Thy Holy Spirit more and more, until they come unto Thy everlasting kingdom. Give all needed grace to those who have the direction of the Home in the discharge of the arduous work with which Thou hast been pleased to entrust them.

We most heartily thank Thee, O Lord, for those whom Thou hast already sent forth through this Society; and we pray for a yet larger outpouring of a Missionary spirit on our younger Clergy, on the members of our Universities, on those who are elsewhere preparing for this holy work, on the young men of all ranks and orders throughout our land. And herein do we implore Thy special favour on our Training Institutions, that their numbers may be replenished continually: and that none may go forth from them but such as shall be able ministers of the New Testament, Full of Faith, and of the Holy Ghost.

We praise Thee, O Thou God of all grace, for the Converts, the Native Catechists, and the Native Clergy, whom Thou has granted to us in our several Missions. As Thou hast raised the Native Churches thus far, bring them, we pray Thee, to full ripeness and perfectness of age in Christ. Pour out upon them Thy Holy Spirit. Stablish, strengthen, settle them, and so enlarge their liberality, that they may both maintain Thy Word among themselves, and may make it known to the regions beyond them, till all the Gentiles hear the glad tidings of Thy love.

And now, O Lord God, be Thou in the midst of us to-day. Give us a constant sense of Thy presence, and may all our undertakings be begun, continued, and ended in Thee, to the honour of Thy great Name, for the sake of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. Amen.

LAWS AND REGULATIONS OF THE
CHURCH MISSIONARY SOCIETY FOR AFRICA AND THE EAST.

(As revised at a Special Meeting of Members of the Society, held on July 2, 1890.)

I. THIS Institution shall be designated 'The Church Missionary Society for Africa and the East;' and shall be conducted by a Patron or Patrons, a Vice-Patron, a President, Vice-Presidents, a COMMITTEE, and such Officers as may be deemed necessary, all being Members of the Established Church of England or of the Church of Ireland.

II. The office of PATRON of the Society shall be reserved for Members of the Royal Family; and that of VICE-PATRON for His Grace the Primate of All England, if, being a Member of the Society, he shall accept the office. The PRESIDENT shall be such Temporal Peer or Commoner as may be appointed to that office, and VICE-PRESIDENTS shall consist of all Archbishops and Bishops of the Churches of England and Ireland, who, being Members of the Society, shall accept the office; and of such other persons as, being also Members, shall be appointed thereto.

OF MEMBERS AND GOVERNORS.

III. Annual Subscribers of One Guinea and upwards, and if Clergymen Half-a-Guinea, with Collectors of Fifty-two Shillings, and upwards, per annum, shall be Members of the Society during the continuance of such Subscriptions or Collections. Benefactors of Ten Guineas, and upwards, in one sum shall be Members for Life.

IV. Annual Subscribers of Five Guineas shall be Governors during the continuance of such Subscription; and Benefactors of Fifty Pounds, and upwards, in one sum, shall be Governors for Life.

V. Subscriptions and Benefactions shall confer the same privileges, whether paid to the Society direct or through an Auxiliary or Association.

VI. The COMMITTEE may appoint such persons as have rendered essential services to the Society, either Honorary Members for Life, or Honorary Governors for Life.

OF GENERAL MEETINGS.

VII. An Annual Meeting of the Members of the Society shall be held in London, on the Tuesday next before the first Wednesday in May; when the proceedings of the foregoing year shall be reported, the Accounts presented, and the Treasurer and COMMITTEE chosen. And whenever any vacancy in the office of Treasurer shall occur, the COMMITTEE may fill up the vacancy, for the interval between the occurrence of such vacancy and the next Annual Meeting.

VIII. The COMMITTEE may summon a Special General Meeting of the Members of the Society, at which not less than Thirty shall constitute a Quorum, at any time, and they shall do so on receipt of a requisition in writing, addressed to the Secretaries, and signed by not less than Fifty Members of the Society, and specifying the object of the Meeting. Ten days' notice shall be given in Three London Daily Newspapers, and in two other Newspapers, of any such intended Meeting, and of the purpose for which it is called; which shall be deemed sufficient publicity.

IX. None of the Laws and Regulations of the Society shall be repealed or altered, nor any new ones made, but at the Annual Meeting or at a Special General Meeting called for that purpose.

X. An Anniversary Sermon shall be preached at some Church in London, by a Clergyman appointed by the COMMITTEE. An Annual Report of the Society shall be printed for the use of its Members.

OF THE COMMITTEE.

XI. The COMMITTEE shall consist of the following, being members of the Established Church of England or of the Church of Ireland:—(a) Twenty-four Lay Members of the Society elected at the Annual Meeting. (b) All Clergymen who are Members of the Society and have been so for not less than one year. (c) All Honorary Governors for Life, and all such other Governors as have been so for not less than one year. In every year so many of the elected Members shall go out of office as, with the vacancies, if any, occurring among them during the preceding year, will make six vacancies, and shall not be re-eligible until the following year. The COMMITTEE shall decide which Members go out of office in each year.

XII. The COMMITTEE shall elect, at their First Meeting in every year, either from among themselves, or from the other Members of the Society (being members of the Established Church of England or of the Church of Ireland), a Committee of Patronage, a Committee of Funds and Home Organization, a Committee of Correspondence, a Committee of Finance, and a Committee of Estimates, and shall have power to fill up vacancies. Each of the said Committees shall keep Minutes of its Proceedings, and shall make such reports of its proceedings to the COMMITTEE as the COMMITTEE shall require.

XIII. The office of the Committee of Patronage is to procure patronage and support to the Society; and to nominate to the COMMITTEE proper persons as Patrons, President, Vice-Presidents, Honorary Life Governors, Honorary Life Members of the Society, and preachers of the Anniversary Sermons.

XIV. The office of the Committee of Funds and Home Organization is to circulate information respecting the Society; to adopt means of obtaining Subscriptions, Benefactions, and Collections in Churches, Chapels, and at Meetings; to take a general oversight of the Associations; and to nominate, from time to time, to the COMMITTEE, suitable persons to act as Agents and Representatives of the Society for these objects.

XV. The office of the Committee of Correspondence is, to seek for proper Missionaries, to nominate them to the COMMITTEE, to superintend their instruction when necessary, to recommend their location, and to correspond with them when sent out, and generally to direct the foreign work of the Society. Subject to the control of the COMMITTEE, the Committee of Correspondence may delegate any of their duties to Committees elected from among themselves, and may authorize such Committees to report directly to the COMMITTEE, and may fix their Quorum.

XVI. The office of the Committee of Finance is, generally, to superintend the accounts and financial affairs of the Society, and from time to time to note and to report to the COMMITTEE how far the expenditure corresponds with the sanctioned Estimates.

XVII. The office of the Committee of Estimates is, to prepare and submit to the COMMITTEE an estimate of the probable expenditure of the Society.

XVIII. The Committee of Correspondence shall appoint from among themselves, at their First Meeting in every year, a Clerical Sub-Committee, and may appoint at their discretion other Committees, for the examination of Missionary Candidates.

XIX. The COMMITTEE may make regulations as to the conduct of business by themselves and by the other Committees, and subject to and so far as not inconsistent with any such regulations for the time being in force, the COMMITTEE shall receive and deal with the Reports of the other Committees, shall decide upon the countries where Missions shall be carried on, and shall superintend and control the affairs of the Society in general. The COMMITTEE may authorize any Committee appointed under Law XII., and with the consent of the Committee of Correspondence any Committee appointed under Law XV. to deal with and dispose of any matters and classes of matters the consideration of which falls within its province, reporting its action to the next meeting of the COMMITTEE. Subject to the control of the COMMITTEE, every Committee may make Bye-laws for its own government, and may appoint Sub-Committees and fix their quorum.

XX. The COMMITTEE shall have power to appoint such Officers and Assistants as they shall deem necessary for the well-conducting of the affairs of the Society, subject, in the case of the appointment of Secretaries, to the approbation of the next Annual Meeting. One, at least, of the Secretaries shall be a layman. The COMMITTEE shall also have power to acquire property of every description for the purposes of the Society, and to invest the funds of the Society as they may deem expedient, and to vest all or any portions of the property and funds of the Society in such Trustee or Trustees, or corporate body, as they may in each case think fit.

XXI. The COMMITTEE shall meet on the second Tuesday in every month, and oftener if needful. The other Committees shall meet as often, and at such places, as shall be by them agreed on. All Committee Meetings shall be opened with reading a Form of Prayer composed for that purpose, or one or more suitable Prayers selected from the Liturgy.

XXII. The Patrons, Vice-Patron, President, Vice-Presidents, Treasurer and Secretaries shall be considered, ex officio, Members of all Committees.

XXIII. Five Members shall be necessary to form a Quorum of the COMMITTEE; and Three of each of the Committees provided for in Law XII.; in each case exclusive of the Secretaries. In cases of equality of votes, the Chairman shall be entitled to a second or casting vote. Every Committee may act notwithstanding vacancies.

XXIV. All payments on account of the Society shall be signed by Three Members of the COMMITTEE, in Committee, and the Lay Secretary, or in his absence by one of the other Secretaries.

XXV. The accounts of the Society shall be audited and reported upon by Public Accountants appointed by the COMMITTEE, and Five Honorary Auditors, Members of the Society (of whom not more than two shall be Members of the COMMITTEE), shall be appointed annually by the COMMITTEE for the purpose of considering the Reports of Public Accountants, and of making recommendations thereon, and generally on the Accounts to the COMMITTEE once at least in every year.

OF MISSIONARIES.

XXVI. Every offer for Missionary Service shall be referred by the Secretaries either to the Committee of Correspondence or in the first instance to the Clerical Sub-Committee or other Committee appointed under Law XVIII. to which it shall belong under rules laid down by the Committee of Correspondence; and the Committee of Correspondence shall have power to deal with the offer, both as to the training and as to the nomination as a Missionary of the Candidate. Provided that no one shall be sent out as a Missionary without having been approved by the Committee of Correspondence; and without, as a general rule, having appeared before them.

XXVII. Candidates nominated by the Committee of Correspondence, and accepted by the COMMITTEE, shall receive instruction in such parts of knowledge, and be prepared in such a manner for their future employment, as the Committee of Correspondence shall judge expedient.

XXVIII. Candidates shall consider themselves engaged to go to any part of the world, and at any time that the COMMITTEE shall decide, and be subject to such regulations as may be established by the COMMITTEE for the direction of the Missionaries: respect, however, being had to their personal circumstances, or to any previous stipulation made by them with the Society.

XXIX. Men who have been duly prepared and finally approved for Missionary work, shall go out, either ordained or unordained, at the discretion of the COMMITTEE.*

XXX. The Missionaries who go out under the direction of this Society shall be allowed to visit home, permission having been previously obtained from the COMMITTEE; and after having laboured in the cause of the Society, to the satisfaction of the COMMITTEE, at the Stations committed to their care, until age or infirmity prevent further exertion, such provision shall be made to render their remaining days comfortable as in the judgment of the COMMITTEE is suitable. The COMMITTEE shall have the power to assist also, in particular cases, the dependent Relatives of those Missionaries, who, by devoting themselves to the service of the Society, are prevented from contributing to their support. The COMMITTEE shall be further empowered in special cases to make such arrangements with those employed by them as they may think fit.

GENERAL.

XXXI. A friendly intercourse shall be maintained with other Protestant Societies engaged in the same benevolent design of propagating the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

XXXII. All questions relating to matters of Ecclesiastical Order and Discipline, respecting which a difference shall arise between a Bishop of the Church of England abroad and the COMMITTEE, shall, in the absence of any tribunal having legal cognizance of the same, be referred to the Archbishops and Bishops of the Provinces of Canterbury and York, whose decision thereupon shall be binding upon the Society and its agents, and representatives. The proposed reference shall be made by the COMMITTEE, through His Grace the Primate, accompanied by such explanations and statements as the COMMITTEE may deem advisable.

XXXIII. The object of the preceding Law being only to provide a mode of settling questions relating to Ecclesiastical Order and Discipline as to which no provision has yet been made by the Society, it is not to be so construed, as in any other respect to alter the principles and practices of the Society, as they are contained in its Laws and Regulations.

XXXIV. It is recommended to every Member of the Society to pray to Almighty God for a blessing upon its designs; under the full conviction that, unless He 'prevent us, in all our doings, with His most gracious favour, and further us with His continual help,' the Society cannot reasonably hope to meet with persons of a proper spirit and qualifications to be Missionaries, or expect their endeavours to be crowned with success.

* The Bishops of the Church of England under the authority of the law of the land ordain and send forth [ecclesiastically speaking] the Society's Missionaries; and in the event of their being appointed by the COMMITTEE to labour at stations within the jurisdiction of a Bishop of the Church of England abroad, it is the practice of the Society to apply to the Bishop for licenses in which are specified the districts to which the Missionaries have been assigned. This is done on the understanding that licenses will neither be refused nor when granted be withdrawn from the Missionaries during their connexion with the Society, except for some assigned legal cause.

No. of Stations, European Missionaries, Native Clergy, and Medical Work.

STATIONS, CLERICAL AND LAY MISSIONARIES, BUSINESS AGENTS, AND NATIVE CLERGYMEN,

ON JUNE 1, 1906.

 A STATION is the place at which a Clerical or Lay Missionary is stationed, or at which there are native Christians under the superintendence of a Native Ordained Pastor in connexion with the Society. The post-town of each Station, when it is known, is given in parenthesis after the name of the Station in the following list, except in cases where the Station is itself a post-town. Where not otherwise stated, it may be assumed that the Stations which are indented have the same post-town as the main Stations under which they are placed. In Palestine, where there is no delivery of letters, it is desirable to address letters intended for the Stations which are indented to the "care of" one of the missionaries at the main Station. The figures immediately after the name of the station or post-town refer to the year in which it was first occupied by a European Missionary.

The figures after the Names of the European Labourers show the year of their first sailing for the Society's Missions, or of their reception into connexion in the field. Their University or College is indicated thus: Oxford, 'Oxf.'; Cambridge, 'Camb.'; Dublin, 'Dub.'; Durham, 'Dur.'; Edinburgh, 'Edin.'; Glasgow, 'Glas.'; London, 'Lond.'; Archbishop of Canterbury's Degree, 'Lamb.'; Islington, 'Isl.'; London College of Divinity, 'Lond. Coll. Div.'; King's College, London, 'K.C.L.' After the names of men trained at the Society's Preparatory Institution, formerly at Clapham, but now at Blackheath, the word 'Clapham' or 'Blackheath' is placed. In the case of ladies trained at 'The Willows,' Stoke Newington, at 'The Olives,' South Hampstead, or at the Society's Highbury Training Home, the words 'The Willows,' 'The Olives,' or 'Highbury,' occur after their names. The letter D. after the name of an ordained man, whether European or native, indicates that he was a Deacon at the above date. The word 'Nurse' after the name of a Missionary denotes that she is a trained nurse.

The terms 'Hon.' and 'partly Hon.,' in parenthesis, after the name of a Missionary, mean that such Missionary draws no allowances, or only a portion of the usual allowances. Where Missionaries are supported wholly or partly, as regards personal allowances, from contributions to the Society's funds appropriated to that use by individual friends of the Society, or by Associations or other bodies, the fact is indicated. In the case of the Colonial Associations (N. S. Wales = New South Wales, Vict. = Victoria, New Z. = New Zealand) the Missionaries have been selected, and, when necessary, also trained by the Associations, by which likewise they are supported in the field. In nearly all the instances referred to the Society is responsible for all other than personal allowances, as well as for the expenditure which is involved in the maintenance of the work.

*This mark * denotes that the Missionaries to whose names it is prefixed are in Local Connexion, i.e. that their offers of service were accepted by the Society's representatives in the several Missions.*

The Names of native Clergymen are printed in Italics. The figures after their names show the date of ordination as Deacon. The mark ‡ denotes that the name to which it is prefixed is that of an Agent supported by Native Church Funds, which are in most instances aided by the Society.

The Maiden Names of Wives of European Missionaries, and the year of marriage, when known, are given in parenthesis. In the case of each lady who was a Missionary of the Society before marriage, the Mission in which she laboured and the year of joining it are given; and in the case of ladies who were Missionaries of other Societies, the initials indicating the Society ('C.E.Z.M.S.' = Church of England Zenana Missionary Society; 'Z.B.M.M.' = Zenana Bible and Medical Mission; 'F.E.S.' = the late Female Education Society) are given, as well as the country and year of joining. Wives of Missionaries are always expected by the Society to lay themselves out to do good among the native women in every practicable way, such as by cultivating familiar intercourse with them, educating children, and instructing the adult women.

The Names of all Missionaries in the field are placed under the station at which they were working on June 1st, 1906. The Names of those who on that date were at home or on the way home or on the way out are placed under the station at which they last resided, unless, in the case of those on the way out, they have been definitely assigned to some other station. The Names under each station are printed in order of date, without reference to nationality, sex, orders, or other difference; except that the Secretaries of Missions are placed first in order at the Stations where they reside, and wives of Missionaries are placed immediately after their husbands.

PROCEEDINGS AT THE ONE-HUNDRED-AND-SEVENTH ANNIVERSARY.

At the Annual Meeting of the Church Missionary Society, held at Exeter Hall, London, Tuesday, May 1st, 1906, being the Society's One-Hundred-and-Seventh Anniversary,

THE RIGHT HON. SIR JOHN H. KENNAWAY, BART., C.B., M.P.,

President, in the Chair,

AFTER READING OF SCRIPTURE AND PRAYER,

"The General Review of the Year" was read, after which, on a motion by the Most Rev. the Lord Archbishop of Rupert's Land, seconded by the Right Hon. the Viscount Midleton, it was resolved—

That the General Review of the Year which has just been read, together with the Report, of which an abstract has been presented, be adopted, printed, and circulated under the direction of the Committee; that the thanks of the Meeting be given to the Rev. Canon Denton Thompson, for his Sermon before the Society last evening, and that it be printed and circulated; that Colonel Robert Williams, M.P., be the Treasurer of the Society; that the Committee be appointed for the ensuing year, with power to fill vacancies; and further, that this Meeting, gratefully and humbly acknowledging the goodness of God in the increased funds, and especially in a larger number of offers of service than in any previous year, would regard these facts, together with the expanding opportunities and urgent claims of the non-Christian World, as evidences of the Divine will that the Society should vigorously press forward in the work of Evangelization, and they call upon all its friends for earnest efforts to promote greater self-sacrifice in the Lord's cause and for continued prayer that a larger number of workers more particularly suited to be leaders and trainers may be raised up of God to encourage the development of indigenous Churches in the Mission Field.

The following Meetings were also held in London on the same day in connexion with the Anniversary:—

At KING'S HALL, Holborn, W.C., at 3.30 p.m., for Ladies, the Right Rev. Bishop Ingham in the Chair.

At ROYAL ALBERT HALL, South Kensington, at 7 p.m., the Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Winchester in the Chair.

And on May 2nd, at KING'S HALL, Holborn, W. C., at 7 p.m. (Medical Mission Auxiliary), Sir W. Mackworth Young in the Chair.

Addresses were delivered at these Meetings by the Rev. Canon Sutton, the Rev. F. S. Webster, the Rev. J. W. Balding (Ceylon), the Rev. A. E. Ball (Punjab), the Rev. G. R. Blackledge (Uganda), the Rev. C. W. A. Clarke (S. India), the Rev. E. Guilford (Punjab), the Rev. A. J. Hall (British Columbia), the Rev. A. Iliff (S. China), the Rev. J. F. Pemberton (United Provinces, India), the Rev. W. G. Walshe (Mid China), the Rev. J. J. Willis (Uganda), Dr. T. Jays (Yoruba), Dr. Arthur Lankester (Punjab), Mrs. A. J. Hall (British Columbia), Miss E. M. Furley (Uganda), Miss M. Maude, Miss M. Vaughan (Mid China), and Miss A. F. Wright (United Provinces, India).

THE ANNUAL SERMON,

Preached at St. Bride's Church, Fleet Street, on Monday, April 30th, 1906,

BY THE

REV. CANON DENTON THOMPSON, M.A.,

Rector of Birmingham and Rural Dean of Birmingham (Central).

'JESUS THEREFORE, LIFTING UP HIS EYES AND SEEING THAT A GREAT MULTITUDE COMETH UNTO HIM, SAITH UNTO PHILIP, WHENCE ARE WE TO BUY BREAD, THAT THESE MAY EAT?' 'I AM THE LIVING BREAD.'—St. John vi. 5, 51 (R.V.).

THE Christ of history is the Miracle of miracles. Every effort to explain His person and power by natural processes has failed. Not only is there nothing in the age in which He lived to account for His sublime personality and teaching, but His life and doctrine were in direct opposition to the religious tendencies of His day. Jesus Christ is not the production of Judaism, nor has He been reproduced by Christianity. In the glory of His person and the greatness of His power He stands absolutely and admittedly unique in the history of the world. But Christ is also the Problem of problems, no less than the Miracle of miracles. Every attempt to solve the problem of the historical Jesus, other than by the solution He Himself offered, has failed. To deny the veracity of the records is only to add to its complexity, for if Christ be the hero of fiction, and an inventor be greater than his hero, the question must then be answered, Who invented Jesus? Who could be greater than Christ? To accept the teaching of Jesus and reject His miracles is, again, not to solve the problem, for not only are the records of His life historically a complete whole, but to believe in what He taught and disbelieve in what He did, is surely to accept the greater miracle while rejecting the less. The only solution of the problem of Jesus Christ is, therefore, to be found in His own self-consciousness, as interpreted by His claims, illustrated in His character, and demonstrated by His words and works. He is, what He affirmed Himself to be—the incarnate Son of God, the representative Son of Man, the divine-human Saviour of the World.

But the Christ of history is the Christ of experience. The claims of Jesus have been confirmed by the history of the Christian Church, and are ratified in the experience of the individual Christian. For Christ is not dead. He is risen. The living Lord lives not only in the Church, the Society of believers, but also in the heart of every individual who believes. Faith in Jesus Christ unquestionably implies fellowship with Him, and as this fellowship involves life, so the life develops by experience, and finally issues in assurance. We 'know Him Whom we have believed,' and by this knowledge we know that the records are true. We believe in the miracles of the Gospels because we believe in Christ, the Miracle of miracles.

From the rationality of our faith in the supernatural character of Christ's person and the naturalness of His supernatural works, let us now turn to the Scriptural definition of the miraculous with a view of justifying the structure of the sermon and the purpose of the preacher. According to the New Testament, the miracles of Christ were 'wonders,' 'mighty works,' and 'signs.' They were 'wonders,' or exceptional interventions of unknown laws; they were 'mighty works,' or evidential demonstrations of divine power; they were also 'signs,' or material illustrations of spiritual truths.

That the miracle of the feeding of the five thousand was pre-eminently a 'sign,' an acted parable of the first importance, is, I think, proved (a) by the fact that it is the only miracle recorded by the four evangelists; (b) that in each Gospel it is placed at what Godet calls 'The Apogee of the Galilean ministry'; (c) that it appears to have been an exception to Christ's normal course of action—or, if we may say so, an unnecessary miracle; and not least (d) by the reference to 'the passover' in connexion with the sacrificial terms, 'Jesus took the loaves and blessed and brake and gave to His disciples,' suggesting that if the sacrament were not in sight, the Lord was looking forward to the death of which it is at once the remembrance and the communion. Believing therefore, as I do, that the event we are about to consider was not only a 'sign,' as were all other miracles, but that it was wrought for a special prophetic purpose, no apology is needed for an interpretation which assumes that the whole miracle, in all its parts, was permeated with symbolism.

With these introductory thoughts, let us, in dependence upon the Divine Spirit, consider some of the lessons of the 'sign' with special reference to the work of Foreign Missions.

Our first united act, preliminary and yet necessary, must be to definitely withdraw ourselves from the world without, and consciously draw near to the Lord, even now in our midst.

Fellowship is the condition of knowledge, and only as we are in full communion with Christ can we see what He saw, feel what He felt, and do what He did. It is surely not without significance that St. John wrote, 'When Jesus lifted up His eyes He saw,' involving the inference that it was the Master Who first saw, and the disciples only as their eyes followed His. It may be assumed that with sin confessed and forgiven, with prayer offered and answered, with Scripture read and heard, with praise rendered and accepted, in the order of this service, there is, of necessity, nothing to hinder our full communion with the Lord; and yet, even though this be so, there is a real need for a personal and definite act, by which each one of us, in union with Christ, and because of this union, shall 'lift up our eyes' from things personal and parochial, from ourselves and our needs, to see the sight on the plains of Bethsaida Julias, as a 'sign' of a yet greater vision to which it points.

(a) 'When Jesus lifted up His eyes He saw a great multitude coming unto Him.' Many people were coming from many quarters and with many motives. Some were coming by the land and some by the lake, some were 'running' eager in spirit and strong in body, and some hindered by sickness were advancing but slowly towards Him. Some were coming to see the miracles He did on them that were diseased, some to know more of the doctrine He taught, and some, infected by the epidemic of enthusiasm now fast spreading amongst the people, were coming because others came.

What Jesus saw we may see. The great movements which are confessedly taking place in the world are, to the eye of faith, all tending directly and indirectly towards Christ. Modern forces are stimulating and fostering inquiry, and not least on matters religious. If, e.g., we limit our thoughts to civilization, education, and colonization, it is not difficult to trace how these three great social powers are being overruled by God to the furtherance of the Gospel. The impact of Western civilization, the extension of modern education, and the development of British colonization have produced and are producing in the heathen world tremendous consequences, not only in shaking the foundations of ethnic creeds and shattering the fabrics of false religions, but also in awakening an extending and deepening desire to know more of the faith of Christ. Humanity in general shrinks from the absurdities of atheism, and cannot permanently rest in the negations of agnosticism. Man is naturally spiritual, and if he loses faith in one religion, seeks, it may be unconsciously, for another. It is in this way that widespread movements which have, as we believe, Jesus for their objective are taking place in all parts of the non-Christian world. Who can doubt that, through all these mundane forces, the will of God is operating, that the Divine Spirit is brooding over the chaos and darkness of a sin-stricken world, and that the Almighty word, 'Let there be light,' is going forth to the ends of the earth?

But greater than all indirect agencies initiating such movements is the potency of missionary work. From every part of the foreign field the testimony is forthcoming that, in addition to the ordinary work of conversion to Christ, there is spreading far and wide amongst heathen and Mohammedan peoples a readiness to hear, a willingness to learn, and, still more, an eagerness to know the Gospel. Even as we can well imagine, the mission of the Apostles to the cities and villages of Galilee, from which they had but recently returned, had contributed in no small degree to swell the multitudes on the plains of Bethsaida Julias, so no one acquainted with the facts can doubt that the heroic lives and faithful work of Christian missionaries is the greatest force in originating and accelerating these world movements towards the Christ.

What Jesus saw we may see, even a great multitude coming to Him, and coming, thank God, from every form of non-Christian faith, as well as from every part of the heathen world. If evidence of the existence of such movements as I have ventured to indicate be desired, we may refer to the utterances of Moslem and Hindu leaders, to the confessions of the native non-Christian press, to the testimonies of Christian civilians, as well as of Anglican and American missionaries; or we may point to the Brahmo Somaj and the Arya Somaj amongst the Hindus, the Aligarh movement amongst the Mohammedans, the reforming societies of China, the Christian-Buddhists, and the Shinto-Christians of Japan; or again we may turn to the general disintegration of religions, wholly false or partially true, which is everywhere augmenting the number of those who are seeking after God if haply they may find Him.

(b) The effect of the vision on the heart of Christ is described in words which reveal the nature of His inmost being—'He was moved with compassion.' The infinite tenderness of His divine pity was touched with the feeling of their infirmities, even though the Lord knew that carnal desires and worldly motives were operating in producing the results He witnessed.

What Jesus felt we must feel. The 'love which is shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Ghost' is the 'love divine, all love excelling,' the love which compassionates the Christless multitudes as they move towards the Saviour of the World, and pities most those who, coming with selfish motives, or even not coming at all, have little or no pity upon themselves. It is said that the lower animals have feeling, and that man alone has the faculty of fellow-feeling. Whether this is so I know not, but this I know, that when the natural instinct of sympathy is reinforced with the divine compassion we have most of the mind of Christ. Oh, for a baptism of the divine world-embracing love! Oh, for an outpouring of the pity of God! Oh, that our hearts may be 'moved' by the sympathy of Jesus, as to-day we see multitudes coming, and still greater multitudes not yet coming unto Him.

(c) But if the eye affects the heart, the heart controls the life. 'When Jesus saw, He was moved with compassion,' and consequently He did three things, preparatory to a fourth. He 'received' or rather welcomed the multitudes, even though they had thwarted His purposes, broken in upon His seclusion, and robbed Him of His retirement. He 'healed their sick,' and in manifesting His concern for their physical health He not only demonstrated His authority over all forms of disease, but also illustrated the renewing power of His saving health. He 'taught them many things,' speaking to them of the Kingdom of God, the setting up of which involved the breaking down of the kingdom of evil, the casting out of the prince of this world, and the deliverance of them that were bound. But the 'welcoming,' the 'healing,' and the 'teaching' were all preparing the way for the feeding which, on that day, was to be for them His final work, and which, notwithstanding all difficulties, He had determined to accomplish.

What Jesus did we must do. The multitudes which are emerging from the darkness of Heathenism, and coming towards Him Who is the Light of the World, must be welcomed, healed, taught, and fed with the Living Bread. How are we 'receiving' these great world movements, and the people who form them? What are our feelings when we see or hear of opening doors, extending missions, and enlarging opportunities? Do we welcome the urgent appeals for increased funds, the various suggestions for augmented resources, the solemn warnings if we fail to do and give more? Are we going forth, as did our Lord, to 'tenderly welcome' the great company coming unto Him? Again, are we sending forth medical missionaries—doctors and nurses—in anything like the proportion in which they are needed? Do we adequately realize the potency of this Christlike method of missionary effort? Is the Church, as a whole, convinced that the best way of disarming prejudices, awakening sympathies, and winning souls is by tending the weak, nursing the suffering, and healing the sick? Once more, are there any who still think little of teaching missionaries or educational missions? Do any to-day esteem lightly those who, not called to the work of an evangelist, are nevertheless patiently and successfully toiling for Christ in our orphanages, schools, and colleges? If any such there be, let them remember the Master's own method of work, and revise their opinions of efforts which are not always appreciated at their full value.

And yet, as we all believe, the 'welcome,' the 'healing,' the 'teaching' were then, and are now, but preparatory stages to the final work of 'feeding' the multitudes. Personal welcomes, medical missions, educational efforts—necessary as they all are—are not sufficient. The Heathen must be fed with Him Who is the Bread of Life. The living Christ must be proclaimed in all the fulness of His power to a dying World.

We have now reached the three main thoughts illustrated in the miracle which are especially applicable to the occasion which brings us together to-day:—The necessities of the World—The responsibilities of the Church—The opportunities of the age.

I. The Necessities of the World are expressed in the sign language of the miracle by the words, 'Whence shall we buy bread, that these may eat?' It is not suggested that the multitudes were without some supplies, or that they were all consciously in need of food, but the eye of Christ looked beyond the present to the future, behind the physical to the spiritual. He knew that if not at the moment, certainly later on, their own provisions would fail, and that He, and He alone, could satisfy the hunger they would by-and-by experience.

As to-day we 'lift up our eyes' and look upon the movements taking place in the world, we admit that all who are coming to Christ are not necessarily conscious of their need of a Saviour. We recognize that they who are thus conscious form but a small number in comparison with the non-seeking millions. But we firmly believe that what bread is to the body, Christ is to the soul; that while hunger expresses necessity, yet necessity may exist without hunger; and that as the body without food must die, so the soul without Christ cannot live. All the necessities, conscious or unconscious, of the multitudes in the desert of Bethsaida Julias were summed up by the Lord in the one word—'bread.' Even so, in the spiritual interpretation of the sign, all the necessities of the heathen world, apart altogether from questions as to the nature of their religious supplies, or the condition of their spiritual consciousness, are expressed in the one word—Christ.

It is sometimes argued by non-Christians among us that the heathen world is not hungering, or at least is not hungering for Christ, and that, therefore, foreign missionary work is but lost labour, wasted money, and needless sacrifice. But surely every bended knee, every uplifted eye, every temple of religion, every altar of sacrifice, every act of worship, is an expression of the natural hunger of the soul for God. The universality of the religious consciousness proves that the soul, like the body, does not and cannot live a self-contained life. Indeed, that which we call hunger is at once the evidence of the presence of death, and the expression of the desire for life. We know that every movement of the body destroys some portion of the muscles employed, every thought involves a death in the brain, yet such is the constitution of the physical organism, 'fearfully and wonderfully made,' that, conscious of the inroad of death, it craves for the incoming of life. In other words, the body hungers for food because it is dying and yet wants to live. If we think of the spiritual in terms of the material, what, we ask, is this universal hunger for the unseen, this natural desire for the divine? Is it not the truth of the Bible ratified (a) that man made in the image of his Maker can only live in fellowship with God, (b) that 'all have sinned,' and (c) that 'the wages of sin is death'? For what is death but separation? Even as the body disunited from the soul is dead, so the soul separated from God cannot live. And if death be separation, then life is fellowship. Only as the body has fellowship with food by eating can it live and not die. Only as the soul has fellowship with Christ by believing can it not die, but live. In other words, the universal religious consciousness proclaims, what the Bible affirms, that the souls of men are dying on account of sin, and yet crave for fellowship with God that they may live.

Further, the physical necessities of the multitudes as defined in the 'bread' illustrate the spiritual necessities of the heathen world as expressed in the Christ. What bread is to the body, Christ is to the soul. Only as the body receives the bread, which is life, can it be saved from death. Only as Christ, 'the living Bread,' is accepted by the dying soul, can it live.

(1) The Bread is the personal Christ. 'I am the Bread'—not My teaching, but Myself. The necessities of the heathen world cannot be met by the Church, nor the Sacrament, nor the Bible, nor the Gospel, save only as they are the means of bringing Christ to the soul, the soul to Christ. Jesus, and Jesus only, is the Bread.

(2) The Bread is the divine Christ. 'I am the Bread of God,' 'the Bread from heaven.' The personal Christ is not only the Bread which God provides, but also that in which He is satisfied, and therefore that which is alone able to satisfy the divine in man. No earthly supply can meet the needs of a heavenly nature. Man was made for God, and only in fellowship with God can he truly live.

(3) The Bread is the human Christ. 'The Bread is My flesh'—My humanity. Neither bread in heaven nor bread from heaven can satisfy the spiritual necessities of the human race.

The life divine must come to man through 'the man Christ Jesus.'

(4) The Bread is the universal Christ. 'The bread is My flesh, which I will give for the life of the world.' The manna of the Old Covenant was only for one people. The Manna of the New Covenant is for all nations. The whole world is in need of Christ. Christ is for the needs of the whole world.

(5) The Bread is the sacrificial Christ. 'The bread is My flesh, which I will give for the life of the world.' 'Except ye eat the flesh of the Son of Man, and drink His blood, ye have no life in you.' The flesh is here viewed as about to be given in sacrifice, separated into flesh and blood, and 'by this separation of its parts a violent death is presupposed' (Westcott). The divine-human Christ must die 'for the life of the world.'

(6) The Bread is the risen Christ. 'I am the living Bread,' 'the Bread of life.' He Who was dead is alive for evermore, and in the power of His resurrection He imparts the life He inherently possesses.

(7) The Bread is the indwelling Christ. 'If any man eat of this bread, he shall live for ever.' 'Whoso eateth My flesh and drinketh My blood hath eternal life.' The personal act of appropriation results in the possession of Him Who is 'our life.' 'Christ in us' is the 'hope of glory.' 'I live' because 'Christ liveth in me.'

This, the personal Christ, the divine Christ, the human Christ, the dying Christ, the living Christ, the indwelling Christ, is 'the true bread.' He, and He only, can satisfy the hungering heart of humanity. He and none but He can give life to the dying souls of men. Christ, and Christ alone, embodies all the supply for the necessities of the world.

II. The Responsibilities of the Church.—The question of Christ which defined the necessities of the multitudes, also implied the responsibilities of Himself and the disciples. 'Whence shall we buy bread, that these may eat?' Bread they need, and what they need it is our duty to supply. Unless the question of the text means this, it means nothing. And yet, as we all know, it can mean nothing but this. The responsibilities of the Church to the world therefore find in the miracle-parable a powerful and suggestive illustration in three ways.

(1) The responsibility involves co-operation. 'Whence shall we'—that is, the Master with the disciples, and the disciples with each other. Christ and the Church are, if we may so say, jointly responsible for the needs of the world. Not Christ without the Church, nor the Church without Christ. The Head working through the members of His body, and the members working with each other as 'holding the Head.' Whatever agencies of a spiritual nature are employed by God in respect to the heathen world, or however He may work directly by the Holy Ghost on the souls of mankind, our responsibility is clear, definite, and unmistakable. We are bound by the terms of our profession, by the purpose of our re-creation, and by the command of our Master, to give to the multitudes who are hungering, or, if not hungering, are still needing the Bread of Life.

(2) The responsibility involves sacrifice. 'Whence shall we buy bread?' To 'buy' is surely to give up, to lay down, to exchange, and in the case before us, to give up that we may give out; to lay down that we may take up; to exchange that others may share thereby in the blessings we enjoy. Only by sacrifice can the work be done. He would 'buy.' With the price of His life-blood He would purchase the power to save a lost world. He would 'give up Himself,' 'lay down His life,' that He might become the living Bread for a dying world. They too must 'buy,' and we with them must be ready to give up things we have, powers we possess, treasures we prize, gifts we love, yea, we must be ready to give up ourselves, it may be to 'lay down our lives,' that the hungry may be fed and the dying souls of men saved.

(3) The responsibility involves necessity. It would appear that the question of my text was asked somewhat early in the day, and as the night drew on, the disciples, having doubtless conferred upon the difficulty, had come to the conclusion that they had no responsibilities because the task was beyond their resources. They came, therefore, to the Master with the suggestion that He would 'send the multitudes away.' But their only solution to the problem set in the morning was one which the Lord refused to accept. 'Give ye them to eat' was the fiat which proclaimed the unavoidableness of the duty. It is this imperativeness of our responsibilities to the heathen world that we need to develop in the consciousness of the Church. The duty rests not upon some, but upon all who name the Name of Christ. The work of Foreign Missions is not the work of some of the clergy, but of all; not of some of the laity, but of all. And yet there are, sad to say, clergy in our deaneries and dioceses, and people in our congregations and parishes, who give nothing to, and do nothing for, the sacred cause of Foreign Missions, who are apparently contented to leave a dying world to die, while they shamelessly seek to feed themselves on the living Bread. Are we all in this church deeply convinced, really conscious of our individual duty, our personal responsibility to the perishing Heathen? If so—and God grant it!—let us to-day as never before realize a further responsibility, our duty not only to the world without, but to the Church within, to those in it who are cold and callous, idle and indifferent, lukewarm and lazy. Let us seek by every means in our power to arouse their consciences, inform their minds, quicken their wills, and inflame their hearts until every Christian is doing his or her best to give the living Bread to the hungry, to save the dying from death. On every hand there is unquestionably a great and growing need for missionaries on behalf of mission work. If we cannot all labour in the missionary field abroad, we can all work for the missionary cause at home. Let us then each do his or her part, by prayer and effort, to make our fellow-Churchmen feel their imperative and unavoidable responsibilities to the heathen world.

III. The Opportunities of the Age.—If for one moment we recall the knowledge the disciples had of the power of the Master—their experience both of His character and miracles—and compare it with their conduct in not seeing that both the question and its form were suggestive of a great opportunity, we feel disposed to condemn them as men of little faith. And yet the thought of judgment makes us pause and ask, 'Who art thou that judgest another and doest the same things?' In the dulness of our blinded sight how we have missed and are missing opportunities infinitely greater than those the disciples were in danger of losing, opportunities which have reference (1) to the world, (2) to the Lord, and (3) to ourselves.

(1) There is the opportunity of feeding the multitudes. As the shadows lengthened and night-clouds gathered, what would have happened on the plains of Bethsaida if the opportunity of feeding the hungry had been lost? That they would have fainted by the way we know. Beyond that we can say nothing. On the other hand, the joy unspeakable of the disciples as they dispensed the miraculous supply of the Master cannot be imagined, let alone described. What, my brethren, is the opportunity presented to us to-day by the condition of the world? It is not only that there are so many evidences of a wide-spread desire on the part of non-Christian nations for the knowledge of Christ, but the political pre-eminence of our own country gives to us an influence unpossessed by any other nation, while the greatness of our Empire, unprecedented in the history of the world, still further enlarges the opportunities which God has given to us. But above and beyond the political and imperial advantages, ought we not to reckon amongst our opportunities the privileges we enjoy as members of England's National Church? This dear old Church, with its primitive polity and Scriptural doctrine, with its historic prestige and established position, with its reviving life and extending work, is pre-eminently fitted for the preaching of the Gospel to the uttermost parts of the earth. But have we no further opportunity in the character of our own Church Missionary Society, faithful to the evangelical principles of the New Testament, favoured in the possession of devoted and experienced leaders, and blessed with an army of consecrated men and women pledged to the fulness and simplicity of the Gospel?

These are but some of the opportunities which, as it seems to me, supply us with the priceless means of dispensing the Bread of Life to hungry hearts, of proclaiming the living Christ to dying souls. And what shall be the result on the Heathen, or the loss to ourselves, if with such opportunities we fail to do the will of God, if we disobey the command of Christ, if the hungry are not fed, if we leave the Heathen to perish?

(2) There is the opportunity of revealing Christ. However confused was the people's conception of Jesus, and whatever was their opinion concerning Him before the miracle, we are not left in doubt as to its effect upon their minds when they saw the loaves multiplied by the might of nature's Lord—'Then those men, when they had seen the miracle which Jesus did, said, This is of a truth the Prophet that cometh into the world'; and later, in the carnal enthusiasm begotten by the miracle, they sought 'by force to make Him King.' And when we think of Christ and Whose Son He is, when we look back and see the exceeding great love of His incarnate life and His redemptive death, when we look around and see a thousand millions still unevangelized in the twentieth century after Christ, when we look up and see our Priest King interceding on the Throne, waiting until all enemies shall be put under His feet, shall we not hasten to the fulfilment of His purpose, to the accomplishment of our mission, to the opportunity of making Christ and His salvation known to every creature? Only by so doing can we disperse the clouds and mists which hide the glory of Christ from the heathen mind, and reveal in all His majestic grace and power our anointed Prophet, Priest, and King.

(3) There is the opportunity of enriching the Church. It is not suggested that the disciples imagined what the result of their obedience would be to themselves, that in the end they would possess more than they had at the beginning; and yet the significance of the 'twelve baskets full' with the fragments of the 'five barley loaves' cannot be overlooked if we would learn all the lessons the Master would teach by the miracle. We have that we may give. As we give we receive. 'There is that scattereth and yet increaseth.'

> 'We lose what on ourselves we spend,
> We have as treasure without end
> Whatever, Lord, to Thee we lend.'

The effort of faith involved in the obedience of the disciples was greater than we sometimes suppose, but how great was their reward even in view of their own needs! For the sake of the multitude they had given their all to the Master, and when the work was done each had his basket full. We do not impoverish, we only enrich the Church at home by giving to the work abroad. We do not lose, but gain by supporting Foreign Missions. The best, surest, and quickest method of increasing our own supplies is to supply the needs of the heathen world. No person and no parish will ever suffer loss by dispensing the Bread of Life to the necessitous multitudes. Nay rather, the experience of individuals and of congregations proves that in the obedience of faith is the reward of obedience, and that this reward is an abundant increase of the things we give.

The necessities were defined, the responsibilities enforced, and the opportunities implied, and now the work upon which the Lord had set His heart must begin—but how? (a) In the first place He calls for an examination of their resources. 'How many loaves have ye?' 'Go and see.' Andrew, as the spokesman of the rest of the disciples, returns with the result, 'There is a lad here with five barley loaves and two small fishes,' adding with the despairing note of unbelief, 'What are they among so many?' The command of Christ had, however, at least shown to the Apostle that even though they had not 'two hundred pennyworth of bread,' they were not without some supplies. It is true that, reckoning without the power of their Master, the conclusion to which they had come was not unreasonable, but they had yet to learn how great the little things of life become when they pass through the hands of the Lord. (b) After examination, therefore, must come consecration. 'Bring them hither to Me.' In your hands they are useless, but give even the things which appear to you less than nothing to Me and you shall see what I can do with them. (c) The consecration is followed by organization. 'Make the people sit down.' Prepare by an orderly arrangement for that which is to take place. Divide the men from the women and children. The women will watch over the children, and the men can take care of themselves. Then arrange them in rows of fifties and hundreds to prevent any confusion and overlapping. (d) This done and the benediction follows. The Hand which gives the seed for the harvest and raises the harvest from the seed, dispenses the miraculously increasing loaves to the disciples. Thus they were privileged to co-operate with Him and rejoice in His joy as the necessities of the multitude were supplied by His benediction on their offerings.

(a) We, too, must begin with an examination of our resources. 'How many loaves have ye?' Count your blessings and you will find they cannot be numbered. Reckon up your mercies and they will defy all human arithmetic. Reflect upon the Lord's doing for you and it will surprise you what the Lord hath done. But even supposing that the accurate knowledge obtained by examination discloses how little we have to give, or that we can do but little. Be it so, the lad in the original is a 'little lad,' and the five loaves were 'barley loaves'—few in number, poor in quality, and small in size. Only five loaves for 5,000 men, not including the women and children! and these not wheaten but barley loaves, i.e. the bread of the poor, and though described as loaves they might more correctly be called cakes! Surely if ever an examination revealed a meagre result, it was on this occasion. A little lad with little loaves and little fishes, in quantity and in quality alike poor! This was all the disciples possessed or at the moment could even obtain for the great responsibility to which they were called.

(b) But even if it must be granted that our strength is small and our time limited, that our means are narrow and our powers few, let the knowledge of our resources be followed by consecration. Let us hear the voice of Jesus saying, 'Bring them hither to Me.' In view of the spiritual necessities of the world, the living Lord is calling to-day for the consecration of ourselves, our souls and bodies, our powers and possessions, to Him and His service. We must not disobey the command lest we forfeit the blessings that will follow. We must not ignore the call lest we miss the privileges which will be ours. However little we may have, however poor may be our powers, however small are our possessions, let us bring them all, and all of them, to Christ. Little or great are, after all, relative terms. It is the little key that opens the great gate. Big doors swing on small hinges. A seed may raise a harvest. A word may save—or lose—an Empire. As an actuality a thing may be ridiculously small and yet its potentiality may be incalculably great. In itself it may be infinitesimally little, yet in its relations it may prove inestimably great. Radium consists of a few grains of mystery, yet what potency is involved in the grains! It is not, therefore, a question whether we are great or small, rich or poor, many or few, but whether, being what we are, and having what we have, we will bring all to Christ. Unconsecrated—we can only remain what we are and retain what we have; nay, we shall assuredly cease to be what we are and lose even what we have. Consecrated—who shall say what the least of us may become in character, influence, and power? If a little lad with little loaves and little fishes consecrated to Christ became the instrumentality by which He prepared a table in the wilderness, if 'five barley loaves and two small fishes' in the hand of Christ fed thousands of men, women, and children, who can estimate the result if we all, here and now, devote ourselves without reserve to the Lord and His service? Whoever you may be and whatever you may have, I implore you in the name of God and for the sake of the Heathen to bring all to Christ that He may use you to feed the hungry and save the dying. I beseech you to remember that it is not what we are in ourselves, but what in Christ's hands we may become, not what we have, but what He will do through us and ours if only we will bring all to Him.

(c) To those who by experience have proved the practical value of organization, it will not be necessary to appeal that it should follow or rather express the spirit of consecration. If we have really devoted ourselves to Christ, our uppermost desire must be to do our work in the best possible way, and is not the best the Master's own method? To organize is to call into action, and to train for the work, those who exhibit capacity or express desire for service. The choice of workers must, of course, precede their training, but instruction, including encouragement, should follow the selection. The Lord had already chosen the twelve and now He gave them such instructions as secured that their co-operation would be systematic. He made the men sit down that none might be missed. He distributed to the disciples that all might be used. He gathered up the fragments that remained that nothing might be lost. Christ was a Master of method. In all our work, and not least for Foreign Missions, we might and would accomplish greater results with better organization. As clergy we might do more if we used more freely the laity. As laity we might do more if we helped more fully the clergy. As clergy and laity we might all do more for Christ if we had more method in our work. Certainly no parochial organization can be considered complete without it includes men and women chosen, instructed, and encouraged to work for the sacred cause of Foreign Missions.

(d) We are now prepared for the crowning act of the miraculous 'sign'—the benediction of Christ. 'Jesus took the loaves, and when He had given thanks, He blessed and brake and gave to His disciples.' Then followed the putting forth of divine power by which the consecrated offerings were mysteriously multiplied, and the multitudes did all eat and were filled. Every soul was more than satisfied; not one was sent hungry away. Organization is of no avail unless we seek and find in it, and through it, the benediction of the Master. Apart from Christ we can do nothing. There is nothing Christ cannot do through us. Without His blessing all our efforts will fail. We must succeed if He blesses our efforts. Nor can we doubt that in a work which lies so near the heart of our Lord will the blessing we need be withheld.

Another Anniversary Service of our great Society must now close, and from an act of common worship we are about to separate. In what spirit shall we depart? Have we with anointed eyes seen the vision of approaching multitudes, themselves but the representatives of Christless millions? Have we felt under the power of the Divine Spirit our hearts 'moved' with the compassion, the suffering love, of Christ? Have we in thought and will 'welcomed' the coming of the multitudes, and resolved that, as far as lies in our power, they shall be 'healed,' 'taught,' and 'fed'? Have we learned that their necessities are in the nature of hunger, a craving for life in the form of food, without the supply of which they must die? Have we realized that our responsibilities are, in union with Christ and as His servants, to 'buy bread that these may eat,' to give up that we may give out the Living Bread to a dying world? Have we perceived that the opportunities of the age are such as the Church of God never before possessed?

These are solemn questions which in the name of Christ I ask you and myself. The answers to them must surely lead us from feeling to action, from thought to life. Are we willing now, after a searching examination of our possessions, to consecrate or to re-consecrate all we have to Christ? Are we ready at this moment to bring all our resources, even though they be small, poor, and few, to the feet of the blessed Master? Will we each one resolve to go forth from His presence to methodize our work and organize our workers?

If these questions be all answered in the affirmative, and examination is followed by consecration, then consecration will lead to organization, and our Anniversary Service will issue in a threefold benediction. The Master Whom we serve, the Saviour Whom we trust, the Lord Whom we love, will put His hands upon us and ours, and during the coming year, by a large accession of missionaries and means, thousands more of the hungry Heathen, and of the Heathen not hungering but still dying, will eat the Bread of Life, and eating live for ever. The power and mercy of Christ in satisfying the needs of all men, and in saving all men from death, will be revealed. The Heathen shall know that He is 'the Prophet,' and more than a prophet, the great High Priest Whose sacrifice of Himself was offered for the sins of the whole world—yea, that He is the King Whose glorious reign shall usher in universal peace. And the Church shall not only rejoice in the joy unspeakable of being united to her Lord and used by Him, but also in the fuller power and richer blessing the fellowship of service never fails to bring.

NOTE ON SPELLING OF NATIVE NAMES.

In the year 1896 the Council of the Royal Asiatic Society adopted the system for the Transliteration of Oriental Alphabets which will be found in the Journal of that Society for October of that year; and, on December 8th, 1896, the General Committee of the Church Missionary Society passed the following resolution relating to the same subject:—'The Committee recommend the use of this system, and hope that the Missionaries of this Society who are engaged in translational or other literary work in the Roman character in the languages referred to in the Royal Asiatic Society's scheme or in those connected with them, will employ it; and that it may be used in transliterating the names of persons and places in all communications with the Committee, except those well-known and familiar names which it would be unwise to alter.'

This system for spelling Native Names is, therefore, recommended to the Society's Missionaries generally for adoption in their letters and reports. It should not be applied, of course, to those well-known places of which the spelling has become so fixed that it would be mere pedantry to disturb it; as, for instance, Travancore (Travankur), and Lucknow (Laknau). Other well-known names, spelt correctly according to this method, are not pronounced accordingly by English residents. For example, the a in Lagos is always pronounced by English residents, when speaking English, as in the word make.

The powers of the vowels are as follows:—

a as in '*a*bout.'
ā usually as in '*fa*ther' (in North-Indian words as in '*a*ll.') e as in '*p*en.'
ē as in '*f*ête.'
i as in 'th*i*n.'
ī as in 'p*i*qu*e*.'
o as in '*n*ot,' or as in the French 'b*o*nne.'
ō as in '*n*ote.'
u as in '*f*ull.'
ū as in 'tr*u*ly.'
ai as i in 'th*i*ne.'
au as ou in 'b*ou*gh.'

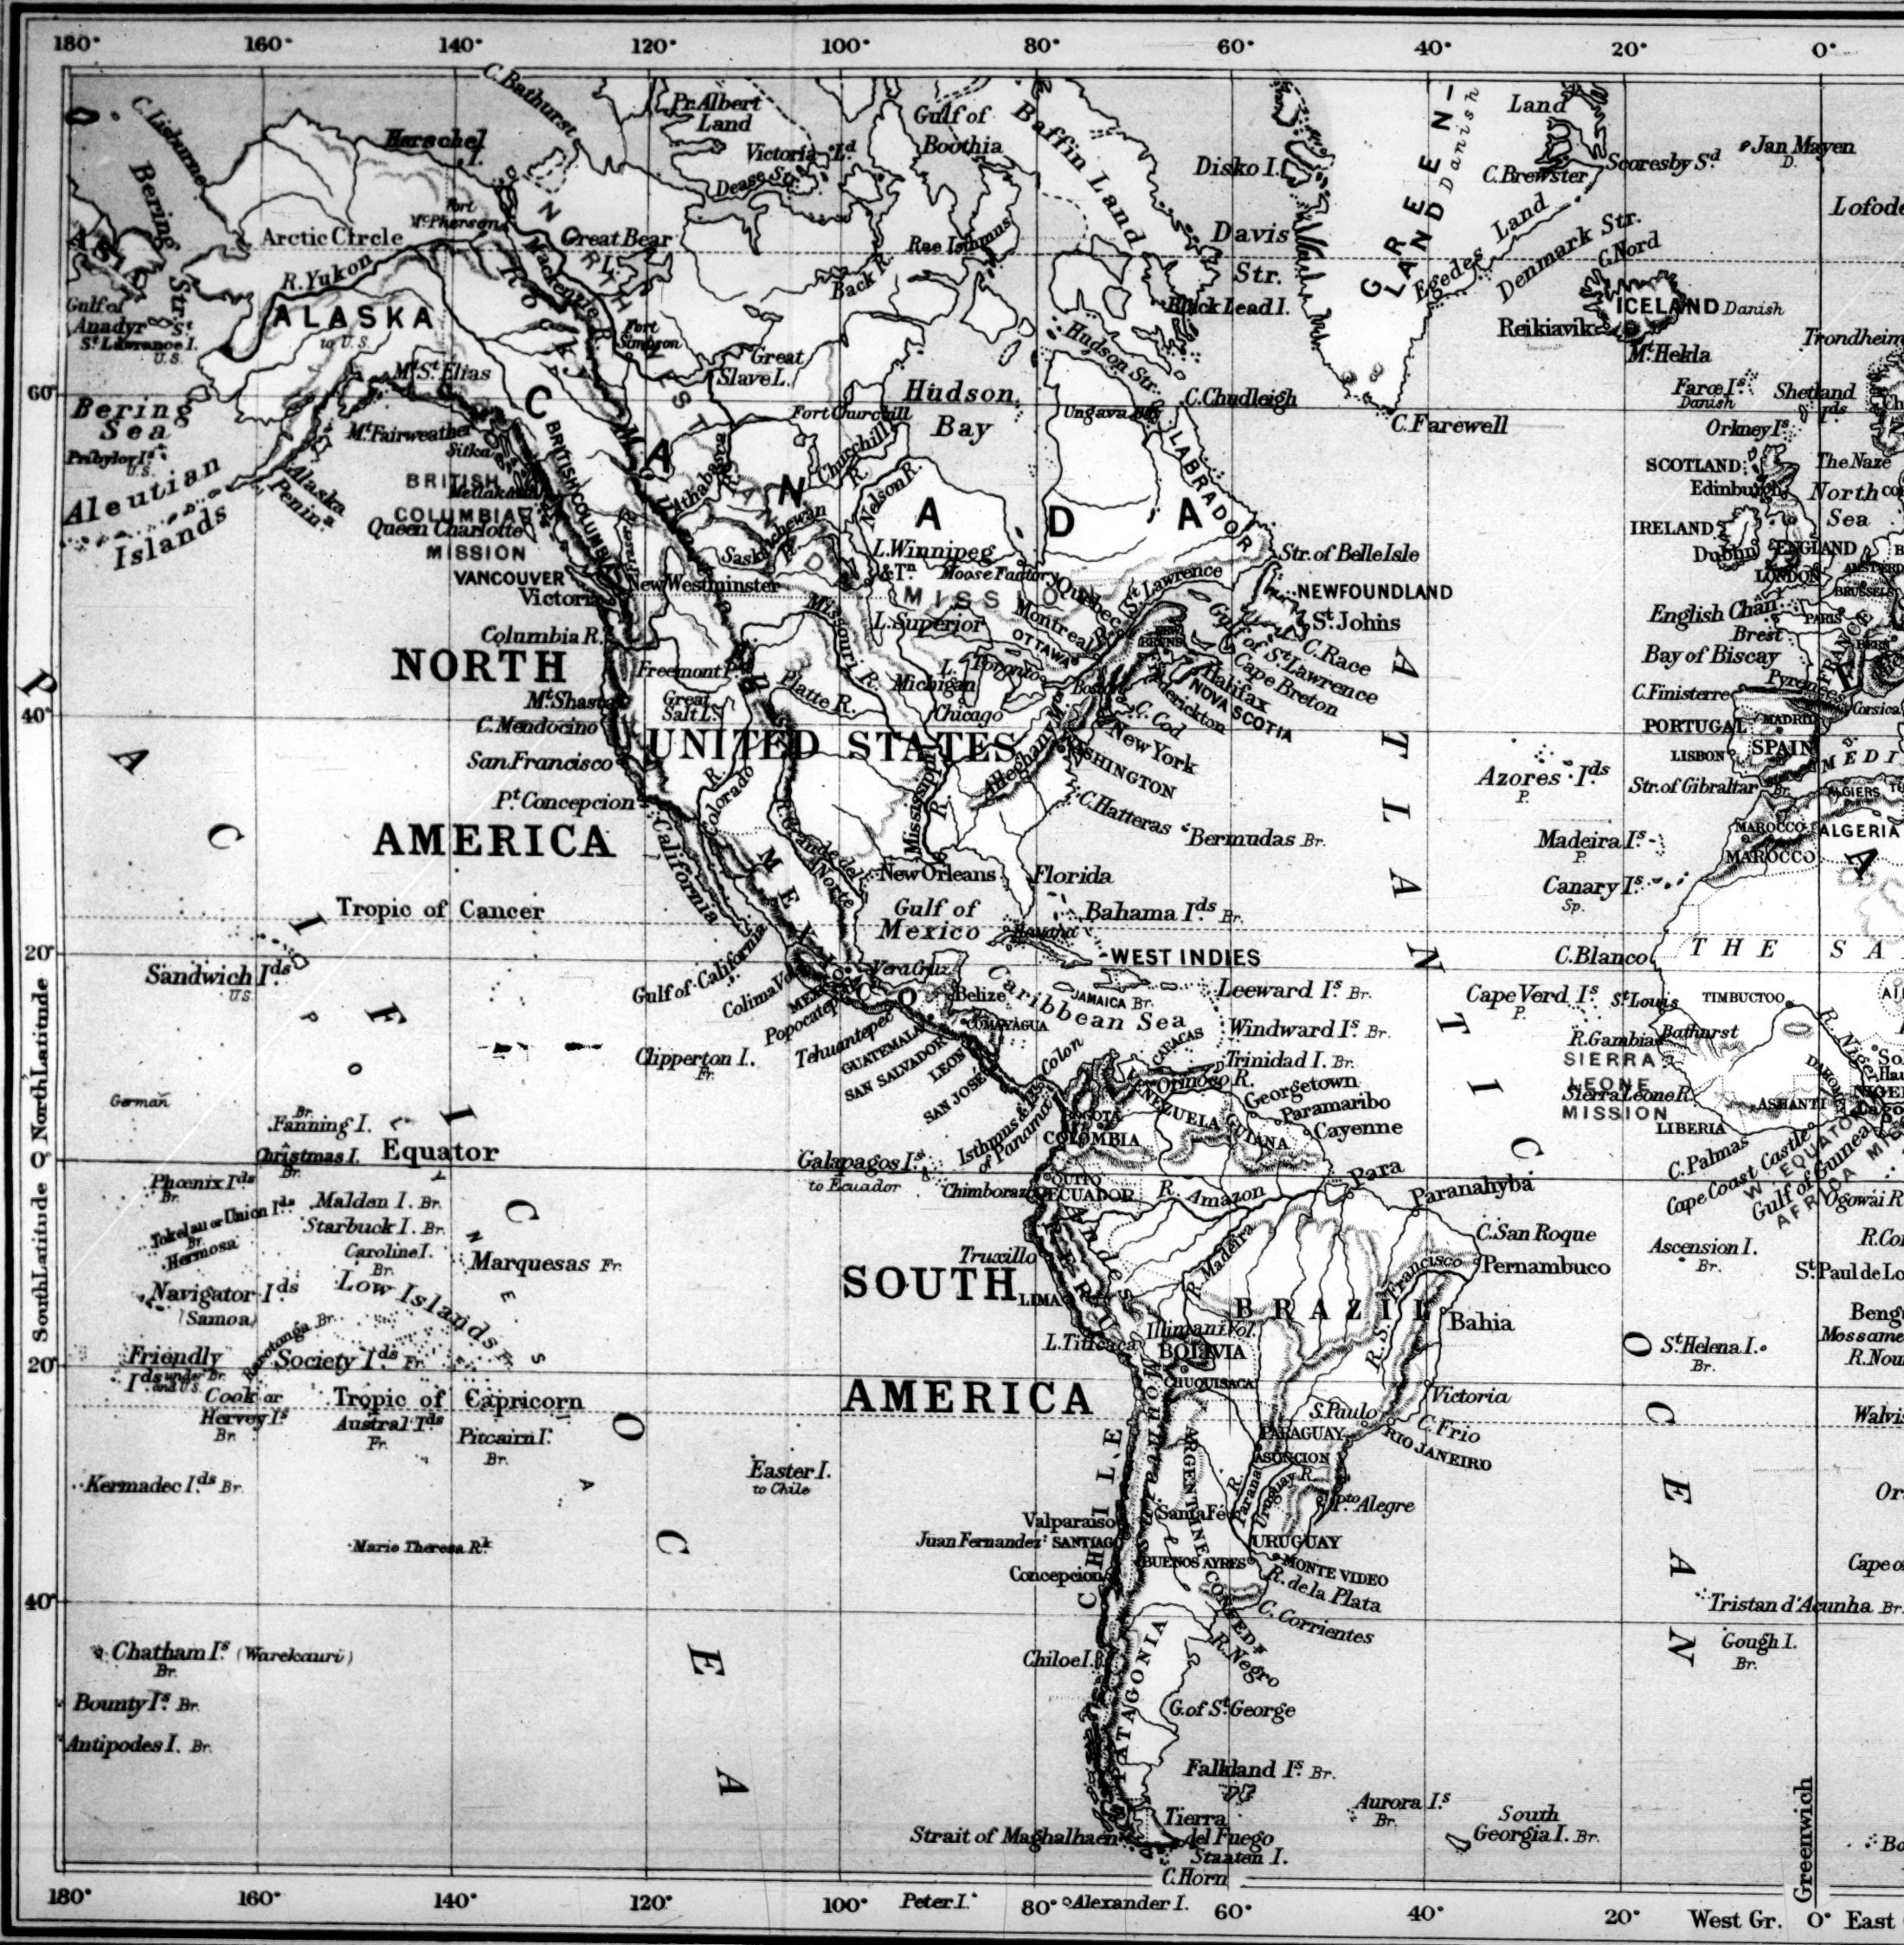
It needs only to be noticed further that—

y always sounds as in '*y*ou.'
g „ as in '*g*o.'
j „ as in '*j*oin.'
gn as in 'poi*gn*ant.'
ng as in 'thi*ng*.'

h has always a separate sound, except in ch as in '*ch*urch,' and sh as in '*sh*e,' th and dh should, therefore, not be used in South Indian names to express the dental t and d.

c, whether for k or s, being superfluous, is not used.

Doubled letters should each be pronounced distinctly, as in Italian.



C.M.S. Missions are printed in blue.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE.

General Review of the Year.

[READ AT THE ANNIVERSARY IN EXETER HALL, MAY 1st, 1906.]

'Be patient.'—St. James to the Dispersion. (St. Jas. v. 7.)
'Come and see.'—St. Philip to Nathanael. (St. John i. 46.)

On the First of May, in the Church Calendar, two saints are commemorated together: the Disciple who presided over the Church at Jerusalem and wrote to the Twelve Tribes of the Dispersion; and the Disciple with the Greek name who brought the inquiring Greeks to Christ. They may well represent the two great branches of the Church's work among non-Christians, the preaching of Christ to the Jews and to the Gentiles. The Church Missionary Society's part is the latter branch, though not excluding the former when Jews are found in its mission-fields. But the words of St. James and St. Philip above quoted may serve as mottoes for the Society's Report this year.

Two mottoes.

'Be patient': patient when doors seem closed; patient when progress seems slow and results small; patient when difficulties and differences arise; patient when principles or policy are criticized; patient when human infirmity mars the work; patient when faith is tested by delay in the provision of adequate resources.

'Come and see': come and see what God is doing all the while; come and see that, as Philip again said, 'we have found Him of Whom Moses and the Prophets did write, Jesus of Nazareth,' to be a living Saviour for every tribe and tongue. To that survey, in the briefest form, the Committee now invite their friends.

Public events.

In the first place they call attention to the public events of the year affecting missionary enterprise. The wonderful successes of the Japanese armies and fleets in the late war, and the patriotic self-sacrifice manifested by the Japanese people, have deeply impressed the whole world with the high qualities of the nation, especially the chivalrous spirit known as Bushido.

Japan's limitations.

But it is no kindness to Japan to ignore the other side. Very truly and wisely has the Rev. John Imai, of Tokyo, an able Japanese clergyman connected with the S.P.G. Mission, said in an article on this subject, 'Let us not be misled for a moment into supposing that the Bushido spirit could ever have originated institutions like the Red Cross Society, or such ideas as humanity to prisoners, generosity to the conquered, refraining from loot, and respect for female virtue.' These, he considers, were recognized as right only when the Bushido spirit came in contact with Christianity. Japan, therefore, needs Christianity; she has already been largely influenced by Christianity; is not the knowledge of Christ the best thing which her British ally can give her?

China's reforms.

China, awakened at last from her sleepy satisfaction with the illimitable past, has presented and will present grave problems whose solution it is hard to foresee. Her great Railway projects, her new Police Department, her Military Reforms, even her remarkable Educational policy, which is transforming temples into schools and colleges, mean only material and intellectual progress. The real hope for China is to build up the Christian Church, and so raise the whole national standard of both family and business life. This has been set before the Chinese Commissioners who have lately visited England, in a memorial from the Missionary Societies. Meanwhile, it is an encouraging fact that more than two million copies of portions of Scripture were actually sold in China in 1904.

India's needs.

The visit of the Prince and Princess of Wales to India has no doubt tended to strengthen the prestige of British rule in the great Dependency. The Committee, however, recall the fact that when King Edward, as Prince of Wales, visited India thirty years ago, Sir Bartle Frere arranged for his meeting several thousand of the Tinnevelly Christians, on which occasion the Prince said, 'It is a great satisfaction to me to find my countrymen engaged in offering to our Indian fellow-subjects those truths which form the foundation of our own social and political system, and which we ourselves esteem as our most valued possession.' It is much to be wished that the Indian Christians, who have multiplied fourfold in the thirty years, had heard in 1905 words equally significant. How urgently India still needs even the civilizing and humanizing influence of the Gospel is shown by the statements in the Times that widows have within the past two years been burnt to death on the funeral pyres of their husbands—instances being given in Behar, in Oudh, and in Ajmere—and that at least one case (probably more) of human sacrifice to the gods has occurred in Eastern Bengal; while the Christian Patriot, the chief native Christian organ, illustrates the inability of mere material progress to affect idolatry by mentioning a procession of the god Ganesha mounted on a bicycle, and the worship of the motor-car as an incarnation of the Spirit of the Age!

Ceylon's education.

In Ceylon, while the increased activity of the Government in the promotion of education is in itself to be commended, it is not, in the judgment of the Committee, being directed into the best channels, and representations have been made, both against the official recognition of Buddhism, and against educational measures which might injuriously affect mission-schools.

Africa's openings.

In Africa, the unrest of native tribes under various European Protectorates is but a natural result of their strange new environment, and has been a cause of anxiety in several districts, particularly in German East Africa. Bishop Peel was long unable to get away from Ussagara and reach the coast; the C.M.S. missionaries were for some time in peril; the Universities' Mission suffered grave disaster; and a Roman bishop and his comrades were cruelly killed. That these troubles, however, only call for fresh and persevering effort in the work of evangelization is confirmed by the remarkable testimony given by the South African Commission on Native Affairs in their official Report. After enlarging on the beneficial influence of the Missions, they express their opinion 'that hope for the elevation of the native races must depend mainly on their acceptance of Christian faith and morals.' To the various Governments themselves the Missions often prove useful. Thus Sir F. Lugard, in his last official Report on Northern Nigeria, writes: 'The Protectorate Government owes much to the disinterested assistance of Dr. Miller, of the C.M.S. Hausa Mission, who has hitherto been our only [linguistic] examiner, and who possesses a profound knowledge of the language, both literary and colloquial.' In the Eastern Soudan, on the Upper Nile, the new Mission has been undertaken at the express invitation of the authorities, who have allotted to the Society its sphere. The party that sailed last October have been treated with hearty kindness by Lord Cromer, the Sirdar, and the British officials on the river, and are for the present at Bor, 1,000 miles south of Khartoum, and about halfway between Khartoum and the capital of Uganda. They were accompanied temporarily by Archdeacon Gwynne, and met by Dr. Albert Cook, who had come northward from Mengo to give them the benefit of his African experience. The Dinka people have shown every disposition to be friendly; and the Committee commend the Mission to the prayerful remembrance of the whole Society.

Development of native Christendom.

These various incidents affect missionary enterprise chiefly in this sense, that they supply fresh motives for its zealous support. They suggest that the development of African and Asiatic Christendom may well be an object of deepest interest and solicitude to British rulers and statesmen. Assuredly it is so to the Church Missionary Society; and the Committee are glad that the high estimation in which Bishop Hoare is held has given his earnest utterances on this subject while in England great weight in C.M.S. circles. His work as a Bishop in South China, added to his long experience as a missionary of the Society in Mid China, has shown him the importance of native agency in evangelization, and the expediency of throwing greater responsibility upon the native clergy and laity. As a matter of fact, the Church Missionary Society has upheld this policy for half a century, through evil report as well as good report, in other countries besides China, and the ill-success which has sometimes attended the efforts of the Committee to carry it out does not discredit the policy itself. The number of native teachers and evangelists of all classes working in the Society's Missions has increased in the past ten years from 5,000 to 7,500 (in round figures), an increase exactly in the same proportion as that of the European missionaries, and in actual numbers eight times as large. Even the clergy of the native races are almost as numerous as the missionary clergy, and much outnumber them in some of the older Missions. The Society is constantly striving to develop self-government and self-support in Church matters in the native Christian communities, illustrations of which are afforded by the meeting for the first time in the past year of the new Central Council for the Punjab, freely elected by the Indian Christians, in which Indians and Britons sit together and take equal shares in the whole administration of the Mission, and also by the formation of a new Council for Palestine, in which the native Christian delegates have a predominant voice. Moreover, there are large districts in West Africa and India, once the familiar fields of honoured missionaries, which are now worked, some entirely and some mainly, by the native clergy and laity.

C.M.S. plans.

Signs of progress.

Meanwhile, the solidarity of the local churches and congregations of the whole Anglican Communion has been manifested by the Triennial General Synod of the Nippon Sei-kō-Kwai in Japan, in May last, when new Canons on Discipline were adopted, and the possibility of the early appointment of Japanese Bishops supported only by the Japanese Church was earnestly discussed; also by a Conference of Bishops in West Africa, to which were invited three English Bishops (two diocesan and one assistant), one Negro Bishop of the American Church, and three Negro Assistant Bishops; also by the formal admission of the Missionary Diocese of Caledonia into the organization of the Canadian Church, and the holding of its first Synod—an appropriate step forward just when the new Grand Trunk Pacific Railway is planned to end its course across the Dominion by striking the coast within five miles of Metlakahtla. This solidarity, however, may sometimes involve sacrifices. At a meeting, two years ago, of Bishops in China, it was agreed that a more regular arrangement of the jurisdictions or quasi-dioceses of those representing the English and American Churches respectively should give the Province of Kiang-Su to the American Bishop, and this involved his episcopal jurisdiction henceforth over the only Church of England Chinese congregation in the Province, that of the C.M.S. at Shanghai. The Committee sympathize with their brethren who will regret this arrangement; but they have good grounds for confidence that the Chinese Christians will be free to maintain the simplicity of their worship.

Church development.

Its consequences in China.

The increasing prominence of ecclesiastical questions like these is a significant token of the stage to which the missionary enterprise has advanced; just as the consecration of the cathedral of the Diocese of Mombasa, on May 31st, 1905, was an outward and visible sign of the progress of the East Africa Mission since the days of Bishops Hannington and Parker, and of Henry Wright, in whose joint memory the building fund was raised and the church erected; and, still more, since the days of Krapf and Rebmann, of Sir Bartle Frere and Salter Price. And this last name is a reminder of another token of advance in China; for it is a son of the veteran Salter Price, who, after nearly twenty years of faithful missionary labour in West Africa and Japan, has been consecrated the first Bishop for the Church and Mission in the province of Fuh-Kien.

Another Cathedral.

Another missionary Bishop

But of deeper interest is the spiritual progress of the African and Asiatic Churches. For the last ninety years, ever since the first ingathering of converts at Sierra Leone, and afterwards in Tinnevelly and New Zealand, it has been the constant aim of the Committee to warn their friends against a too sanguine estimate of the character of the native Christians. Many illustrations of the weakness of human nature occur in this year's annual letters; and they are only a repetition of what St. Paul and St. John had often to mourn over in the earliest Churches. But the letters teem also with proofs of the reality of African and Asiatic Christianity. The finding by Bishop Tucker of the bones of the Baganda martyrs—on the day following the solemn observance of Empire Day by the young Christian King, the leading chiefs, the British officers, and 2,500 worshippers in the great cathedral at Mengo—was a reminder of the seed from which the Church in all ages has sprung. The deaths of native Christians, named and unnamed, Japanese soldiers killed in the late war, and beloved members of Indian and African Churches dying peacefully in their beds, remind us that members of the Church militant are continually being added to the Church triumphant. Such was Satiadasan, Travancore Brahman of the highest grade and learned Sanscrit scholar, whose baptism by Henry Baker thirty years ago was a prominent event in the C.M.S. publications, and who had ever since been a faithful preacher of Christ. Such was Mr. Krish-namma, B.A. of Madras University, barrister in the High Court, converted in the Noble College in 1864, who has left behind him (says Mr. Sharp of the Bible Society) 'a noble example of a courageous and consistent Christian life'; whose son has lately taken a second class in the Cambridge Classical Tripos, and whose daughters have both graduated M.A. at Madras University.* Such was Mrs. Datta, a true mother in Israel to the Christians of Lahore. Such was Jacob Fadipe of Abeokuta, once an Ifa priest, but for many years a voluntary evangelist on his own and neighbouring farms, and then a catechist under the native Church Council; described by Bishop Oluwole as 'powerful in the Scriptures and a man of prayer, the divine light ever beaming in his sweet face.'

Tokens of revival.

But these are individual cases. What is wanted is an outpouring of the Holy Spirit upon the Churches everywhere. And there is even now 'a sound of abundance of rain.' From Kiu-Shiu and Osaka in Japan, from the Fuh-Kien province of China, from the kingdom of Toro in the heart of Africa, from North and South India, come tidings of revival—of conviction of sin, of abandonment of evil ways, of humble yet rejoicing trust in Christ. The Chinese lay preacher referred to last year is again mentioned by several Fuh-Kien missionaries as being wonderfully used of God to the awakening of dull Christians. Mr. Walker and Mr. Bowman have conducted solemn Mission Services, Revival Meetings, and Quiet Days, in many parts of India and Ceylon. That devoted Indian lady, Pandita Ramabai, has held crowded meetings in the C.M.S. Divinity School-house at Poona. The Rev. J. Ali Bakhsh, who was last year at the Student Conference near Ulverston, went back to India (he says) as from 'the Mount of Transfiguration'; and at a recent camp for Indian students in the Punjab men 'sang and prayed and praised all day and all night.' Tamil pastors in Tinnevelly tell of prayer everywhere for the Holy Ghost, and of the practical righteousness already resulting from the Revival movement.

Indian Missionary Society.

In this connexion the Committee welcome the formation of the new National Missionary Society of India, designed to arouse Indian Christians to labour more earnestly for the conversion of their countrymen; independently of the Foreign Societies, yet in harmony with them; every member and worker being required to be loyal to his own Church or denomination, men of the same Church working together, and their converts being brought into the membership of that Church; and no appeal for money to be made outside India. The President is Sir Harnam Singh, and the Secretary is a member of the Church in Tinnevelly, which had already led the way by sending out its own missionaries to people of other tongues in other provinces. With this may be coupled a smaller but not less interesting fact, that, in one large district of Fuh-Kien, the Chinese Christians have put missionary boxes for the London Jews' Society in the village chapels.

Baptisms. And the Churches everywhere are growing through accessions from the non-Christian populations. The adult baptisms in the Society's Missions in the year, so far as already reported, have numbered 10,433. Of these, 4,355 were in Uganda, and 2,180 in India. Many individual cases of conversion are of great interest. A Japanese judge has been baptized by Bishop Fyson. The Hausa Mission rejoices in the conversion of two able and zealous Mohammedan mullahs, well read in Arabic literature, who have given, Dr. Miller writes, convincing evidence of true conversion. On the Indian Frontier an Afghan mullah has been led to Christ by an Afghan Christian farmer, and was to be baptized on Christmas Day. A yellow-robed and long-bearded Hindu devotee, who used to distract the worship of the little congregation in the heathen town of Tinnevelly by his noisy drumming outside, and had to be 'moved on' by the police, was baptized in December in that very church. Another baptism of a Brahman student in the Noble College is reported, accompanied by the same distressing opposition and hostile devices that marked the early baptisms fifty years ago and often since, but not accompanied, as in former days, by the emptying of the College. For Christian ex-Brahmans are not now uncommon; and when an Indian Church Council in 1905 appoints as pastor of the Lucknow Christian congregation an ex-Brahman clergyman who first learned of Christ in the Lucknow C.M.S. High School, few realize the immense significance of the act.

Types of work. In further reviewing the incidents of the year, the Committee can only mention typical cases, suggestive of the Society's diversified work, every part of which may justly call for ever-increasing interest and sympathy. When Mr. Pearce of Cal- Colleges. cutta tells of the revival of College classes, dropped since the days of John Barton and Samuel Dyson, he only adds one to a score of C.M.S. colleges in India alone. When Mr. Goldsmith of Madras reports on his divinity students, he represents a goodly band of able men doing similar work in all parts of the field. When Bishop Peel describes long tramps through forest and desert to visit remote stations in East Africa, he is but one of many doing the same thing. When Mr. Lloyd of Fuh-Kien Philanthropic agencies. rejoices in the numerous philanthropic agencies there, for the leper, the blind, the orphan, his words might stand for many similar works in many lands. When Dr. Pain reports the opening of the new hospital for women and children at Old Cairo, built in memory of his late wife, largely with munificent gifts received by him in New Zealand, he adds but one to the long list of institutions for which the Society might well claim a Hospital Sunday of its own. When Dr. Duncan Main sends this message home: 'Wards full, heat 91, mosquitoes numerous, helpers few, strength failing, faith increasing; pray for us!'—he tersely describes the cases of many C.M.S. doctors, both men and women; and when the Afghan clergyman, the Rev. Aziz-ud-din, describes a medical missionary at his station as having such a smiling face that 'half the disease forsakes the patient when he sees him,' we might well apply the words to others in India and China and Persia and Palestine and Egypt and Uganda; and no doubt to the workers at the Ranaghat Medical Mission in Bengal, lately transferred to the Society by its founder, Mr. James Monro.

Bishops in the wilds.

When Bishop Bompas resigns his see after forty years in the wilderness, and Mr. Stringer of Herschel Island succeeds him, both the old and the new bishops represent a true apostolical succession of self-sacrificing chief pastors in all the corners of the earth.

Literary Work.

When Dr. Hooper reports the completion of the Revised Hindi Old Testament after years of labour, or when Mr. Thornton and Mr. Gairdner tell of the striking influence gained over both Moslems and Copts in Egypt by their weekly paper the Orient and Occident, we have different illustrations of diversified literary work going on in all the Missions.

Women's Work.

Once more, when letter after letter from Japan speaks of the much lamented Beatrice Allen as (to quote one of them) 'a beautiful memory, a type of practical devotion that will be treasured and bear fruit for long years to come,' a glimpse is given us of the blessed service of holy women which the Society has been enabled, through God's blessing, to extend so largely in these latter years.

English missionaries still needed.

Even these rapidly displayed examples of the Society's work may help to correct the utterly groundless idea that because native agents are being multiplied and the native Churches are rising to their responsibilities, therefore fewer English missionaries are needed, or only a slight increase of their number. But only a study of the whole field can give a true impression how sorely larger reinforcements are wanted. This year's annual letters, even from the Missions of longest standing and most advanced church organization, plead earnestly for men; for example, from the Fuh-Kien and Cheh-Kiang provinces of China, and from Indian districts in occupation for three-quarters of a century. The theory that the Society might withdraw its missionaries from such fields would be scouted by the brethren on the spot. One of them, in charge of a very old station, emphatically remarks that the Church is still only 'playing at Missions.'

It is therefore with much thankfulness that the Committee have to report a distinct advance in the number of inquiries about service, and especially of offers from men qualified for acceptance without further training. The number actually enrolled as missionaries is 72, viz., 36 men and 36 women; but there are more ready for acceptance directly. Of the 36 men, 26 are graduates, viz., thirteen of Cambridge, five of Oxford, and eight of other Universities. Acceptances for service.

Among the recruits are two veterans, the Revs. H. G. Grey and J. W. Hall, who have rejoined the India Missions, the former after his five years' tenure of the Principalship of Wycliffe Hall, Oxford, and the latter after a period of service as an Organizing Secretary at home. Others who may be specially mentioned are the Revs. A. J. Harvey and Norman Bennet, both beneficed clergymen who have resigned their livings to enter the missionary ranks; the Rev. Dr. C. G. Munro of the Ranaghat Medical Mission, now transferred to the Society; the Rev. F. B. Hadow, the organizer at head quarters of work among the young, who is to lead the new Soudan Mission; and the Rev. A. D. Stewart, eldest son of the late Robert Stewart, who has gone to work among the Chinese so dear to his lamented parents.

The Preparation of Missionaries continues to demand the constant attention of committees and officers charged with that department; and with a view to (if possible) still greater care in the selection and training of candidates, a new Candidates Committee is now to be formed. The College at Islington and the various other Training Institutions are continually turning out men and women who, the Committee believe, will by the grace of God prove not less efficient than hundreds of their predecessors who have been indeed 'workmen needing not to be ashamed'; while the Home Preparation Union is engaged in guiding the studies and helping to form the characters of no less than 400 young men and women who desire by-and-by to enlist in the missionary army. The medical care of both candidates and missionaries involves no little skill and labour; and in addition to the Society's Physician, Dr. C. F. Harford, there are honorary physicians and surgeons who render valuable service, for which the Committee are very grateful. Preparation of candidates.

Among Home developments must be mentioned the launching of a Laymen's Union and a Young People's Union, the former in the hope of reaching more effectively the laity of the Church, and the latter to unify all the work among young people, and particularly to win those of the important age from 14 to 18, from among whom will come both the missionaries and the supporters of the near future. Mr. T. G. Hughes, to whose untiring voluntary labours the Society is deeply indebted, is Hon. Secretary of the former, and the Rev. W. G. Hardie, a Home developments.

Cambridge man of experience in work among children, is appointed Secretary of the latter. The Committee have also had great pleasure in entrusting the task of fostering missionary study, by study classes, &c., to the Rev. G. T. Manley, who is prevented by home circumstances from returning to India at present. The Circulating Library, which Mrs. C. A. Flint is obliged on health grounds to relinquish after ten years of generous and most valuable voluntary service, will also be in Mr. Manley's charge. All these schemes, and many others, will be helped by the experience of American energy and inventiveness which Dr. Lankester has acquired by his recent visit to the United States and attendance at important Conferences there. The Society will be the gainer, under God's blessing, by these various agencies and appointments; but it suffers a deeply-felt loss by the retirement from active service of Miss G. A. Gollock, after a long and gallant struggle with weak health. The whole Society is well aware of the important work she has done, and the bright and holy influence she has exercised, during the past fifteen years. The Committee are thankful that, while forbidden to continue her office duties, she is still able to give valued aid by her counsels, and also that her sister is able to take entire charge of the Women's Department.

Study and Library.

Miss Gollock.

Deaths of friends.

The heavy loss involved in the death of friends has again been severely felt. Among the more prominent thus removed the Committee must mention Dr. E. H. Perowne, the highly respected Master of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge; Sir William Muir, one of the most learned and influential of Anglo-Indians; Bishop Young, of Athabasca, after thirty years' labour in North-West Canada; Mr. C. H. Bousfield, munificent donor; Mr. C. B. P. Bosanquet, for more than thirty years Hon. Secretary in Northumberland; Canon Garratt, long a leading friend at Ipswich; Mrs. Barlow, whose bright influence will ever be remembered by many missionaries who passed through Islington College when her husband, the Dean of Peterborough, was Principal; and Canon Tristram, doughty champion of Evangelical principles and untiring advocate of the Society and its Missions, which were dearer to him even than the stones of Palestine and the birds of the air. And one more must be affectionately named, Hudson Taylor, founder of the China Inland Mission, whose faith and devotion were so wonderfully used of God to the opening up of China to the Gospel.

Finance.

Lastly, the Committee have to report on the Society's funds; and they do so with gratitude to the many friends who have contributed so generously, and with deep thankfulness to the Lord Who has inclined and enabled them to do so. The total receipts (of course excluding Special Funds) amounted to £382,460, being £46,000 more than in the preceding year. The expenditure was £382,600, and therefore apparently is practically covered by the receipts. But £15,600 was specially given towards the old accumulated deficits, amounting last year to £59,700; therefore the strictly available year's income was short by about that amount. The result is as broad as it is long. In view of the accumulated deficits the Committee had realized £50,000 of the Capital Fund. To replace that sum and wipe off the rest of the deficit, £59,990 is now required. The Committee would again express an earnest hope that their friends will provide year by year sufficient to cover the year's expenditure, and also enable them, albeit gradually, to restore the Capital Fund to its old figure.

Thank-offerings.

One of the special efforts of the year was the Thankoffering Week in January, which was widely adopted, and produced not only several thousand pounds of additional gifts, but an immense number of encouraging letters from young and old, from rich and poor; and the Committee hope to be permitted to repeat this experiment. It was taken up generously by some of the native Christians; but the most gratifying gift from abroad had been previously received, in the shape of a contribution towards the deficit of £500 from the Tinnevelly Church Council.

The true patience.

With this striking example of true fellowship in the Gospel on the part of a Christian community, mostly poor, and having heavy burdens in the maintenance of its own churches and clergy, this Report may well close. The Committee confidently appeal to their friends whether, in asking them to respond to St. Philip's call to 'come and see,' they have not displayed before all willing eyes a rich cluster of the fruits of God's grace; and in repeating St. James's exhortation to patience they would take occasion by the significant Greek word used in the same passage to call the whole Society, not merely to the passive virtue of long-suffering, but to the active grace of perseverance in the work of the Lord. Let that 'patience' 'have her perfect work, that ye may be perfect and entire, wanting nothing.'

Home Operations.

An anxious year.

THE year under review was, like several of its predecessors, an anxious one to the Committee on financial grounds. The fall in the receipts of the previous year (1904-5), natural as the reaction may be said to have been after the generous efforts of 1903–4, occasioned a considerable deficit, and led the Committee at the outset to carefully and prayerfully consider what course they ought to adopt. On April 16th, after full discussion, they resolved unanimously that in view of the wonderful deliverance God had given the Society the year before, they could not doubt it was His will that the work should go forward without undue restriction. Moreover, many new plans were then on foot for the development of home organization which the Committee fully hoped would result in a steady increase of the Society's ordinary income. They therefore issued a message to the Society's friends inviting them to unite in an effort to improve their parochial missionary organization, and stating that if each year's expenditure could be covered by its income they would be content to see the back deficits cleared off gradually. The Committee have been greatly cheered and encouraged by the response to their request, for the income for the year has been practically equal to the expenditure. The position of affairs is shown in the following tabular statement:—

The amount of deficit brought forward was		£59,740
The Expenditure to be met has been		384,028
		£443,768
The sums available for meeting this have been:—
(1) Contributions towards deficit	£15,606
(2) General Receipts	283,745
(3) Appropriated Contributions	84,428
(4) Capital Fund Securities realized ...	50,000
		433,779
Adverse Balance		£9,989

The deficit.

The deficit of £59,740, with which the year opened, was composed of two separate deficits, one of £45,213 on the General Account and one of £14,527 on the Medical Account. The year's working showed an excess of £12,398 in expenditure over receipts in connexion with the former of these accounts, and of £3,457 in connexion with the latter. On the other hand, a sum of £15,606 was contributed towards the reduction of the deficit on the General Account. During the year the Committee, at the suggestion of the Society's bankers, realized £50,000 of the Capital Fund, which now remains at £37,937. They have written off the same amount from the deficit, which on March 31st, 1906, stood at £9,989. The Committee feel it extremely important that in addition to wiping out this deficit, the Capital Fund should be raised as soon as possible to £100,000, which is considered its normal figure.

A few words are called for concerning the special means for increasing the Society's income which have been adopted. First there is the Communicants' Shilling Collection. It is difficult, without a detailed examination of the returns from the Associations throughout the country, to state with any certainty how far this scheme was taken up, but some 3,000 of the collecting books were applied for at head quarters. Next comes the Guarantee Fund, which was suggested by the Bishop of Manchester at the Anniversary of 1905. The Committee took some steps to invite friends to promise over and above their usual gifts such sums as they might feel led to set apart, which should be called for only in the event of a deficit occurring in the year's accounts, and in the further event of the fund guaranteed proving equal in amount to the deficit. The Fund, however, was never publicly announced, and the measure of response consequently was but small. Good success attended the proposal that the week January 21st–27th, 1906, should be observed as a Thank-offering Week, during which contributions might be made in token of gratitude for the blessings of Christianity. Special sermons and Sunday-school lessons, dealing with the subject and enforcing the duty of thankfulness, were delivered in all parts of the country, and a warm response was made.

Thank-offering Week.

Although the Committee are not able to report any actual increase in the number of candidates accepted for service in the foreign field, yet the figures for the twelve months ending April 30th, 1906, are cheering, for owing to the date of the Oxford and Cambridge Preliminary Theological Examination the question of the acceptance of nine Islington men to be presented for ordination did not come before the Committee until May, and their names therefore do not appear in the list given below. During the period mentioned the Candidates Department was in touch with 744 persons (460 men and 284 women) as compared with 625 persons (383 men and 242 women) in the previous year. In many instances the persons went no farther than making inquiries, but 215 cases (114 men and 101 women), as compared with 220 cases (93 men and 127 women) in 1904-5, were dealt with by the various Candidates Committees. Sixty candidates (twenty-three men and thirty-seven women) were accepted for training, of whom one woman subsequently withdrew. The number accepted for service was seventy-two (thirty-six men and thirty-six women) as compared with seventy-four in the preceding year. Thirty-three (twenty-seven men and six women) of these seventy-two were already qualified when they offered; twenty-nine (seven men and twenty-two women) were accepted after training; nine (two men and seven women) were accepted by the Colonial Associations or representatives of the Society abroad; and one was transferred to the Society from the C.E.Z.M.S. Twenty-two of the thirty-six men accepted were clergy, or to be ordained before going out, and three were qualified doctors. The large number—twenty-six—of graduates accepted is noteworthy: five were from Oxford, thirteen from Cambridge, three from Dublin, and one each from London, Durham, Edinburgh, Manchester, and Toronto. This number is greater than in any other year since 1890–1.

Accepted for service.

The following lists give the names of the seventy-two accepted for service during the twelve months from May 1st, 1905, to April 30th, 1906, together with their colleges or training institutions, the places from which they offered to the Society or the Colonial Association by which they were accepted, and in the case of those who sailed before June 1st, 1906, the Mission to which they were assigned:—

Training Institutions.

The Society's training institutions for men are Islington College and the Preparatory Institution at Blackheath. Thirty-four were in residence at the former during the whole or part of the year and twenty-one at the latter, as compared with forty-five and ten, respectively, during the previous twelve months. The number of women candidates under training was ninety-two, four less than in 1904–5. Of these there were seventeen at The Willows at the close of the March term, ten at The Olives, and nine at the Society's Home at Highbury, while in addition there were seventeen at the Medical Hostel, the Medical Mission in Bermondsey, with clerical friends, or receiving hospital training.

Home Preparation Union.

The Home Preparation Union continues its useful work of aiding those who hope eventually to offer their services to the Society. New members to the number of 217 (106 men and 111 women) joined the Union during 1905, the number of members at the close of the year being 465, of whom 188 were men and 277 women. Twelve men and ten women belonging to the Union were accepted by the Society for training, and seventeen others sailed for the mission-field. The summer meeting of the Union took place at Islington College in June, 1905, the speakers being the Rev. C. J. F. Symons, Secretary of the Mid China Mission, and the Rev. J. A. Lightfoot, the Principal of the College. The winter gathering was held at the C.M. House in February, 1906. More than 100 members and friends were present, and listened to an address from Mr. Eugene Stock on Bible Study. A weekly preparation class for men and another for women has been held at the C.M. House, and efforts have been made to promote the formation of such classes at various provincial centres.

Student Volunteer Missionary Union.

Another organization, though unconnected with the Society, may be mentioned, as it exists for calling forth offers of service for the foreign field. It is the Student Volunteer Missionary Union, the missionary department of the Student Christian Movement. During the past thirteen years it has been joined by 2,500 students: of these 1,100 are already at work in non-Christian countries. The C.M.S. has accepted 223 of the members for service, of whom 149 are still on the Society's staff, many of the remainder having died. About one half of the graduates at present on the Society's roll are members of the S.V.M.U.

Laymen's Union.

One outcome of the conference of laymen (see last year's Report, page 20) which was held at Zion College on May 1st, 1905, has been the formation of a Laymen's Union, with which the Lay Workers' Unions and Bands throughout the country have been invited to become associated. The constitution provides for the government of the new Union by a Central Council consisting of a President, Vice-Presidents, Officers of the Union, and representatives of each associated Union or Band, to be elected by them in the proportion of one representative for every twenty or portion of twenty members registered at head quarters, the total number of representatives not to exceed ten in any one case. The office of President has been accepted by Sir Douglas Fox, and of Honorary Treasurer by Mr. T. F. Victor Buxton, High Sheriff of Essex, while Mr. T. G. Hughes, for many years an Honorary Secretary of the London Lay Workers' Union, has been appointed to a similar office in connexion with the new Union. By January, 1906, the Union consisted of upwards of 2,000 members belonging to forty-four Unions and Bands, besides single members or small groups in seventy-five places where no definite organization for laymen is found. The London Lay Workers' Union arranged a number of teachers' meetings in February and March, 1906, at which the subject of the organization of missionary work in Sunday-schools was dealt with, and this effort was followed up in April by a Conference of Sunday-school Superintendents and Secretaries in Exeter Hall for the further consideration of the same subject. The half-yearly Conferences of the Metropolitan Men's Missionary Bands were held respectively at Buckhurst Hill in July, 1905, and at Harringay in the following February.

Clergy Union.

The Annual Conference of the Clergy Union took place at Queen's College, Birmingham, on June 7th and 8th, 1905. At the reception of the thirty-one delegates on the first day an address was given by the Bishop of Birmingham, and on the second day papers were read on 'The Home Preparation Union,' 'The Care of Missionaries on Furlough,' 'The Missionary Vocation,' and 'The Episcopal Recognition of Returned Missionaries.' The eleventh Annual Report of the Union, presented at the meeting held on May 1st, 1906, showed that during the previous twelve months fifteen of its members had been accepted by the Society. The number of branches has decreased from sixty-four to sixty-two. Following what may now be regarded as its established custom the Union arranged for a C.M.S. Breakfast during the Church Congress, which in 1905 was held at Weymouth. The chair was taken by Colonel Robert Williams, the Society's Treasurer, and an address was given by the Bishop of Victoria. The membership of the London branch showed a falling off in 1905 as compared with the previous year, and the attendance at the meetings was not good, but the branch had the honour of giving six of its members to the foreign field, as well as a former member who had removed to Brighton. Among the practical efforts to set forward missionary work adopted by some of the other branches of the Union may be mentioned the organization of a successful children's demonstration by the Halifax branch, of a Prize Essay scheme for day and Sunday-schools by the Liverpool branch, of lectures in day-schools by the Oxford branch, and of regular missionary Sunday-school lessons by the Preston branch. The members of many of the branches have also given valued help in deputation work from time to time.

Ladies' Unions.

The chief work of the seventeen Ladies' Unions (two more than in 1905) belonging to the Federation is that of spreading information and arousing interest, but many of them also raise funds for the support of one or more Own Missionaries.

Young People's Union.

Towards the end of 1905 a new organization, entitled the Young People's Union, was established, of which the Rev. W. G. Hardie, M.A., Emmanuel College, Cambridge, and Ridley Hall, Curate of Christ Church, East Greenwich, has since been appointed Secretary. The object of the Union is to consolidate and largely extend the work among young people under the age of eighteen. Existing Junior Associations have become branches of the Union, and Sowers' Bands also form a part of it. By the middle of March, 1906, thirty branches, with memberships varying in size from sixteen to 600, had been registered, and several others were in process of formation.

Gleaners' Union.

The Nineteenth Anniversary of the Gleaners' Union took place in London on October 31st and November 1st, 1905. The proceedings opened with a short prayer-meeting at the Church

Missionary House, which was succeeded by a conference of the secretaries of branches, at which papers were read and discussions ensued on 'The Responsibilities of a Gleaners' Union Branch towards the Foreign Field, towards the Supply of Candidates, towards the Widening of Interest, and towards the Provision of Funds.' The afternoon of October 31st was devoted to a consideration of the Reports furnished from the branches and to an explanation of the Study Scheme. A meeting for Men Gleaners was held in the evening of the first day, and one for Women in the afternoon of November 1st. Prior to the latter gathering there was an administration of the Holy Communion in St. Bride's Church, with a sermon by the Rev. W. T. Hollins, Vicar of St. James's, Clapham Park. The Bishop of Ripon (Dr. Boyd Carpenter) presided over the anniversary meeting in Exeter Hall, at which the Revs. J. Stuart Holden, Vicar of St. Paul's, Portman Square, C. T. Warren, of Japan, and E. F. E. Wigram, of the Punjab, were the other speakers. The Annual Report of the Union presented at the meeting stated that 6,885 new members had been enrolled during the year, and that thirty-six new or revived branches had been registered, and nineteen others disbanded, leaving the number of branches standing at 1,121. Fifty-four branches support entirely or partially their 'Own Missionary,' and twelve other missionaries are maintained in the foreign field by the general contributions of members for that purpose. The figures given are exclusive of those for India and the Colonies.

Valedictory Meetings.

A few weeks before the G.U. Anniversary, the autumn contingent of outgoing missionaries was taken leave of. On October 5th and 6th, 1905, at special meetings of the Committee their instructions were delivered to them; and public Valedictory Meetings were held in Exeter Hall in the evenings of the same days, the missionaries proceeding to Egypt, Palestine, India (Bengal and United Provinces), China and Japan, being present on the first day, and those assigned to Persia, India (Central Provinces, Punjab and Sindh, South India, and Travancore and Cochin), and Ceylon, on the second. The chair was occupied by Sir John Kennaway and Mr. T. F. Victor Buxton on the 5th and 6th respectively, and the speakers from among the returning missionaries were the Right Rev. C. H. Gill, formerly of the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, afterwards consecrated Bishop of Travancore and Cochin, the Revs. T. Bomford, of the Punjab, F. Melville Jones (now Archdeacon) of Western Equatorial Africa, and A. G. Lockett, of Bengal; Dr. A. E. Druitt, of Hausaland; and Misses A. H. Robinson, of Uganda, and D. S. Wynne Willson, of Japan. Archdeacon Ll. H. Gwynne, though no longer one of the Society's missionaries, spoke as representing Egypt and the new Southern Soudan Mission. Brief addresses were also given by the following workers proceeding to the field for the first time as missionaries of the Society :—The Revs. A. J. Harvey, W. S. Hunt, F. F. Komlosy, Dr. C. G. Monro, A. D. Stewart, and W. P. W. Williams, and Dr. H. A. Rawlence. The closing words were spoken by the Rev. Dr. A. E. Joscelyne, who was consecrated a fortnight later to be Coadjutor Bishop of Jamaica, and the Rev. H. F. S. Adams, Vicar of Immanuel Church, Streatham. The preacher at the Holy Communion Service for outgoing missionaries and their friends in the morning of October 5th was the Bishop-designate of Travancore and Cochin.

Missionaries' Children's Home.

The annual prize-giving at the Missionaries' Children's Home at Limpsfield was held on October 7th, Mr. T. F. Victor Buxton presiding. The report then presented by the Director, the Rev. W. B. Tracy, showed that five girls (out of nine presented) passed the Senior Oxford Local, one gaining Third Class honours, and another taking distinction in drawing, being bracketed first. Ten passed (out of fifteen) for the Junior, two taking Second Class honours and one Third Class, while six distinctions were obtained—two in Religious Knowledge, one being bracketed second in Music and another being first in Drawing. Fourteen (out of nineteen) passed the Preliminary. Every possible candidate was sent in for these examinations, and the total results worked out as follows: 43 in all were examined; 4 took honours, 25 gained passes without honours (of whom seven took distinctions), and 14 failed. Nine entered for the R.A.M. and R.C.M. School Examinations, all of whom passed, one gaining distinction in pianoforte, and one passing in organ-playing. Two also entered and passed for the R.A.M. and R.C.M. Local Centre Examinations, while one gained honours—the highest success ever gained by a Home girl, in Music. The same girl also took honours in the Intermediate Examination of Trinity College of Music. One boy secured a Junior Mathematical Scholarship at King William's College.

Conference of missionaries on furlough

It may be mentioned here that a conference of women missionaries on furlough was held at Eastbourne from June 14th to 16th, 1905. The Rev. Prebendary H. E. Fox acted as Chaplain, and addresses were given by Bishop Ingham, the Rev. F. Baylis, and Mr. R. Maconachie.

The 107th Anniversary.

The arrangements for the One-hundred-and-seventh Anniversary of the Society included no new features, though the gatherings held in 1905 for the first time were repeated. The proceedings commenced on Saturday, April 28th, with services for children and young people in St. Paul's Cathedral and Southwark Cathedral, at which the Rev. Prebendary E. A. Stuart, Vicar of St. Matthew's, Bayswater, and the Rev. Canon A. E. Barnes-Lawrence, Vicar of St. Michael's, Blackheath, were the preachers. On the following Monday a Conference of Laymen was held at Sion College early in the afternoon. In the same place at 4 p.m. the usual Prayer-meeting was held, and in the evening the Annual Sermon was preached at St. Bride's Church by the Rev. Canon Denton Thompson, Rector of Birmingham. Tuesday, May 1st, was a very full day. Clerical and Lay breakfasts, when addresses were given by the Bishop of Burnley (Dr. Pearson) and Colonel Williams respectively, were succeeded by the Annual Meeting in Exeter Hall, at which the chair was taken by Sir John Kennaway, and the other speakers were the Archbishop of Rupert's Land (Dr. Matheson), the Viscount Midleton, the Rev. Canon Sutton, Vicar of Aston, Birmingham, and the Revs. A. E. Ball, of the Punjab, W. G. Walshe, of Mid China, and J. J. Willis of Uganda. In the afternoon a Women's Meeting was held in the King's Hall, Holborn, with Bishop Ingham in the Chair, and Mrs. A. J. Hall, of British Columbia, and Misses E. M. Furley, of Uganda, M. Vaughan, of Mid China, A. F. Wright, of the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, and M. Maude, as the speakers. Three other gatherings were held in the afternoon, viz., the Annual Meetings of the Clergy Union, at which an address was given by the Rev. Prebendary H. W. Webb-Peploe, and of the Laymen's Union; and a meeting organized by the Gleaners' Union. The evening meeting, as in 1905, was held in the Royal Albert Hall. The Bishop of Winchester (Dr. Ryle) presided, and short addresses were given by the Rev. F. S. Webster, Rector of All Souls', Langham Place, the Revs. J. W. Balding, of Ceylon, G. R. Blackledge, of Uganda, A. J. Hall, of British Columbia, and A. Iliff, of South China, and Dr. A. Lankester, of the Punjab. Sir W. Mackworth Young took the Chair at the Annual Meeting of the Medical Mission Auxiliary on May 3rd, at which the other speakers were the Dean of Norwich (Dr. Lefroy), the Rev. E. Guilford, of the Punjab, and Drs. T. Jays, of Western Equatorial Africa, and A. Lankester.

Two changes have taken place in the Home Organization Department. The Rev. F. B. Hadow has responded to the Committee's invitation to become a member of the pioneer party to the Soudan, and thus rendered vacant his position as Secretary for the Work among the Young. He has been succeeded by the Rev. W. G. Hardie. The Rev. E. J. Goldsmith, the Secretary of the Medical Mission Section of the Department, has resigned, and his post has been filled by the appointment of the Rev. E. W. Cox, Organizing Secretary of the Liverpool District. A vacancy in the staff of Organizing Secretaries was also caused by the return of the Rev. J. W. Hall, who had been in charge of the Exeter and Truro district, to the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh. His district has been added to that of the Organizing Secretaries.

Rev. A. Bentley, who is now responsible for organizing the work in the dioceses of Bath and Wells, Exeter, and Truro. Dorset, which was in Mr. Bentley's district, has been included in that of the Rev. W. Clayton. A new district has been formed consisting of the diocese of Bristol and the neighbourhood, to which the Rev. C. Haldon, A.K.C.L., Curate of St. Margaret's, Plumstead, has been appointed. The Annual Conference of the Organizing Secretaries took place in London in January, 1906, a new feature of the proceedings being a service of the Holy Communion at St. Bride's Church. Shortly after the Conference Dr. H. Lankester visited America, on the invitation of the Young People's Missionary Movement of New York, to attend the Annual Meetings of the Movement. He was also present at the Annual Conference of Secretaries of the Foreign Missionary Societies of the U.S.A. and at the Quadrennial Conference of the S.V.M.U.

Dr. H. Lankester's visit to America

The receipts of the Medical Mission Auxiliary during the year amounted to £26,235, and the expenditure to £31,340. The amount available (from the year's receipts and from balances brought forward) was £27,883, so that a deficit of £3,457 on the year's working resulted. A Conversazione for Nurses was held at the C.M. House in March, 1906, when there were a cinematograph exhibition and Japanese receptions: the speakers were the Rev. C. W. A. Clarke, of South India, Dr. T. Jays, of Western Equatorial Africa, and Misses F. A. Forge and J. H. Poulter, of Fuh-Kien.

Medical Mission Auxiliary.

The principal new publications of the year have been the following: In Salisbury Square, a portrayal of the work carried on from day to day at the C.M. House, by Miss Irene H. Barnes; River, Sand, and Sun, sketches of the Society's Mission in Egypt, by Miss Minna Gollock; Notes on India for Missionary Students, one of the text-books of the C.M.S. Study Scheme for 1905–6; Systematic Scripture Study, by the Rev. D. H. D. Wilkinson, designed to help especially candidates for missionary work; and Vol. II. of Outline Histories of C.M.S. Missions (India, &c.). A second edition of Missionaries at Work has also been issued. The circulation of the Sheet Almanack for 1906 has exceeded that of any previous issue. The provision of missionary literature needs to be supplemented by organized efforts to bring what is published into the hands of those who are, or are ready to be, interested. In this respect valuable assistance has been rendered by the C.M.S. Circulating Library. Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Flint, after ten years of earnest work, have, to the Committee's regret, felt obliged to resign the charge of this effort: they have been succeeded by the Rev. G. T. Manley. During the year 6,244 books were circulated by the Library. Books to the number of 2,139 were also lent by the Loan Department, which in addition supplied sets of missionary diagrams 1,748 times; maps 1,334 times; curios, in lots varying from six to 400 objects, 714 times; and costumes 952 times. Sets of lantern slides furnished by the Department were used at 3,799 meetings. The cinematograph pictures have been in great request, and have been shown on seventy-nine occasions. The Rev. R. Hack fulfilled the duties of lecturer until his return to the Central India Mission in December, when his place was taken by the Rev. C. W. A. Clarke, of South India. All the cinematograph meetings were very successful in respect of attendance and from the financial point of view as well, two meetings at Torquay yielding a profit on the sale of tickets and collections of more than £68 after defraying expenses, while at St. Leonards-on-Sea the profits of one afternoon meeting amounted to £56. Another useful method of supplying information and at the same time raising funds for missionary work, is by means of missionary loan exhibitions. The balance-sheet of one of these, held at Tunbridge Wells, showed that after paying all expenses a sum of £409 remained to be divided among the Societies taking part, the share of the C.M.S. amounting to £185. Arrangements have been made with Mr. T. H. Baxter, who has succeeded the late Mr. H. G. Malaher as Secretary of the Missionary Leaves Association, for the development of parochial exhibitions, the object being to illustrate the work of the Society in a number of centres, rather than to join in a combined effort on a large scale. With a view to bringing the publications of the Society prominently before its friends in Birmingham a C.M. Depôt has been opened at Queen's College, making the seventh institution of that nature in the country. Good work has been accomplished in rural districts by the C.M.S. Vans, which are three in number. During one quarter the men in charge of that used in the diocese of Carlisle visited seven parishes. Nineteen addresses were given by them in Sunday-schools or mission-rooms, fifty-nine lantern-lectures were delivered, and it is calculated that some 7,000 children and about half that number of adults were reached. As a practical outcome twenty boxes were given out, and nearly £7 worth of missionary literature was sold.

The second Summer School was held at Keswick from July 12th to 19th, 1905, and was attended by over 430 members. Among the speakers, besides several of the Secretaries of the Society, were the Bishop of Carlisle (Dr. Diggle), the Revs. T. R. O'Meara, Secretary of the Canadian C.M.S., and now the Principal of Wycliffe College, Toronto, H. L. C. de Candole, Vicar of Holy Trinity, Cambridge, G. Denyer, Vicar of Christ Church, Blackburn, H. Gresford Jones, Vicar of St. John's, Keswick, and A. B. G. Lillingston, Vicar of Hull; Messrs. R. Maconachie and S. Earl Taylor, the latter of whom came over from America on purpose to assist at the Summer School; Drs. T. Jays, of Western Equatorial Africa, and A. Neve, of Kashmir; and Mrs. Ashley Carus-Wilson. All the expenses of the School were covered by the registration fees and special contributions, and in addition several gifts were made to the Society's General Fund. It was also decided to support a Summer School Own Missionary, and for the first year £113 was received. The Study Scheme, which was promoted at the Summer School of 1904, has met with a fair measure of acceptance, and by January, 1906, five hundred members had been enrolled, and fifty bands were known to be working in connexion with it. The Committee have appointed the Rev. G. T. Manley, M.A., Fellow of Christ's College, Cambridge, formerly for a short time a missionary of the Society in the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, as Secretary for Missionary Study.

Women's Department.

The Women's Department has suffered a great loss by the resignation of Miss G. A. Gollock on account of failing health. She joined the Society's staff in 1890, bringing to it exceptional qualifications gained in previous work, and for five years in connexion with the Editorial Department rendered most important services in the production and improvement of the Society's publications. For the last ten years during which she has been connected with the Women's Department, she, in association with her sister, has developed and organized the interest of women throughout the country in behalf of the work of the Society. The work of the Department included the organization of missionary addresses in schools for girls, of a large Conference of women workers in the dioceses of Hereford and Llandaff, and of several smaller one-day Conferences. As an example of the last named that at Southampton in September may be adduced. After a devotional meeting addresses were given or papers read on 'The Object and Outcome of the Conference,' 'Missionary Literature,' 'How to infuse Missionary Interest into all Parochial Work,' 'The Collection of Funds,' and 'Recent Developments in the C.M.S.' A second Conversazione for head-mistresses of High Schools was held through the kindness of Sir Douglas and Lady Fox. In connexion with the Girls' Movement a Conference was held at the Royal Holloway College, Egham, from March 26th to 31st, 1906, with Mrs. Ryle, the wife of the Bishop of Winchester, as Patroness. Miss A. C. Bosanquet, of Japan, has been adopted as the Girls' Movement Own Missionary.

Work among the Young.

Work among the Young was organized by the Rev. F. B. Hadow until his departure for the Southern Soudan in the autumn, when his duties were temporarily taken over by Mr. T. R. W. Lunt, of Western Equatorial Africa. Sermons or lectures were delivered in a large number of the Public and Preparatory Schools of the country—780 in all—the lion's share of the speaking devolving on the Rev. Dr. A. E. Richardson. The last named spent the greater part of August and September in giving missionary addresses at various seaside places in connexion with the Children's Special Service Mission. Turning to the children belonging to the less well-to-do classes, the help given to the Society by the companies of the Boys' Brigade calls for mention, for in thirteen years their contributions, which are devoted to the Medical Mission Auxiliary, have amounted to close upon £1,000. A gathering for the officers and boys took place at the C.M. House in January, 1906, and was attended by about 120 persons. In the Sunday-schools of the Metropolis and of some provincial centres good work has been done by the simultaneous addresses or use of a missionary lesson, organized in many cases by branches of the Lay Workers' Union. In London alone, on one Sunday, no fewer than 687 addresses were given in 310 parishes.

Among the anniversaries held in 1905 may be noted those in North Wales, which fall in the holiday season. Sermons were preached in August and September at Llanberis, Aberdovey, Colwyn Bay, Carnarvon, Penmaenmawr, and many other places where visitors congregate, and meetings were held at various centres, including Gloddaeth, near Llandudno, where year by year Lady Augusta Mostyn throws open her beautiful grounds to all who choose to attend the gathering. In the course of this campaign three meetings were conducted in Welsh for the benefit of those women who could not speak English. The year was one of special opportunity in Wales, owing to the spiritual fervour aroused by the Revival, and steps were taken to utilize this by means of missionary missions. Many of these were held in Anglesea, and were well attended. In some parishes Nonconformists freely attended the meetings and services, and seemed to appreciate the privilege of joining their brethren of the Church of England in missionary intercession. An effort of a quite different and somewhat unusual character is made every year at Holy Trinity, Tewkesbury, where a 'Missionary Day' was held in September. It commenced with a service at 8 a.m., at which the claims of the British and Foreign Bible Society were urged; at 10.30 Waldensian Missions were made the subject of an address; at noon the C.M.S. was represented; and at 2.30, 4, and 6.30 other Societies were brought forward. After each service a collection was made in behalf of the Society whose work had just been described. Special interest also attaches to two valedictory gatherings held in the provinces, one in Birmingham Cathedral in September, at which leave was taken of the Rev. H. G. Crabtree, proceeding to the Western China Mission, and of a clergyman and a doctor going out to join the staff of the Universities' Mission in Central Africa, and the sermon was preached by the Bishop of Birmingham (Dr. Gore), and the other at Bath under the auspices of the local branch of the Clergy Union, to bid farewell to the Rev. A. Shaw, a member of the branch, who was sailing for the Southern Soudan.

A 'Missionary Day.'

The results of the various gatherings held in connexion with the Society are not to be measured only by the collections made at their close, for hearts are often stirred to prayer and to fresh and persevering efforts for the spread of the Gospel throughout the world. There is no space for the mention of more than a few of the forms which the efforts take. One of the oldest and also the most profitable is sales of work. These are sometimes on a large scale, as at Preston, where a number of parishes combine, and £273 was realized in 1905; sometimes in a small centre, as at St. David's on Easter Monday, where one was organized by the Dean and the Vicar, and brought in £32; and sometimes the 'work' consists of farm and garden produce, as at Childwall, where more than £50 was taken at a Model Market. The stalls at sales of work are frequently stocked by the earnest efforts of working-parties, but the articles made by members of such bodies is occasionally disposed of without recourse to a public sale or is sent direct to missionaries in the field. Some of these gatherings are composed of women in humble circumstances, as a sewing class in a northern town, where a few women of very limited means have for three years raised £5 for the support of a bed in the hospital at Mengo. The power of the needle is also exemplified in the case of a governess in a private boarding-school, who laid out three halfpennies in 1899 on the purchase of a ball of crochet cotton. What she made was bought for a shilling: the sum was again expended upon materials; and by 1905 a profit of no less than £80 had been made for the Society. One other effort may be noticed. A friend in the Isle of Man instead of subscribing direct to the Society, spends the amount which he would give in arousing interest among the farmers and their families in his neighbourhood. In 1903-4 the contributions of these farmers amounted to between £8 and £9, but that sum has been multiplied many times during the past year. The plan adopted was to visit the farmers and induce them to give a single furrow in their fields, and to plant seed potatoes which were supplied. The crop was sold for the Society. In 1905 thirty-eight farmers helped in this manner, and in addition interest was aroused which led to some forty missionary boxes being used, while a number of farmers' wives made and sold needle-work for the benefit of the C.M.S.

Arousing interest among farmers.

Many gifts of great interest have been received by the Society, especially in connexion with Thankoffering Week. The largest parochial thankoffering collection received at head quarters was from Christ Church, Chislehurst, which sent £249. At Christ Church, Bristol, 800 envelopes were issued from house-to-house, and ninety were returned containing sums varying from 3½*d.* to £5, and totalling £49. One individual thankoffering was derived from the sale of a bicycle; another sum came from a 'few in a Sunday-school in a non-missionary parish;' while the students and servants at a C.M.S. training home denied themselves certain articles of food in order to have a share in the effort. Real self-denial has also been shown by many of those who have contributed to the total of £102 sent (not in connexion with Thankoffering Week) by the congregation attending the Church of Sherburn Hospital, an institution which was founded in the Middle Ages as a Leper House, but now includes a hospital for chronic cases, almshouses for aged men, and a medical dispensary for sick poor. A fervent appeal in The News by the Society's aged friend, Canon Christopher, led, among others, a poor widow to send him 2*s.* 6*d.* towards removing the deficit, a gift no less precious than that of another friend who forwarded him a cheque for £1,000. The Committee cherish the hope and belief that gifts such as these which have been mentioned and many others, are accompanied by earnest prayer that a blessing may rest upon the use made of them. Prayer not merely enhances the value of the gifts, but is also a means of drawing them forth, as has been shown during the year in the case of the Bournemouth Association. In October a prayer circle was formed in that town with the object of praying for increased means for the Society, and within three months the sum of £600 had been contributed from friends in that neighbourhood, unasked for, and in addition to regular subscriptions. Unhappily, such a spirit is not universal, for the claims of Christ concerning the Heathen and Mohammedan World are but imperfectly apprehended in many parishes. In a paper read at the Manchester Diocesan Conference held in October, 1905, the Rev. Canon J. C. Wright stated, that in that rich diocese only fourteen parishes gave over £100 to missionary work; at least 200 contributed less than £5 per annum—ninety of these did not even send £1, while fifty-two sent nothing. Foreign Missions can hardly be regarded as having obtained general recognition as the 'primary duty of the Church' of England, when her statistics show that of contributions for all purposes amounting to £8,029,713 in the year ending Easter, 1905, the share of Foreign Missions was no more than £772,995. In comparison with the previous year there was an increase of some £218,000 in the total contributions, but a falling off of £45,000 in the amount of the gifts appropriated to foreign work.

Obituary.

During the year the Society has suffered the loss by death of seven Vice-Presidents, four Honorary Life Governors, and one Honorary Life Member.

The vice-presidents were the following: Lord Alwyne Compton, formerly Bishop of Ely; Dr. Ellicott, formerly Bishop of Gloucester; Dr. Stanton, Bishop of Newcastle, New South Wales; Bishop R. Young, formerly of Athabasca; Dr. E. H. Perowne, Master of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge; the Rev. Canon Tristram; and Sir William Muir, K.C.S.I. Bishop Ellicott became a Vice-President of the Society in 1863, when he succeeded Dr. Thomson (promoted to York) in the See of Gloucester and Bristol, which he occupied until March, 1905, a period of forty-two years. He was the Chairman of the New Testament Revision Committee, and took the chair at no fewer than 405 out of the 407 sittings. In 1864 he assisted Archbishop Longley in the consecration of Bishop Crowther. Three times within the decade 1873–82 he spoke at C.M.S. Anniversaries. Bishop Stanton was a supporter of the Society as Vicar of Trinity Church, Lincoln's Inn Fields, before he went out to Newcastle, and he gave a hearty welcome to the late Rev. R. W. Stuart and Mr. Eugene Stock when they visited Australia as a deputation from the Society in 1892. Dr. E. H. Perowne was the son of a former C.M.S. missionary, and one of a family distinguished for their great services to the Church of Christ. He always showed the warmest interest in Foreign Missions, and under his presidency, and by his example and influence, the cause of the Society was greatly furthered both in the University and town of Cambridge. Canon Tristram, a distinguished traveller and naturalist, was for many years an Honorary Organizing Secretary of the Society in the dioceses of Durham and Newcastle. He visited several of the Society's Missions, and his daughter, Miss K. A. S. Tristram, of Japan, and two of his grandsons, the Rev. W. E. S. Holland, of the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, and Dr. H. T. Holland of the Punjab, are C.M.S. missionaries.

Bishop Ellicott,

Bishop Stanton,

Dr. Perowne,

Canon Tristram,

Sir William Muir, was formerly Lieutenant-Governor of the old North West Provinces, and Muirabad, a Christian settlement close to Allahabad, is named after him. His Life of Mohammed, Annals of the Early Caliphate, and translations of Sweet First-fruits and The Beacon of Truth, have been and are of great value.

Sir W. Muir.

The Honorary Life Governors called to their rest were the Rev. Canon S. Garratt, who, especially during his long incumbency of St. Margaret's, Ipswich, rendered many and valued services to the cause of Foreign Missions; the Rev. Prebendary R. S. Smith, the father of the Primate of Australia, and an earnest and judicious supporter of the C.M.S.; Mr. C. B. P. Bosanquet, the father of Miss A. C. Bosanquet of the Japan

Canon Garratt, Prebendary Smith, Messrs. Bosanquet and Bousfield,

Mission, who for more than thirty years had been Honorary Secretary for North Northumberland; and Mr. C. H. Bousfield, a generous donor to the Society.

Mrs. Barlow, and others,

The Honorary Life Member who died was Mrs. W. H. Barlow, the wife of the Dean of Peterborough, a devoted worker for the C.M.S. at Clapham, Islington, and Peterborough.

Among other friends who have passed away have been Sir George Williams, the founder of the Y.M.C.A.; the Rev. C. Hole, Lecturer on Ecclesiastical History and Fellow of King's College, London, the writer of the Early History of the Church Missionary Society; the Rev. E. C. Hawkins, Vicar of St. Bride's, Fleet Street; the Rev. Dr. J. P. Sheraton, Principal of Wycliffe College, Toronto, and one of the founders of the Canadian C.M.S.; and Mr. P. S. Melvill, C.S.I., a highly esteemed member of the Committee. The missionaries, whether retired or on the active list, and the native clergy, who have died during the year, are mentioned in connexion with the Missions to which they were attached.

Patronage.

The office of Vice-President has been accepted by the Bishop of Bristol (Dr. Browne), the Bishop of Ely (Dr. Chase), the Bishop of Kingston (Dr. Hook), the Bishop of Knaresborough (Dr. Smith); the Bishop of Woolwich (Dr. Leeke), the Bishop of Adelaide (Dr. Thomas), the Bishop of Fuh-Kien (the Right Rev. H. McC. E. Price), the Bishop of Grahamstown (Dr. Cornish), the Coadjutor Bishop of Jamaica (Dr. Joscelyne), the Bishop of Selkirk (Dr. Stringer), the Bishop of Tinnevelly and Madura (Dr. Williams), and the Bishop of Travancore and Cochin (Dr. Gill). The Committee have appointed Mr. R. Armitage, M.P., and Mr. F. A. Bevan to the same office. The Committee have appointed the following to fill vacancies in the list of Honorary Life Governors:—the Rev. T. Y. Darling (West Compton, Dorset), the Rev. J. P. Hobson (Leeds), Mr. R. Maconachie (Finchley), and Mr. G. A. Western (Shortlands); and have added the following to the list of Honorary Life Members:—Mrs. Bannister (Hampstead), Miss Bradshaw (Killiney, Ireland), Miss G. A. Gollock (Wimbledon), and Miss Maude (Overton).

The Colonial Associations.

I. NEW SOUTH WALES.

During the year under review the name of Miss M. L. R. Barry, a trained nurse, who sailed for the Uganda Mission, was added to the roll of missionaries of the New South Wales Association. Although not a recruit for C.M.S. work, another addition to the list of the Association's missionaries was made by the appointment of the Rev. W. E. Godson, formerly of the Mid China Mission, to superintend the work among the Chinese in New South Wales. Mr. Godson is preparing to take up his new post by further language study in China. The retirement, through ill-health, of Miss H. P. Phillips has also to be recorded. She was the first candidate of the Association after its organization was extended in 1892, and for thirteen years she laboured as an honorary missionary in Ceylon.

II. VICTORIA, SOUTH AUSTRALIA, WEST AUSTRALIA, AND TASMANIA.

The Victorian Association now includes Tasmania, and South and West Australia. Its Annual Report, which was read and adopted at the meeting held on March 7th, 1905, showed a deficit of £222, occasioned by the exceptional outlay (£400) involved in the travelling expenses of missionaries on furlough. There are now twenty-two missionaries on the roll working in C.M.S. Missions, two of whom—the Misses E. F. K. Doyle (Western China) and I. S. McNamara (Uganda)—were accepted during the year. Altogether five recruits sailed for the mission-field, viz., the Rev. and Mrs. H. R. Holmes (Bengal), Mr. V. E. Anderson (Japan), and the two ladies already mentioned. A series of Conventions for the deepening of spiritual life, addressed, at the invitation of the Association, by the Rev. Barclay Buxton, were held at various centres, and resulted in an increase of the missionary spirit.

III. NEW ZEALAND.

The Rev. W. S. Lucas has succeeded the Rev. J. P. Kempthorne as Honorary Clerical Secretary of the New Zealand Association, and the Rev. A. Gamble, formerly of Melbourne, has been appointed Clerical Organizing Secretary, a post which had not been filled since 1902. One additional worker—Miss E. B. Gifford—sailed during the year as a missionary of the Association, for Western India, where she has already laboured for some years in connexion with another Society. Two other ladies have been appointed to work among Maori women and children. At the end of January, 1906, there were 1,061 members of the Gleaners' Union in New Zealand. The income of the Association in 1905 was £1,586, while the expenditure amounted to £1,524, the adverse balance of £44 with which the year opened being thus happily exchanged for a credit balance of £18.

IV. CANADA.

The Rev. W. E. Taylor, who succeeded Bishop Du Vernet as editor of the Foreign Missions Department (relating to the work of the Canadian C.M.S.) of the New Era, left Canada in the autumn in response to an invitation to take up work among the upper-classes in Han-kow in connexion with the World's Student Christian Federation. Miss A. L. Archer, formerly a missionary in local connexion in the Japan Mission, has returned thither as a missionary of the Canadian C.M.S.

V. SOUTH AFRICA.

Miss E. C. Cooney, a lady who was sent to England by the South African C.M. Association for training, has been accepted as a missionary of the Society. The contributions raised by the Association during 1905 amounted to £1,375 as compared with £1,640 in the previous year. Mr. H. G. Wilmot has been appointed Treasurer in the place of Miss Dale, who has resigned.

VI. WEST INDIES.

Three recruits were sent forth during the year to the Western Equatorial Africa Mission by the West Indian Association.

Missions.

SIERRA LEONE MISSION.

Africa was the earliest field entered by the Society. Its first two missionaries were sent in 1804 to the Susu tribes on the Rio Pongas. In 1816 the Society's efforts were concentrated upon the Colony of Sierra Leone, which, since the abolition of the slave trade in 1807, had become the depôt for Negroes rescued from slave ships by the British cruisers. Much blessing attended the labours of W. A. B. Johnson and other missionaries, and in 1822 nearly 2,000 of the freed slaves, adults and children, were in the mission-schools, several thousands were attending public worship, and some hundreds had become sincere Christians. The work continued to prosper, but at a great cost of life; fifty-three missionaries and missionaries' wives dying between 1804 and 1824. In 1842 a Parliamentary Committee attributed the 'considerable intellectual, moral, and religious improvement' of the people to 'the valuable exertions of the Church Missionary Society more especially.' Port Lokkoh, in the Temne country, was occupied from 1840–50 and re-occupied in 1875; Ro Gbere was occupied in 1896; the Yalunka country, near the northern boundary of the British Protectorate, in 1897, and Falaba, the chief town, seven years later; and Katimbo, in the Limbah country, in 1900. A serious rebellion took place in the Temne country in 1898, during which the Rev. W. J. Humphrey, of the C.M.S., and several American missionaries were put to death by the insurgents.

In 1852 the Bishopric of Sierra Leone was founded, and each of the first three Bishops—Vidal, Weeks, and Bowen—died within three years of his consecration. Since then the following have succeeded to the charge of the diocese: Bishops Beckles (1860–9), Cheetham (1870–81), Ingham (1882–96), Taylor Smith (1897–1901), Elwin (1902). Bishops Weeks, Bowen, and Elwin were previously C.M.S. missionaries.

In 1860 the Sierra Leone Church was organized on an independent basis, and undertook the support of its own pastors, churches, and schools, aided by a small grant from the Society which ceased in 1890. In 1876 the Sierra Leone Church Missionary Society was founded, which has since carried on the outlying Missions established by the C.M.S. in the Bullom and Mendi countries. More than 130 African clergymen have been ordained on the West Coast (including Yoruba and the Niger). Several of them have been Government chaplains.

Reinforcements.

THE Mission has received the following reinforcements: The Rev. Norman Robert Ottiwell Gifford Bennet, M.A., Trinity College, Cambridge, and Ridley Hall, Rector of Hamworthy, Dorset, and Miss K. M. Richards, formerly of the Travancore Mission, who has now been taken into home connexion. The names of the Revs. J. C. F. King, D. A. H. McFoy, S. O. Nicol, and W. T. Thomas have been added to the list of African clergy on their admission to Deacons' Orders. The Committee have accepted the resignation of the Rev. J. A. Alley on medical grounds, and of the Rev. T. Rowan on account of Mrs. Rowan's ill-health. Messrs. J. W. Spreckley and R. H. White are also detained in England by the Medical Board.

Mr. J. Denton is Acting-Secretary of the Mission.

I. SIERRA LEONE.

Freetown.

Fourah Bay College, FREETOWN, which was founded in 1827 under the name of the African Institution, contains some forty students, most of them drawn from Sierra Leone and Lagos. The majority of the men are reading for a degree in theology or arts of Durham University (with which the College is affiliated), but there are two groups of non-University men—the normal students, who come with Government scholarships and are the special care of Mr. J. Denton, and a number of men, destined for work as lay missionaries, who enter the College for a year's course. Many of the students take part in evangelistic work among the Temnes at Cline Town, nine of whom were baptized in the summer. The Rev. T. Rowan was Principal of the College when it was re-opened in May, 1905, after extensive repairs carried out under the supervision of Mr. E. F. Harrisson. When the former left for England in July the Rev. W. H. Hewitt became Acting-Principal; he had as his colleagues, besides Mr. Denton, the Revs. Canon S. Spain, C. N. Lewis, S. J. Taylor, and W. W. E. Macfoy, African tutors.

Grammar School.

The Grammar School was under the Rev. Canon O. Moore until December 31st, when he retired through ill health, having been Principal for twenty-one years. His post was temporarily filled by the Rev. F. C. Smith, formerly a missionary of the Society in Uganda, and now Canon Missioner of the diocese of Sierra Leone. At the beginning of 1906 there were over 150 names of pupils on the rolls.

Annie Walsh School.

The work at the Annie Walsh School was in the hands of Miss H. H. Bisset, the Principal, and Misses C. H. Pidsley and K. M. Richards. The pupils happily escaped the epidemic of small-pox, which was widespread in the colony. One of the boarders, however, died of another disease in the spring; there were happily good grounds for confidence of her faith in Christ.

Helpful services.

Some special services held in Lent were instrumental in great blessing to the children: on one occasion half of the boarders declared their desire to yield themselves to Christ.

SIERRA LEONE NATIVE CHURCH MISSIONS.

The Sierra Leone Native Church Missions are carried on at ten stations among the Mendi people in the southern portion of the Hinterland, and two in the Temne Country beyond the Bullom district.

II. TEMNE COUNTRY.

Port Lokkoh.

The Rev. J. A. Alley, who returned to his old station at Port Lokkoh, the chief town in the Temne Country, at the end of 1904, was unable to detect any general growth of Christianity in the district. He says that while the hold of superstition upon the people may have lessened in some degree, few of them have accepted the Gospel, and a large number are nominal

Mohammedans. An effort was made to introduce the teaching of Temne into the school, but the parents of the great majority of the children preferred that instruction should be given in English. Evangelistic work was carried on by means of open-air services and speaking to the people in their homes, and three days in each week were devoted to visiting the twenty towns and villages in the neighbourhood. On one of these expeditions Mr. Alley met an old man, who had been a pupil in the school in the time of the Rev. C. F. Schlenker, who retired in 1855. The man refused to accept any remuneration for the hospitality he had shown Mr. Alley, saying that the message which he had heard was worth to him more than money.

Makomp. MAKOMP was without a resident European missionary after Miss B. Wale left on furlough in May, 1905, but it was visited by Canon Smith in the autumn, and there, as elsewhere in the Hinterland, he was impressed with the activity of the Mohammedans in propagating the tenets of their religion. He writes:—

Mohammedan activity. The Christian Church in Africa needs to wake up and take alarm, if she would even hope to maintain a place in the Hinterland! Everywhere you turn, be it in the by-way or on the high road, you find the 'Mori' men are thrusting themselves among the people and gaining adherents. They gather together a few children, and with the aid of wooden tablets, inscribed with Arabic sentences from the Koran, succeed in teaching these children the one great doctrinal 'fact' of the Mohammedan faith. It is useless for Christians to try to weaken the effect of the warning by saying that these children do not understand what they are taught; we must look to the net result, which is, that over the whole land determined Mohammedans are being made every day.

A substantial school was built at the station with money raised by the pupils and teachers of the Annie Walsh School.

An African agent was left in charge at RO GBERE when Mr. Alley was transferred to Port Lokkoh, but he found the work most disheartening. The people at Funknin for some months refused to allow services to be conducted or their children to be taught. Bendembu, once a promising station, had no resident worker.

III. LIMBAH COUNTRY.

Katimbo. DURING the year 1905 the work at KATIMBO, the Society's station in the Limbah Country, was in the hands of African teachers. Canon Smith paid a visit to the station in October.

IV. YALUNKA COUNTRY.

Falaba. LIKE the others stations in the Mission, FALABA was bereft of European missionaries for a great part of 1905, for Mr. J. W. Spreckley came home in April, and though Mr. R. H. White returned to the Mission in June, he was invalided home in a few weeks, being accompanied to England by Mr. H. Bowers. The last named refers in his annual letter to the vacillating conduct of the chief. When the missionaries first arrived he welcomed them warmly and promised to assist them in every possible way, but when approached on the subject he refused to build a school or anything which might serve as a place of worship in his town. Eventually he withdrew his opposition, erected the building required, opened the school in his official capacity, and once more appeared to be perfectly friendly. • Before long, however, he forbade the children to attend, and even flogged some of the boys who did so, but in the summer he withdrew all his restrictions and attended the Sunday services held in the building. Many of the pupils were the sons of Mohammedan mullahs. There were many signs of blessing on the work among the young men of the town, who ignored the charms of the mullahs, and expressed a desire to become Christians.

Young men ignore Mohammedan charms.

WESTERN EQUATORIAL AFRICA MISSION.

A large proportion of the freed slaves gathered at Sierra Leone at the beginning of the nineteenth century had been carried away from the Yoruba country, which lies a thousand miles to the east. About the year 1840 many of them, having by that time become Christians and traders on their own account, returned to their fatherland. The result was an invitation to the missionaries to go thither, and the establishment of stations at Badagry, 1845, and Lagos, 1852, on the coast; and at Abeokuta, 1846, Ibadan, 1853, Oyo, 1858 (reoccupied, 1887), and other towns and villages in the interior. More recently, Ode Ondo, 1876; Ogbomoso, 1894; and Oshogbo, 1900, have been occupied.

In 1841 a Government naval expedition, accompanied by a C.M.S. missionary, the Rev. J. F. Schön, and by Samuel Crowther, a liberated Negro slave, explored the River Niger. In 1854 a second expedition penetrated up the stream 500 miles, finding the Natives everywhere ready to receive Christian teachers; and in 1857 Mr. Crowther accompanied a third expedition, undertaken for commercial purposes, and laid the foundation of the Niger Mission by establishing three stations. One of these was Onitsha. Other stations were subsequently occupied—viz., Lokoja, 1865; Bonny, 1866; Brass, 1868; Asaba, 1875; the Basa country, 1897; Idumuje Ugboko, 1902; Bida, 1903; and Oka and Kaiyama, 1904.

Samuel Crowther was consecrated Bishop of the Niger Territories in 1864. He laboured zealously in the Mission till the end of 1891, when he died at Lagos. In June, 1893, the Rev. J. S. Hill succeeded Bishop Crowther, receiving the title of 'Bishop in Western Equatorial Africa.' Two experienced African clergymen, the Revs. C. Phillips and I. Oluwole, were consecrated as his Assistant-Bishops at the same time. Bishop Hill died in January, 1894, and Bishop Tugwell was consecrated the following March. In 1900, the Rev. James Johnson, a third Assistant-Bishop, was consecrated. Lagos was included in the Diocese of Sierra Leone until 1898.

In 1890 a party of missionaries went out under the leadership of the Rev. J. A. Robinson and Mr. G. Wilmot Brooke, with the idea of residing at Lokoja, on the Upper Niger, and thence making an effort to reach the Mohammedans of the Hausa States. The climate shortly proved fatal to both the leaders, and drove the rest home. In 1900 Bishop Tugwell led a party to Kano, and though they were not permitted to stay there they did not leave the country. Gierku was occupied from 1902–5; Zaria was occupied in 1905.

Death of Messrs. F. D. Coleman, and F. J. Huddlestone

Mr. F. D. Coleman was called to his rest at Oyo on July 6th, 1905, the cause of death being blackwater fever. He went out to the Yoruba country in 1899 and laboured at Oyo, Abeokuta, and Jebu Ode. He was taking charge of the Training Institution at Oyo in the absence of the Rev. F. Melville Jones when his home-call came. During his illness he imagined that he was giving an address to the students, and the last words he uttered were, 'Lads, be faithful—faithful to God and to your work for Him, and when your time comes to die, He will receive you into His eternal peace.' Mr. Melville Jones says of him, 'The controlling force in his life was the desire to know and do God's will. It was not that he had not a will of his own. He had, and one which he was not afraid to make known, but it was a will ever surrendered to and guided by the will of God.'

Another death to be recorded is that of Mr. F. J. Huddlestone, from 1899 to 1902 the Accountant of the Mission, who passed away at Rosario, Argentine, on January 12th, 1906.

Reinforcements.

The staff of the Mission has been strengthened by the addition to it of the Rev. Frederick Farence Komlosy, of Islington College, who for one year has been Curate of Wigan; Mr. George Edward Reeks, a short course student of Islington College; Miss Kate Beswick, of Baslow, trained at Highbury and Bermondsey; Miss Mary Alice Francis, of Liverpool, trained at Highbury; and Miss Elizabeth Annie Towe, of Nuneaton, trained at The Willows. The offer of Mrs. F. D. Coleman to continue in the Mission has been accepted by the Committee. The names of the Revs. Stephen Michael Abiodun and Benjamin Ilowo Manuwa, who were admitted to Deacons' Orders in March, 1906, have been added to the list of native clergy. The retirement of Miss E. Ballson has to be recorded.

Movements of Bishop Tugwell

Bishop Tugwell returned from England to his diocese in June, 1905, and after a brief stay at Lagos went in August to Onitsha. At the end of September he left to visit Lokoja, Bida, and other parts of Northern Nigeria, arriving on October 1st at Zungeru, the head quarters of the British Government in Northern Nigeria, where he consecrated a cemetery, and dedicated a church which the Government clerks had built with their own hands in their spare time. He returned to Lokoja a fortnight later. On November 7th he started on a journey overland from Onitsha to Bonny, viâ Owerri, returning to Onitsha a few weeks later. Shortly after his arrival at Bonny he wrote:—

'We have only touched the fringe of the work.'

> The journey has been a positive revelation to me. We have only touched the fringe of the work in Iboland. There are countless numbers of people absolutely untouched hitherto by the influence of the Gospel, who are living in the densest darkness. The Owerri district teems with human life. The people are all Heathen, all accessible, and all apparently ready to welcome us, to build houses, schools, &c., and to do anything that lies in their power to secure our residence among them. In other parts of the Ibo country the people live in towns or villages far removed from one another; in the Owerri district the people are more evenly distributed, and are everywhere. As an old man in speaking of them said, 'They swarm like ants.' The possibilities of the future defy conjecture; but I am quite prepared, from what I have seen, to predict a great movement among these people, if a well-organized effort be made to reach them.

Bishop Tugwell reached Lagos again on January 7th, 1906, and almost immediately became unwell with inflammation of the lungs, and went into the Lagos Hospital for a week. Bishop Phillips resides at Ode Ondo. Bishop Oluwole has his head quarters at Lagos, and during the first half of the year was in charge of Christ Church, Lagos. The last six months were largely occupied with visits to Badagry, the Jebu country, and the Abeokuta district. The Niger Delta, including the Benin country, is the special sphere of Bishop Johnson.

I. YORUBA COAST DISTRICT.

The Rev. F. Melville Jones is Secretary for the work in the Yoruba Coast and Interior districts. He has been appointed Archdeacon of the Yoruba country.

LAGOS.

Lagos. The congregation of Christ Church, Lagos, was under the pastoral charge of Bishop Oluwole until August, 1905, when he was relieved by the Rev. J. H. Linton, temporarily transferred from Oyo. At the end of December the Rev. A. W. Smith again took charge. Mrs. E. S. Dear conducted a Bible-class for women, and Miss C. C. Boyton one for girls, but the latter class was not well attended, and even those who came appeared unwilling to take up any Bible study for themselves. Bishop Oluwole laments that some of the people who are among the most regular attendants at the services, and who seem very attentive to the Word of God, continue to live in open sin.

Girls' Seminary. There was little increase in the number of pupils at the Girls' Seminary, of which Miss E. Ballson, who has Misses C. C. Boyton and C. L. Rankilor as her European colleagues, was Principal. The girls did well in their examinations, and won twelve prizes in the annual schools' competition, besides both of those offered to secondary schools by the Children's Scripture Union. A real spiritual work, too, appeared to be going on in the hearts of some of the elder scholars. At the beginning of 1906 a preparatory class for children under ten years of age was set on foot. The Rev. J. S. Fanimokun was head-master of the Grammar School, which had about 120 names on its rolls. Grammar School. The boys won twenty-five prizes at the Annual Exhibition of School Work, and the only three successful candidates for the Lagos Government Railway Scholarships hailed from the school. The lads raised £4 for the Lagos Church Mission, and many of them belonged to the branch of the Scripture Union which was organized by Mr. E. S. Dear, who was also in charge of the work of the Bookshop.

Badagry. Bishop Oluwole visited Badagry, where he confirmed six candidates, but he could not detect any growth in the little Church. There was no resident agent at Leckie, and a few of the Christians sympathized with the Bethelites (see Annual Report for 1901–2, page 70) who were active in the neighbourhood. Four adults were baptized and twenty-one candidates confirmed there early in 1906.

LAGOS NATIVE CHURCH AND MISSIONS.

Worldliness and indifference. The Lagos Native Church is described by Bishop Oluwole as having been more quiet and settled than at any other time since the commencement of the troubles with the Bethelites in 1901, but there is need of a stronger public opinion on the side of what is true and pure, and worldliness and indifference to their spiritual interests still characterize many of the people.

Jebu Country.

The Jebu Country is the chief sphere of the LAGOS CHURCH MISSIONS. The Rev. R. A. Coker, who resided at Jebu Ode, reports the number of baptized Christians, presumably in the whole of the Jebu Country, as 5,000, and of unbaptized adherents as 6,000. He has to lament the existence of several evils among the converts—indifference to the means of grace, a spirit of restlessness, unreasonableness in their desire to have a teacher stationed in their own village instead of at some neighbouring centre, an indifference concerning the education of their children, and a slackness in responding to those efforts to remedy the shortage of funds which were described in last year's Report (page 44). An estimate was made that if each convert would contribute 8*s*. per annum, the financial needs of the work would be met, but the people reduced this assessment to 4*s*., and of that sum only one-half, or even one-quarter, seemed likely to be paid. Nevertheless, the debt of £240 with which the year opened was reduced by half. But while Mr. Coker dwells on the unsatisfactory character of many of those to whom he ministers, he affirms that a large number join with him in deploring the existing state of the Church, and display much zeal for the evangelization of others. These voluntary efforts compensated in some degree for the lack of trained teachers and evangelists, which was accentuated by the abandonment of the training class conducted by the Rev. J. S. Owen, who was obliged by ill-health to return home. The number of persons baptized during the year was 1,028, about 100 more than in 1904, but nearly 500 fewer than in 1903.

One thousand persons baptized.

A catechist was supported at Ilaro, in the Sunren district of Abeokuta, by the pupils of the Lagos Girls' Seminary.

II. INTERIOR YORUBA DISTRICT.

ABEOKUTA.

Pastorates.

THE anniversary of the ABEOKUTA Pastorate Association was observed in September, and it was reported that the contributions from the various pastorates amounted to some £700. The resolutions and speeches at the meeting were most practical, and Bishop Oluwole regards the future as hopeful, notwithstanding the prevalence of polygamy, for the rulers of the town favour and respect Christianity and the Christians, and fetishism with its gross superstition is fast dying out. The Bishop mentions, as a sign of the times, that he one day noticed in an important township an Oro-grove cut down, and a public museum being erected on the spot. In the Ikija Pastorate, under the Rev. D. Williams, there was a noticeable increase in the number of young men attending the services. A prominent lay member of the Ake Pastorate, the Hon. C. B. Moore, died in January, 1906. He was an able lay preacher, and for some time was practically in charge of the Iporo Pastorate when it was without a clergyman.

Abeokuta. For a few months in 1905 there was no European missionary of the Society resident at Abeokuta, for though Mrs. J. B. Wood was joined at the station in November, 1904, by Dr. and Mrs. T. Jays, the latter were obliged by the doctor's ill-health to return to England soon after Mrs. Wood's departure on short furlough in March. Mrs. Wood was back at Abeokuta again in July, and the Rev. and Mrs. E. Fry arrived in September. Dispensary Work. About 100 patients were registered at the Dispensary on each of the three days of the week on which it was open. While the missionaries were away this branch of the work was maintained by an African agent, and as a result of his efforts two young girls asked for baptism. There were seventeen inmates of the Home for Lepers.

A new church was opened at Ofada, a village in the farm district of the Rev. J. Ransome-Kuti of Sunren, thirty-three persons, about half of whom were adults, being baptized at the first service. The work at Isan, another farm station, has suffered a great loss by the death of Mr. Jacob Fadipe, whose name has frequently occurred in the Society's Annual Reports of late years. Bishop Oluwole writes of him as follows:—

> Before his conversion he was an Ifa priest, and his knowledge of the mysteries of fetish was useful to him afterwards in his evangelistic work. As far back as the early eighties he began to do the work of an evangelist in his farm and the neighbouring hamlets. In 1894 he was first introduced to me as a voluntary evangelist at Isan, where he had then gathered about thirty Christian adherents together. But the little one has become a thousand—literally so, for there are now in Isan district about 1,000 Christian adherents scattered in some ten stations, five of which are occupied by resident teachers under the supervision of an ordained pastor located there twelve months ago by the Church Council. Some of these teachers are the fruit of Mr. Fadipe's work.
> It was in 1896, after years of voluntary work, that he became a paid agent of the Church. This was brought about at the instance of the late Rev. J. B. Wood, who observed that his evangelistic work absorbed almost all his time, and recommended the Church Council to offer him an appointment as a regular and paid evangelist of the Church.
>
> A diligent and devout reader of the Word of God, he was powerful in the Scriptures. A man of prayer, the divine light ever beamed in his sweet face. He was full of faith and the Holy Ghost, and much grace was upon him. In him we have lost a missionary abundant in labours. He has left a widow and five children. One of the latter is a schoolmaster of the Abeokuta Church. An apostle like Jacob Fadipe is a great gift to any Church.

An African 'apostle.'

IBADAN.

Ibadan.

A railway helps Sunday observance.

The Rev. T. Harding, who was in charge of the work in and around IBADAN, says that the railway is acting as a great industrial school, and that as Sunday is observed on it as a day of rest a large number of people are learning that there is a Lord's Day. A considerable desire for knowledge was manifested in the town, and more than 1,500 Yoruba Primers, together with copies of the Scriptures in Yoruba to the value of £20 and also Yoruba Prayer and hymn-books to the value of £32 were sold. The congregations increased, and in January, 1906, there were more than 200 candidates for baptism. But with the growing favour in which Christianity is held is involved the danger lest carelessness should creep in among those who bear the name of Christ. Miss H. R. Hewitt had Miss E. M. Hill as her colleague at the Girls' School, which is situated in the Kudeti township. Of the twenty-one girls in the institution at the end of 1905 six were engaged to Christian schoolmasters or catechists, and others to Christian carpenters.

Pastorates.

The income of the Ibadan Native Pastorate amounted to very nearly £200, a considerable increase over the amount of 1904. In the Aremo Pastorate, under the Rev. J. Okuseinde, steps were taken to build a church as a memorial of Mrs. Harding. The eldest son of Dada, the Bale (who, as mentioned in last year's Report, page 49, was appointed by his father to be in close touch with the Christians) attended the services regularly, accompanied by his retinue, and another son, a member of Mr. Harding's household, was among the twenty-three persons, the great majority of them adults, who received baptism during the year. Another of the converts is said to have been convinced of the truth of Christianity by the pure, happy, and consistent lives of the Christians living on the farms in his neighbourhood. Several persons publicly gave up their idols. The Rev. D. Olubi, who was in charge of the Kudeti Pastorate, reports the baptism of ten adults, and adds that some subject of discord, which threatened the well-being of the Church, was happily settled. The Rev. D. A. Williams, who was ordained at the beginning of the year under review, was pastor at Ogunpa. Three young men, the firstfruits of Yemetu, were baptized, but at Oke Mapo, where there is a congregation of from sixty to 100 persons, including the Bale of the town, there was no resident agent. All these places, together with Inalende, are townships within the walls of Ibadan.

Pure, happy, and consistent lives.

To the existing out-stations in the district, Apomu and Lalupon, a third was added at Iroko, a place six hours' journey from Ibadan. Mr. Harding first visited it in 1889, and then spoke to the Bale about the Saviour. Latterly the Gospel has frequently been proclaimed there, and about two years ago some Christians began to work on a farm in the neighbourhood, and commenced to hold services on Sundays. Mr. Harding, who was at Iroko in November, 1904, wrote a few months later:—

> After evening prayers we had a long and serious talk with the Bale and some of his people, with the result that two boys brought out their Ifa and we destroyed them, and the Bale took down his Oro, his ancestral god, and I burnt it. He then said that he would not offer any more sacrifices, but he withheld his Ifa. He seemed afraid to give that up as he was himself a Babalawo, or priest of Ifa. In the course of my last itineration I spent from Saturday to Monday there. The two boys have quite given up all connexion with Heathenism. The Bale, his eldest son and daughter, and first wife, say they will never more worship idols or offer any sacrifice. There were about fifty people at the Sunday morning service, some of whom were Christians living three or four miles away. At the evening lantern service there were about 150 people present, and after the service the Bale, when he reached his piazza, sent for his Ifa. There were two sets, one of three eyelets and one of four. These he handed over to me, telling me that he had sacrificed 600 goats to them, and now he had done with them for ever. The number of goats sacrificed no doubt is exaggerated, but it is only a form of speech to signify a very large number. The Bale has given us land for a station, wants to build a church upon it, and is very desirous of having an agent placed in the village to teach the children, as well as to conduct services.

A Bale destroys his Ifa.

The names of ten catechumens were on the roll at Iroko by the close of 1905. Fruit from such itinerating work as Mr. Harding was able to accomplish was seen in seventeen people going regularly to Agbirigidi from a neighbouring village for Sunday services, conducted by some Christian farmers, and by similar action elsewhere. In one village Miss Hewitt met a very old woman, who, in the course of conversation, declared, 'I do trust in your God. I always pray to Him.' Her heathen friends confirmed this statement, and the old woman then repeated the whole of the Lord's Prayer, which she had learnt while Mr. and Mrs. Hinderer were in charge at Ibadan, i.e., before the year 1869 when they finally left the station.

An echo of Mr. Hinderer's work.

At the beginning of 1905 the Training Institution at Oyo was under the care of the Principal, the Rev. (now Archdeacon) F. Melville Jones, and he was joined in February by the Rev. J. H. Linton, who had shortly before arrived from England. Four students who had completed their course were sent out to take charge of different mission-schools, bringing the number of old students at work in the field to nearly thirty, and several new students were admitted. The men engaged in various forms of evangelistic work, but some of them, Mr. Linton says, showed little interest in it, and appeared to regard it as a task that had to be accomplished, and to consider that the sooner it was over the better. He adds, 'While this is so, I cannot but praise God for the bright, manly, Christian lives of others, generally those who have been converted from Heathenism when grown up. Their intellectual attainments are not high, but they show in their lives the power of Christ to save.' When Mr. Melville Jones left on furlough, the late Mr. F. D. Coleman became Acting-Principal, and on his lamented death the Rev. A. W. Smith, of Christ Church, Lagos, and Mr. Linton, changed places temporarily. At Easter, 1905, the students of the Training Institution were taken on an itinerating tour to Ilorin, and preached in that 'stronghold of Islam' and in several of the surrounding villages. On her return from England in the autumn of 1904 Miss J. J. Thomas resumed the medical work which had been carried on in her absence by a lad trained at the Abeokuta dispensary by Mr. Fry. She speaks of distinct spiritual advance among the women patients, some of whom commenced to attend Sunday-school and services, while three became definite inquirers. After her husband's death Mrs. Coleman joined Miss Thomas in this work, and in visiting the women of the town. Among those to whom they went were the wives of the Alafin, or king, permission to do so being readily accorded by the new Alafin, who was appointed during the year under review. Mr. Smith, who frequently went to see him, says that some years ago, when his father was king, this man declared that he himself was God the Son, but that years of exile in Ibadan have made him willing to learn, and now both he and his brother, the Bashorun, or war chief, listen attentively to the Gospel. The Alafin has also shown that he is not in favour of certain ancient and cruel practices. Bishop Tugwell writes:—

'They show in their lives the power of Christ to save.'

Cruel practices discountenanced by the Alafin.

> It is usual on the occasion of the death of the Alafin for some of his wives to take poison. One morning one of the late Alafin's wives passed the ladies' house. The cook said to Miss Thomas, 'There goes So-and-So to take poison.' Miss Thomas immediately went to the new Alafin and reported what was happening. He said he did not wish the woman to die. Miss Thomas said, 'Can I tell her so?' 'Yes,' said the Alafin. Miss Thomas hurried off, and reached the woman just in time to save her life. It is customary to give the woman a hoe; she then goes and digs her own grave, and putting on her best clothes, lies down by the grave and takes poison and dies. She had dug her grave, had put on her best clothes, and was preparing to take poison when Miss Thomas arrived. As soon as she heard the message from the Alafin she left the hoe and the open grave and went back to her home. Her action saved the lives of others.
> Several persons, however, had already committed suicide, including the late Alafin's horseman. When he was told that he need not die, and that the District Commissioner had issued an order that the king's attendants were not to die, he exclaimed: 'I care not what the District Commissioner says, I am not going to forsake my master,' and so he took poison and died.

A strange and painful case of superstition is mentioned by Mr. Linton, who one day saw an idol composed of four sticks fastened in the ground, with pieces of paper tied to them. The size of the papers seemed familiar, and examination showed that they consisted of pages of the Acts of the Apostles torn from a Yoruba Bible.

Weekly visits were paid to Akimoren, where some twenty or more heathen boys were learning to read; and also to Awe. At the latter place a woman was one day struck by lightning and killed. The Shango priests at once appeared on the scene: a grass hut was erected over the corpse, and all the orishas, or idols, of the village were placed in rows or groups near the spot, forming, Mr. Smith says, 'a missionary exhibition which would touch the hearts of all who saw it.' Once a quarter one of the clergy went to Ogbomoso to administer the Holy Communion.

A touching 'missionary exhibition.'

OSHOGBO.

Oshogbo.

The Rev. J. McKay, who was Acting-Secretary of the Yoruba portion of the Mission during the latter part of the year, had seven young men in his Training Class for Evangelists at Oshogbo, all of whom rendered great help at the station. A new church was opened in the autumn. Much of the work had been done by the converts, who, without any inducement in the form of promises of food, gave three or four days a week for some months to the task, while a number of them carried 450 sheets of corrugated iron from Ibadan, a three days' journey, and brought all the timber in from the forest. Seven men and lads and four women were baptized in the church shortly after its opening.

Converts help in church building.

Five adults were received into the visible Church at Obagun, but owing to the African agent falling into sin the place was left for six months without any resident teacher. The king, who was mentioned in last year's Report as manifesting earnestness, set a good example of attendance at church services during the weeks which he spent at Ibadan in connexion with a dispute about some land. One of the men baptized at Obagun was the firstfruits of the work at Iragbiji. Three adults were baptized at Ada, and five at Ora. At the latter place the Christians were still without a church, the authorities at the instigation of the idol priests refusing permission to build, but the converts met regularly at the house of Samuel Lasinde (see last year's Report, page 52), and were joined at the services by a few Heathen. The young Mohammedan who was baptized at Ilofa in 1904 was instrumental in leading five other young men to Christ, and they were received into the visible Church during the year. Mr. McKay found his bicycle of great use in his itinerating, not only as a means of locomotion, but also as an attraction to draw the people within hearing of the Gospel. He speaks of there being many openings in his district, and says that at one place the Bale offered a piece of land for a church, and promised that he would begin to build as soon as a teacher could be provided.

A Mohammedan convert wins five others.

ODE ONDO AND ILESA.

Ode Ondo.

The Christians of Ode Ondo, where Bishop Phillips was in charge and the Rev. S. J. Gansallo was pastor, were widely scattered in search of employment, which many of them eventually found in the mahogany forests. The harvest offerings suffered in consequence, but Mr. Gansallo speaks thankfully of the consistency of the converts in the presence of many temptations, and says that their lives bear strong testimony to the transforming power of the Gospel. Although twin murder and human sacrifices have been abolished through the influence of the British Government, yet Heathenism is still in force at Ode Ondo, and the Mohammedans, though few in number, keep themselves prominently before the people, and have three mosques in different parts of the town. Eight persons were baptized at Oke Igbo, and three adults, the firstfruits, at Ogbomkowo, where work was commenced in the spring of 1904. In the district as a whole twenty-nine adults were received into the visible Church, including those already mentioned. In the Rev. E. M. Lijadu's special sphere of work, a number of chiefs attempted to crush out Christianity at Igbo Egurin. They procured the arrest of the evangelist upon false charges, and when he was released on the intervention of the British Commissioner they refused employment to the converts, thus causing them to scatter in search of work. Eight young men were baptized there in the spring of 1905. At Igbo Tako, where the Bale is a Christian, the evangelist was carried off by small-pox. The converts met with some domestic persecution, and certain heathen parents removed their children to more peaceful centres in order to escape the odium which they were gaining by staying with the chief. Mr. Lijadu writes :—

Chiefs try to crush out Christianity.

Faithfulness of Christian youths.

> To our surprise and great joy, all the Christian youths among them were sent back after two weeks' detention at the king's court, where, of the two alternatives placed before them by the national council, they deliberately preferred the one of coming back to Igbo Tako and Christianity and losing their possessions, to the other alternative of renouncing the hated religion in order to regain their property. On meeting them for the first time after their arrival, I asked how they came to make such a self-denying choice for themselves; the answer they returned was, 'We dare not so soon forget our evangelist's last words to us: he told us that, "Come what may, a true Christian should not live if he cannot die for Christ." Remembering this, we have left parents and all our property lest we should lose Christ.'

Six of these youths were confirmed by Bishop Phillips. At Makun, seven young men were baptized, the first from that place to publicly confess Christ in baptism. Mr. Lijadu paid a visit to Siloko, and a number of other places in the Sekiri district, where there are small bands of Christians.

The Rev. R. S. Oyebode, who was in pastoral charge at Ilesa. Ilesa, in the Ijesa country, reports that the chiefs of the town gave assistance in the building of the new church, and that several persons abandoned their idols. There was some discord among the Christians at Ijero, and at Odo Ehin persecution was experienced, several of the converts being severely beaten. The ringleader was encouraged in his action by a man from Ora, where the church was demolished in 1903 by order of the then British Resident at Ibadan (see Annual Report for 1903–4, page 55), who exclaimed, 'European officers do not care whether a church is broken down or not. What did they do when we broke down the one in our town?' The leader in these troubles was afterwards arrested and heavily fined by the authorities. Nine Natives of Iloro were baptized and twelve of Iperindo, and the firstfruits were gathered in at Okebode. There were also many inquirers in the district, some of whom were led to put themselves under instruction by the influence of their children, pupils at mission-schools. At one place, the name of which is not mentioned, a young man, who was a pawn, taught his master's sons, and four of them were being prepared for baptism when he left for his own country.

At Ile Ife, where an African deacon, the Rev. E. A. Kayode Ile Ife. resided, twenty-nine adults were baptized, but much trouble was experienced through the secession of certain members of the Church, who invoked the help of the Bethelites from Lagos, and opened a rival church for services. There were constant disputes also between the people of Ile Ife and those of Modakeke, who for long have been at enmity. A resident teacher was placed at Edun Abon, where a number of young men asked for baptism.

At the end of the year Bishop Phillips made a tour in the Ekiti country, in which Akure, Ise, Ado, and Ikole are the chief centres of population. Four adults were received into the visible Church at Akure.

III. SOUTHERN NIGERIA.

The Council of the Ibo Pastorate, provisionally formed at the Ibo Pasbeginning of 1904, at its half-yearly meeting held at Onitsha in torate.
August 1905, agreed unanimously that the experience of the previous eighteen months amply justified the continuation of the Pastorate. The good hopes then entertained were realized at the conclusion of the two years of trial, which expired in the following January, for it was found that the Pastorate, which supports six agents and three 'Own Missionaries,' had a small credit balance. The congregations at Oba and Onitsha Olona have been admitted to the Pastorate, making the number of congregations connected with it up to eight.

Translations of the Scriptures into Ibo.

There have been in the past three distinct translations of the Scriptures into the Ibo language according to the dialects in use at Onitsha, the head quarters of the Society, and at Bonny and Ungwana, the head quarters of the Niger Delta Pastorate and the United Free Church of Scotland Mission respectively. A conference met in the summer to consider the desirability of producing a new version to take the place of these, and it was agreed that the Society should be asked to set Archdeacon T. J. Dennis free from other work in order that he might devote himself to that task. It is proposed that he should reside at Ebu, a village three miles from Owerri, which is a town in the heart of the Ibo country, between sixty and seventy miles south-east of Onitsha.

The Rev. S. R. Smith is Acting-Secretary for the work in Southern Nigeria, and also at Lokoja and Bida on the Upper Niger.

ONITSHA.

Onitsha.

The Rev. G. N. Anyaegbunam, who was in pastoral charge at Christ Church, ONITSHA, reports the baptism of thirty-four adults.

Women's Work.

The Work among Women and children was in the hands of Miss M. H. Holbrook (until May, 1905, when she was transferred temporarily to Iyi Enu), Miss J. Brandreth, and Miss E. E. S. Lorimer (now Mrs. G. T. Basden). Miss Brandreth had the oversight of the Schools, in six of which the Government Code was in force. So many clerkships and other positions which present greater attractions to their minds than educational work are open to African youths, that it was difficult to find the requisite number of schoolmasters, and four out of the six schools had to be left in charge of young pupil-teachers, who, however, acquitted themselves admirably. A class for these and other pupil-teachers was held regularly, and the members showed a great desire for knowledge. Miss Lorimer was in charge of the Medical Work, which she handed over to Miss M. E. Elms when the latter returned from England in the autumn.

Iyi Enu.

Girls' Training School.

There were about fifty pupils in the Girls' Training School at IYI ENU under the charge of Misses E. A. Warner, E. Dennis, M. H. Holbrook, and M. J. Martin for different periods of the year. Twenty-five girls left: seven of them were married to Christians, of whom four were agents of the Society, and one became a pupil-teacher. One girl unhappily afterwards ran away from her husband and went back to Heathenism. The vacant places in the school were soon filled, mainly by young women from the western side of the Niger. Many of the students received definite blessing at some special meetings conducted early in 1906 by Misses A. L. Wilson and Holbrook, and eight were baptized during the year.

Owing to the departure of the Rev. S. R. Smith on furlough at the beginning of 1905, the break-down of Mr. J. N. Cheetham in May, and the enforced absence of the Rev. G. T. Basden that he might attend to the office at Onitsha, the work of the Training Class for evangelists at OKA would have been sadly paralyzed but for the faithful efforts of Mr. W. E. Blackett, one of the West Indian agents, who in spite of poor health laboured early and late that the work might not suffer. As it was the fourteen students were able to have practically their full course of study, instruction being given to them in general subjects, in manual labour, &c., and in holding services in the open air and in church and conducting classes of various descriptions. Nine of the men left at the end of the year to take up work in the Mission.

Training Class for Evangelists.

Visits to the out-stations and itinerations in the district were made by many of the missionaries. Some special meetings for women were conducted at Obosi with good results. At Anam, where work was commenced in 1902 by an agent supported by the congregation of Christ Church, Onitsha, the first converts, a man and a woman, were baptized, while thirteen persons were confirmed at Oba, where there are some 200 to 300 Church members. On every hand there were abundant opportunities of preaching the Gospel. Mr. Smith says that he was much impressed, when moving about the district, with the willingness of the Heathen to erect buildings as churches, and with the greater keenness and self-sacrifice of the Christian communities which have sprung up entirely under the supervision of African teachers than of those which have been taught by Europeans. And Mr. Basden writes:—

Abundant opportunities of preaching the Gospel.

> The manifestations of blessing are marked and distinct. The opening up of new centres records progress, and the applications from African young men to be employed as spiritual agents tend to show how God is blessing His work. If I may be allowed to put it so, I should say we are getting a very high rate of interest for the amount of capital invested, i.e. God is giving a far more abundant return than, humanly speaking, we have the right to expect, when we look at the amount of effort such a limited staff of workers can put forth.
> Each week finds more country being opened up by the Government for trade and political purposes, and with such boundless advantages being placed before the Church of Christ it is high time to stop playing at Missions, and to put forth a real genuine effort to evangelize this great country which God has entrusted to the care of the English nation. Traders and the Government are making networks of stations, taking every advantage of the opening up of the country, yet the Church of Christ is still only creeping along.

'The Church of Christ is still only creeping along.'

ASABA.

Archdeacon T. J. Dennis, who resided at ASABA until he came home on furlough in September, 1905, when his place was taken by the Rev. J. Spencer, an African clergyman, describes the attitude of the Heathen towards the Gospel as one of supreme indifference, and says that the conduct of the majority of the Christians is not calculated to attract others to Christ. But few of the converts took any active part in making known the message of salvation to their fellow-countrymen, and while some adults were baptized, only two of the large number of persons under instruction for confirmation were able and willing in the summer to present themselves before Bishop Tugwell for that rite. The attendance at the night-school fell off, partly owing to the absence of Miss E. A. Hornby on furlough, and partly to the depredations of a leopard which killed two human beings and made the people afraid to venture out at night. Archdeacon Dennis was enabled to complete the translation of the Old Testament into the Ibo language.

Lack of evangelistic zeal among Christians.

There was a goodly number of adult baptisms at Akwukwu, the 'brightest spot' in the district, where the contributions of the converts to the Pastorate Fund were in excess of those of 1904, notwithstanding the almost unprecedented scarcity of yams, their staple article of food. Moreover the Christians set apart one of their number to labour in the neighbouring town of Ubulu Okiti, and made themselves responsible for his maintenance. Nine adults were baptized at Atuma, where there is a small but vigorous Church, and two or three couples were united in Christian marriage. At Ugbolu, the smallest of the Pastorate stations, the Christians held their own in spite of persecution, and several adults were admitted into the visible Church, among them being a chief. There was 'progress all along the line' at Onitsha Olona, thirty-six persons being baptized in January, 1905, and a further fifty-six in November. Great disappointment was expressed by some who could not be recommended for baptism because of their having no Christian relatives to support them. One girl of thirteen said: 'You put me aside last time, but surely you are not going to do so again! I must be baptized! Death may come at any time, and I don't want to die without confessing the Lord Jesus, in Whom I believe.' Mr. Spencer wrote of the service in November:—

'Progress all along the line.'

> This never-to-be-forgotten day spent at Onitsha Olona carried my thoughts back to the day when I had the privilege of baptizing the firstfruits of this station in December, 1897. The candidates then consisted of a man and his wife and two lads. The ceremony was performed in the parlour of the old mission-house. The congregation, which was less than twenty, was made up chiefly of some wild-looking roughs, who came with spears, guns, and hatchets. While the candidates were being baptized, the men looked askance at me and then pityingly on the candidates, as if their conviction was that I was using some incantation to deprive them of their reason. What a contrast now! Who could have witnessed this last baptismal service, which took place in the presence of a reverent congregation of over 400, without confessing that already a mighty transformation has been accomplished at Onitsha Olona?

A 'mighty transformation.'

Two of those baptized at Onitsha Olona were the firstfruits of Ukwu Nzu, where a catechist supported by the Onitsha

Olona Christians is stationed. At Isele Azagba also there was a considerable ingathering, fourteen persons, including the chief, seventy-six years of age, who invited the missionaries to the town, being baptized on the occasion of the opening of a new church. Work in the neighbouring town of Edo was carried on by a voluntary agent, an inquirer named Nwaokobia, who, having learnt to read, gathered some people around him. He was baptized at the end of 1904, taking the name of Aaron. The absence of the agent on account of ill health from Abo Ogwashi prejudiced the work there, but at Ogwashi Ukwu, six miles distant, the first converts, six adults and a boy, were baptized. A few people cast away their idols at Ubulu Uka, where an agent, supported by the Asaba Christians, was placed during the year, but the teacher stationed at Umunede, a town in the Benin district, was ordered by the District Commissioner, on what grounds could not be ascertained, to leave, and Onije, seven miles farther west, was occupied in its stead in January, 1906.

Baptism of an aged chief.

The Rev. and Mrs. J. Spencer and Miss F. M. Dennis resided at IDUMUJE UGBOKO until September, 1905, when the two former were transferred to Asaba, Mr. E. Dennis, who had returned from furlough, joining his sister. Mr. Dennis took over the Training Class for Evangelists from Miss Dennis, leaving her free to devote herself to the women.

Idumuje Ugboko.

Great excitement was caused in the town by a Government proclamation to the effect that no young girl was to be forced to marry the man to whom she had been betrothed as an infant, and many of the girls expressed their determination not to have heathen husbands. The question then arose what was to be done to fit the girls to become good wives for the young Christian men. Fifteen were sent to the Girls' Training School at Iyi Enu, but that did not sufficiently meet the need, and accordingly Miss Dennis took nine girls to live with her, all of whom were supplied with food by their husbands. Twenty adults were baptized at the station. Every Saturday night a meeting was held to plead for an outpouring of the Holy Spirit, in which by degrees the people began to take part.

An important marriage regulation.

Miss Dennis made several itinerations from Idumuje Ugboko. The town is on the boundary between the Asaba and Benin districts, and when she went into the latter she met with unexpected opposition, not from the people, but from the chiefs. She says :—

> The Benin chiefs stir up opposition against those who have accepted the Gospel of Jesus, in some cases bringing false charges against them before the Government officials. People whom we believe would come out for Jesus and who are convinced of the folly of their present customs and worship, are made afraid by the threats of these men, who profess, with some truth, to have the Government at their back, and we feel that in carrying the Gospel to them we take them great trouble: thus our work is made doubly hard.

False charges brought against converts.

As an illustration of Miss Dennis's experiences the following extracts from her journal may be given :—

A man crucified as a sacrifice.

Feb. 3rd, 1905.—I heard this morning that not three months ago a man was crucified here at Akpu by the king for a sacrifice at the time of the annual festival. Akpu is a very out-of-the-way place, and there is no doubt human sacrifices are still offered in secret. The king called a meeting of the chiefs to meet me. There were about thirty in the king's reception room, and they listened well; but when I asked for a guide to lead me to the chiefs' house so that all the town might hear, I was most firmly refused. The king declared the people would be too afraid of me to listen, and they all said that they would tell their people to come to the house where we were staying, then we could speak to them. I think there are things in the town he does not want me to see; but if the people come here as they have done all day to-day, and they all hear of Jesus, our hands will be more than full of work.

Feb. 4th.—Again we have had a busy day with visitors. . . . Hundreds of people have been here to-day, and have heard of the sacrifice of God's dear Son for sin—the Gospel of reconciliation. The people are afraid of me lest I should have some secondary purpose which will bring the soldiers here! They have a guilty bearing, but we have done our best to show them our only object is the making known of God's love.

Feb. 5th.—Our last day here, and a very busy day for the Akpu people, so in the daytime we did not see much of them. But to-night, ever since dusk, crowds have been, and many could not get in. We had about eighty to prayers in my little room, every bit of standing place was taken up, and if it had been in England there would have been some fainting!

Feb. 6th.—Crowds of people followed us out of the town, and lined the paths to get a glimpse of me. But I seemed to feel that a great sigh of relief went right through the town when I had really gone. I have never been so impressed with the guilty appearance of people before, and they seemed to be always expecting a righteous judgment to fall upon them.

BRASS.

Tuwon. Mission-house burnt.

A serious disaster befell the Mission in June, 1905, in the destruction by fire of the mission-house at Brass Tuwon. The Rev. and Mrs. H. Proctor lost most of their personal goods, which could not easily be replaced, but they experienced much kindness in their trouble at the hands of the resident Europeans. The day-schools both at Brass Tuwon and at Brass Nembe were inspected by a Government official for the first time, and gained both his commendation and an increased grant. On Empire Day all the children, some 100 in number, were taken to the Consulate to salute the British flag. Sewing, and washing and ironing classes were carried on for the girls by Mrs. Proctor, who also held a dispensary two or three times a week. Once a month Mr. Proctor paid a visit to Akassa, staying from Saturday to Monday, and conducting services in a church built by the Sierra Leone and Lagos clerks employed by the Government. The services on other Sundays were taken by the members of a committee formed from among the men, who made themselves responsible for Mr. Proctor's travelling expenses.

Itinerating was carried on among the villages in the immediate neighbourhood of Brass, and also in the Idzo country. At Egberi, in that country, where Mr. E. A. J. Thomas, now of the Western China Mission, once spent a few months, the head chief begged for a resident missionary; and at Sabagregga, another fairly large town, a similar request was made by the chiefs, not for the first time.

Kaiyama.

During the absence of the Rev. and Mrs. J. C. R. Wilson from KAIYAMA, in the Ijo country, on furlough from February to October, 1905, the station was left without a missionary, but Mr. Proctor paid it a visit of a week's duration, and was warmly welcomed. Some young men came to him to resume their reading lessons, and the king and several chiefs, among others, were attentive listeners to the Gospel message. The promise made by the people that they would build a school was not redeemed. Mr. Wilson paid a visit to Emblemama, four hours' journey from Kaiyama, and had no difficulty in finding a good audience.

NIGER DELTA PASTORATE.

Niger Delta Pastorate.

The thirteenth anniversary of the NIGER DELTA PASTORATE was held at Bonny on April 30th, 1905, and the following day, the sermon in St. Stephen's Cathedral on the Sunday morning being preached by the Rev. J. Boyle. Some remarkable services took place in that building during Bishop Tugwell's stay in the town in November. On Sunday, the 26th, there was a service at 7 a.m., attended by 500 young people. This was followed by another at nine o'clock, at which over 1,000 were present. At this service the Rev. H. B. Merriman, African pastor of Obonoma, was admitted to Priests' Orders by Bishop Johnson. Bishop Tugwell preached the sermon, which had to be interpreted. This occupied one hour and a quarter, but the attention of the people never flagged.

A new church in connexion with the Pastorate, built and furnished by one of the Christian chiefs of Opobo, was opened at Aznogu, some twenty miles up the river from that place. Thirty-three adults were baptized soon afterwards.

A prolonged visit to the Delta was made by Bishop Johnson, who speaks hopefully of the work at Warri and Sapele on the Benin River, and in Benin city. He baptized forty-five adults, and says that urgent requests for teachers were constantly made to him. He found that Mohammedanism was increasing in strength in that part of the field.

IV. NORTHERN NIGERIA.

THE Rev. S. R. Smith is Acting-Secretary for the work at Lokoja and Bida, and Dr. A. E. Druitt acts in a similar capacity for that in Hausaland.

LOKOJA.

Lokoja. The Rev. J. D. Aitken resided at LOKOJA, where the Rev. O. Thomas is the African pastor. The Christians, who are chiefly immigrants from the coast districts, contributed £155 for Church purposes during the year. In the district around Kabba nearly a dozen men were won for Christ by an untrained native evangelist.

Kpata. The Rev. J. J. Williams, an African clergyman, was at KPATA, in the Basa country. He had four students under his charge in the Watney Training Institution, one of whom went forth during the year to take up work under the Society. The prospects at Akabe were bright, but at Gbebe there was little to cheer.

BIDA.

Bida. The Rev. J. L. Macintyre was at BIDA until April, 1905, when he left on furlough, the work then being carried on by Messrs. D. A. Macfarlane and P. T. Gordon, two West Indian agents. Mr. A. E. Ball returned to the station from England in June, 1905, and shortly afterwards Kutigi, thirty-four miles from Bida, was occupied by Mr. Macfarlane as an out-station.

HAUSALAND.

Gierku. The missionaries at GIERKU, the Rev. G. P. Bargery and Dr. A. E. Druitt, had hoped to be reinforced by Dr. W. R. S. Miller and Mr. T. R. W. Lunt at the beginning of 1905, but the latter's illness prevented him from reaching the station and Dr. Miller arrived accompanied instead by Mr. W. A. Thompson, one of the West Indian agents. Meanwhile Dr. Druitt, on his way home, had joined Mr. Lunt at Bida, and returned to England with him. The year opened with a great epidemic of meningitis and pneumonia, which carried people off within twenty-four hours of when they were attacked. More than one-tenth of the population of the town died, but in spite of the heavy mortality the people declined to come to the missionaries for treatment, and plainly declared that they had no confidence in them. They refused also to allow their children to attend school, and Mr. Bargery arrives at the conclusion that the work of the past five years has made practically no impression upon them.

'It is an impossible religion for us.'

In the spring of 1905 Mr. Bargery went to some large towns lying to the north-east of Gierku, and met with several Mohammedan mallams who at first appeared interested in the Gospel. But when they understood that Christianity demanded the abandonment of known sin and of polygamy they turned away saying, 'It is an impossible religion for us.' The Revs. F. H.

Lacy and W. P. Low spent the greater part of January, 1905, among the Gwaris and Kadaras, two pagan tribes to the south-west of Gierku, and later in the year they made a longer sojourn among them, just before coming to England on short furlough. The Gwari tribe, which appears to be one of the largest in Northern Nigeria, extends rather over 100 miles along the south bank of the Kaduna river from Gierku, the southernmost Hausa town in that part of the country, to Zungeru, and is found also on the north of the river. Concerning the religion of the people Mr. Lacy wrote in the Intelligencer for December, 1905 :—

A pagan tribe in Hausa-land.

> They have no knowledge of God, but a belief in spirits good and bad, and connected with this a sort of worship of ancestors. The outward signs of their religion are little huts, sometimes hidden away outside the town, where offerings of beer and food are made to the spirits. Also one frequently hears the fetauchi, a knife-blade tied to the end of a long string, which is whirled round and round, making a weird sort of shriek. When a man dies a chicken is killed and cooked, and then divided up very small so as to go round all the mourners, probably with the idea that the spirit of the dead man profits by the feast. There is another belief that the evil spirits of certain bad men in the town who are unknown come by night and steal the young boys and take them to the bush outside the town and light a fire and eat the children. The people have also a board for telling fortunes. A whole tortoise-shell is filled with stones and shaken ; the fortune is told according as the stones fall out.

Mr. Lacy says that since peace has been established in the land by British authority Mohammedan Hausas have begun to settle in the pagan towns, and that some Gwaris are now living and dressing as Hausas, though still retaining their pagan customs, such as smoking and beer-drinking.

ZARIA.

In April, 1905, Dr. W. R. S. Miller and Mr. W. A. Thompson, a West Indian agent, having obtained the permission of the authorities, took up their residence at ZARIA, a town lying some fifty miles to the north of Gierku. Great friendliness was shown by the Emir, who frequently went to see Dr. Miller, notwithstanding the tradition that a great Mohammedan Emir should never call on anyone living in his kingdom, but at the same time there was much bitter hostility to the work on the part of many of the people, though it was not openly manifested. Nine lads came regularly to school and about a dozen young men and some older ones as well had daily lessons. Dr. Miller's boy, Daramtar, fourteen years of age, was baptized after giving clear proof for twelve months of his faith in Christ. In addition, a couple of mullahs, well read in Arabic Mohammedan literature, abandoned all the observances of their old religion, set their slaves at liberty, commenced to observe Sunday, and endeavoured to win others for Christ.

EAST AFRICA MISSION.

In 1844 Dr. Krapf, having lately been expelled from Abyssinia, established himself at Mombasa, and two years later he was joined by the Rev. John Rebmann, who opened the station at Kisulutini (Rabai) in 1846, and laboured on the coast twenty-nine years. Their remarkable journeys into the interior led to all the subsequent geographical and missionary enterprise in East Africa. It was chiefly through the Society's efforts that the Parliamentary Committee of 1871 was obtained, which led to Sir Bartle Frere's Mission to Zanzibar in the following year. In 1874 the Rev. W. S. Price, formerly in charge of the Asylum for rescued slaves at Nasik, Western India, was sent out; some 200 African Christians from among the freed slaves who had been under his care were collected as the nucleus of an industrial colony; land was purchased for a settlement, which was named Frere Town, in honour of Sir Bartle Frere; and 500 rescued slaves were, in 1875, received from H.M. cruisers, and housed, fed, instructed, and led to work for their living. Stations were opened in the Taita country in 1883; in the Chaga country, at the base of the snow-capped mountain Kilima-Njaro, in 1885, but the station was removed in 1892 to Taveta, within the British sphere of influence as fixed by treaty with Germany in 1886; at Jilore, in the Giriama country, in 1890; in Kikuyu and at Sakini, in the Ukamba Province, in 1900 and 1903 respectively; and in Thunguri, in the Kenia Province, in 1904.

When in 1876 a mission-party was sent up country to establish a Mission in Uganda, the route adopted was from Bagamoyo, on the coast opposite Zanzibar, through Ussagara, Ugogo, and Unyamwezi; and intermediate stations between the East Coast and the southern shore of the Victoria Lake were established at Mpapua and Mamboya, both in the Ussagara hills, in 1876 and 1880 respectively. The Ussagara and Ugogo Mission was extended by the occupation of Berega, Nyangara, Itumba, and Mvumi in 1900; Bugiri in 1901; and Kongwa in 1904.

For these Missions a new bishopric was established in 1884, with 'Eastern Equatorial Africa' as the title of the See, and the Rev. J. Hannington was consecrated the first Bishop on June 24th of that year. He was murdered on October 31st, 1885, in Busoga, by the orders of king Mwanga. His successor, the Rev. H. P. Parker, previously a C.M.S. missionary in North India, was consecrated in 1886, but his episcopal career was also of brief duration, for he died from fever on March 26th, 1888. The present Bishop, the Right Rev. A. R. Tucker, was consecrated in 1890. In 1897 the diocese was divided into two, the portion of the original diocese which at that time fell within the Uganda Protectorate forming the diocese of Uganda, and the remainder becoming the diocese of Mombasa. Bishop Tucker elected to retain the interior division, viz., the diocese of Uganda, under his own episcopal supervision, and in 1899, the Rev. W. G. Peel, formerly a C.M.S. missionary in South and Western India, was consecrated Bishop of Mombasa.

Reinforcements.

Two of the year's recruits have been assigned to the Mission, viz., the Rev. Samuel Albert Martin, of Islington College, who has had a year's course at Cheltenham Training College; and Mr. Richard Kenneth Shepherd, M.B., B.S., Lond., and B.Sc., Wales. The latter went in the first place to the Uganda Mission, in order that he might gain experience in medical mission work, before proceeding to the hospital at Mzizima, to which he was assigned. The Committee have accepted the resignations of the Rev. A. R. Steggall and Mr. E. Luckock.

Bishop Peel's movements.

Bishop Peel visited the Kenia Province in February, 1905, and, later on, Sagalla and Rabai. At the close of June he started from Mombasa for the Ussagara-Ugogo portion of the Mission, intending to return to the Coast in November, but a rising in German East Africa (vide infra, pages 66, 67) prevented the Bishop from leaving the neighbourhood of Mpapua until February 20th. He reached Mombasa on March 18th, 1906.

I. SEYIDIE PROVINCE.

THE Rev. H. K. Binns is Acting-Secretary for the work in the Seyidie, Ukamba, and Kenia provinces.

MOMBASA DISTRICT.

Mombasa.

Dedication of the cathedral.

The Cathedral at MOMBASA, erected by public subscription in memory of Bishop James Hannington, Bishop H. P. Parker, and the Rev. Henry Wright, was dedicated on May 31st, 1905, the congregation including many Hindus and Parsis and a large number of Arabs and Swahilis. The general effect of the building, of which the extreme height is 108 feet, is strikingly Eastern. The main dome rises from an octagonal tower, each side of which is pierced by three slender lights. At the western end of the nave are two towers, also surmounted by domes. One of these gives access, by means of a spiral staircase, to the almost flat roof of the building, and the other contains the chime of eight bells. Four services are held in the Cathedral every Sunday, two of them conducted in English and two in Swahili. The latter are well attended, especially by men.

Buxton High School.

The Rev. T. S. England, the Principal of the Buxton High School, is happily able to report that all the teachers are Christians, and that the number of pupils rose steadily during the year. The work is carried on in three languages, English, Swahili, and Gujerati, and the scholars belong to many different creeds. Some of them at one time despised certain of their schoolfellows simply because they were Christians, but when they found that these lads were equal to themselves in their work they changed their attitude towards them. The eight girls who attend the school are instructed by Mrs. England in a separate class-room. One member of Miss R. M. Wyatt's evening class for boys was under instruction for baptism.

Women's Work.

Misses E. C. Wilde and F. T. Austin carried on Work among Women. The first-named visited from house to house, and endeavoured with but limited success to work up a girls' Bible-class. She also opened a dispensary in the centre of the town, but when the people discovered that if they came they had to listen to a short Gospel address before they received their medicine, they went instead to the Government hospital where they could escape that, to them, undesirable addition. She regards the people of Mombasa as having deteriorated since she worked among them six years before; and she writes as follows of the character of many met with there who, after receiving

Christian instruction and even baptism at other stations, have come to the coast and there have fallen into sin:—

A 'stiff-necked and indifferent' people.

> They are a stiff-necked and indifferent race of people, surrounded by the strong influence of Mohammedanism. It is not that they are ignorant. Many of them are enlightened intellectually with regard to Christianity, but they wilfully reject it and boast to your face that they are no longer people belonging to the Mission, but have chosen the Government and its influences. Drink is greatly on the increase. Truly may it be said of many that their last state is worse than the first.

Hospital.

The Hospital at MZIZIMA was closed for some months from the autumn of 1904, when Dr. T. W. W. Crawford went up country, but Dr. Wiggins, one of the Government medical officers in the island, kindly volunteered to visit it twice a week, on condition that one of the large wards was reopened for the reception of male out-patients. Accordingly the medical work was resumed in the summer under an African assistant, superintended by Dr. Wiggins until Dr. R. K. Shepherd should be free to return from Uganda.

Frere Town.

The Rev. I. M. Semler, an African clergyman, was in charge of the pastoral work at FRERE TOWN until the end of June, 1905, when he was transferred to Mombasa and Mr. G. Burns, of the New South Wales Association, was appointed to the oversight of the Christians, the clerical duties of the pastorate being discharged by the Rev. J. E. Hamshere. Within a few weeks of taking over his new duties Mr. Burns became seriously ill, and Mr. B. Laight, who had a very broken year, was called from the Ukamba district to succeed him. Early in 1905 a week of united prayer was observed, and was followed by a series of special services, arranged by the Rev. H. K. Binns. Mr. Burns says that there were evident signs of the working of the Holy Spirit in the hearts of the people, many of whom were deeply moved, while some stood up before the whole congregation to confess Christ, and others, who refrained from taking that step, showed a marked change in their lives. One result of these services was the establishment of a weekly prayer-meeting at which short addresses were delivered by various African workers and by the students of the Divinity School, of which Mr. Hamshere was Principal. That institution had eleven inmates, ten of whom left at the close of the year to take up work in the Mission. Among those who derived benefit from the special services were some of the pupils of the Boys' Boarding-school, whose consistency of life caused much joy. Several of the young men attending the night school for adults asked for baptism. Miss E. O. Thurlow was transferred from Mombasa to Frere Town in May, 1905, to superintend the Day-schools. She speaks cordially of the help which she received from the African teachers and pupil-teachers, four of them in particular exercising a good influence over the children. Miss S. A. Dixon, of the Victorian Association, had fourteen children under her charge in the Girls' Home, and for some months was obliged to maintain a constant struggle with her pupils who were endeavouring to get the upper hand. She also conducted a variety of classes for young married women and others, but says that though the meetings were often well attended, the women failed to grasp the fact that religion, if true, must be manifested in the daily life, and that while they liked to listen to 'sweet words,' there were black looks and sometimes abuse when the application went home. The Divinity School students assisted the agent at Mikomani on Sundays, and they also made a couple of itinerations farther afield. At Takaungu, the only considerable town in the district, thirty miles from Frere Town, large crowds assembled to listen to the Gospel. On one occasion the students while going through the bush were surrounded by a pack of wild dogs, beasts much dreaded for their ferocity, from which they narrowly escaped.

Girls' Home.

Surrounded by a pack of wild dogs.

Shimba.

African agents were in charge at SHIMBA, under the supervision of Mr. Burns. The number of people attending the Sunday services increased so greatly that the little church became overcrowded, and in the surrounding villages the teachers were always able to find an attentive audience. A second school, built by the people themselves, was opened at some distance from the station, and proved a success.

Rabai.

The Rev. E. W. Crawford, who was superintending missionary at RABAI, was assisted in the pastoral work by the Rev. L. F. Gore, an African deacon. The former says that inasmuch as many of the baptized Christians originally took refuge at the station to escape the pursuit of Arab masters, and for the sake of securing ultimate freedom from slavery, it is hardly a matter for surprise that, the power of the slave trader having been broken for ever, many of these people have fallen away from the Christianity which they professed in their hour of need, and now follow the natural inclinations of their own hearts. The Christians have, moreover, to face the efforts of the Mohammedans living in their midst to win them over to that religion, and of the Heathen to induce them to put their trust in charms and witchcraft, and Miss M. C. Brewer, who was appointed to Rabai on her return from furlough, states that she more than once found nominally Christian women and baptized infants wearing charms. Notwithstanding these causes for sorrow, there was much to rejoice the workers: several notable adult baptisms took place; a number of people were admitted as inquirers and catechumens; and the contributions of the people to religious work increased. In the summer Miss M. R. MacDougall was transferred from Mombasa to take charge of the mixed school, which had 160 pupils. Both she and Miss Brewer visited as much as they were able, and the latter carried on Bible-classes and sewing-classes for women and girls. At both Kauma and Ngovumi the people showed a real interest in the Gospel.

Kaloleni.

It is still the day of small things at KALOLENI, the station opened in 1904 on the borders of the Giriama country, but Misses F. I. Deed and M. L. Mason were cheered by some growth in the little congregation, greater friendliness on the part of the people in general, and a ready sale for Scripture portions among those who had learnt to read. The latter included five brothers who appeared by their lives to be truly seeking to serve the Lord Jesus, and who, wherever they went, taught those with whom they came in contact. One young man, who had received some instruction before the ladies occupied the station, was baptized, and had to undergo a good deal of annoyance and petty persecution. His child died, and the heathen grandfather said that it was because the oracles had not been consulted in its behalf, nor heathen practices resorted to for its recovery. Two other young men were admitted as catechumens, and one of them, with more zeal than discretion, went round one night to the neighbouring villages and uprooted all the memorial sticks put up to the spirits of the departed. His rash action caused some trouble, and he had to be sent to Rabai until it had blown over. The ladies stayed for three weeks at Mweza, a district two days' march from Kaloleni, and also visited Mtsengo (see last year's Report, page 79) and a place called Ndzovuni, where it was hoped an African agent would soon be stationed.

More zeal than discretion.

MALINDI DISTRICT.

Jilore.

The health of the Rev. D. A. L. Hooper, who was stationed at JILORE, was not sufficiently re-established for him to be responsible for many of the services. He had to content himself with preaching on Sunday mornings, and administering the Holy Communion on alternate Sundays, leaving the daily services, which were attended by every adult at the station, to be taken by the African evangelists. He was able, however, to carry on classes for the evangelists, communicants, &c., while Mrs. Hooper was responsible for other classes, and for the medical work. The people were more ready to come for treatment than in former years. A service was held every Sunday afternoon at Muyuni, a village about a mile from Jilore, and at another village, Mukowa's, two and a-half hours from Jilore, the people commenced to build a church and a residence for a teacher.

Mr. Hooper sums up the position of affairs by quoting Monod's dictum, 'The consumption is great, but the output is very little,' and says that he cannot report a single case of change of heart. He completed the translation of the Epistles and of the Revelation of St. John into Kigiriama, and proceeded to revise the little Prayer-book, adding to it a translation of the Litany and the Collects. The Rev. J. R. Deimler, the African pastor, was transferred to Frere Town in October. At the beginning of the year Mr. B. Laight spent three months itinerating in the Giriama country. He states that the people are too fond of drinking palm wine and of their old heathen customs to care for the Gospel.

'The consumption is great, but the output is very little.'

TAITA AND TAVETA DISTRICT.

The march of events in British East Africa is materially modifying the conditions under which missionary work is prosecuted. The country is being flooded with white men; large companies are being formed for cotton-growing and developing the fibre industry; and the Natives naturally flock to places where they can most easily make money. The Rev. J. A. Wray, who is stationed at SAGALLA, says that already about 1,000 acres of land in his part of the country have been leased for industrial purposes, and that the effects of it are beginning to appear. The work suffered from the removal of two of the European missionaries, Miss F. T. Austin being transferred to Taveta and Miss A. Drake coming home on furlough, and the diminution of the African staff by sickness and death. The services, however, continued to be well attended, most of the people making a point of being present. But Mr. Wray says that many of those who do so and also observe Sunday, regard themselves as ipso facto Christians; on the other hand, he adds that there are some who truly know and love the Saviour, and who have suffered persecution. One in particular is mentioned, who, having agreed with the other baptized women that they would not make beer for the men to get drunk upon, was severely beaten by her husband with burning sticks for carrying out her compact. There was a falling off in the number of pupils at the schools, three of which are held at fixed centres; the parents have little authority over their children, who consequently please themselves as to attendance. There are two itinerant schools, if such they can be termed, held by a couple of Africans set apart for the purpose, who travel from place to place among the distant villages, carrying with them reading-sheets and books, teaching anyone who is willing to be taught. Eight adults were baptized. Bishop Peel, who visited Sagalla in March, 1905, wrote of one of them, Martha by name, as follows:—

A woman beaten for refusing to make beer.

A former witch-doctor baptized.

She was formerly a witch-doctor, and strenuously resisted the Christian teaching, avowing that she would have nothing to do with it. One day, she surprised the women in her village by saying, 'I am going to find food for my soul.' They said, 'What! you going to be taught?' 'Yes,' she replied, 'why shouldn't I?' As soon as Mr. Wray returned from furlough, Martha began to attend the women's class and the class for those who are being prepared for baptism. Mr. Wray, to test her sincerity, told her that she must come to the women's school also. This she did most regularly, never missing a single lesson. Some women attend the classes in the hope of getting work and wages, e.g., carrying loads, but Martha was not physically fit for such employment, hence her motives seemed quite unmixed. She influenced her fellow-women, some of whom told the Bible-woman, 'If she goes through with it and is baptized, many from her village will follow her example.' True words! Two of them were baptized when Martha was. Two others now are preparing to avow their faith in the Redeemer.

Mbale.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Maynard, of the Victorian Association, resumed their work at MBALE, in the Dabida district, on their return from furlough in April, 1905, relieving Mr. V. V. Verbi who had been temporarily in charge. The Sunday congregations were smaller than in former days, many who at one time attended the services having come to understand the cost of following Christ and deliberately chosen to adhere to Heathenism. Dispensary work was carried on by Mrs. Maynard, and classes were held for candidates for baptism and others. Several inquirers came forward at Mlaleni.

A new station opened at Wusi.

In the summer Mr. Verbi took up his residence at WUSI, which was chosen as the site for a new station in preference to Kaia in consequence of its greater healthiness. Mr. Verbi had to give some time to the study of the language, but the people did not object to the consequent brevity of his addresses, for one of them remarked, 'A short sermon eats the ox,' which, Mr. Verbi says, means, 'can easily be remembered,' though the simile seems to need some further elucidation.

Mahoo.

At the commencement of the year under review the Rev. A. R. Steggall was missionary in charge at MAHOO, in Taveta, but in April, 1905, he was called to Mombasa to undertake the duties of the Secretariat and the Rev. K. St. A. Rogers was transferred from that station to take his place. The other missionaries at Mahoo were Miss E. C. Wilde (until May, 1905), Miss E. Mayor, and Miss F. T. Austin (from July). The Rev. J. N. Mbele, an African deacon, to whose earnestness and zeal Mr. Rogers refers in terms of high appreciation, speaks of the converts to whom he ministered as lacking in Christian love. The great majority of them are on the mission-settlement at Mahoo, and are drawn from the Natives of Chaga and Taveta, and from the Masai, though members of other nationalities are found there also. Miss Mayor continued to supervise the school until July, when she handed over that part of the work to Miss Austin, herself taking charge of the dispensary which was opened by Miss Wilde on her arrival at the end of 1904. From ten to twenty patients were treated every morning, some of them coming from a distance and remaining in the neighbourhood for two or three months until cured. Services were conducted on Sundays in various parts of the district, but the visible results of the work, excepting at Mahoo, were few. Mr. Rogers writes:—

'Deficient in grit.'

I do not think this is a matter for surprise. The people of Taveta are absolutely deficient in energy and 'grit.' Life is, and always has been, exceptionally easy in Taveta. A very small amount of labour is amply sufficient to supply them with their simple needs. And besides, the climate is anything but healthy, and life is short, shorter even than among most of the African tribes, so that there is little to stimulate their moral characters. It is only natural that such people should shrink from the 'hardness' of the soldier of Christ.

Seven years under instruction.

Six adults were received into the visible Church at the end of 1905. Among them was a man who had been under instruction for seven years, and had been kept back because of his inability to learn to read.

II. UKAMBA PROVINCE.

KIU DISTRICT.

Sakini.

THE chief work of Mr. and Mrs. J. Burness at SAKINI was among the boys and elder lads, of ages ranging from six to eighteen years, who attended the day-school. About half of the thirty-eight whose names were on the register were usually present, but it was difficult for them to get away from their duties in connexion with the charge of the cattle. The women of a neighbouring village invited Mrs. Burness to go regularly and teach them, and she was cheered by their evident earnestness. Some of the elders afterwards asked for instruction, and commenced to attend the services at the station. In the summer Mr. B. Laight went to the district in order to open a new station at a place called Kilungu, but within a month a decision of the Committee and the illness of Mr. Burns compelled him to return to the Coast in order to take up the work of the latter.

KIKUYU DISTRICT.

Kikuyu.

In January, 1905, the Rev. H. Leakey was obliged by ill health to come home, and his place in KIKUYU was taken by Dr. T. W. W. Crawford, of the Canadian C.M.S., transferred from Thunguri. The character of the people is evidenced by their custom of dragging sick members of the tribe out into the woods if they think the patients are likely to die, and there leaving them to be devoured by the hyænas. Concerning their religion Dr. Crawford writes:—

The religion of the Wakikuyu.

The Wakikuyu recognize one supreme god called Ngai. His office is to send all temporal blessings such as rain, good crops, wives, children, cattle, sheep, goats, &c. He is supposed to be all-powerful, and able to create prosperity or to withhold it at will. Sacrifices of sheep and goats are frequently made to him in order to gain his favour.

The people also believe in a supreme agency of evil corresponding to Satan. This personality is called Ngoma Njuru, and he is supposed to cause all disease and misfortunes, and sacrifices are made to him in order to avert his displeasure.

The idea of sacrifice is twofold: (1) Intercessory, requesting temporal benefits; (2) Thanksgiving for those already given and asking protection from all future ills.

Groves of mugomo trees are places of worship, and are carefully preserved as sacred. Sacrifices are usually offered by the Athuri, or elders, the head of each village being the one called on to perform the sacrificial function. He it is who offers prayer to Ngai at these times. Prayer among these people is only offered at a public ceremony.

Prayer only offered at a public ceremony.

The Wakikuyu have a belief that Ngai sometimes visits a camp fire, and state that he often carries a man high up into the air and instructs him how to gain favour with the deity. In a few hours' time he is deposited again beside the fire. I have questioned several on this subject, and they declare it to be true; one of my informants told me he knew a man who had been carried up in this way.

The one who has been uplifted calls the elders of the village together, and they sacrifice a sheep and a she-goat under the sacred tree, the flesh of the sheep being eaten by the elders only, and its skin cut into strips and given to the women, who wear it as necklaces, to bring good luck. The goat is cut up into little pieces and a few bits eaten by the elders, the rest being deposited at the foot of the tree for Ngai to consume.

Sheep and goats are sacrificed at certain seasons of the year. These sacrifices are made to gain favour with Ngai, so that success may follow the celebrants and that crops and herds may prosper.

These ceremonies are village functions. All the inhabitants meet together at sunset and a huge fire is made in the centre of the village. The elders kill a goat and sheep, which are roasted and eaten by all present. The fat from the entrails is collected by the women, and portions of it deposited at the door of each hut. When the feast is finished the oldest woman of the village seizes a piece of fat and, holding it aloft, asks Ngai to prosper the village inhabitants and keep all in good health. The fat is then placed on the fire and burnt. The next day is observed as a holiday, the elders generally getting drunk, but no one else is allowed to drink native beer to excess.

The following account given by a convert of the medicine-men, or, as he calls them, the 'cunning men,' of the country is of interest:—

The 'cunning men' of the country.

One used to say that he talked with God. In the time of rain and in the time of thunder and lightning, knowing that people did not walk during wet weather, he used to go out to go to sleep in the thicket. In the morning he came forth and used to tell the people that he had come from God. He would tell them, 'Bring me sheep that I may tell you what I have been told.' Therefore they brought to him everything that he wanted. Then he told them, 'I have been told that every village must give one black sheep; you must not give spotted. One you kill under a mugumo tree, and fry its fat, then put the meat and the fat under the tree and you will have plenty.' He took all the other sheep. From the time of the great famine he has not deceived the people thus. He saw that the people had gone to the white men and had become wiser, and if he attempted his fraud again he would be seized and tried by the Europeans.

Dr. Crawford devoted most of his time to studying the language, a matter of some difficulty, seeing that there is only a tentative vocabulary and a provisional translation of the Gospel of St. John in Kikikuyu; he also carried on a little dispensary work, while Miss A. Higginbotham taught the women who came for treatment. She found it by no means easy to reach the women as a rule, for when she asked the men to let them come and read, they inquired what she would pay them if they did so. And she says that from their point of view her request must have appeared unreasonable, like continually asking a business man at home for the loan of his horse and van, for they pay a high price for their wives, who cultivate the fields and do other work for the men. Several chiefs, young warriors, shepherd lads, and others, came to Miss Higginbotham for instruction, and greater reverence was displayed by them than when the work was first begun. One day these boys were told of the action of the children of Frere Town who gave the prize of Rs. 20, which they gained in the annual singing competition, to help build a school-house in the Dabida district. The sequel is thus narrated:—

Liberal gifts of lads.

When the class was over the boys went off, and in a little while returned with their offerings. One brought six pice, another twenty-one, another twenty-nine, another forty-one, and so on. One boy gave a rupee, and the missionary's house-girl two rupees. When asked if she could really give that amount, she quietly replied, 'My strength to give comes from God.' The boy who gave the rupee left the service of a European so that he might learn to read, and until quite recently has been supporting himself. The boys' names having been written down with the amount of their offerings, this boy then took the paper round and collected more pice, not forgetting to ask the native teacher for his contribution, which he willingly gave, these offerings amounting in all to Rs. 7.

Two of the boys mentioned in last year's Report (page 83) as studying with Mr. Leakey, were baptized, and two other adults were received into the visible Church.

III. KENIA PROVINCE.

Thunguri.

As mentioned last year, Mr. A. W. McGregor had the companionship of Dr. and Mrs. T. W. W. Crawford at THUNGURI at the close of 1904, but in the following January, after a residence of four months at the station, the latter were transferred to Kikuyu. Mr. McGregor was therefore alone throughout the year, being the only Protestant missionary within a radius of eighty miles of Mount Kenia. Sixteen boarders lived on the mission-premises, and there were several day-scholars as well. Three of the former were baptized by Bishop Peel on his visit to Thunguri at the beginning of the year under review, with the names of Petro, Joshua, and Johane. The congregation numbered over 200, even on wet mornings, and when it was fine more than double that number came together. Under the circumstances it became necessary to build a larger church, and one was commenced which is planned to accommodate 500 people, the Natives assisting by going to a bamboo forest fifteen miles distant to bring down materials for the roof. When Mr. McGregor was away from the station the services were conducted by the newly-baptized lads, and they sometimes took part in them also when he was present. He gives a few specimens of the style of their teaching. One of them once remarked, 'Do not let us say we are Christians because we can read. The Devil could read the Old Testament and said to Christ, "It is written."' And another said, 'The European does not like you to sit in his chair because of the filth of your body. God doesn't object to your approaching Him, but invites you; but he does object to your filth (not the filth of your body, i.e., your red earth and fat, but the filth of your soul).' An interesting incident occurred in connexion with the religious society called the Aitwika, which was briefly described in last year's Report (page 84), and of which Petro Njeroki has written as follows:—

Services conducted by young converts.

In this part, near to Kenia, there is a man whose name is Muthaka; he is deceiving the people and teaching them to worship a snake. This snake is very big and long, and is called Ndamathie. There are very many people who worship the snake, and those who do not have to give a sheep if they insult one of those who do worship the snake. If a man refuses to give a sheep he will be beaten very much and his house will be burnt down, and he cannot say a word. At the time of going to sacrifice the chief man of this affair tells the people to give oxen, sheep, and honey. Every little district gives. Some of the oxen and sheep are killed; the others are taken by the man spoken of before. The meat is placed by the side of the River Mathioya; the honey is made into beer. The snake will receive the meat to eat and the liquor to drink. When he has finished eating and drinking, the people who stand by blow their horns, and one man will go up to the snake and pull its hairs out. Then they will leave singing and go every man to his village. They do not say a word, because they say if we tell any man one word (about this affair) dying he will surely die. Thus people who do not know the Lord Jesus do not fear to lie, because they do not know God or His Son Jesus Christ; for if they knew Him they would not be able to say they talk with God when they do not talk with Him, neither to say a snake is God and if they worship it they will have grace, when they do not get grace. God shows them that a snake is not God, but they do not see because the power of Satan and his deceits fill their hearts.

Snake-worship.

One day when the chief Karori, who attended the services when he happened to be in the neighbourhood, was present, his nephew, Joshua, preached, and in his address dwelt on the folly of sacrificing to the snake. In the same week, at Karori's command, every little snake temple in the district under his rule was swept away. The faithfulness of the newly-baptized boys was shown in another matter. It is the custom in Kikuyu, no matter what the season or the weather, to cast out into the open, where they are often devoured by hyænas, those who are at the point of death, excepting such as happen to be headmen. Moreover, the people will not on any account touch a strange dead person. Once while Mr. McGregor was away on an itineration, a woman was evidently dying. Petro Njeroki went to the village and begged the people to have her buried when she passed away. At first they refused point blank, but at length they consented to his doing it. Accordingly, with the aid of the other lads he buried her, a proceeding which, Mr. McGregor considers, showed much pluck.

When Bishop Peel was at Thunguri six districts were chosen as future centres of work. One of these is called Kathogo, and is rather less than two hours' journey from Tuso, where Karori lives. Mr. McGregor paid several visits to the place, and with the aid of his lads arranged for a service to be held there every other Sunday, and school daily every alternate week. Mr. McGregor saw his Kikuyu Grammar through the press, and commenced work on a Kikuyu-English vocabulary. The boys also engaged in literary work, Petro completing a translation of St. Matthew's Gospel into Kikuyu, and Joshua Karori making good progress with one of St. Mark's Gospel.

Literary work.

IV. USSAGARA AND UGOGO.

Mission Conference.

A CONFERENCE of the missionaries belonging to this section of the Mission was held at the sanatorium on Kiboriani, a mountain some 6,000 feet high, on August 26th, 1905, and following days. Bishop Peel presided, and on Sunday, the 30th, preached at two services. There was a service of Holy Communion on the Monday, at which Mr. E. W. Doulton gave the address. The offertory was devoted to the deficit in the Society's funds, and realized over £20. Mrs. Rees, in concluding a short account of the Conference, wrote: 'To those of us who were present at the gathering on Mamboya Hill in April, 1900, when Bishop Peel visited the Ussagara-Ugogo Mission for the first time, the contrast was very great, and we could not help feeling that God had done great things for us, for which our hearts were glad.'

Native rising in German East Africa.

Just about the time of the Conference a serious rising of Natives occurred in German East Africa, in which a Roman Catholic Bishop and four of his missionaries were killed, a station of the Universities' Mission was destroyed, and the lives of many missionaries were seriously endangered. The Wahehe, the leaders of the rebellion, are snake-worshippers, and the Rev. H. Cole, who has laboured in the country for twenty-seven years, writes of them as follows:—

> The Wagogo, until recently, persistently refused to have anything to do with the nefarious system, deeming it worse than witchcraft, which is the only capital offence among them. However, for some reason or other, in 1905 the thing spread through their country like wildfire, multitudes being captivated by it. Medicine-men were seen going about with snakes, inoculating the people, for which they charged a small fee per head. The ceremony is gone through as follows:—Slight incisions are made in both temples, on the forehead, the tip of the tongue, both shoulders, between the shoulder-blades.

on both elbows, between the little fingers, on both knees, both little toes, and on the chest (in two perpendicular rows). The operator then takes a snake and puts it round the neck of the inoculated person, who, in turn, takes hold of the reptile and hands it back to the medicine-man. The next item in the programme is to sit on a mortar, turned upside down, while the medicine-man changes the old totems of his client for new ones. After this the tyro takes two handfuls of a ropy vegetable, and drags a pot twice from one place to another, the which is also done by the medicine-man, who, in addition, drags it round his disciple. Those who have been through this ceremony are supposed to have power over snakes, witches, and all other enemies.

The medicine-men, finding their craft in danger, and the people generally disliking the presence of the white rulers, who have introduced taxation and other obnoxious customs into the country, have resorted to these supposed supernatural powers to exterminate the intruders. Causes of the rebellion.

It will be observed that there is some resemblance between this superstition and that of the semi-secret religious society, called the Aitwika, described above (page 65), and students of the Society's publications will remember that in his annual letter, written at the end of 1904, Mr. A. W. McGregor said that if the Natives of his district ever combined against Europeans they would probably do so round the Aitwika (see last year's Report, page 84). The rising seems to have begun in the Matumbi Mountains to the south of Dar-es-Salam, and the disaffection spread thence to the sea and along the coast, as well as inland along the Rufiji River. Before long Masasi, a station of the Universities' Mission, was destroyed, and the eight missionaries (including three ladies) and two Roman Catholic fathers had to make a forced march to the coast, one of them, Canon Porter, who was too ill to walk, being carried by a couple of native Christians the whole distance of 100 miles. Tidings of the murders reached Bishop Peel, who was visiting the stations of the Ussagara and Ugogo Mission while he and his daughter were at Mvumi, where Mr. J. H. Briggs, and Misses Attlee, Fendt, and Forsythe were also residing. In view of the seriousness of the news, the party withdrew first to Handali, one of the out-stations of Mvumi, where they felt safer in the rest house with its roof of poles and earth than in the mission-house at Mvumi, which, being thatched, could easily be fired by the insurgents, and then to Kongwa, a few miles from the German fort at Mpapua. As the weeks passed a great number of the Wassagara joined in the rebellion, and early in November steps were taken to remove all the Ussagara missionaries to Kiboriani, the Society's sanatorium near Mpapua. Before leaving Kongwa, Bishop Peel and the male missionaries discussed the situation, and decided that the Bishop should write to the German officer at the neighbouring fort. The Bishop says :— Stations temporarily abandoned.

Accordingly I wrote to the commanding officer at Mpapua Fort, now Captain von Hirsch, who had relieved Lieutenant Styx, conveying our resolve and asking for certain assistance. Most kindly the captain visited us at Kiboriani, accompanied by ten soldiers, on Friday, November 17th. The upshot of a long conversation was that the captain telegraphed to Count von Goetzen that he had found us unanimous in the opinion that we ought to make for Dar-es-Salam, viâ Berega and Bagamoyo, with a suitable escort and possessed of a few guns and some powder for the use of our own followers. On Sunday evening Captain von Hirsch communicated to us the Governor's decisions, stating that (1) the flight of the missionaries viâ Berega to Bagamoyo, or viâ Irangi to Kilimanjaro, would really aid the rebellion in the north, therefore he was obliged to forbid our taking either route. (2) The retreat of the missionaries, if finally determined upon, must be along the Kilossa-Morogoro road, where a sufficiently strong military escort from military station to military station would be given to guarantee safety. (3) The Governor, however, desired to support the mission-stations, and, in case the missionaries wished to abandon the idea of retreat and to remain, the Governor asked them to reside in Kiboriani, and perhaps in Kongwa, to which places he would dispatch soldiers to protect them, even German marine soldiers, about the beginning of December, if the Government could possibly spare them. A fully adequate and speedy answer was urged upon us.

The German Governor offers protection

In their reply the missionaries said that they were willing to remain at Kiboriani as requested, but they asked that certain defensive measures for the safety of the party should be taken. It was not until late in February, 1906, that it was considered safe for Bishop Peel to leave for the coast. In the following month Kongwa and Mpapua were reoccupied.

The Rev. D. J. Rees is Secretary for the work in Ussagara and Ugogo.

MAMBOYA.

Mamboya.

During the earlier part of 1905 Dr. E. J. Baxter had the companionship of the Rev. and Mrs. W. E. Parker at MAMBOYA, but in the summer Mr. and Mrs. Parker came home, and the doctor was joined by Mrs. K. Pickthall, Miss E. R. Spriggs, and Miss K. Miller, of the New South Wales Association. The medical work was continued as in former years, an African assistant taking charge of it when Dr. Baxter was absent from the station, and acquitting himself satisfactorily. Some of the patients, who first heard of Christ in the hospital, joined a class for further instruction, and it was hoped that they would be witnesses for the Saviour in their distant homes.

Dr. Baxter paid fortnightly visits to Berega and Nyangara, to superintend the work carried on by the women missionaries and their African helpers. Mamboya, like the other stations of the Mission, had to be abandoned in the autumn.

ITUMBA.

Itumba.

The work at ITUMBA was left in the hands of African agents, superintended from Mamboya.

BEREGA.

The work at BEREGA during the first half of 1905 was carried on by Mrs. K. Pickthall and Miss E. R. Spriggs, under the general superintendence of Dr. Baxter, but in July Mr. D. Deekes returned from furlough and assumed the oversight of the station, and at the Conference of missionaries held soon afterwards the ladies, together with Miss K. Miller, who had joined them, were transferred to Mamboya. Mrs. Pickthall devoted herself chiefly to the schools, of which there was one at the chief station, and three in the district. They were attended mainly by men, a good number of whom were under instruction, the women being occupied in cultivating the ground and consequently hard to reach. There were several hearers and inquirers, and one man was baptized. Some seven years ago this man went to the Coast and there fell under Mohammedan influence, but before being formally initiated, he decided to return to Berega, at all events for a time. Happily he was led to attend school, and the teaching which he received was blessed to his conversion. Miss Spriggs writes that the desire of his heart appears to be that which he once expressed in the following prayer: 'Lord, let me be Thine, absolutely Thine. Let me not be a man to go back.'

'Let me not be a man to go back.'

Once a week Mrs. Pickthall visited a settlement of Wakamba, consisting of some villages about three-quarters of an hour's journey from Berega, going to the people on their plantations in the morning, and at noon for a couple of hours gathering them into a shed for instruction. In contrast to the condition of affairs at Berega, the men were unwilling to come, and most of the pupils were women. In November all the missionaries were obliged by the native rising to retreat to Kiboriani.

Miss M. A. Ackerman, who came home on furlough in the autumn, was alone for the first eight months of the year at NYANGARA, in the midst of Heathenism, which she describes as meaning 'slavery, witchcraft, sorcery, fetishism, devil-worship, and a hundred nameless woes and evils.' She was cheered, however, by the faithfulness of the African teachers, and by the baptism of a woman who had been under instruction for some time. This woman would have been kept for longer probation, but she was bitten by a snake and it was thought that she could not recover. Happily she was restored to health. There was also a lad, named Chilonda, ready for baptism. He was led to a decision by a sermon preached by Mr. Deekes, before he left for England, and then called out before all the people, 'Master, I want to believe.' At Maundiki, one of the out-stations, four sons of the chief, Kilongola, were under instruction, and at Chamunyo several people took their stand on Christ's side. Among them was Manyemba, the head man of a village, through whose influence his sister and her husband also joined the class of hearers. There were signs of an awakening at Itungu, but the four chiefs of the Kiefwe district refused to listen to the Gospel, and their people apparently followed their example.

Nyangara.

KONGWA.

Kongwa. The Rev. D. J. Rees describes the people of KONGWA, the new station which was opened in 1904, as friendly enough, but satisfied with themselves and their conditions of life, and without any marked anxiety to be taught about Christ. This attitude caused the attendance at the services and at the school which was set on foot under Mrs. Rees's supervision to be small, but as time passed there was an improvement and one Sunday several persons came forward asking for instruction. Two of these were elderly men, one of whom said that he had been prevented from taking the step earlier by 'the shame of many people.' In addition to the Sunday morning service in the vernacular, one was conducted in Swahili in the evening for the benefit of the Christians who had accompanied Mr. Rees to Kongwa from other stations as teachers or servants. A week-day class was also held for them, and some of the prayers offered at its close were touching in their simplicity, such as: 'Watch our hearts on all sides that no cold get in.' Four adults were baptized. Two of them were the fruit of one of the out-schools of Berega, and the others had also been instructed at that station.

Prayers touching in their simplicity.

Mpapua. At the beginning of 1905 the Rev. H. Cole, who was in charge at MPAPUA, suffered from nervous breakdown, and after a few months he was obliged to return to England. The people, who attribute all misfortune to witchcraft, concluded that he had stepped over mupeli (black magic placed by a witch on a path) and become ill in consequence. Mr. Cole says that it was amusing though sad to hear a Native solemnly denounce the Wagogo as very malevolent because of their outrageous conduct towards the missionary notwithstanding his affability and kindness! The enforced departure of Mr. Cole and the troubles in the district severely tested the converts, but helped by the steadfastness of the African teachers, Madari, of Mpapua, and Andereya, of Kissokwe, they remained faithful. The Rev. T. B. R. Westgate, of the Canadian C.M.S., on whom the oversight of the work devolved when Mr. Cole left, reports the baptism of eight adults at Mpapua, but the work there is described by Mr. Cole as 'like rowing against wind and tide,' owing to the bad example of lapsed Christians. Thirteen adults were baptized at Kissokwe.

The bad example of lapsed Christians.

MVUMI.

Mvumi. On his return from furlough in June, 1905, Mr. J. H. Briggs went back to MVUMI, his old station, where Misses B. V. Attlee, M. E. Fendt, and E. Forsythe were residing. The greater part of the ladies' time was spent in language study, but they contrived to carry on a little dispensary work and to set on foot a children's class. Two men and two women were baptized.

BUGIRI.

Bugiri.

Mr. E. W. Doulton, of the New South Wales Association, was in charge at BUGIRI until the end of August, 1905. Many of the pupils at the school, which is attended by adults as well as children, learnt to read the New Testament, and the Scripture teaching which they there received was the means of leading several to come forward as inquirers. Two young men who first heard the Gospel at the school, were baptized and afterwards engaged as pupil teachers. Five other adults, including these youths, were baptized by Bishop Peel in August, and at the same time thirteen candidates were confirmed.

UGANDA MISSION.

The first impetus to the exploration of Africa from the East Coast was given by the Society's missionaries, Krapf and Rebmann. They communicated to Europe the first report of the Lake system of the interior, which led to the journeys of Burton, Speke, and Grant, and, incidentally, to those of Stanley. In November, 1875, in consequence of information sent home by the last-named of the readiness of Mtesa, king of Uganda, to receive Christian teachers, and of two anonymous donations of £5,000 each being offered in order that a missionary expedition might be sent to his dominions, the Society resolved, in dependence upon God, to organize a Mission in Uganda, and a well-equipped party accordingly proceeded to East Africa in the spring of 1876. The first leader, Lieut. G. Shergold Smith, R.N., and Mr. T. O'Neill were killed, and Dr. J. Smith also died before reaching the country. The Mission, however, maintained its position in Uganda from July, 1877, and that notwithstanding tremendous difficulties. A French Roman Catholic Mission arrived in 1879. King Mtesa, who died in 1884, was succeeded by Mwanga, and the new king was led to regard the missionaries with suspicion. He caused Bishop Hannington, while in Busoga, en route for Uganda from the coast, to be murdered on October 31st, 1885. The storm reached its climax in the arrest of many native Christians, several of whom were tortured and burnt to death. In August, 1888, king Mwanga was driven from the throne. In October, through the hostility of the Mohammedan Arabs, the English and French missionaries were expelled from the country, and a period of revolution and bloodshed ensued. In October, 1889, exactly a year from the missionaries' expulsion, Mwanga re-entered Uganda and regained his throne through the help of his Christian subjects, and the missionaries returned with him. Alexander Mackay, however, one of the pioneer missionaries, died while at the south end of the Lake. In the same year Mwanga accepted a British flag from the representatives of the Imperial British East Africa Company. Sir Gerald Portal reached Uganda, as Queen's Commissioner, in March, 1893, and in April, 1894, the British Government declared Uganda a British Protectorate. In the summer of 1897 Mwanga fled from the capital, and his infant son Chwa, baptized by the name of David, was proclaimed king. In September of the same year a serious mutiny of the Soudanese troops broke out; several European officers were seized and murdered; and one of the missionaries, Mr. G. L. Pilkington, who in response to the appeal of the authorities was accompanying the Government forces as interpreter, lost his life. The country of Busoga first had a resident missionary in 1891; Toro was occupied in 1896; Bunyoro in 1899; Kavirondo in 1900; Ankole in 1901; and the Acholi country in 1904. Nassa, in Usukuma, at the south end of the Lake, was occupied in 1888.

In 1897 the Diocese of Eastern Equatorial Africa was subdivided, the Uganda Protectorate, according to the boundaries then obtaining (which have since been altered), being formed into the Diocese of Uganda, which Bishop Tucker elected to retain, relinquishing the remainder to form the Diocese of Mombasa.

Recovery of the bones of the first martyrs.

A DEEPLY interesting event of the year 1905 was the recovery of the bones of the first three Baganda martyrs, Seruwanga, Lugalama, and Kakumba. It occurred on this wise. The Bishop of Zanzibar was paying a visit to Uganda, and Bishop Tucker thought that it would interest him to view the spot where these three youths laid down their lives. Accordingly, having procured as guide a Mohammedan eye-witness of the tragedy, they proceeded, with the Rev. E. Millar as their companion, to Busega, on the margin of the great swamp, the Mayanja, where the martyrdom took place. Their guide narrated to them what had happened on that sad day in January, 1885, and added that in all probability he could find the wooden supports of the framework on which the lads had suffered. Bishop Tucker thus narrates the sequel:—

> Plunging into the long grass he and one or two other men who had joined from the garden hard by commenced their search. Mr. Millar joined them. In a few minutes an exclamation, 'Egumba!' ('A bone!'), from one of the searchers arrested my attention. I was quickly on the spot, and sure enough there was a thigh-bone of a human being. It was unmistakable. A moment in the mire and other bones were found and disentangled from the roots of the long grass in which for so many years they had been lying. A pelvis and arm-bones as well as leg-bones were easily distinguishable. Then a jaw-bone was found with the teeth intact. After that pieces of a skull and other fragments.
> The Bishop of Zanzibar, who is a Doctor of Medicine as well as a Doctor of Divinity, was easily able to identify the various bones as belonging to this or that part of the human body, and to state that without the slightest doubt they were the remains of young lads about the age of those who suffered there twenty years before. Our Mohammedan guide went further, and confidently assured us that these remains were beyond question those of Lugalama, Kakumba, and Seruwanga.
> Sending for a native hoe, a trench was dug, and, having lined it with some fresh green grass that was growing around, reverently we gathered the precious remains together and solemnly laid them in their last resting-place. With uplifted hearts and bared heads we stood thanking and praising God for all His servants departed this life in His faith and fear, but specially for that martyr band who in His love and by His grace and power had been enabled to be 'faithful even unto death.'
>
> I may add that a fence is to be put round the place of martyrdom, and as funds may be forthcoming some sort of monument will be erected to mark the spot.

Progress in twenty years.

It is difficult to realize that but twenty-one years have elapsed since those three martyrs met their deaths. Great indeed has been the advance witnessed by the intervening period. At the close of 1885 there were no Baganda clergy: now there are thirty-one. Then no native lay workers were mentioned in the returns: now there are 2,254. Then in Uganda, Ussagara, and at the station, Msalala, at the south end of the Lake (the statistics in that year were not given separately), there were but 118 baptized Christians and 100 catechumens: now the number of adherents in the Uganda Mission alone is 56,957. Then the adult baptisms during the year numbered twelve: in 1905 they numbered 4,355.

The Katikiro awarded a K.C.M.G.

Among those who have witnessed the growth from the beginning none have been more helpful than the Katikiro, Apolo Kagwa, to whose assistance in religious work by the right use of his great influence, as well as to his political services, Bishop Tucker bore witness to the Committee in 1902. The latter services have been recognized by the Government by the inclusion of the name of Apolo Kagwa in the list of the recipients of the King's Birthday Honours as having been awarded a K.C.M.G. During the year under review the Katikiro personally interested himself in the subject of self-support, issuing a letter, printed at his own private printing-press, which called upon the chiefs and all Christians to do their utmost to contribute the necessary funds for the support of the Baganda clergy and teachers. The remuneration of these is certainly not excessive. The senior clergy have a house and garden and twenty-seven rupees (36*s*.) a year; while licensed lay readers receive from sixteen to eighteen rupees, and teachers from six to fourteen rupees a year. Latterly it has been the custom to devote the Easter offerings to the augmentation of the stipends of the clergy. It must be confessed, however, that in 1905 much dissatisfaction was displayed by some of the teachers at the smallness of their pay, and it took the form of a regrettable 'strike.' Reference is made to it under the heading of the stations chiefly affected.

The sleeping-sickness.

The ravages of the sleeping-sickness in the low-lying districts, and especially on the islands of Lake Victoria, continue unabated. Even Europeans who have worked in the infected districts have been attacked, and it is a matter for deep thankfulness that the Society's missionaries have hitherto escaped. The efforts of the Commission which is investigating the disease have not yet resulted in the discovery of any remedial or practical preventive measures.

Bishop Tucker's movements.

Bishop Tucker continued his frequent journeys about his vast diocese. He spent seven weeks early in 1905 in a visit to Bunyoro, Toro, and the Albert Lake, in which time he confirmed more than 500 candidates. The Bishop came home in May, 1906.

Reinforcements.

Eight of the year's recruits have been assigned to the Mission, viz., the Rev. Henry Alexander Brewer, B.A., Queens' College, Cambridge, Curate of St. George's, Birmingham, a brother of Miss E. M. Brewer of the Uganda Mission and a nephew of Miss M. C. Brewer of the East Africa Mission; the Revs. Alfred J. Leech and Herbert Thomas Wright, both of Islington College; Messrs. Moritz Gerber and Walter Holden, short course students of Islington College; Miss Margaret Laura Rosalie Barry, of the New South Wales Association; Miss Minnie Brown, of New Cross, trained at The Willows; and Miss Isabella Sarah McNamara, of the Victorian Association. The Committee have accepted the resignation of the Rev. W. A. Crabtree.

Mengo. Training Classes.

At Mengo Training Classes for candidates for ordination were conducted by Archdeacon R. H. Walker, the Secretary of the Mission, and the Revs. J. Roscoe, who became Acting-Secretary when Archdeacon Walker left for England in July, 1905, and H. W. Weatherhead. Miss G. E. Bird was responsible for instructing the women who came forward as candidates for teachers' posts. Four of them passed the Senior Teachers' Examination and six that for Juniors, and almost all went forth to work in various parts of the country. Good accounts were received of those who had been trained in past years. The High School, under Mr. C. W. Hattersley, contained about fifty boys, the sons of chiefs. The average attendance at the Boys' Primary School, superintended until November by the Rev. C. H. T. Ecob, rose steadily during the year, and was 293 by the end of October. A public prize distribution took place for the first time in the summer, and on Empire Day sports were held for prizes offered by the Government. Mr. Ecob was much occupied in training the pupil-teachers, who, he says, deserve the highest praise for their work. One who had been of their number and had taken up work in the Budama district of Masaba, was there killed in June. When a volunteer was asked for to take his place no one at first was willing to go, but eventually a lad who had received but little training came forward, and his example led another, who was better suited for the responsible post, to offer his services. At the Girls' School under Miss E. M. Brewer the morning average attendance increased by fifty per cent., and the afternoon was nearly double that of 1904. Among the pupils were about fifty girls aged from fourteen to seventeen, for whose benefit a social gathering was held monthly, which it was hoped would develop into a Y.W.C.A. Miss Brewer says that much prayer is needed for the boys and girls of Uganda, and adds :—

High School.

Girls' School.

> Now that the strict guard, which was the old régime for the young people, is taken off, there is so much licence; many have thrown off every yoke and do just as they like, refusing to listen to any kind of authority. It is from this that we long to save the young people in our schools; we want them to learn humility and subjection to the law of Christ.

Miss E. M. Furley superintended the Work among Women, and several of the ladies visited as they had opportunity. One of those to whom they went was Mwanga's mother, who was confirmed with ten of her household during the year. Miss Bird writes :—

Work among Women.

> We had a most interesting meeting in her house a short while ago, and we simply marvelled at the grace and power of God in so changing one who had been so hard. It was wonderful to see her sitting there with her people around her singing God's praises and trying to answer the questions we put to her during the little Bible-talk we had in her house.

The charge of the Society's office fell upon the Rev. E. Millar from the end of March, 1905, when Mr. C. J. Phillips, the Accountant of the Mission, left on furlough. The former says that the sale of books was rather disappointing owing to the people not yet having realized what it costs to produce them. The actual figures for 1905 show that 7,990 copies of the Scriptures in whole or in part were purchased as against 18,848 in 1903, and 48,000 Prayer-books, Catechisms, Commentaries, Hymn-books, and First Reading-books as compared with 58,000 in the earlier year. On the other hand stationery and writing materials were much in request. Mr. Millar found that the new Government regulations concerning marriage involved a good deal of work, for he acted as Registrar-General for all the native Anglican Church marriages, and had to obtain the certificates of marriage and fees from all the stations in the country. He also acted as Secretary of the Translational Committee, and, until the autumn, as editor of Uganda Notes.

Sale of books.

Medical work.

In the Medical Work Dr. A. R. Cook had the assistance of Mrs. Cook and also of Miss B. E. Dallison, a trained nurse, who was in charge of the men's ward, and Miss E. M. Piffin, a nurse probationer; and in September these missionaries were joined by Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Cook. A sleeping-sickness hospital was opened on a neighbouring hill to that on which the main hospital is situated, and the dispensary given by Mr. Wellcome, of the firm of Burroughs, Wellcome & Co., was completed and proved a great boon. Concerning a new method of treatment which was adopted in the former, and one of the patients, Dr. A. R. Cook writes:—

A sleeping-sickness hospital.

> The new method of treating sleeping-sickness cases by gradually increasing doses of arsenic, administered hypodermically, until enormous quantities were reached, was accorded a long and patient trial, in several instances extending over six months. In many cases improvement was seen, and even maintained for a considerable time, but relapse always occurred after a shorter or longer interval, and it must be reluctantly confessed that so far no remedy has been found for this terrible scourge.
> A life hazarded for Christ's sake. Some of the cases were very pathetic. There was a Christian woman named Damali studying at Ngogwe for her senior teacher's certificate, whose heart was touched by hearing how people were dying of the fell disease on one of the islands, knowing nothing of the Christian's hope. She gave up her chance of the coveted teacher's certificate and went off to the island, well knowing the awful risk she ran, literally hazarding her life for the sake of the Name. She took the disease, and was admitted into Mengo Hospital quite bedridden. Under the arsenic treatment she rapidly recovered strength, and even walked about a mile and attended the Cathedral service; latterly, however, she has had a relapse and grown much weaker, but her bright faith still remains and she is a power for good in the ward.

There were many more in-patients at the general hospital than in 1904, and a real growth in their confidence in the missionaries and in their readiness to abide by the rules was observable. A few Mohammedans attended for treatment, and the chiefs' ward, containing six beds for paying patients, was very popular among the Goanese and Indians. A Jew, the manager of a trading company, was an inmate of this ward for some time, and before he left inquired where he could procure a Swahili

Bible. Dr. J. H. Cook tells of one patient at the point of death who, when asked if he knew Who Jesus Christ was, replied, 'He is a strong bridge over which I pass through the gates.' The doctor adds that there were a few cases of death-bed repentance, but they were rare, and he realized more than ever the need of pressing the claims of Christ on the people during their health and convalescence. Concerning the facilities afforded by the medical work for doing this, and the need of watchfulness on the part of the workers lest they should be unutilized, he writes:—

'A strong bridge over which I pass through the gates'

> The ward services, and especially the dispensary services, are unique opportunities for speaking of our dear Master to ready and willing listeners. 'The common people heard him gladly' might well be written over any of these gatherings. It is our constant prayer as we go to our day's work, 'Lord, let us not miss to-day the many precious opportunities Thou art giving us.' And yet at night again and again have I had to regret opportunities many that I have missed and realized only too plainly as soon as they were past. And how many more must there have been that slipped by unnoticed! Will you pray for us very especially that neither preoccupation, nor pressure of medical duties, nor mistaken motives of prudence or expediency, nor sheer fatigue of body, nor soul-weariness may seal our lips when they might give a message? I would ask more: pray for us that we may spend and be spent for our dear Lord and Master.

'Let us not miss the many opportunities.'

Dr. R. K. Shepherd, one of the year's recruits, who has been assigned to the East Africa Mission, arrived at Mengo towards the end of the year to gain experience in medical missionary work, and also to help Dr. J. H. Cook during the absence of his brother (vide infra, page 109) in the Southern Soudan. The last-named left Mengo on his journey to the north in November.

A Girls' High School for the daughters of chiefs and of Baganda clergymen was opened at GAYAZA in January, 1905, by Miss A. L. Allen and Miss E. Hattersley with two pupils. By the end of twelve months the names of twenty-six were on the books, and only the lack of accommodation, which was then being met by the erection of a new boarding-house, prevented the number from being even greater. Miss Hattersley superintended the village school with its 200 scholars, and Miss Allen conducted a class for women and gave medical assistance to some fifty persons daily. Some of the churches in the district were visited by Miss Bird; she was warmly welcomed, and at one centre in particular she found the church packed to overflowing. She was obliged to ask the men to leave, so that the women and children might get in, and even after the first-named had gone the whole of the available space, including the pulpit and reading-desk, was occupied.

Gayaza. Girls' High School.

The erection of the buildings for the new Intermediate School at BUDO was superintended by the Rev. H. W. Weatherhead, transferred from Mengo in August, and Mr. H. G. Dillistone. After the close of work on Saturdays the latter gave some instruction in watch and clock repairing to a few boys. About half-a-dozen lads were admitted into the school in October, and in January, 1906, there were twenty-one students.

BUSIRO.

Entebbe.

The Rev. W. Chadwick resided at ENTEBBE, where the new church erected for the use of the Baganda was consecrated in August, 1905, and fifty candidates were confirmed two days later. Another church was in process of building at the labour camp, situated on the other side of the hill on which Entebbe is built, where are some 3,000 men gathered from all parts of the Protectorate. The Revs. Y. Mutakyala and Y. Wamala, were stationed at JUNGO.

KYAGWE AND BUGERERE.

Changes in Kyagwe.

Two important political changes were made in the counties of Kyagwe and Bugerere during 1905 which materially affected the arrangements for the missionary work in them. The first was the removal of the administrative centre, the residence of the Sekibobo, in the former county from Ngogwe to Mukono, in consequence of the prevalence of the sleeping-sickness around Ngogwe, which deterred the chiefs living at a distance from attending the lukiko, or native council, at which cases are heard and the business of the district is settled. When this removal had been decided upon by the Government in conjunction with the chiefs, the question arose of the transfer of the missionary head quarters. Ngogwe was originally occupied by the Rev. G. K. Baskerville in 1893, the old Sekibobo then moving from Mukono in order to be near the mission-station. As the work extended over the province of Kyagwe and northward into the district called Wunga up to Lake Kyoga, it became necessary to divide the district, and in 1895 another station was opened at Nakanyonyi, from which Wunga and the northern part of Kyagwe were worked. With the increase in the number of Baganda clergy and teachers which has since taken place, and the better organization of the work thus rendered possible, it has become feasible for a European missionary to superintend a much larger district than in the olden days when each teacher was directly responsible to him, while at the same time the need of missionaries to utilize the openings occurring in distant places has grown more and more urgent. It has consequently been determined to re-unite the Ngogwe and Nakanyonyi districts, and to build a central station at Mukono, placing there two men, the one to supervise the district and the other to undertake the training of teachers. Accordingly Mr. and Mrs. Baskerville, together with the Rev. Y. Kaidzi, removed at the end of the summer to temporary quarters at Mukono.

The second important political event referred to was the change of chiefs in the two provinces. The Sekibobo, as the chief of Kyagwe is called, was an old man, clearly unequal to his work, and the chief of Bugerere was dissolute and drunken, and regarded his position as a means of enriching himself at the expense of his province and people. Under the circumstances the Government determined to remove them both, and in their stead, Ham Mukasa, who visited England with the Katikiro at the time of the coronation of King Edward VII., was appointed Sekibobo, while a sub-chief of Kyagwe, a keen business man and hard worker, became chief of Bugerere. Mr. Baskerville asks for prayer for both these men in their responsible positions.

Ham Mukasa appointed Sekibobo.

The work was affected by a strike of teachers, similar to that on the Sese Islands which occurred in 1904 and was recorded in last year's Report (page 115). Mr. Baskerville thus describes how it arose :—

A strike of teachers.

> The teachers in the Ngogwe district received a letter from those at Nakanyonyi, and an old teacher at Ngogwe, who held a very responsible position, became the leader of the strike in the Ngogwe district. Thirty-six of our teachers, at the instigation of this man, wrote a letter to the Namirembe Church Council to say that unless they received each month as many rupees as they had been receiving half-yearly they would not work after June 1st; similar letters being received from five other districts. The Archdeacon (the Bishop being away) decided to call a general meeting of the whole Church for May 24th. It was decided at that meeting that the teachers should be promised just half what they had demanded, if the funds should be forthcoming.
> We have had a great deal of unpleasantness on several occasions in our local Church Council at Ngogwe. First, on the occasion of the special collection for the Bible Society's Centenary, many of the teachers objected to it on the plea that they did not receive sufficient, and why should special collections be made until they received an adequate pay? Again, last Easter they objected to the Easter offerings being devoted to the native clergy. Several of the leading teachers who had charge of our sub-districts refused to superintend them any more, saying, 'We understand now that this is the work of the clergy; our work is despised,' and much more which I cannot write down. It was then, in the middle of a long and extremely bitter debate, that one of our men stood up, called Daudi Diro, and said, 'Well, whatever any one else is going to do, and however little I may receive, I intend to do the work to which God and the Church Council have called me.' Another teacher wrote to me from Mengo, where he was reading in the senior teachers' class: 'I have heard how all the teachers want to leave you alone, but you may count upon me to help you in God's work.' You would appreciate this the more if you knew how exceedingly difficult it is for any one in this country to stand out in this way.

'You may count upon me.'

Mr. Baskerville adds that while every one sympathizes with the teachers and wishes that they could be paid even more than they ask, it would be a sadly retrograde step to utilize money from home for the purpose and so depart from the policy of self-support which has distinguished the Uganda Church from the beginning. Most of the men by degrees returned to their work, and none of the women teachers, save a few whose husbands were among the malcontents, participated in the strike, though they expressed some dissatisfaction at the small remuneration which they received.

Ngogwe. The new brick church at NGOGWE, of which the foundation-stone was laid in the summer of 1904, approached completion. In Passion Week, 1905, special services were held for the teachers and Christians, but it was discovered afterwards that the intervals between the solemn meetings had been utilized for a discussion of the proposed strike. The Rev. G. H. Casson had seventeen men under instruction in the teachers' class, nine of whom passed the Junior Teachers' Examination. The strike affected the school of which Miss E. T. Hill was in charge, for in June, Yona, the head teacher, and the staff of seven boys all declared that they would work no longer. It was difficult to see what could be done, for until then Miss Hill had been engaged in language study, and able to manage little beyond keeping order and marking the register. However, the children were given a three weeks' holiday during which Miss Hill went to Mengo for her examination, and on her return, with the help of Mrs. Baskerville and the house boys, the school was reopened. Happily Yona returned to his work on the very day that Mr. and Mrs. Baskerville left for Mukono, and by the end of the year the average attendance was larger than at its beginning. About thirty-six patients generally visited the dispensary on the two days in the week on which it was held.

Several tours were made in the district by Miss A. A. Jacob, who was transferred from Kajuna to Ngogwe in the summer, and others. In some parts the sleeping-sickness continued to spread, causing a number of the churches to be struck off the list, all the people having died and the buildings fallen down. In travelling about Miss T. L. Dyke came across several instances of heathen cruelty and superstition. She mentions one child whom she noticed with a bad burn on its forehead, and says that the mother had caused the burn to be inflicted in order to cure the child of some internal ailment. At another place she found a lubare hill called Kiitabya—'it causes to answer'—the name being given because of an echo, which led the hill to be regarded as a god. When she visited it she was accompanied by a crowd of children, whose cries showed the change which is taking place in the land, as they called out to the formerly venerated mass of rocks, 'Kiitabya, answer, or we will hit you.' At Katente where the people were warned by the teacher in 1904 of the judgment which would be sure to follow their misdeeds (see last year's Report, page 106), large numbers of them were carried off by a visitation of small-pox during the year under review. This trial, combined with the sudden death (through a house being burnt) of twelve of the old

'Answer, or we will hit you.'

Christian women mentioned in the same passage, appeared to have a salutary effect upon the evil-livers in the place.

Some sixty to eighty children attended the school at NAKANYONYI, where the Rev. E. Millar resided until the return of the Rev. and Mrs. R. H. Leakey from furlough in the spring of 1905. When the work was rearranged Mr. and Mrs. Leakey were transferred to Ndeje, and the Rev. Y. Nakumanyanga, previously in charge of the Mukono Pastorate, was assigned to the station, his district being termed the Bukoba Pastorate. Of the eighty or ninety teachers at work in Bukoba, as the northern portion of the county of Kyagwe which has been worked from Nakanyonyi is called, only twenty-six had gone back to their posts by September after the strike. There appeared to be a strong feeling against Europeans, and the opinion that the Baganda were in every respect as good as they and ought to have the same remuneration. The Rev. E. Mukasa, a Muganda deacon, is quasi-pastor of the Bugerere Pastorate, the head quarters of which are at Bale.

Feeling against Europeans.

The total number of adults baptized in 1905 in the counties of Kyagwe and Bugerere was 412, but the number of confirmation candidates was much smaller than usual, and the missionaries plead for earnest prayer for the district. Mr. Baskerville writes:—

> We have, I am sure, lost a great deal of prayer through this Uganda Mission having been placed too much on a pedestal. People have seen the lights but have not seen the shades. The lights have been very bright, and we praise God for them all, but the shades are very, very dark.

BULEMEZI AND BURULI.

At NDEJE, the head quarters of the work in the counties of Bulemezi and Buruli, a district 100 miles in length and containing over 100,000 souls, the year under review, equally with its predecessor, was marked by a lack of continuity in the European staff of the Society. At the beginning of 1905 the Rev. G. R. Blackledge was in charge, but his furlough became due in the spring, and then the Rev. R. H. Leakey once more returned to the station, Mr. T. Owrid arriving from the Sese Islands a few months later. The first named attributes much of the success resting upon the efforts made in the district to the influence of the Muganda deacon, the Rev. S. Mukasa, who is the Kangao, or overlord, of Bulemezi, and says: 'Whether we consider his private or public life, through all runs one great desire that God and His truth shall reign in the land. After many years of friendship and close intimacy I cannot better sum up his life than by applying to it Francis Xavier's great motto, Ad majorem Dei gloriam.' At the same time, Mr. Blackledge is constrained to admit that the love of many of the Christians is waxing cold, and that of hundreds and thousands of the Baganda converts it may be said that they are like unto 'Elijah's altar before the fire of God came down upon it.' There was a falling off in the amount of the church subscriptions, not because there was less money in the country, but because the people spent more on their houses and dress than in former years. This made it difficult to raise the money for even the small salaries which the teachers were paid, and in consequence to induce people to offer themselves in that capacity. Miss M. S. Thomsett says that she had but a few women in training, and that the school, in the work of which Miss H. F. Holdgate took part until her transfer to Iganga in the summer, suffered through there being no one to train the pupil-teachers. About 1,000 attendances were registered every month at the dispensary. The ladies made two tours in the district, each of a fortnight's duration. The number of baptisms was smaller than usual, partly because baptism does not now give a man the same social position which it once did.

Increased luxury among the Baganda, and smaller gifts.

SINGO.

Mityana. The Rev. F. Rowling had the help at MITYANA, after the departure of the Rev. W. Chadwick in December, 1904, to take up work as chaplain at Entebbe, of the Revs. W. B. Gill and Y. Njovu. In the examination of teachers which took place in that month nine of those hailing from Singo obtained the Junior Teachers' Certificate of the Church Council at Mengo, but the instruction of candidates for the certificate was then discontinued in view of Mr. Rowling's approaching furlough. Mrs. Rowling superintended the school, with its fifty pupils, and also ministered to the sick who came to the dispensary, but in the middle of the summer the latter branch of the work came to an end owing to the supply of the medicines most in use being exhausted. During the first half of 1905 the baptisms at Mityana numbered over 200. Others took place at KINAKULYA where the Rev. E. Bakayana was stationed. Both the Baganda clergy in Singo signified to the Synod their readiness to continue their ministry at the existing rate of pay.

Literary Work. Mr. Rowling's literary work included the revision of the translation of the Rev. J. C. Hamer's Old Testament History, and the rendering of selected portions of the Oxford Helps to the Study of the Bible into Luganda. He refers in his annual letter to the indebtedness of the Mission to the S.P.C.K. for the help given by them in the printing of these and similar translations.

BUWEKULA, BUYAGA, AND BUGANGAZI.

Kikoma. The staff at KIKOMA, the head quarters of the work in the counties named above, consisted of Mr. H. B. Lewin (until the summer when he left for England and his place was taken by the Rev. W. E. Owen, transferred from Bugoma) and the Rev. M. Bagenda, while in the district some sixty Baganda teachers laboured at about that number of out-stations. The Muganda pastor had nearly 800 Christians under his charge, among whom he visited diligently, displaying much 'holy keenness.' The four local teachers sent up to Mengo for examination passed, one of them gaining a high place in the list of successful candidates. An improvement in the school took place upon the appointment of a master from the capital, and some of the 150 scholars displayed real earnestness, notably a cripple, who daily travelled half a mile on his hands and knees in order to be present. The establishment of a Government station at Kakumiro led the people to return to the district, which a few years ago was almost deserted, and Mr. Lewin estimates that there are now about 26,000 huts in the three counties. With a view to supervising and assisting the scattered teachers frequent visits were paid to the out-stations. At one place the people had been prevented from attending church by the depredations of a lion, which, however, was killed while Mr. Lewin was there. Although by this time many of the Natives have heard the Gospel, there yet remains much to be done before they realize the real aims of Christianity, as is shown by a woman's remark to the effect that Christ came into the world to bring reading. During the year 156 adults were baptized, including a pygmy from the Great Forest, who took the name of Zacchaeus.

GOMBA, BUSUJU, BUTAMBALA, AND MAWOKOTA.

Mr. T. B. Fletcher, who resided at KASAKA, in the county of Gomba, and superintended the evangelistic work in that and the three other counties named above, draws a dark picture of the general condition of affairs in the district under his charge. After referring to the dissatisfaction among the teachers in other parts of the country, which, however, was not shared in to any great extent by those under his supervision, he says:—

Kasaka.

> The attitude of the people to our work is not what it was. The race for wealth grows more keen every day, and with it indifference to spiritual things. In the past the people had so little to occupy their time that they spent the greater part of the day in attending Bible-classes. Now their wants are greater, and more time has to be given to work. The tonic (so to speak) of continual Bible-reading is no longer taken. The Baganda are not given to hard work, being spasmodic in their attempts at such. If a Muganda works a full six days he takes all Sunday to lie down and think over it. If he works a full month he will take three months to get over that hardship. Such a people cannot be expected to be at once steady and plodding. They are impressive and emotional, requiring much further training to develop stamina. As it is in their work, so it is with the Christian life. After a person has gone through the course for preparation for baptism, which entails regular attendance, he will be conspicuous by his absence from church for a considerable period. . . . The sense of shame for sin committed does not exist. One has only to hear the congratulations given to a man who has paid his fine for adultery, and one sees that he is treated as if he had been undergoing a great wrong or injustice.

Decreased desire for the Scriptures.

The desire to obtain the Word of God is not what it was a few years ago. More than half of our congregations appear in church without a book of any kind, and many appear in class with borrowed books, although to procure a New Testament only means working for five days. Of late I have seen over fifty candidates for baptism and only seven of them had books of their own. Yet in the whole of my twelve years out here I have never seen the people so well dressed or so wealthy. Self-denial is practically unknown to the Baganda.

Mr. Fletcher attributes this lack of self-denial to the failure in the past to teach the people to give systematically, and to the fact that hitherto practically everything has been done for them by their chiefs.

The second chief in the county of Busuju, where the work is exceptionally difficult, a Roman Catholic, joined the Protestant Church, and another event was the arrival to reside in the county of one of the men who commenced the work in Toro, whose influence was expected to be very helpful.

A new church was built at Bweya, in the county of Butambala, where the Rev. D. Lwanga was in charge of the pastoral work. Although the county is one of the strongholds of Mohammedanism more than 200 persons were in the habit of attending the Sunday services.

BUDU.

Kikise.

The transfer of the head quarters of the work in the county of Budu from Kajuna to Kikise, eight miles distant, which was foreshadowed in last year's Report (page 113), took place in January, 1905, in which month Bishop Tucker dedicated a new church at the latter place. The congregation numbered nearly 1,000 persons, and seventy-eight candidates were confirmed on the following day. The Rev. E. S. Daniell, who was joined in August by the Rev. H. A. Brewer, one of the year's recruits, had eleven men in his training class for teachers, eight of whom sat for the examination at the close of the year. One of the remaining three when sent out into the villages to teach, succumbed to temptation and stole some clothing, but afterwards showed signs of true penitence. Unhappily Mr. Daniell has to report that the policeman, whose return from Mohammedanism, to which religion he had perverted, was recorded in last year's Report (page 113), became very angry because he was kept from the Holy Communion for a time to test his sincerity. In his rage he burnt his Bible and Prayer-book and once more joined the Mohammedans, telling his wife that if she wished to come with him she might but if not she must return to her parents. She refused to become a Mohammedan for his sake a second time, and went to her old home.

At the beginning of December, 1904, Miss A. K. Attlee and Miss A. A. Jacob left Toro and Koki respectively to commence work among the women of KAJUNA. There were many expressions of joy at their arrival, and they speedily got to work, Miss Attlee caring for the children and carrying on a dispensary, and Miss Jacob devoting herself to training eleven women as teachers. They also made one itineration, accompanied by the Rev. Y. Kiwavu and his wife, with whose zeal they were much impressed. The ladies were not, however, permitted for long to labour at Kajuna, for early in the summer the scarcity of women missionaries rendered it necessary to transfer Miss Attlee to Rakai and Miss Jacob to Ngogwe. Kajuna.

Soon after the station was opened at Kikise, the Rev. S. Kibuka was assigned to KAKUNYU, in South Budu. Mr. Daniell speaks most highly of his humility, and 'steady, plodding perseverance.'

The total number of adult baptisms in the county of Budu during 1905 was 163.

KOKI.

Feeling that the spiritual life of the converts at RAKAI was at a low ebb, Mr. W. G. S. Innes held some special services for their benefit in the summer of 1905, combining with the effort a number of evangelistic meetings, the addresses at which were given by the Rev. S. Aliwonya, the Muganda pastor. Mr. Innes writes concerning this 'mission,' and the steps which were taken to follow up the work, as follows:— Rakai.

A special mission.

We had most definite answers to prayer. One was that throughout the meetings the attendance scarcely seemed to flag; both morning and afternoon it varied from 150 to 170. After the address the people who had a desire to accept Christ as their personal Saviour were asked to remain behind for the after-meeting. Those after-meetings were solemn times for us all. When those who were not interested or were indifferent had gone out we felt we were left alone with God. One realized that the Holy Spirit was working and touching hearts. He was working, not man. After an address on secret sins it was plainly to be seen that many were really convicted.

A 'one by one' movement.

During the 'mission' 180 persons professed to have accepted Christ as their Saviour. Now came a weighty problem; namely, how were the workers to keep in touch with all these converts? Older Christians were selected and these were given the care of from six to eight souls, that is, they had to keep in touch with them, and see that they attended the monthly meeting which was fixed for the first Tuesday in every month. Those who became indifferent or even backsliders would be visited and looked up. A 'one by one' movement was begun—each convert trying to win a Heathen or reclaim a fallen Christian.

Before this special effort the attendance at the various classes had been very small, the people absenting themselves for the most trivial reasons, but after the meetings a vast improvement took place, especially at those for women, conducted by Miss A. K. Attlee, who together with Miss M. A. Taylor was transferred to Rakai in the summer, the former from Kajuna and the latter from Iganga. One of the new members was an old woman, who for many years had resisted all invitations to come to church. Several of the Christian women united with Miss Attlee in prayer for her, and within three weeks their petitions were answered: she began to attend the services and became a diligent reader. The attendance at the school, which was small when Miss Taylor arrived at the station, nearly quadrupled in a few months through constant visiting and inducing the children to bring others. The dispensary proved increasingly useful.

Once a week the ladies went to the churches in the immediate neighbourhood of Rakai, and in the early autumn they spent a fortnight in the Kibale district. The Muganda pastor itinerated in the other part of the district, and by one worker or another all the thirty out-stations were visited.

SESE ISLANDS.

The extent to which the work on the Sese and Kome groups of islands on the Victoria Nyanza has been affected by the sleeping-sickness was partially shown by the diminution in the number of men attending the training-class for teachers held on Bugala.

BUGALA. The Rev. H. T. C. Weatherhead says that in 1903 it had thirteen members; in the next year nine; and in 1905 two. One of the former members of the class did well in the Teachers' Examination at Mengo, and was placed second on the list, being the third Musese in successive years to gain that high position. The school was superintended by Mr. T. Owrid. Unhappily there was a good deal of immorality among the Christians, and day after day new cases were reported, until it almost appeared as if they were caused by some disease. To a certain degree they were probably due to the fatalism engendered by the prevalence of sleeping-sickness, which made the people utterly indifferent as to the future. The itinerations revealed the increasing depopulation of the islands. In 1901 there were twenty-five islands with teachers and congregations on them, but in the summer of the year under review the number had fallen to eight. On every hand, to quote Mr. Owrid, were 'fallen churches, gardens overrun with weeds and some strewn with graves, widows bemoaning the loss of their husbands, and not a few men and boys with the fatal symptoms.' Most of the few remaining teachers, however, were found to be working faithfully in the midst of their terribly depressing surroundings. Under the circumstances, and in view of the need of missionaries in other parts of the country, it was felt desirable when Mr. Weatherhead left on furlough in August to transfer Mr. Owrid to Ndeje, and leave the remaining work on the islands to be superintended by the Rev. W. Chadwick from Entebbe. The last-named paid several visits to the chief islands, and found that the attendance at the schools was good under the circumstances. He says that children are not attacked by the sleeping-sickness so much as adults.

II. WESTERN PROVINCE.

ANKOLE.

Murder of a Sub-Commissioner.

A SAD event occurred in Ankole in May, 1905—the Sub-Commissioner, Mr. Galt, was speared by a Native while sitting in the rest-house at Ibanda. Inquiry on the spot revealed the name of the murderer, but it was found that he had died shortly after the crime was committed, and later on it transpired that he had been made away with. The instigators of the murder were then sought for, and eventually evidence was obtained against two Christian chiefs, and they were condemned to death for abetting the crime. This sentence, however, was afterwards quashed by the High Court sitting at Mombasa, and the release of the two men was ordered.

Mbarara

At MBARARA, where the Rev. and Mrs. H. Clayton and Miss M. T. Baker resided, the mud church appeared to be unsafe and was pulled down. The materials were utilized to build two schools, one for Banyankole women and girls, superintended by Miss Baker, and the other for the men and boys and the Baganda women, of which Mrs. Clayton was in charge. A third school for the baptized men and the catechumens was held in the temporary church. A beginning was made with a new brick church, the chiefs and other Christians providing the labour and funds to pay the bricklayers. Three services were held every Sunday morning, one for Christians and those who could read a Gospel, a second, in one of the schools, for Baganda women, and a third, in the other school, for unbaptized Banyankole adults and the children. The last-named service was attended by a great many Heathen, as they could do so clad in skins or old pieces of bark cloth, which they did not like to wear in church among the better clothed Christians, and was instrumental in many conversions, evidenced afterwards by changed lives. The good attendance at the evangelistic services is attributed in great measure to the efforts of the Christians, who visited their heathen neighbours, the men going on Saturdays and the women on Thursdays. Their zeal began to be manifested after some special meetings which were held early in the year under review. After one of the meetings, at which an address on sin had been given, one woman after another prayed for forgiveness, one 'because I have been so quarrelsome'; another 'because I have been lazy in coming to school'; a third 'because I have told lies'; and so on. For the purposes of visiting, the neighbourhood was divided up into thirteen districts, and the women went out two and two. Before setting forth they met for prayer, and a text was given them to teach and explain in each house, and on the following morning a district visitors' meeting was held, at which one of each couple gave an account of her experiences, and then prayer followed for individuals and families. Even the boys displayed praiseworthy zeal, for Mr. Clayton mentions that one Saturday he heard the sound of prayer proceeding from the house of a Heathen, and found two Christian boys, about fourteen years of age, holding a little service for a congregation of about a dozen Heathen.

Heathen ashamed to attend services because of their clothes.

Boys hold a service.

In last year's Report (page 117), Mr. Clayton's request for prayer that more Banyankole teachers might be raised up was recorded; this year's Report can happily state that fifteen young men of that people were sent forth at Easter, 1905. Nor were the women behindhand. Two went out as honorary teachers, one, quite a middle-aged woman, saying, 'The people of my childhood are in darkness. How can I be in the light and not go to them?' Another teacher had a difficult post at her father's place, for neither he nor her mother were readers, and Heathenism was strongly in evidence. She had a little hut built for herself and her child, and when asked one day whether she was not lonely, she replied, 'How can I be when Jesus is always with me and there is so much to do?' But while, as will have been gathered from what has been written, there was much in the work to cause thankfulness, Miss Baker would not have it thought that everything was as it should be. In asking for prayer, she says:—

'How can I be in the light and not go to them?'

> Often and often Satan can point to 'triumphs of darkness.' Women who have begun well go back to heathen ways. Christians who have been keen become lukewarm, and quarrelling and slandering are rife where love ought to reign. There are only glimmerings of light in the thick darkness, but the dawn has broken and the full daylight is sure to come.

'Glimmerings of light.'

Kabarole.

The Society's staff at KABAROLE consisted of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Maddox, Dr. and Mrs. A. Bond, and Misses E. C. Pike, M. Ostler, and F. K. Reed, a trained nurse. There was a great increase in the number of in-patients at the Hospital, who included the little son of King Kasagama, the children of the Katikiro, and the wives of several of the chiefs. The small charge which was made of each patient attending the dispensary, with a view to keeping away those who had no motive other than curiosity for coming, naturally made the visits of out-patients less numerous. Much anxiety was caused at one time by the uncertainty as to whether the blame for the murder of Mr. Galt, referred to above, was to be laid on Toro or Ankole, for the crime took place on the boundary between the two countries. When at length the Batoro were cleared of all complicity in it, and were even publicly thanked for the assistance they had given in the inquiry, a thanksgiving service was held at the king's request, at which nearly 1,000 Christians were present. From time to time throughout the year there were signs of a revival of spiritual life among the converts, and in the autumn those signs became clearer. Mr. Maddox, writing in November, says :— A revival of spiritual life.

> I dare not say much just now, for things are only beginning; but in three days some sixty or seventy of the people have been deeply convicted of sin, and have confessed things which have been hidden in their hearts for years. In many cases they have confessed the very sins which they had previously strenuously denied. Indeed, such a pit of corruption is being laid bare before our eyes that we almost shrink from a continuance of the special services. But it is so manifestly the work of the Holy Spirit that we can only follow His leading, and pray that the work may be thorough, and the end of it peace and victory for hundreds.

In the summer Dr. and Mrs. Bond, accompanied by the Rev. A. Kivebulaya, the Muganda clergyman, paid a visit to Mboga. The services they held there were well attended, and Paulus, the chief, is said to exercise a good influence among his people. Unhappily it was found that Blasiyo, the pygmy whose baptism was recorded in the Report for 1901–2 (page 141), had reverted to Heathenism.

At the beginning of 1905 the Rev. T. B. Johnson was transferred from Kabarole to Butiti, where he conducted a training class of about a dozen candidates for the teachers' certificate, and three times a week held a dispensary. The district under his charge contains an area of from 2,000 to 3,000 square miles, in which eight villages are occupied by teachers and about 200 converts are scattered about. Dr. Bond visited several of the villages, and gave medicine to a large number of patients. Butiti.

BUNYORO.

The Rev. A. B. Fisher, returning to his former sphere of work in Bunyoro in December, 1904, after his furlough in England, was forcibly impressed with the change which had taken place in the country since he first took up his residence there some six years before. At that time a prolonged period of almost continuous war, ended by the capture of Kabarega, had left the land in a terrible condition. But little food was cultivated; the newly-appointed king and the royal family were driven by the consequent famine to beg at the mission-house; hunger and disease were carrying off their thousands; the heads of many homes had been killed in the fighting; the women were Changes in Bunyoro.

roaming about, making their home with anyone who would take them in; and the moral condition of the people was 'indescribable.' Now there is a street of Indian bazaars at Hoima, which has been substituted for Masindi as the capital, and the daily market is attended by about 2,000 people; the king and all but one of the six great district chiefs, as well as the majority of the smaller chiefs, are adherents of the Mission; there are over 1,000 baptized Christians; and besides the main stations, Hoima, Masindi and Bugoma, about eighty out-stations have been opened. Moreover the moral tone of the people has been completely altered, although the standard of Christianity is not so high as it should be. On this latter point Mr. Fisher says:—

'A nation cannot be changed in a day.'

The nature of a nation cannot be changed in a day, even though a conviction of heart may occur. Christianity may, as we know it does, create within a new heart, new desires, new motives, but it must be years before the mind and inclinations can be bent in a completely opposite direction to their natural condition. Can we expect to see a repugnance to and sorrow for sin in an infant Church that has only just begun to be taught what sin is? An action that has been a universal and recognized custom can scarcely be regarded with abhorrence and shame immediately on its being pointed out as sinful. So, although we can never minimize the awfulness of sin, I think we must not judge these young Christians too harshly and despairingly if one or another slips on a path so beset with temptations to them. This need not necessarily indicate general retrogression in the life of the Church. It is one thing to deplore the fall of one or another professing Christian, but in many cases this is turned into cause for rejoicing by the regret evinced and real desire after better things. I am glad to say that the past year has been comparatively free from serious failings.

Hoima.

Mr. and Mrs. Fisher had Miss J. E. Chadwick and Miss L. O. Walton as their European colleagues at HOIMA. The contributions of the Christians, who were under the pastoral care of the Rev. N. Nakiwafu, increased considerably, the king, Andereya (see Annual Report, 1902–3, page 135), setting a good example by making thankofferings on special occasions, such as the anniversary of his baptism, his coronation day, &c. One of his gifts was accompanied by the following letter to Mr. Fisher:—

A king's thank-offering.

I send you many greetings, and I am writing to tell you that I send you an offering to God for His Church; that is, Rs. 100. For to-day I have come into possession of my portion of the yearly taxes. Who is it that has given me greatness and glory and riches, all to be possessed by me? Oh, my father, it is well that you should pray for me without ceasing that He may grant me wisdom to walk ever in His path of righteousness, and that I may always fear and love Him. I praise Him much that He has given to me to-day these tokens. Farewell, my father.

Mr. Fisher devoted himself chiefly to the training-class for teachers. Thirty men were sent forth to their work in the summer of 1905, four of them going to Patigo. A new plan was adopted requiring the men to devote their evenings to learning some manual occupation, with the idea of making them more self-respecting and independent. Some received instruction in carpentry, others in brick-making, others in tailoring; and although at first they did not take kindly to the regulation, after a time they seemed pleased with their newly-acquired skill. There was no lack of young and inexperienced recruits, but great difficulty was met with in retaining the services of the senior trained men. Mr. Fisher writes :—

Teachers exposed to worldly temptations.

So much inducement is held out to the more able Christian men in the matter of worldly advancement that they readily succumb after about two years of service. Then, again, those desiring to marry leave for the purpose of procuring their dowry for the wife by trading, and their training and intelligence aid them in quickly gaining the amount needed. The temptation to become rich thus results in a very small percentage returning to their work as teachers.

Many of the men, however, laboured faithfully amid great privation, even living on one meal a day sooner than desert their posts. Separate schools for men and women were begun early in 1905, and a variety of classes were held regularly. A change was made by confining the afternoon women's Bible-class, which had previously been open to all but attended mainly by the candidates for baptism, to those who had already been baptized, and beginning it with secular work, such as sewing and instruction in writing and arithmetic, followed by Bible-teaching on alternate days. The adoption of this method was succeeded by a large increase in the number of members, and by greater punctuality on the part of those who came, and a little sale of work which was held both encouraged the sewers and also helped on the building fund of the proposed new church. Some special meetings for these and other women attracted quiet and attentive audiences. Miss Walton usually had about ninety patients at the dispensary, and was pleased to see a number of heathen peasants, who never entered the church, at the service conducted in connexion with it.

Dispensary.

Miss Chadwick and Miss Walton paid monthly week-end visits to the out-stations. At Kibero, on Lake Albert, where two of the Baganda women teachers are said to be doing a 'grand work,' the demeanour of the people was far less timid than two years before, but at Kinogozi, although only a little distance from the high-road to Uganda, the women and children rushed into their huts to hide from the missionaries. Excellent work was accomplished by a couple of Banyoro women at Kihaguzi. More than 200 adults were baptized during the year, notwithstanding the raising of the standard of instruction and the exercise of the greatest care to exclude any candidate whose private life did not absolutely correspond with his profession, and Mr. Fisher concludes his annual letter by saying, 'Rarely has the future of any district under my charge appeared so full of promise.'

The future full of promise.

Masindi.

After an interval of two and a half years MASINDI, the old capital of Bunyoro and the original station of the Society in that country, again received a European missionary in the summer of 1905, when the Rev. H. W. Tegart was transferred thither from Bugoma. He says but little regarding the former place, merely stating that it has been much neglected of late, and that the Christians in many cases are but little better than the Heathen.

Bugoma.

The state of affairs at Masindi was in striking contrast to that at BUGOMA, where Mr. Tegart had the companionship of the Rev. W. E. Owen; the latter, however, was afterwards assigned to Kikoma. During the three and a half years ending June, 1905, since Mr. Tegart took up his residence at that station, more than 200 persons were baptized, and when he left there were 100 others reading for baptism. Two men who went up for the Junior Teachers' Certificate of the Mengo Church Council, passed the examination, each gaining more than half marks, and the Gospel class for men and boys increased almost daily. The Rev. H. B. Ladbury, who was transferred from Hoima to take Mr. Tegart's place, narrates the following incident as one of many indications of a growing desire to hear the Gospel. He writes:—

A growing desire to hear the Gospel.

> One day, when my wife and I were taking an evening stroll, an old woman came out of her hut to salute us. As she seemed rather sad I inquired what was the cause. She replied that she was troubled about a pain in her side. 'I had a pain in my back,' said she, 'and your medicine quickly healed it. I had a cold at my chest and your medicine healed that also; but I fear this pain which I have now will prevent me from coming to school and church, and how shall I be able to enter into the Lord's Kingdom when He comes if I am not able to hear all about it?'

There were some cases which called for the exercise of discipline, but in connexion with at least one of these there was cause for thankfulness, for the young man, once of great promise, who fell into gross sin and was suspended from the Holy Communion for three months, showed real penitence and applied to be re-admitted into the Church.

In February, 1905, Mr. Tegart paid a visit to the Bulega country, which lies within the Congo Free State, and baptized the first four converts at Dudoyi's village. He mentions in his annual letter several instances of oppression of the Natives on the part of officials of that State, and adds that on one occasion he met a band of prisoners, women, boys and girls, each tied by the neck to the one in front, and being driven along by soldiers.

Barbarous customs.

Truly the lot of people in that region is sad, for Mr. Ladbury says that most barbarous customs still prevail among them. When a man dies, women are buried alive in order that their spirits may accompany him to the other world, and it is quite common for any one who has become angry to give vent to his feelings by killing the first person he meets.

III. NILE PROVINCE.

ACHOLI.

At the close of 1904 the Rev. A. L. Kitching and Mr. A. B. Lloyd were residing at Patigo, the new station in the Acholi country, teaching a few Natives who came daily for instruction and holding services on Sundays with a fair attendance, but devoting most of their time to language study and to translation work. The services attracted strange-looking congregations. One of them is thus described by Mr. H. B. Lewin, who paid a visit to Patigo at the end of the year :— Patigo.

The congregation of some hundred persons was made up of old men covered with many a scar received in battle; young braves with ostrich plumes, painted and smeared with divers-coloured clays, and with huge pendants like icicles, made from glass bottles, stuck through their lips; and others dressed in part in old uniforms. There were boys, old and young, in the dress of ancient Eden; girls with hair plastered with red ochre; fat old women smoking; younger ones with babies slung on their backs and covered with gourds to protect them from the sun. But all of them were attentive to the message, and joined heartily in the hymn (the only one then in their language), 'Jesus loves me, this I know,' and knelt respectfully in prayer to the Great God of Whom they knew so very little. A strange-looking congregation.

On Christmas Eve, 1904, the first three converts from the Gang people were admitted to the catechumenate: two of them were Banyoro, who had been carried away from their own land in childhood and brought up as members of the Gang tribe, and the third was a Gang by birth. About the same time the missionaries were joined by the Rev. A. E. Pleydell, and soon afterwards Mr. Lloyd left on furlough, Mr. Kitching accompanying him as far as Gondokoro. On returning the last named endeavoured to arrange some regular classes for instruction, but they were attended by but few, for the men were busy, first hunting and then cultivating their fields, and some of the girls went with them to cook their mid-day meal. Moreover, little interest was displayed by those who did attend, and as the Banyoro teachers dropped off until only one was left the outlook was indeed dark. But it was the darkness before the dawn. The Rev. A. B. Fisher sent some more teachers from Bunyoro, and then, in July, events occurred which, contrary to expectation, turned out to the furtherance of the Gospel. A long-standing feud between two villages came to a head, and the one made an attack upon the other. Mr. Kitching was able to bring about the cessation of hostilities, attend to the wounded, and arrange for a return of the spoils; but he failed to induce the The darkness before the dawn.

aggressors to make any compensation, and the friends of the aggrieved party threatened vengeance. Then a raid was made in another direction, and some cattle were carried off, and Mr. Kitching felt bound to inform the Government officials, since there was a danger that the whole district would be upset by the turbulence of a few people. In the end the cases were settled satisfactorily by the Collector, and all concerned came to the missionaries to thank them for their assistance in the time of difficulty. In this way the confidence of the people was won, and after the removal of the Government station from Wadelai to Patigo, bringing large numbers of chiefs and their retainers, the attendance at the classes and services greatly improved. Moreover the success of those who had learned to read stimulated others to make the attempt, and by the end of 1905 the difficulty experienced was not to induce people to come for instruction, but, with the small staff available, to instruct all who came. The little church was sometimes crowded to excess with over 100 men and boys; the king received some lessons; and Mr. Pleydell had the sons of some Gang chiefs as his house-boys, and they, as well as some other sons of chiefs, who came in every day from their fathers' huts, were learning to read. There were signs that the people living in the neighbourhood of Patigo were abandoning their faith in the old heathen customs. Mr. Kitching writes:—

Waning faith in heathen customs.

> An indication of their change of mind was given us the other day when out at a distant village. We had sat down for tea under a tree on a big rock near the houses, and looking round for a good place to boil the kettle, saw a circle of stones that had been used for cooking on a previous occasion. The young men accompanying us said that it was where food and beer had been cooked and set out for devil-offerings; and then we found a queer pot with three mouths which had been left at the fireplace. This had been used to hold beer as a thankoffering for the birth of triplets. We handled it, and passed it to the youths to look at. One was rather shy of touching it, but another joined in and said, 'Why should we be afraid to touch it? We are God's people now. We do not fear the devils any more. Give it to me, I'll hold it.'

Baptism of the first converts in Acholiland.

Mr. Kitching baptized two of the catechumens in December; but it was evident that the polygamy customary among the Gang would prove an obstacle in the way of the admission of some of the tribe into the visible Church. In the course of a journey which he made to Gondokoro in January, 1905, Mr. Kitching visited Ogwok, the biggest chief in the district worked by the Government from Nimule, and also saw something of the Bari, Madi, and Lutuka tribes, who speak languages entirely distinct from that spoken by the Gang. By the close of the year under review he had completed the translation of the Gospels of St. Matthew, St. Mark, and St. John and also of a portion of the Prayer-book into the Gang language.

Literary Work.

IV. CENTRAL PROVINCE.

ELGON.

Work at Nabumale, in the Masaba district, is carried on among a Bantu hill-people, called the Bagishu. Miss E. L. Pilgrim, who was transferred from Iganga in the autumn to join the Rev. and Mrs. J. B. Purvis at the station, speaks of the Natives as belonging to a much lower type than the Baganda, and says that they wear very little dress, and that the women are great smokers of Indian hemp, and, in addition, drink largely of a beer called malwa, which is made from grain. The people living in the immediate neighbourhood of Nabumale attended the Sunday services well, as many as 250 usually being present; but it was difficult to induce them to attend for daily instruction, for, in striking contrast to the custom in Uganda, their banana plantations are at some distance from their homes. They showed, however, that they valued the dispensary which Miss Pilgrim opened soon after her arrival. Many of the patients came from Mbale, where there is a colony of Baganda under the chief Semei Kakungulu. Good work was accomplished among the Bakonde, a clan of the Bagishu, twelve miles from Nabumale, and on every hand there were abundant opportunities of preaching the Gospel, but teachers could not be obtained. It may have been that the Baganda were deterred by the fate which overtook a couple of teachers who, while conducting a service among the Badola, a tribe three hours' journey from Nabumale, were killed in a rising against the hut tax. It appears that feeling was aroused by the manner in which that tax was collected by the followers of the Government agent, a Mudola by race, and he was afterwards dismissed from his office by the authorities. Mr. Purvis, however, had reason to believe that he was not personally guilty of wrongdoing, and later in the year baptized him. In company with Bishop Tucker, Mr. Purvis paid a visit to the Teso country, a densely populated area lying between Lakes Kyoga and Rudolph, where three teachers are stationed. An out-station was opened at Nabowa, a place in Bugweri.

BUSOGA.

The Rev. A. Wilson was joined at Kamuli in November, 1904, by Mr. H. Mathers, transferred from Usukuma. The latter at once began to work up the school, and was gratified by a marked increase in the attendance. A stone building for the school was commenced by the chiefs, who also erected a house in which their sons might reside and be looked after by the schoolmaster. This had thirteen inmates by the close of 1905, some of them already baptized and others ready for baptism. The dispensary was popular, and many flocked to Mr. Mathers for treatment when he went into the district. Two Christians, a man, Petero by name, and his sister, who had fallen away to Mohammedanism, were received back into the Church. Mr. Mathers says of them :—

> Petero told us in church how he had been led away by the desire to have more wives. His own wife stood firm, and would not turn with him, but his sister he sold to the Mohammedans. He told us that while he was a Mohammedan he desired to know the mysteries of his religion, but no one would tell him unless he paid a big price for it. At last one man had pity on him and told him a little, but what he did tell him compared unfavourably with what he had learnt here at Kamuli. Then some of his sheep were stolen, and he went to the Mohammedan priest to ask advice. The priest consulted his 'book' and told him to go to such and such a house at a certain hour and he would find his sheep. He wished to prove this, and so told the Mohammedan priest that he must come with him; he did so, but only to find that his words were false. Such things as this gave him distrust in his new-found religion, and so he commenced to ask for the 'old paths,' and, thank God, he found them. Since then the Mohammedans have tried to plunder his house, but he has been successful in catching some of them, and they are now undergoing a just punishment.

This man afterwards gave proof of his sincerity by redeeming his sister, whom, as stated above, he had sold. Several other converts who fell into sin unhappily displayed no signs of repentance, but nevertheless Mr. Mathers says that there was growth in the work, though it was but slow. As an instance of the earnestness of some of the Christians he tells of people coming to Kamuli to buy books, and when asked who had taught them, replying, 'So-and-so, a Christian, has come trading in our part, and has settled down for a while to teach us.'

Mr. Wilson itinerated in the northern part of his district, and visited twenty places, of which seven had resident teachers. He also went into the Bakedi country, across Lake Kyoga, and was hospitably received by the chief of the district, whose son had learnt to read at Hoima and was accustomed to teach his younger brothers to the best of his ability. Mr. Wilson mentions that the country under his charge contains a population estimated at 200,000, of whom not more than 2,000 can be regarded as in any way influenced by Christian teaching.

Iganga.

On his return from furlough in May, 1905, the Rev. S. R. Skeens was assigned to his old sphere of work at IGANGA, the head quarters of a district twenty miles long by thirty wide, where he had as his colleagues the Rev. J. E. M. Hannington, Miss E. L. Pilgrim (until August, when she left for Masaba), Miss S. R. Tanner (from August), Miss H. F. Holdgate (from September), and Miss M. A. Taylor (until July, when she removed to Rakai). The many changes in the European staff during 1904 and 1905, combined with the lack of opportunity for itinerating caused by the pressure of building work at the chief station, appear to have had a prejudicial effect upon the character of the Christians, for Mr. Skeens found many of the young chiefs among them living in open sin, and the converts negligent in attending the services on Sundays. To remedy this state of affairs he called a conference of the baptized Christians in the district, sending an invitation to all whose names were on the books and also to those who had come into the country from other parts. About 300 persons, two-thirds of the total number, were present, and special meetings were held separately for the men and the women, followed by some combined gatherings. Besides the usual services an evangelistic meeting was held every Sunday morning in the autumn with a view to reaching the older people who could not read, and those who excused their non-attendance at church on the ground that their bark clothes were not good enough to be seen among the fine, clean clothes of the Christians. At these meetings the addresses were often given by some of the converts in Lusoga, which is better understood by the people than Luganda, and an additional attraction was furnished by the use of pictures. At the same time the band of district visitors was reorganized, and a number of men and boys and some women went out into the gardens in the neighbourhood twice a week to invite the people to the meetings. At first about fifty Basoga were usually present, but the numbers soon rose to 120 and even to 160. Better still, several old men, for whom prayer had long been offered, not only began to attend the meetings regularly, but showed some signs of being impressed by the message delivered. One of them, a Muganda, had heard the Gospel from fifteen to twenty years before from the lips of Mackay, who once invited him on the eve of a battle to be baptized. To appreciate the thankfulness this success afforded to the missionaries it must be remembered that the Basoga have never shown as much eagerness for the Gospel as the other tribes of the Uganda Protectorate; that they are self-willed and obstinate and averse to discipline in any form; and that they have made it clear that they prefer their old Heathenism with its polygamy and drunkenness to the new life demanded by Christianity. Moreover, in the neighbourhood of Iganga, the people have heard the Gospel again and again and seem to have become hardened in their sin. For the first half of the year Miss Taylor was in charge of the school, and had the assistance of a teacher named Musa, who afterwards joined the new Intermediate School at Budo. Diligent visiting of the absentees gradually brought about an increased attendance of pupils who were of all ages and all conditions.

District visitors.

Hardened in sin.

There was an average attendance of from thirty to forty patients at the dispensary, which was taken over by Miss Tanner when Miss Pilgrim left. These, of course, were not people afflicted by the sleeping-sickness, which raged with unabated severity in the district. Mr. Skeens gives a sad account of the condition of those attacked by that terrible disease :—

Sufferers from sleeping-sickness.

> We are constantly coming across cases—some when visiting in the gardens, where their friends build them separate huts and care for them ; others who are either driven out from their homes, or their friends die and they have no one to care for them. Their lot then is indeed a very sad one. They die from hunger, are eaten by wild beasts, or else commit suicide. Only last week, going into the school one morning, Miss Holdgate found a poor little girl ill with the sleeping-sickness, lying on some grass on the floor. During the night she had crept in there for shelter ; she was in a very emaciated condition, and dying. The ladies took charge of her, putting her in a house by herself, washing and feeding her, but the next day she died. When I first returned to Iganga there was a little boy ill with the sickness, segregated away in a hut which had been built for him on our land. One night he was carried off by a leopard. It is indeed sad to see these poor people going about, friendless and homeless, and knowing, as many of them do, that their case is hopeless. Apparently there is no pain, and they are quite sensible and coherent ; after a while they become dull and lifeless, helpless and dependent, and linger on awhile and die.

Difficulty of reaching Basoga women.

In the work among women, Miss Tanner found the conditions widely different from those prevailing in the kingdom of Uganda, for but few of the chiefs of Busoga are Christians, and consequently many of the women are not free to attend for teaching. The independence of character which marks the people, too, and the long distances from which the women have to carry food, which is not plentiful in Iganga, make the task of reaching them additionally difficult. Several reasons rendered it inexpedient to form a class for training women as teachers, and the ladies therefore were able to concentrate their efforts more largely on directly influencing the Heathen. They frequently paid visits to some of the out-stations in the neighbourhood, while Mr. Hannington made a tour to those at a greater distance, taking with him a magic-lantern and some Scripture slides, which he found of much use. Three new out-stations were opened in Busiki, a thickly populated district about fifteen miles east of Iganga, where the work was greatly helped by a Muganda Christian chief. At Buwongo, the chief out-station in that part, good congregations assembled, and readers were numerous.

Jinja.

The Rev. T. R. Buckley was stationed at JINJA.

V. KAVIRONDO.

THERE are two main divisions of the Kavirondo, the people inhabiting the country of that name. The low-lying ground in the neighbourhood of Kavirondo Bay is occupied for the most part by a people whose original home was in the Nile Province, and who speak a language similar in construction to that used in Acholiland, while the hill-country to the north is inhabited by Bantu-speaking tribes, whose dialects are not unlike those of the Basoga and Banyoro. In 1903 some American missionaries commenced work among the Bantu-speaking tribes at Kaimosi, on the borders of the Nandi country, twelve miles from Maragole, and the Roman Catholics of the Mill Hill Mission were in the field at Port Florence and at Mumia's on the old caravan route even earlier. The Rev. J. J. Willis, who, as recorded in last year's Report, took up his residence at MARAGOLE early in the year under review, spent most of his time working at the Bantu language, which is called Lulagoli, and with the help of a Muganda teacher translated the Gospel of St. Mark, the Catechism, and about twenty hymns into that tongue, and compiled an outline grammar and vocabulary. He says that his experiences at his new station revealed to him how providential it was that the first missionaries in that part of Africa were led to pass by Kavirondo and go on to Uganda, whose people are 'centuries ahead' of the surrounding tribes. He writes:—

Maragole.

The Baganda 'centuries ahead of surrounding tribes.'

I feel how many have been the natural advantages under which the work has been carried on in Uganda. How great those advantages are can only be realized when one commences work in a country where they do not exist. In place of a united people, we find here numberless petty tribes, or clans, without common interests and incapable of co-operation. Instead of a single, well-defined language, an endless variety of local dialects, the inevitable accompaniment of tribal divisions. We find no discipline, or order, or loyalty to chiefs, but every man does exactly what is right in his own eyes. We meet with no intelligent response, no keen desire to be taught, as we do with the Baganda. The work must inevitably be slow, though it need not in the end be less real. The innate good breeding, courtesy, and hospitality of the Baganda are little reflected in their neighbours. One learns here, what one would not perhaps learn in Uganda proper, to follow the advice of Krapf, to expect nothing as a right and to be sincerely thankful for everything.

Mr. Willis's chief work, after that of translation, was to overcome the suspicion of the people, which he regarded as only natural, for how could they be expected to believe such an improbable assertion as that he had come merely to tell them some good news! The feeling of insecurity was strongest among the women, who feared that the white people would beat them if they came to the services. Happily their apprehensions were allayed in some degree after the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Savile in the autumn, for the latter went to see them in their homes and carried on some medical work among them. Her efforts were crowned with success, for one Sunday afternoon some thirty or forty women and girls attended a service to which she invited them, while on another day fully 100 were present. Mrs. Savile gives a graphic account of the disorder at a service attended by the men:—

Allaying the suspicions of the women.

In the morning, while we were at breakfast, a great din was heard outside, and a line of men in single file came prancing along, shouting at the top of their voices the chorus of one of the hymns translated by Mr. Willis, 'Isa, Isa akulanga' ('Jesus, Jesus calls us'). Arriving in front of the house they ran round and round in a circle, and finally broke up amid yells of laughter, being hugely delighted with themselves. It was hard to know whether to be amused or not, for they treated it all as a game, and yet there was something very pathetic in their singing such words which meant nothing to them.

However, they came, and that was the chief thing, and we had a great crowd, about 200 instead of the usual sixty or seventy, and we had an open-air service, there being no indoor space large enough to hold them. We and our boys, who led valiantly in the singing, stood on the verandah of the iron house, while the congregation gathered below. They all crowded together in a dense mass when they stood up to sing, and then at the close of the hymn, when told to sit down, they all did so very suddenly and decisively and together, with what result you may imagine! However, after much scuffling and shoving, chattering and laughing, order was restored; the process being repeated more or less after each hymn.

In dealing with the prospects of the future, Mr. Willis, who has come home on furlough, says:—

Starting at zero.

We start, as nearly as it is possible to start, at zero, and all one can say at present is that the work has now been fairly begun. It rests very largely with ourselves how fast it shall go forward and how far it shall spread. We want, at once, a Mission not only among the Nilotic Kavirondo, but among the Bantu Kavirondo north of the Yala River; we want a station on the south side of the Bay; and we want to start work among the Lumbwa tribe, south of the railway line. Settlers are flocking into East Africa, and every year the effort to win the Natives is becoming more difficult.

VI. USUKUMA.

Nassa.

THE ordinary difficulties attendant upon the work at NASSA were enhanced during 1905 by the unrest of the Natives, due to the rebellion in other parts of German East Africa; by the opening of a gold mine in the district, which caused many of the people to go thither for work; and by the smallness of the European staff and the ill-health of some of its members. A good deal of the time of the Rev. F. H. Wright had to be devoted to the pastoral oversight of the converts. True, he acknowledges thankfully the increased sense of responsibility shown by sponsors for those whose baptism they witnessed, but at the same time continual watchfulness on his part was necessary. He says:—

A moral miracle.

When we think of the advantages which a Christian congregation in England has in the presence of a public opinion in favour of that which is true and pure, in having laws to limit and restrain temptation to drink and impurity, and then consider the trials to which a little band of Christians, such as these at Nassa, are subjected, with generations of inherited tendency to vice behind them, and the prospect of laughter and scorn if they refuse to yield to sensual pleasures, and with the sound of drum and horn calling them night after night to participate in licentious dances in the moonlight—it seems to me that we have great cause for encouragement. Nothing but a moral miracle can keep them pure.

The schools and the dispensary were conducted by Mr. J. S. Herbert and Mrs. Wright, the latter looking after the women in each case. At the end of the year Bishop Tucker visited the station and confirmed twenty-nine candidates. He was greatly impressed with the advance which the work had made, and wrote shortly afterwards:—

> It was a great joy on Christmas Day, and on the following Sunday, to see gathered together for worship so many Christians whom in former days I had known as Heathen. There was Sengule, an old headman of mine, with whom more than once I had travelled to the coast. Not only had he become a Christian, but the whole of his family also. And other Christians, too, I recognized as those who, in the old days, had hung about the mission-station unclad and with all the insignia of Heathenism upon them, but now, clothed and in their right minds, were sitting at the feet of Jesus.
> What struck me perhaps most of all in the changed condition of things was the gathering together at the Table of the Lord of some forty-two communicants. The fact of the existence of this band of communicants is one of the highest significance. As a spiritual force it should tell on all the country round and lead to many a soul being brought into the fold of Christ.
>
> Another very significant sight which struck me as indicative of the changed condition of things was the gathering together of some two hundred or more of Heathen to listen to the simple preaching of the Gospel. Five years ago a similar sight was to be seen, no doubt, but under vastly different conditions. Then the Heathen came because generally they were ordered to come by their chief, who was himself usually present. Now, however, no such pressure is exercised, and the presence of the chief makes little or no difference to the size of the congregation.
>
> But it was, perhaps, in the work among the women that the greatest advance of all was to be seen. This, no doubt, was due to the fact that for between four and five years a lady had been working among them with singular energy and rare devotion. Mrs. Wright has gained an intimate knowledge of the language, and consequently is able to enter into all the difficulties, the trials, temptations, and sorrows of those among whom she has laboured so bravely and so self-denyingly.

'Clothed, and in their right minds.

At Ngwamanyiri, one of the out-stations, the removal of the old chief, which was mentioned in last year's Report (page 132), was followed by the appointment of one of the king's sons in his stead. This man is a 'reader,' but the people were unwilling to put themselves under instruction. Kabita was more cheering, and Mr. Herbert found more than 100 people at the Sunday morning service on one occasion when he was present. In the district of Masanza, fifteen miles from Nassa, the chief, Malambalaji by name, asked for a teacher. Mr. Herbert went over to see what the prospects were, and took advantage of the opportunity to teach as many as he could. The people came readily to the school and the services which he held, and he heard afterwards that since his departure the chief had himself been gathering his people together and teaching them as well as he could. In the course of a long itineration Mr. and Mrs. Wright paid a visit to Usambiro and Msalala, two old stations of the Society. The missionaries who used to labour there, especially Gordon and Mackay, were well remembered, but it was not the teaching which they had received which was uppermost in the minds of the people, but such facts as that they had brought food for sale to the missionaries.

EGYPT AND THE SOUDAN MISSION.

The original object of the Missions formerly grouped under the heading of the 'Mediterranean Mission,' which were begun at Malta in 1815, at the close of the great war, and were afterwards extended to Egypt, Abyssinia, Greece, Turkey, Asia Minor, and Palestine, was twofold: first, to revive the Eastern Churches; and, second, through them to evangelize the Mohammedans. Some very able and devoted missionaries were employed in this work—Jowett, Gobat, Krapf, Pfander, Koelle, &c. But the hopes of the founders of the Society were not fulfilled. Oriental Christendom manifested no readiness to be quickened into life by emissaries from the West; and Moslem fanaticism, which barely tolerated Greek and Armenian Christianity, utterly repudiated the Gospel when presented in a pure form. Despite treaties and concessions on paper, missionary effort among the Moslem population of the Turkish Empire is carried on under the most vexatious restrictions, and a Mohammedan can only become a Christian at the imminent risk of liberty and life.

The Society had formerly a Mission in Egypt, as part of its scheme for the revival of the Eastern Churches. Many of the Coptic clergy and one Bishop were trained in the C.M.S. Seminary at Cairo; but the visible results were small, and the work was discontinued in 1862. In 1882, in response to the appeals of the late Miss Whately, and in consequence of the British occupation of Egypt, the Rev. F. A. Klein, formerly of Jerusalem, was sent to Cairo to begin a new Mission among the Mohammedans. A medical mission was opened in 1889, and ladies were added to the staff in the following year. Helouan was occupied in 1903. After Gordon's death at Khartoum in 1885 a Gordon Memorial Fund was opened, and soon after the defeat of the Mahdi's forces Omdurman was occupied in 1899, and Khartoum in 1900, under some restrictions, however, as to evangelistic efforts. In 1905 the Society was invited by Lord Cromer and the Sirdar to commence work in the Pagan Soudan.

Egypt is included in the jurisdiction of the Anglican Bishop in Jerusalem.

Conference of missionaries to Mohammedans.

A CONFERENCE was held at Cairo from April 4th to 8th, 1906, to discuss problems, opportunities, and results of missionary work among Mohammedans. Twenty-seven different societies, both English and American, were represented. The Revs. Dr. H. U. Weitbrecht, of the Punjab Mission, and D. M. Thornton and W. H. T. Gairdner, and Dr. F. J. Harpur of this Mission, were present. Papers were also contributed by other of the Society's Missionaries, e.g. the Revs. Canon M. G. Goldsmith, Dr. W. St. C. Tisdall, and Dr. W. Hooper.

Reinforcements.

A large proportion of the recruits of the year was assigned to the Egypt Mission, a party of six missionaries being sent forth to commence work in the Southern Soudan. The party consisted of the following: the Rev. Frank Burness Hadow, M.A., Wadham College, Oxford, and Wycliffe Hall, since 1903 the Society's Secretary for Work amongst the Young, who was invited by the Committee to join the Mission; the Rev. Archibald Shaw, B.A., Emmanuel College, Cambridge, and Ridley Hall, Curate of Walcot, Bath; the Rev. Arthur Murray Thom, M.A., Christ's College, Cambridge, and Ridley Hall, Curate of West Ham; Mr. Edmund Lloyd, B.A., B.C., Emmanuel College, Cambridge; and Messrs. John Comely and Robert Charles James Stuart Wilmot, who have been accepted on special agreement for work as industrial agents. One lady, Miss Susan Mary Elsdon, a qualified nurse, of Walsall and Forest Hill, who received her training under the Society at The Willows, has also been located to Egypt. The Committee have accepted the resignation of the Lady Hilda Clements on her marriage.

I. EGYPT.

THE Rev. R. MacInnes is Secretary of the Egypt portion of the Mission.

CAIRO.

Cairo.

At CAIRO, where the Congregation was under the Rev. D. M. Thornton, and the Boys' School was superintended by the Rev. A. J. Toop, four girls received their certificates and left the Girls' Training Class.

Training Class in Sharia Mohammed Ali, three to act as teachers in the Society's schools, and the fourth to help in the evangelistic work at the Old Cairo Hospital. Two new girls joined the class, which was conducted during the absence of Miss T. H. Bird on furlough by Misses G. M. Western and M. W. Welch, and at the beginning of 1906 it had seven members. Two of these young teachers were assigned to the Girls' Boarding-school at Bab-el-Luk, of which Miss J. E. B. Bywater was in charge, Miss M. Broadfoot being transferred in February, 1905, from Helouan, where she had resided temporarily, to assist her. The number of boarders rose from thirty-four to forty-five, and there were several day-scholars as well. One of the Mohammedan girls adopted by Miss Bywater some years ago, a sister of Lydia and Christina (see last year's Report, page 136), was baptized shortly after her transfer to the Training Class. A 'great spirit of prayer' was manifested by the children. On one occasion they asked whether they might spend the whole day in prayer. Permission was granted to devote the first hour to intercession, and to continue if it was felt that there was a real desire to do so, and the petition and hymn-singing went on until 3.30 p.m. At the Girls' Day-school, too, under Miss Western, there was marked advance, for the attendance of pupils doubled during the year, and the quality of the work improved. Opposition to the Christian teaching given in the school was more felt than in 1904, some pupils being withdrawn by their parents because of it, and some of the elder girls, who were admitted from another school, at one time striving to hinder their companions from joining in prayer. The great majority of the fifty children are Mohammedans.

Evangelistic Work.

Evangelistic Work among the educated classes was carried on by the Revs. D. M. Thornton and W. H. T. Gairdner by means of two types of meetings. The first was a general meeting at which an address on some social, national, historical, or moral subject was delivered in English and Arabic, and was followed by a general discussion in the latter tongue. These gatherings were noteworthy for the remarkable frankness and freedom with which the Mohammedans, Copts, and English met and spoke to each other, and were useful, if in no other way, in bringing together in friendly discussion the Mohammedans and Copts, who for nearly 1,300 years have regarded each other with suspicion, contempt, and dislike. The other meetings referred to were directly evangelistic in character, and were far more difficult to manage. It was found that the sheikhs would not attend unless the address was followed by a disputation, and the latter frequently terminated with the uproarious exit of the whole audience. A young man, who in the spring was the leader in the disturbance with which one gathering ended, afterwards embraced the faith which he then opposed. The first thing to influence him in favour of Christianity was reading a tract. Then he began to attend the Sunday evening devotional meetings, and at the close of one of them insisted on seeing one of the missionaries. The latter refused to argue with him, and gave him a New Testament. The young sheikh went home and read the Gospels for twelve hours together. Later on he had a dream in which God told him that he would be guided aright and receive the light and truth for which he longed. Mr. Thornton wrote of him in October:—

A former opponent embraces Christianity.

> He has passed all his examinations at El-Azhar, and obtained his certificate from his ten professors there. On Saturday last he wrote to the governorate here asking for his name to be legally inscribed as Bulus (Paul), a Christian. The same afternoon he wrote to his father and told him all, and settled in the Old Cairo mission-compound, to secure due protection from might-be enemies and plotters against his life.
> Accordingly, on Sunday last, October 8th, I admitted him at our Old Cairo Church as a catechumen in a very impressive service. So anxious was he to answer that he could scarcely wait till the end of each question. He now gains a livelihood as a teacher of Arabic grammar in the Old Cairo Boys' School, and gets spiritual help through visiting the hospital patients and reading with them the Bible that he loves. It was touching to hear him say, as he looked up into my eyes, 'I have given up all my home ties now. I have no earthly father, but, your honour, only a heavenly Father now.'

'I have no earthly father now.'

His earthly father, however, did not cast him off entirely, for the Rev. T. F. Wolters, of the Palestine Mission, who saw the old man at Jaffa, writes:—

> I was scarcely prepared to hear the liberal and sensible views expressed on this occasion. He began by saying that he knew that God had given mankind different religions, whereas He could have made them all Moslems if He had so pleased. When I corrected him by pointing out that it was man who had forsaken the true knowledge of God, and was himself responsible for the many forms of false religion existing in the world, and, moreover, that true religion, or, in fact, any religion, was a matter of conscience between a man and his God, and that religion could not be imposed upon a man by any human force, he consented. He said he did not wish to use force to compel his son from his purpose. If he had wanted to do so, he could easily have sent trusty men to Cairo who would have put his son to death. But he would not put any difficulties in his son's way. All he asked for him was ample time for the full consideration of the step he was taking in all its bearings and consequences. He asked me to beg Mr. Thornton to be the lad's father, and to watch over him lest he got into bad company. 'I am Mahmud's natural father,' he said; 'Mahmud will now have two fathers.' His final request was that, if possible, the name Mahmud (which runs through his family), or at least its English equivalent, should be retained in baptism. My whole heart went out towards the old man, all the more as, though evidently very sad, he showed no bitterness.

The Orient and Occident.

The Book Depôt attracted a large number of students, more than were reached in any other way, and the Orient and Occident, the weekly illustrated magazine, edited by Messrs. Thornton and Gairdner, proved a power for good. In the autumn a series of straight talks, in English and Arabic, on the purity question, the evils of gambling and opium-smoking, &c., appeared, the articles being in fact the addresses which were delivered at the meetings referred to above. Their publication in the magazine led to a largely increased attendance at the gatherings, and the men often came to the mission-house early and studied back numbers of the Orient and Occident while waiting for the meetings to begin.

Women's Work.

The Work among Women was superintended by Miss H. Adeney, who divided her time between Cairo and Old Cairo. The Bible-woman associated with her taught some seventy Mohammedan women every week, and distributed a number of Gospel leaflets.

OLD CAIRO.

Old Cairo.

The Congregation at Old Cairo consisted chiefly of the agents of the Mission and their families, who are possessed of but little worldly goods. Their sympathy was aroused, however, by what they were told concerning the new lecture-hall at Hangchow, and the need for it, and out of their poverty they with some of the missionaries contributed between £4 and £5 towards paying off the debt which remained on the hall. Some of the most promising pupils at the Girls' School, under Miss M. W. Welch, were taken away because of the Christian teaching, and the irregularity of the attendance also militated against success, but there was at the same time a bright side of the work.

Girls' School.

Medical Work.

Dr. F. J. Harpur was in charge of the Medical Work from April to October, while Dr. F. O. Lasbrey was absent on furlough, and Dr. E. M. Pain, of the New South Wales Association, shared in it throughout the year. A simple dedication service was held in November when the new Ethel Pain Memorial Hospital for women and children was opened for the reception of patients. Nearly the whole of the £3,500 which represents the cost of the building (exclusive of equipment) has been raised by private subscription, principally in Australia and New Zealand. The year's statistics show that 663 persons were received as in-patients, and that more than 20,000 visits of out-patients were recorded. Miss M. Cay held a class for peasant women among the patients, and Miss Adeney, who was in charge of the Work among Women, visited many of the mothers of past and present pupils at the girls' school. The latter speaks of some of the upper-class Mohammedan women as manifesting an interest in the Gospel.

Medical itinerations.

During the six months of 1905 that he was free from the claims of the hospital, Dr. Harpur maintained Itinerating Work in the villages of the Delta. At first his house-boat was moored at a village which he calls 'A,' and dispensary work was regularly carried on there and at a neighbouring village. At the former there was an average attendance of over fifty patients each day, the people coming from seventy-five different hamlets. Lantern meetings were held at several places with increasing attendances and interest. At a third place the medical work was on an even larger scale. In the autumn Dr. Harpur went to 'D,' a very large village ten miles to the north of 'A.' To begin with, he was looked upon with some suspicion in consequence of one of the Cairo converts being a Native of the place, but eventually he had a busy time and received invitations to treat patients in eighteen different villages. Miss L. Crowther, a trained nurse, also visited some of the villages between Old Cairo and Helouan.

HELOUAN.

Helouan.

The number of pupils at the school for high-class girls at HELOUAN, where Miss P. A. Jackson had the help, first of Miss M. Broadfoot and then, from February, 1905, of Miss C. V. B. Harris, of the Canadian C.M.S., fell off considerably. Three of the elder girls went to live in Cairo, others joined the Roman Catholic school in the town, and others, again, left because their parents wished to give a trial to some other school. An outbreak of measles, which specially affected the kindergarten class conducted by Miss Harris, further reduced the attendance. All the elder girls attended the weekly prayer meeting, although the majority of them were Mohammedans. The attendance at the village school, ten minutes' walk from Helouan, was irregular, and the strict enforcement of the payment of the small fees, together with the occurrence of the fast of Ramadan, almost emptied the school for a time.

II. THE SOUDAN.
(GORDON MEMORIAL MISSION.)

THE policy of the Government with respect to missionary work in the Northern Soudan was concisely stated in the Blue Book, 'Egypt, No. 1 (1905),' which consisted of Reports on the Govern-ment policy concern-ing mis-sionary work.

Finance, Administration, and Condition of Egypt and the Soudan in 1904, presented to Parliament in April, 1905. After a reference to the freedom with which efforts may be made to preach the Gospel to the population of Egypt proper the following words occur:—

> In the northern portion of the Soudan it would not for the present be possible, without incurring grave danger, to adopt so liberal and tolerant a policy as that pursued in Egypt. The population of the Soudan generally is as yet far too ignorant and uncivilized to be able to distinguish between the action of the British Government, in their corporate capacity, and that of an individual European, whether of British or any other nationality. If free scope were allowed to missionary enterprise, it would not only be wholly unproductive of result, but would also create a feeling of resentment, culminating possibly in actual disturbance, which, far from advancing, would almost certainly throw back that work of civilization which all connected with the country, whether or not connected with missionary enterprise, have so much at heart.

Not yet possible among Moham-medans of Sou dan.

Under these circumstances, I stated in my annual Report for 1902 (page 60) that both Sir Reginald Wingate and myself were of opinion that 'the time was still distant when mission work could, with safety and advantage, be permitted among the Moslem population of the Soudan.' We both remain of that opinion. It is impossible at present to assign any precise limit to the duration of the existing restrictions. From the point of view of British missionary enterprise, those restrictions are so far practically unimportant in that a large field of activity, which they have as yet, owing to want of funds, been unable to occupy, has been opened out to them in the southern portions of the Soudan.

Mission-schools at Khar-toum.

To a certain very limited extent, an exception to the application of the principle above enunciated has been made, within the second zone, in the case of Khartoum. The population of that town is not wholly Moslem. There are many Christian residents of various denominations. Moreover, being the seat of Government, the action of any missionary bodies can be carefully supervised; while the Moslem population, being in immediate touch with the governing authorities, can more readily comprehend the policy adopted than those residing in the outlying provinces. Further, an active demand for education, which the Government is unable to meet adequately from its own resources, exists on the part of both Moslems and Christians. Under these circumstances, permission has been given for the establishment of mission-schools at Khartoum. It is for the heads of those schools to decide on the amount of religious instruction which shall be afforded to the pupils. The duty of the Government is limited to providing that any Moslem parent—or parent of some Christian denomination other than that under whose auspices the school has been instituted—shall clearly understand the conditions under which secular instruction is imparted, before he sends his child to the school. Regulations having this object in view have accordingly been framed. The system appears to be working satisfactorily.

The Rev. R. MacInnes is Secretary for the work at Khartoum, and Dr. A. R. Cook is Acting-Secretary for that in the Southern Soudan.

KHARTOUM.

Khar-toum.

The work of the Society at KHARTOUM is under the superintendence of Archdeacon Ll. H. Gwynne, who is now British Chaplain, and not on the Society's list of missionaries. The English Services were regularly maintained, the Rev. A. M.

Thom, a member of the Southern Soudan party, remaining behind to conduct them while the Archdeacon went to establish the rest of the party up the Nile. Miss A. G. Bewley was in charge of the Girls' School, Mrs. A. C. Hall rendering her some assistance in the work.

BOR.

Last year's Report recorded the invitation which the Society received from Lord Cromer to undertake work among the pagan tribes of the Southern Soudan, and the appeal issued by the Committee for men to enable them to respond to the invitation. The nature of the response has been indicated in the account at the beginning of this chapter of the reinforcements assigned to the Mission. The party, consisting of three clergymen, a doctor, and two industrial agents, left London on October 17th, 1905, under the leadership of Archdeacon Gwynne and, having purchased a boat from the Government, started from Khartoum on the last stage of their journey—some 1,100 miles—on December 8th, nearly all the leading officials in the town coming to bid them God-speed. En route they visited the Roman Catholic Mission at Lul, and the American Mission on the Sobat River. Mongalla, the Government station close to the boundary line between the Soudan and the Uganda Protectorate, was reached on January 8th, 1906, and there the party met Dr. A. R. Cook, who had left Mengo on November 7th, and arrived shortly before Christmas Day. He described the place in his journal as follows:—

Journey of the pioneer party.

> The principal feature of the place is the Nile, which is perhaps half a mile wide, although, owing to a long island in the midst, the visible channel is only a couple of hundred yards, but with a rapid current of over four miles an hour. Mongalla is a purely military station. The troops and their families and hangers-on number some 1,200. The weather is hot (90°–100° in my tent), but by no means unbearably so, and now that I have had a wide porch, heavily thatched with grass, constructed in front of my tent, I can work in comfort. The nights are delightfully cool, the temperature dropping to 65° or even 61°. The mosquitoes are rather a nuisance, but might be worse. The place is not a health resort; my men went down so quickly with malaria that seven out of the twenty were attacked within two or three days. The indigenous native population is not found at Mongalla itself. South and north of Mongalla, however, are considerable villages, and I have been visiting them and making friends with the chiefs, &c.

Unhealthiness of Mongalla.

After thoroughly exploring the surrounding country it was decided that it was not desirable to make that station the base of the Mission, and acting on the advice of the Mudir of the district, Cameron Bey, and the commandant at Mongalla, Captain Logan, on January 18th the boat was towed down the river a distance of eighty-four miles to Bor, which was reached the following day. On January 22nd Archdeacon Gwynne and Dr. Cook started on a week's tour eastward in search of a healthier site on the higher ground distant from the river. The Archdeacon writes:—

After a march of twelve miles from the river we found a very extensive plain about 150 feet above the river level, covered with huts, evidently very fertile, with a large population, who welcomed us in a most friendly way, bringing out their sick to be treated as soon as they heard that one of us was a doctor. But what rejoiced my heart even more than all this was the fact that the place was absolutely free from mosquitoes and we were able to sleep out in the open without mosquito-curtains.

I found in every village we visited some one who could speak Arabic, and had no difficulty in making plain to the people the reason of our coming. We estimated that this plateau must stretch across country for 300 miles, and this I ascertained from the Government authorities) was a fair estimate. We were able to visit three chiefs in their own villages, and wherever we went we were received most kindly, the doctor's treatment of their sick winning great confidence. The water was bad and scarce, the people having no idea of digging wells.

After consultation with Dr. Cook, I placed before the Governor of our province on my return, two urgent requests:—permission to dig a well and build a temporary residence on this high plateau; and to allow Dr. Cook to retain his ten Baganda porters until he returns to Uganda. Our reasons for these requests were: (1) The health of our men, the river station being infested with malaria-breeding mosquitoes. (2) The well must be dug before the rains, to find out for certain how deep the water is, and the house must be in readiness for starting our inland station this year. (3) The Dinkas are unable at present to give us any assistance in building, and the Baganda are of the greatest use in erecting buildings and carrying goods.

PALESTINE MISSION.

The Society commenced work in Palestine in 1851, in response to an invitation given by Bishop Gobat. The following places are occupied by European labourers: Jerusalem, 1851; Nazareth, 1852; Salt, 1873; Jaffa, 1876; Nablous, 1876; Ramallah, 1877; Gaza, 1878; Haifa, 1884; Acca, 1890; Kefr Yasif and Bir Zeit, 1892; Ramleh and Kerak, 1894. In 1887 the Society commenced to send unmarried ladies to this Mission, and their efforts among Mohammedan women have been greatly blessed. In 1899 the work of the late Female Education Society at Nazareth, Bethlehem, and Shefamer, was taken over by the Society. Medical Missions have done much to diminish prejudice. The first mission-hospital was opened at Gaza in 1891. Since then Nablous, Acca, Salt, and Kerak have been made centres of medical missionary work.

The Bishopric in Jerusalem was founded in 1841 on the initiative of King Frederick William IV. of Prussia, the arrangement being that England and Prussia, who shared the expense of the See, should alternately nominate its occupant. The first three Bishops were Dr. Alexander, Dr. Gobat (1846), previously a C.M.S. missionary, and Dr. Barclay (1879). On the death of the last-named the German Government failed to nominate a successor, and eventually declined to continue the arrangement. In 1887 the Bishopric was revived by Archbishop Benson, the London Society for the Promotion of Christianity among the Jews and the Church Missionary Society having undertaken to make an annual contribution to the stipend of the See to supplement the endowment, and Dr. Blyth was appointed.

Formation of a Palestine Native Church Council.

An important step in the organization of the Mission has been taken by the formation of a Palestine Native Church Council. The country is divided into districts, for each of which the Council has a visitor (a missionary for the time being) who goes to the pastorates in the district, examines the accounts and books, and aids the pastors and pastorate committees with his advice. There may be several pastorate committees in one pastorate, according to the position and circumstances of the congregations. Provision has been made for the supervision of the work of the Council for the present by the Parent Committee of the Society. The first official meeting of the newly constituted Council was held at Jaffa from March 12th to 16th, 1905.

Reinforcements.

The Mission has been reinforced by the Rev. William Stanley, M.A., Queens' College, Cambridge, and Ridley Hall, Curate of St. Anne's, Nottingham, and Mrs. Stanley, M.B., Ch.B., Glasgow; Miss Mabel Christine Jane McComas, of Dublin, trained at The Olives; and Miss Blanche Ethel Smithies, a certificated elementary school teacher, trained at The Willows. The Committee have accepted the resignation of Miss E. M. Thorne.

The Rev. H. Sykes is the Secretary of the Mission.

JERUSALEM.

Jerusalem.

The staff of the Society in Jerusalem consisted of Rev. H. Sykes, who was invalided home in January but returned in the autumn, the Rev. I. Baz, the native pastor, the Rev. and Mrs.

J. T. Parfit, the Rev. S. C. Webb, who took short furlough in England and returned to the Mission in November accompanied by Mrs. Webb, Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Ellis, Mr. A. E. Mitchell, Mr. L. H. Hardman, the Accountant of the Mission, and Mrs. Hardman, and Misses A. Welch and H. J. Dewe (the last named becoming Mrs. Mitchell in October). Mr. Parfit was Acting-Principal of the English College during the absence of Mr. Sykes, the educational work being in the hands of Mr. Mitchell, who was assisted by several of his missionary colleagues in the lectures. During its first year the College had twenty-three students, a number which was increased by seven when it re-opened in the autumn: one of them came from Egypt and another from Baghdad. A debating society, similar to that with which Mr. Mitchell had been acquainted during his term of service at Fourah Bay College, Sierra Leone, was inaugurated with success, and the students spontaneously organized a union among themselves for moral and religious culture. The boys of the Bishop Gobat School, whose ages vary from nine to fifteen, did well in their examinations, and took kindly to athletics. The new playing-field in the Plain of Rephaim proved a real boon. Mr. F. T. Ellis reports that there were over eighty pupils, all of whom attended the Church services on Sundays and received daily Bible instruction. The Girls' School was superintended by Miss Welch.

English College.

Bishop Gobat School.

The discontinuance of the work on the Mount of Olives was seriously contemplated early in 1905, in consequence of the opposition experienced at the girls' school. The young men of the village, which is purely Mohammedan, from time to time frightened away the girls, and it took weeks to get them back again. When Miss A. M. Elverson let it be known that if such interruptions were continued the station would be closed, a deputation of the sheikhs asked for an interview, at which they stated that they did not wish her to leave, and promised that there should be no more disturbances if only she would stay. Ultimately it was determined not to close the station, and, the sheikhs keeping their promise, the average attendance at the school rose from twenty-five to over forty. During Miss Elverson's absence of five months on furlough the native teacher, aided by weekly visits paid by Miss H. J. Dewe from Jerusalem, was able to manage the work. A sad light is thrown upon the heartless character of Mohammedanism by the fact that two little girls from Jaffa, whose mother died of cholera, and who for twenty months had been living with Miss Elverson, were sold by their father as wives for £4 each. Very few of the women of the village were willing to listen to the Gospel when visited, but the roadside beggars, all of whom are Mohammedans, came gladly and regularly to be taught.

Sheikhs request a missionary not to leave their village.

Miss M. Brown and Miss A. H. McNeile lost the help of Miss F. E. Neale at the Girls' Boarding-school, BETHLEHEM, by her marriage to Dr. F. Johnson in February, 1905, and her absence compelled the first-named to take a few mornings each week from her evangelistic work for teaching in the school, but some help was rendered after November by Miss M. C. J. McComas. Several new pupils were received after the summer, and day-scholars attended in fair numbers. Several of the girls manifestly grew in grace, and there was reason to believe that they would be something more than mere teachers of secular subjects when they went out on the completion of their five years' course. Some of the boarders assisted in the Sunday-school which was carried on for the benefit of the day-scholars. Bethlehem. Girls' Boarding-school.

The transfer of the native pastor, the Rev. C. Jamal, from Nazareth to RAMALLAH in December, 1904, was followed by a decided improvement in the congregation at the latter place both in numbers and in tone, and kind gifts by Mrs. Cropper, the wife of Dr. Cropper, formerly a missionary of the Society, towards the church, and her help in training the choir, made the services brighter. Miss F. Nuttall and Miss K. M. J. Sandreczka both engaged in visiting the women until the spring of 1905, when the latter came to Europe on furlough, after which Miss Nuttall carried on the work with the help of the Bible-woman. Great patience was required, but the workers were rewarded by seeing a wonderful change in the town, and by evident signs that the Holy Spirit was enabling some of the women to be faithful witnesses for Christ, in spite of the hardness in which their faithfulness involved them. Miss Nuttall had more than 1,000 attendances at her dispensary in Ramallah, and about 400 at Tayibeh, to which place she went rather more than once a month. In former days she had some unpleasant experiences in that village, but she says that now both men and women are most respectful, while the boys, who at one time were a terror and nuisance, run to kiss her hand. She regards the Mohammedans as much more open to the Gospel than ever before, but adds that nothing whatever is being done to reach the men in the villages of the district, who complain 'God has forgotten us, and no one teaches us: we are oxen.' Ramallah. Opposition changed to respect. 'No one teaches us.'

In the spring of 1905 Miss G. F. Tindall was obliged to leave, first for Egypt and then for England, on medical certificate, and for the remainder of the year the work at BIR ZEIT, a village of some 1,200 inhabitants, twenty miles to the north of Jerusalem, was carried on by Miss F. M. Biddington and Miss F. Cooper. The schools were superintended by the latter, while Miss Biddington was responsible for the dispensary, at which more than 2,400 attendances were registered. The patients Bir Zeit.

were drawn from forty-four different places, and it was found that many who came were led to do so by former patients, who had told them of their experience. Miss Biddington concentrated her attention on eight of the villages in the district, instead of attempting to pay merely occasional visits to all of them. Although most of those to which she went were Mohammedans, she was only once interrupted in her work by the men, and on that occasion the exercise of a little tact silenced the would-be disturber.

JAFFA.

Jaffa. A great deal of the time of the Rev. T. F. Wolters, the superintending missionary at JAFFA, was taken up with the duties of the secretariat, which fell on him when the Rev. H. Sykes came home on furlough in January, 1905. Those duties were, perhaps, more onerous than usual, because of the work connected with the formation of the Palestine Native Church Council, which has been referred to above. Writing with special reference to the district under his charge, Mr. Wolters says that too much help is still expected from Europeans, but that nevertheless the formation of the Council has developed some sense of responsibility among the Christians. This is not entirely of recent growth, since, for some time past, several of them have attempted to evangelize their neighbours. Something like a Christian Endeavour Society has sprung out of this, and during 1905 weekly meetings were held by the members, which were attended by a considerable number of people, mostly belonging to the Greek Church, some of whom commenced to attend the Sunday services. The work among the women was carried on by Miss E. A. Cooke until November, when Miss M. B. McConaghy returned from England and Miss Cooke went once more to her old station, Ramleh.

Miss A. N. Jarvis (until her removal to Shefamer in September) and Miss I. J. Morphew resided at Ramleh. Their work included that at the dispensary, which was open twice a week and attended by some sixty persons, chiefly Mohammedans; the management of the schools for boys and girls, which were so crowded in the summer that some children had to be refused admission; and visiting the women in their homes. Miss Morphew says that she was almost always welcomed, but that the ignorance of the people is very great, and she often met with women who had never heard the Name of Christ.

GAZA.

Gaza. Hospital. The number of patients at the Hospital at GAZA, of which the Rev. Dr. R. Sterling was in charge, was affected by an outbreak of opposition on the part of the authorities, but happily the ill results were only temporary, and many of the people did not share in the fanatical feelings which were manifested. Indeed, Dr. Sterling says that among all classes alike there is an increasing desire to obtain a knowledge of the Gospel. Miss M. Tiffin and Miss K. Morris, two trained nurses, assisted in the medical work. The Girls' School, with over 500 pupils, was superintended by Miss M. Hicks. The attendance suffered during her absence in England from May until October, and fifty of the pupils were withdrawn by the Greek priest. Girls' School.

A new out-station was opened at Al Aresh, a town on the border of Egypt and the centre of a district containing from 15,000 to 20,000 Arabs. The school, which was set on foot under a native teacher, soon had an attendance of fifty, and when Dr. Sterling visited the place he was literally besieged with patients. Besieged with patients.

NABLOUS (DENIS CROFTON MISSION).

The staff of the Society at NABLOUS, on the slopes of Mount Gerizim, consisted of the Rev. and Mrs. F. Carpenter, the Rev. H. Dimishky, transferred from Kerak in July, 1905, to take the place of the Rev. H. Musa who went to Bir Zeit, Dr. and Mrs. G. R. M. Wright, and Misses A. A. M. Bedells, E. E. Brodie, and M. Rosenhayn, and they were joined in the autumn on her return from furlough in Australia by Miss B. I. Hassall, of the New South Wales Association. The establishment of the Palestine Church Council was instrumental in arousing a desire to become self-supporting in the hearts of the members of the 'small and poor' congregation, and Mr. Dimishky was diligent in keeping their duty of contributing to the funds of the Council prominently before them. Nablous.

Two new wards for tuberculous patients were added to the Hospital, but its work suffered through the serious illness of Dr. Wright. The attendances of out-patients, too, fell off through a Syrian doctor, who was formerly a member of the hospital staff, commencing work in the town on his own account, and the number of persons, including friends of the patients, listening to the dispensary preaching, which at one time exceeded 200, was reduced by about half. In the summer some fanatics tried to stir up antagonism in the town. People who came to the hospital were threatened with fine and imprisonment, and the Christians were insulted in the streets. At one time it looked as though a riot would ensue, but an influential member of the Government, who had called Dr. Wright in to treat his family, intervened, and the trouble came to an end. There were a few hopeful cases among the in-patients. Miss Kitchen tells of a girl, a former patient in the hospital, whom she visited in her home as she was dying. The sufferer Hospital. A riot averted by a friendly official.

repeated several texts which she had learnt, and when asked if she remembered any of the hymns which she had committed to memory, she replied, 'Yes, I read them in my heart,' an Arabic way of saying that though she was afraid to talk of them, yet she thought of them and repeated them to herself. There was also a girl of fourteen who certainly was acquainted with and appeared interested in the Gospel, but for some time before her death she was too weak to talk much and it was not certain whether she was trusting in the merits of the Saviour.

'I read them in my heart.'

Nazareth. At NAZARETH the Rev. C. A. Manley was in general charge and the Rev. A. Mansur ministered to the congregation, the members of which, unhappily, manifested but little zeal for the evangelization of others. Miss F. E. Newton says that so far as she knows not a single one of them is doing voluntary work of a definitely spiritual character. She writes :—

> There are no mission services held by laymen to attract outsiders. No one has the equivalent to a 'district.' Up till now the Sunday-school has been an integral part of the day-school work. The only teachers were those whose daily work is teaching, and who were tired of it and needed a rest on Sunday. The Rev. A. Mansur is trying to re-organize the Sunday-school on more suitable lines, but has failed hitherto, owing to no response to his request for women teachers for the girls' classes being forthcoming. Our own teachers have said to me more than once during the past few weeks that in taking the Gospel to non-Christians we are 'casting pearls before swine,' and that 'Christ Himself told us not to do it.'

Orphanage. During the absence of Miss F. L. A. Roberts in England Miss M. A. E. Newey was in charge of the Orphanage, great assistance being rendered to her by Miss H. M. E. Scott. Six girls left the institution, one to act as teacher in a C.M.S. school, and three to help in hospitals, and two others were carried off by the nuns and placed in a convent at Beyrout, their names being changed so that they might not be traced. Sadder still, one Mohammedan child, nine years old, was sold by her mother to be the second wife of a man who had a daughter of that age.

Eagerness for education. The eagerness of the people for education caused a rush of paying pupils to fill the vacancies, and if any were refused admission on the ground of there being no beds, those articles were at once forthcoming. A father arrived from a distance with two girls, and when told there was no room for them he put down the money, saying, 'Here they are: they are yours,' and went off. Another man even wished to pay the fees in advance to ensure the admission of his daughter in the following year; a mother sold some of her jewels in order that her child might be admitted; and a girl, having only one eye, and whose parents were very poor, agreed to go into service for a time, so as to raise the money for her younger sister's fees. A former inmate of the Orphanage, who left in 1904 to become a teacher at Haifa, was called to her rest, and her early death appeared to make a deep impression upon the girls, among whom she had many friends. Miss F. E. Newton succeeded Miss K. Patten in charge of the ten Day-schools in Nazareth and the surrounding district when the latter came home in May, 1905. There were from 400 to 500 names on the registers of the schools, and an average daily attendance of 330 children. The village schools are described as 'real beacon fires' in the midst of the prevailing darkness, and are said to be breaking down prejudice almost, if not quite as much as medical work. Miss F. A. Brownlow superintended the Work among Women. 'Real beacon fires.'

Miss E. A. Lawford, a trained nurse, and Miss L. M. Townsend were joined at Shefamer, a village containing 4,000 inhabitants, in April, 1905, by Miss K. E. Erwood, of the Victorian Association, but in the following month Miss Townsend came home. The school contained nearly 100 children, and the dispensary attracted among others a number of Bedouins and some Kurds. Good accounts were received of several former pupils of the school at Abilene. Miss A. N. Jarvis, who was transferred to the station from Ramleh at the end of the summer, found the people in the villages ready to be taught.

The work at Acca was carried on by Misses M. A. and E. C. Wardlaw-Ramsay, the Rev. Dr. S. Gould being transferred in October, 1905, to Salt, and the Hospital at Acca being left in charge of a native doctor. Misses L. W. Lewis and E. E. Watney resided at Kefr-Yasif. Acca.

At Haifa, where the competition in the educational work is very keen, the boys' school suffered more than that for girls. Miss E. G. Reeve, with the help of Miss J. Wenham and Miss K. E. Erwood for different portions of the year, superintended the latter, conducted a number of classes for Christian and Mohammedan women, and engaged in house-to-house visitation. She was usually received without any bitterness, but on the other hand little interest was shown in her message. Haifa.

SALT AND KERAK.

The medical mission at Salt, which had been closed for some years, was re-opened in October, 1905, by the Rev. Dr. S. Gould, of the Canadian C.M.S., who was transferred to that town from Acca. He experienced much kindness during his journey at the hands of the authorities. Salt. Medical work recommenced.

Dr. F. Johnson, having completed ten years' work at Kerak, takes the opportunity in his annual letter of comparing the present state of affairs with his early experiences at the station. He says that while the Turkish Government watch the work closely and are unwilling to grant permission for a school to be opened, at the same time local opposition has practically ceased, Kerak.

and that whereas when he first went to the station he had to endure forced inactivity, now the small staff is quite unequal to the demands made upon it. Not only were there more patients in 1905 than in the previous year, but there was also a greater thoughtfulness manifested by them as the Gospel was proclaimed in their ears. Most of the patients were drawn from the countries known in olden times as Moab and Edom, but some came from farther afield, a few even arriving from the Medina district, after making a journey of eighteen days to reach the doctor. Dr. Johnson describes as follows the violent character of some of the people with whom he is brought in contact:—

Marauding tribes.

I have visited tribes which subsist to a great extent by marauding. Their manner of life and moral code seem to have much in common with those of the Pathans and other hill-tribes in North India. Comparatively few of these Arab marauders die a natural death. Nearly all have scars of wounds received in frays with other tribes; it is even said that to die a natural death is reckoned by them as akin to shame. I was called to see a sheikh of one of these tribes who had a bullet wound in the abdomen; he had scars of four other big wounds received at different times. On questioning him he told me that he had killed thirty-seven men; others he had wounded, but whether they succumbed to their wounds he did not know! A boy of about twelve summers, from the same tribe, attended the dispensary. Noticing that he was armed with sword and revolver, I asked him whether he ever had use for his weapons; he replied that he had been on three marauding expeditions, and had killed one youth with his revolver! This manner of life to their thinking is quite compatible with their appropriating to themselves the name of 'believer,' with all its privileges and benefits for this world and the next.

TURKISH ARABIA MISSION.

Baghdad, which is in the Turkish Empire, is in the immediate neighbourhood of the sacred places of the Shiah Mohammedans. Thousands of pilgrims flock to it from all parts of Persia, and in order to reach them the city was first occupied by C.M.S. missionaries in 1882. Medical mission work was commenced in 1887. In 1898 the work, previously carried on in connexion with that in Persia, was constituted an independent Mission. In 1900, Mosul, near the site of ancient Nineveh, was occupied.

Reinforcement.

THE Mission has received one recruit, Miss Eva Alice Lavy, of London, a qualified nurse, who also received training under the Society at The Olives. Miss Lavy is a sister of the Rev. E. E. Lavy, of this Mission.

BAGHDAD.

Baghdad.

The missionaries at BAGHDAD, Dr. P. W. Brigstocke, the Secretary of the Mission, the Rev. E. E. Lavy, and Misses E. G. Butlin and E. A. Ryan, were sorely tried by their inability to cope with the work before them in the city, with its population of 200,000. Especially was the pressure felt at the Hospital, where it was so severe that Dr. Brigstocke broke down, causing much of the medical work to be suspended for five months. Even when he was well enough to be at work, many patients had to be turned away altogether, and others whose condition really called for care in the hospital itself had to be treated as out-patients. Miss Butlin prescribed for the women out-patients, whom she describes as listening most attentively at the preliminary meetings, and Mr. Lavy ministered to the patients in the wards. The last-named had from sixty to eighty pupils under his charge in the Boys' School. He was still obliged to refuse admission to all Mohammedan boys who were Turkish subjects, though able to take those of Persian and British Indian parentage. The head master, a 'warm-hearted Christian,' left to become dragoman at the British Consulate at Muscat, and great difficulty was experienced in filling his place. The Girls' School had to be closed because her medical duties left Miss Butlin no time to attend to it.

Hospital.

Schools.

Very little itinerating could be accomplished. Dr. Brigstocke paid a short visit to a couple of villages two days' journey from Baghdad, and there found some men who acknowledged Christ to be the Son of God, though they did not openly confess Him. He was hospitably entertained by these men, and to his surprise and pleasure when they sat down to meals the host requested the dispenser to ask a blessing. In order to obtain greater facilities for the study of the language than were available at Baghdad, Mr. Lavy spent three months at a village named Shutra, where he was the guest of a former patient in the hospital. The people soon discovered that he had brought a stock of medicines with him, and thronged round him for treatment. Many sheikhs invited him to pay them a visit, but, in consequence of the disturbed state of the country, the head Turkish official refused him permission to go.

Invitations from sheikhs.

Dr. Brigstocke was invalided home early in 1906.

MOSUL.

Mosul

Mosul, a city of 80,000 inhabitants, is situated on the Tigris, about 270 miles from Baghdad, immediately opposite the ancient site of Nineveh. In the year 1900 the Society took over the work which had been carried on for forty years by the American Presbyterian Board of Missions, but in 1904 when Miss E. E. Martin, of the Victorian Association, left on furlough, the station was practically closed. It was re-opened by Dr. A. H. Griffith in the spring of 1905, and he was joined in the autumn by Miss Martin. Dr. Griffith soon secured a house in the centre of the city, and opened a little Hospital with six beds. At first there was some timidity on the part of the people in applying for admission as in-patients, but they came freely to the dispensary, which was held on two days in the week, and on the average about 1,000 attendances a month were registered. In addition, a number of visits were paid to patients in their own homes, while during the last three months of the year forty-four in-patients were received. Dr. Griffith pleads earnestly in his annual letter for a clerical colleague, and says that for the last nine months before writing he had had no opportunity of partaking of the Holy Communion.

PERSIA MISSION.

Persia, though one of the youngest of the Society's Missions, was among the first countries thought of by the Committee, and was mentioned in each of the first two Annual Reports. Henry Martyn stayed ten months in the country in 1811. Since 1834 an American Mission has laboured with much blessing among the Nestorian Christians. The Archbishop of Canterbury's Assyrian Mission is also partly within the Persian Kingdom. In 1869 the Rev. R. Bruce, of the C.M.S., visited Persia on his way back to India, and, finding the Mohammedans of Ispahan and its neighbourhood not unwilling to discuss religious subjects, he took up his abode at Julfa, and gathered round him some few of these and a considerable number of Armenian Christians who were dissatisfied with their corrupt form of worship. He also opened schools, &c. In 1875 the Society adopted his work as one of its Missions. A medical missionary was sent out in 1879; and ladies were added to the staff in 1891. Kerman was occupied in 1897; Yezd in 1898; and Shiraz in 1900.

At first sight it may appear strange that such a far greater measure of success should be granted to missionaries labouring in Persia than to those in other Mohammedan lands where the Society is at work, and that the number of adult baptisms (thirteen in 1905) should be in excess of those in Egypt, Palestine, and Turkish Arabia combined. At least a partial explanation is found in the fact that the Persian Government, though Mohammedan, is secular and not religious: indeed, rigid Shiahs regard it as sacrilegious, believing that secular as well as religious authority should be in the hands of the representatives of the Imams as successors of Ali. Hence there is a permanent, though not always avowed, opposition between the secular government and the religious authorities, and, as the Rev. N. Malcolm has pointed out, sometimes governors are glad of the presence in their towns of any element that can be used as a set-off to the fanaticism of the mullahs. A medical mission, or even, under some circumstances, successful school work, may therefore receive the support of a governor who is himself a thorough Mohammedan, even though both hospital and school are connected with the open preaching of the Gospel. Instances have been known in which the medical work has transformed the hostility even of the mullahs into something which is certainly akin to friendliness towards the Christian. In the account which follows of the work of the Mission during 1905 there will be found several references to the kindly spirit towards the missionaries manifested at some of the stations by the ruling and influential classes of the land.

Relation between religious and secular authorities.

Four of the year's recruits have been assigned to the Persia Mission, viz., the Rev. Norman Veitch Scorer, B.A., Pembroke College, Cambridge, and Ridley Hall, Curate of St. John the Evangelist, Park, Sheffield; Mr. Harold Trevor Marrable, B.A., M.B., B.Ch., B.A.O., Trinity College, Dublin; Miss Martha Elizabeth Seton Adamson, of Old Ford, and Miss Ethel Frances Phillips, of Bromley, Kent, two qualified nurses, who also received training under the Society at The Willows and The Olives respectively. Miss Adamson is a sister of Mrs. S. Gould, of the Palestine Mission.

Reference has been made in past Reports (1903–4, page 157; and 1904–5, page 155) to the refusal of the authorities to allow the importation of the Scriptures into Persia. Matters at length went so far as the confiscation in the Bushire custom-house of a Persian Bible found among the personal effects of one of the missionaries, and it was felt that such action called for official interference. The British Minister, Sir Arthur Hardinge, kindly interposed, and not only procured the restoration of the confiscated volume, but also the admission of the three cases of deported Bibles mentioned in last year's Report, after a delay of nearly as many years. He obtained, moreover, the issue of an order that copies of the Scriptures in any language, the property of travellers entering the country, were not to be interfered with.

The veteran Bishop Stuart, who joined the staff of the Society fifty-six years ago, had his head quarters at Ispahan. In the spring of 1905 he went to Yezd and Kerman, staying for some weeks at each place, and in October he left for Australia. En route he visited Shiraz, and several of the Society's stations in India, notably Agra, where he and French opened St. John's College, in 1851, and he also spent a few days in Ceylon.

Julfa.

The importance of JULFA as a centre of effort among Persians is rapidly passing away with the increasing opportunities which open before the missionaries of residence and work in Ispahan, three miles distant, of which Julfa is a suburb. The removal of the men's hospital and the Persian boys' school, which were recorded last year, materially affected the attendance at the Persian Services, which, as well as the English Services, were conducted by Bishop Stuart, with the help first of the Rev. H. B. Liddell and then of the Rev. W. H. Walker. The Rev. M. George was responsible for the Armenian Services. A good deal of attention was devoted to the Armenian boys' Sunday-school which had over 100 pupils, while in that for girls, the head class, composed of young women between the ages of sixteen and twenty-six, had forty members instead of ten as in 1904. The Armenian Boys' School, of which Mr. C. M. Johannes is the head master, was in a flourishing condition, due no doubt in some measure to the well-attended weekly prayer meeting held for the teachers by the Rev. C. H. Stileman, the Secretary of the Mission, after his return from Shiraz in June. As they had anticipated, Miss E. J. Buncher and Miss M. Ward, who shared the work of the Armenian Girls' School, felt the effect of the opening of the Gregorian Kindergarten School, which was referred to in last year's Report (page 156), and of some Roman Catholic schools. The Gregorian priests appealed to their congregations to send their children to their own schools, and also visited the parents of many of those who attended the Society's school, with the result that when the autumn term commenced the number of girls was less than half what it had been a few months before. The admission of a good many infants brought the numbers up again to 175 as compared with 325 in 1904. The Sowers' Band was a means of arousing interest in missionary work, and some of the children took what they called 'blessing bags,' the idea being suggested by a story which had been read to them. One of the elder Persian girls asked for baptism, and her general conduct, as well as her anxiety for her younger sister's salvation, showed that she was genuine in her desire.

'Blessing bags.'

The Women's Hospital was still confined to its cramped quarters in Julfa, the new buildings in Ispahan not being ready for occupation. There were often forty in-patients, though the beds numbered eighteen only, and the people had to be accommodated on the floor. In the spring even floor space failed, and the out-patients' waiting room had to be utilized as a ward. With about three major or minor operations a day, and an average of 1,700 visits of out-patients a month during the busiest part of the year, Dr. Emmeline M. Stuart found the work more than she could properly manage, especially as she was often called to visit patients in their own homes, at a distance of two or three miles from each other. The arrival of Dr. Catherine M. Ironside at the end of May, 1905, was consequently a relief, for, although the latter had to spend much of her time in studying the language, she was able to attend to many of the Armenian patients. Among the inmates of the hospital were some children of converts, and Miss E. Procter, a trained nurse, says that the strong faith of their parents in prayer showed how much some of the women had grown in grace. She gives one instance :—

Women's Hospital.

Strong faith in prayer.

> Little Ibrahim, whose mother and grandmother were brought to Christ when in hospital, was very ill with broncho-pneumonia; they could not bring him to us, and so he had to be treated at home. One night he was very ill: Dr. Emmeline Stuart was in Julfa, and they had no one to send for her. The poor granny who was looking after him said she felt sure he could not live. She nearly broke down, and, as she said, was 'just going out to weep for him,' when she remembered our Master's words to 'pray.' So once more she lifted up her heart in prayer that He would spare the little one. God answered that prayer, and when I went to see him the next day he was very, very weak, but the crisis had passed, and now he is almost well again. This dear woman is one of the very brightest converts, and has been the means of leading one of her neighbours to Christ, and of interesting many more. Whenever we visit her there is always a little company gathered together to hear the Word.

Another of the patients in the children's ward was a bright boy from the Bakhtiari country who was a capital reader and learnt nearly all the Gospel stories. A former patient, named Saltanat, once an opium-smoker, whose home was in a town three days' journey from Julfa, was baptized. She had asked to be received into the visible Church before she left the hospital in 1904, but it was then felt that she had not been sufficiently tested. In the summer she returned, and it was found that she had taught her husband all she knew. She brought him to Dr. D. W. Carr to be cured of the opium habit, as she herself had been; he proved to be dying, but before the end came he seemed to have found salvation through Christ. There was other fruit of the work in the hospital carried on by the doctors and nurse and also by Miss Buncher and Miss A. P. S. Braine-Hartnell. The last named, who was responsible for the general Work among Women, reports the baptism of three adults in the spring, and of six children, each of the latter having at least one Christian parent.

Literary Work.

The Rev. C. H. Stileman continued the translation of the Persian Prayer-book, and revised those portions which were already complete. In this work he had the assistance of Mirza Asadullah, who was Dr. Bruce's helper in the translation of the Persian Bible.

Ispahan.

The staff of the Society at ISPAHAN during the whole or part of the year consisted of Bishop Stuart, the Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Walker, the Rev. H. B. Liddell, who was transferred in the spring to Kerman, Dr. and Mrs. D. W. Carr, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Allinson, Mr. S. H. Biddlecombe, Miss H. McKim, of the Canadian C.M.S., a trained nurse, and Miss A. I. Stuart. The removal of the Men's Hospital from Julfa in the autumn of 1904 fully justified the hopes which had been entertained, while the misgivings which had been felt happily proved to be groundless. The number of in-patients increased by 23 per cent., although only two-thirds of the new buildings were available for use; many more people of the upper classes were reached, and the private wards were almost always full, while in the summer applicants had to wait their turn for admission; and there was greater efficiency in the medical work. Moreover, the new and larger buildings did not involve any increased financial burden upon the Society, for in spite of there being some considerable and unexpected expenses, the funds, swollen as they were by subscriptions from a number of Mohammedans, proved sufficient to meet them. Among the patients was an old gentleman, a rûzeh-khan, i.e., one who at special seasons recites the story of the death of Imam Husein to assembled crowds. Many of the mullahs and wealthy merchants of the town visited him in the hospital, and thus were brought into touch with the missionaries. Every Sunday morning a service was held in one of the wards, and was attended by from sixty to twice that number of men, while from ten to thirty women would be in an adjoining room where they could hear what was said. These women were not patients, but the wives and sisters of men in the private wards. Mr. Biddlecombe, who took part in the evangelistic work among the patients, in which Mr. Walker also rendered much assistance, set on foot a Scripture Union and formed a missionary band among the assistants at the hospital, both of which organizations came to include a number of persons unconnected with the medical mission.

Persian Boys' School.

In consequence of the closing of two of the city schools in the summer of 1904 by order of the Government, the attendance at the Persian Boys' School, which was superintended by Mr. H. W. Allinson, rose by the beginning of the year under review to seventy-five. All went well until just before the summer vacation, when two men appeared on the scene one day on behalf of the chief mullah and took the names of all the boys present. The Governor assured the Consul-General, to whom complaint was made, that no trouble would follow, but the incident caused the attendance to fall at once to twenty. After the holidays the number of pupils at first was but small, but it gradually increased, and by the end of the year there were sixty names on the rolls. At the public distribution of prizes in the spring of 1905 the chair was taken by H.H. Prince Sultan Mahmoud Mirza, who delivered the rewards to the successful pupils.

Opposition by the chief mullah.

Women's Work.

Among the methods adopted by Miss Stuart in the Work among Women were visiting the Mohammedans in their homes and receiving them at the mission-house. Two hours was quite a moderate time for a visitor to stay, but, as each lady always brought eight or ten people with her, the length of the visit was an advantage as affording opportunities for a fairly thorough presentation of the Gospel. Once a week a meeting of an evangelistic and social character was held, lasting some three hours. From forty to seventy persons were usually present, but at one time the attendance fell to twenty in consequence of the most powerful mujtehid (chief mullah) in the town issuing an order that no woman was to come to the meetings, and stating that if any were seen to do so they would have their chadurs (veils) torn off and be taken bare-headed to the mujtehid's house. After a time, however, the order was forgotten and disregarded. These meetings resulted in some women accepting Christ and confessing Him in baptism, and in others becoming convinced of the truth, though they were prevented by the opposition of their relatives from taking that decisive step. A class for converts was commenced by Mr. Walker, who expresses his thankfulness for their zeal concerning Sunday observance. Some of the people are compelled to work on that day, but they do their best to have prayers in their own homes, and these all keep Friday as a holy day instead of Sunday. Most of Mr. Walker's time was occupied in receiving inquirers at his own house. He found among them a more intelligent grasp of the fundamental differences between Christianity and Mohammedanism than used to be customary, while in many cases there was an 'undercurrent of real earnestness.' One of those who visited him frequently had been his pupil in Kerman. Mr. Walker writes of this man:—

'A well near the sea.'

> He is known at his work as a reader of the Scriptures, for he often carries his Testament with him, and his master, who is not at all unfriendly in his disposition towards him, said to him, 'Now you have dug a well near the sea.' The expression arose from the fact that he left his comfortable quarters some distance away and took a tiny room opposite to my house in order that he might be near and able to run in at any time, and especially in the evening after his work.

From time to time the missionaries visited places in the surrounding country. Bishop Stuart went to Najifabad, and there held daily crowded meetings and had full services on the Sunday, and Dr. Emmeline Stuart and her sister Miss Marie Stuart spent their holiday at a place called Nain, three days' journey from Julfa, where they were joined by the Rev. and Mrs. A. K. Boyland. The people thronged round for medical treatment, and the doctor's rest was rather spoilt by having to minister to more than 800 patients. A number of Armenian and Persian villages were visited by Miss Buncher, who describes the ignorance of the Armenian Christians whom she met as 'simply appalling.' They were anxious to learn, but the Julfa people are great stay-at-homes, and cannot be induced to remain in the villages as teachers for any length of time. Miss Buncher was warmly welcomed in the Persian villages, but the people could not understand why it was impossible for her to stay with them. One woman remarked, 'What can we learn in one or two lessons? If this is all true why did you not come sooner, and now that you have come why can't you stay?' And another, pointing to several villages in the distance, exclaimed, 'Look over there! No one in those places has ever heard what you now tell us.' An interesting illustration occurred of the openings for work in the villages, and of the manner in which bread cast upon the waters is sometimes found after many days. In 1897 the Rev. W. A. Rice stayed in a Persian town in the Ispahan district, and eight years later a woman came to the hospital at Julfa saying that a few months after Mr. Rice's departure her husband had died a Christian having made her promise to go as soon as she could to get further teaching. This woman reported, moreover, that in the same town there were fifteen other persons who were practically believers in Christ. At Natanz, a place in the mountains, eighty miles from Ispahan, Mr. and Mrs. Allinson were kindly received by the governor, who insisted upon their being his guests, and treated them with generous hospitality. Although the town is regarded as a stronghold of Mohammedanism, and the majority of the people are sayyids, the missionaries found open doors on every hand, and the governor himself offered to provide a house and garden if they would stay and commence a school.

There were important openings also in the Bakhtiari country. A request was received in the autumn for a doctor to go to Shalamzar to see a sister of the chief, and in response Dr. Catherine Ironside set off with Miss Braine-Hartnell. The slow recovery of the patient lengthened the time of their sojourn at the place to five weeks, during which period they received an 'almost perpetual stream of visitors,' and treated several patients besides the woman to whom they had been called. From Shalamzar they twice went to a village, sixteen miles off, called Ardel, where the chief's eldest daughter, who was seriously ill, was happily restored to health, and the people were ready to listen to the Gospel. On every hand the missionaries found a keen desire for education. Miss Braine-Hartnell writes:—

An 'almost perpetual stream of visitors.'

> I had a very definite request to find a lady who would come and live among them, and teach them, not only English, which they are very anxious to learn, but the Gospel. The lady said, 'I want to know the teaching of Jesus.' They also promised the means to pay for her support. Another lady pressed me to find her an English teacher, and when I said it would be conditional on her teaching the Gospel also, she agreed, and replied that she read the Gospel herself. Several relatives were sitting by, and made no objection. There is a grand field, too, for the education of boys. We met with some fine lads, all of them keen for education, but they have no one to give them the best. If they do not get the best, they will have the second rate, and study French, and have access to books that are written in that language.

Dr. Carr and Mr. Biddlecombe also spent a few weeks among the Bakhtiaris.

YEZD.

Mr. and Mrs. H. White, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Clifton, Miss J. Biggs, Miss A. M. Macklin, a trained nurse, and Dr. Lucy S. Molony, were joined at YEZD early in the year by the Rev. and Mrs. A. K. Boyland, in May by Miss E. A. Thomas, a trained nurse, and in December by Miss K. E. Mothersole, who then returned from her visit to England on medical certificate. The strength of the staff when he reached the town in the spring of 1905 caused much thankfulness to Bishop Stuart, for the last time he was there, in 1896, Yezd had been unvisited by a missionary, saving on one occasion when the Rev. H. Carless went to the town in the course of one of his itinerations. The

Yezd.

Services were conducted in the chapel, constructed in part of an old caravanserai by Mr. Boyland, those in Persian on Sunday mornings being specially well attended by men and boys, while a number of women and girls assembled behind a muslin screen which extended the length of the chapel, where they were able to see and hear without themselves being seen. Ten candidates were confirmed, and the character of most of the converts was good, though some bond of union was needed among them. Mr. Boyland endeavoured to supply this by asking the men to meet together once a week for Bible-study and prayer.

Schools.

Notwithstanding the raising of the fees at the Boys' School, those of some of the lads being advanced to four times what they had previously paid, and in spite of the fact that there are other schools in the town at which free education is given, the number of pupils at the mission-school increased considerably. Indeed, the fees paid, combined with the subscriptions received locally and from home, were sufficient to enable Mr. Boyland to provide some needed furniture and to dispense with part of the grant made by the Society. Towards the end of the year trouble which threatened to be serious arose through the expulsion of a youth of eighteen years of age. He complained to the people of the town and made false statements about the school. One of the mullahs then took up the matter, and, preaching in the mosque, said that any boy attending the school was to be beaten until nearly dead: he also denounced Europeans generally. This came to the ears of the British Consul, and at his request the school was closed temporarily while representations were made to the authorities. Eventually a proclamation was posted up by the Governor's orders to the effect that anyone interfering with the school or the boys attending it would be punished. From February, 1905, when Miss M. E. Brighty left on furlough, until December, when Miss Mothersole returned from England, the superintendence of the Parsee Girls' School was in the hands of Mrs. Boyland. The average attendance was about thirty, and the interest taken in the Bible lessons appeared to deepen considerably. Mrs. Boyland also carried on a meeting for Mohammedan women in her own house, and gave individual teaching to several inquirers. Dr. H. White, who was in charge of the Medical Work, describes 1905 as 'the very best year in every sense of the word' he had ever had at Yezd. The number of in-patients exceeded 600, and was largely in excess of that in the previous year, when however the hospital was closed for four months, and 25,000 visits of out-patients were registered. Indeed the wards were overcrowded, and it became necessary to contemplate building a new hospital, for which a suitable site was presented by the son of Mr. Mihriban Goodan, the Parsi gentleman who some years ago gave to the Mission a large caravanserai and house for the purposes of the medical work (see Annual Report 1899-1900, page 172). A state visit was paid to the hospital on Christmas Day by the Prince-Governor of Yezd, who gave a donation to the funds, and afterwards wrote to the Prime Minister in praise of the work. The increasing confidence of the people in the doctors was shown by the fact that bad accident cases were usually brought to the hospital at once instead of the sufferers being first kept at home for days while ink, fat, indigo, oil, &c., were rubbed in, and sheep's lungs and warm skins of animals were applied. In the medical, and, indeed, in the spiritual side of the work as well, Dr. White had the assistance of Dr. Lucy Molony, and Misses Macklin and Thomas, while Mr. Clifton and Miss Biggs carried on evangelistic work among the patients. Eager attention was given by the people to the words of life, and there were several cases in which it was clear that this was caused by something more than idle curiosity. A shepherd, who for the first few weeks of his stay in hospital was very surly and grumbled at everything, gradually became a changed man, so that it was a pleasure to do anything for him; and a yet deeper work appeared to be accomplished in the heart of a certain young lad. Miss Macklin writes:—

Medical Work.

State visit by the Prince-Governor.

A young lad led to Christ.

He was only with us a short time, but he always listened attentively to the teaching and was grateful for all that was done for him. Some months elapsed and he was brought back to us in a very serious condition; we took him in, but from the first Dr. White gave no hope of recovery. All was done that could be to relieve his sufferings, which he bore very patiently. One day one of our assistants told me that he believed the lad had realized that Jesus Christ was his Saviour. I had a talk with him, and found such was indeed the case. His friends soon after this took him home. He did not want to leave us, but consented as his mother so much wished it. I told him that I thought God had a little work for him to do before He took him home to Heaven, and that was to let his father and mother know of the great joy that was in his heart, and to tell them about Jesus Christ our Saviour. I went to see him and found him very weak, but he whispered to me, 'I have told father and mother all.' A few days after this God took him.

I promised the lad that after his death I would go and teach his mother, and I have been several times. His mother was out one day when I called, and a neighbour called me into her house and soon fetched a number of women, saying it was not good that I should see so few. After a short chat they asked me if I had not brought the Book. Of course, I soon produced it out my pocket and had a nice reading with them, to which they listened attentively.

'The most difficult part will be the clothes.'

Some of the patients had strange ideas, as, for instance, a man from one of the villages, who after being taught for three weeks, said that he knew Jesus Christ was his Saviour, and added, 'I want to be a Christian, but the most difficult part will be the clothes. Is it necessary for me to wear the same as you?' The work at the hospital included the training of three girls as nurses, one of whom asked for baptism. The various mission agencies were instrumental in leading a good number of persons to come forward as inquirers. Several of them proved unworthy, but some were baptized, including a carpenter, who first heard the Gospel at one of the services, and a girl who was employed as servant at the hospital. The dervish who was baptized in 1904 (see last year's Report, page 160) told Mr. Boyland that he had two men prepared to be baptized, whom he wished to take to Ispahan for that purpose, and that six others were reading with him, who he hoped would be ready later.

There were openings for far more itinerating work than it was possible for the missionaries to accomplish with so many pressing duties at Yezd itself. Dr. Lucy Molony and Miss Biggs spent ten days at a village which is the fashionable resort of the wealthy merchants of the town, and also had a couple of months in the hills treating a number of patients at Sanej and Dehbala, while Dr. White visited several towns and villages, in which the people flocked to him for medicine. A colonel in the army, who came to the hospital for treatment to enable him to break off the habit of opium-smoking, gave the doctor a pressing invitation to go to his village, and the hereditary governor of Shahababak, a large district seven days' journey from Yezd, has for many years been begging for a visit.

KERMAN.

Kerman.

The missionaries at KERMAN at the beginning of 1905 were Dr. and Mrs. G. E. Dodson, Miss M. McClure, Miss E. Skirrow, and Dr. Winifred A. Westlake, and they were joined early in the summer by the Rev. H. B. Liddell, transferred from Ispahan. Prior to the arrival of the last named the addresses at the Persian Services, which were held in the hospital on Sunday mornings, were shared by three Persian converts, one of whom, a former pupil of the Rev. W. H. Walker, also showed his earnestness by writing to a friend once a week urging him not to forsake the truth as it is in Christ. These services were largely attended by others besides the patients. Bishop Stuart confirmed a Persian and a Jewish convert when he was at the station in the spring of the year under review. In September, for the fourth time in a few years, the Boys' School, which had been closed when the Rev. C. H. Stileman left Kerman twelve months before, was reopened by Mr. Liddell. At first he had but two pupils, but the numbers soon began to rise, and in a couple of months there were twenty-five names on the rolls and an average attendance of about seventeen. Both Dr. Dodson and Dr. Winifred Westlake were laid aside for some weeks by typhoid fever, and the Medical Work naturally suffered in consequence. Miss McClure, who laboured among the patients, also carried on the Work among Women, in which she had Miss Skirrow as her colleague. The weekly 'At Home' continued to attract a good number of women, and very few ever made any excuse in order to leave before the address. On the contrary the absence of bigotry among the people, which struck Mr. Liddell as in strong contrast to what he had witnessed at Ispahan, was shown in the remark which was frequently made: 'Oh! Khanum, it will be late this evening before you finish if you do not begin to preach soon: please begin quickly, for we have a long distance to go.' Visits were paid by Miss Skirrow to the governor's wife and many other ladies of the upper classes, and she also went weekly to several carpet factories, where she held meetings for the work-people. During the year Miss McClure commenced to hold meetings in a caravanserai in which for some time previously she had been visiting a couple of convalescent cholera patients. Whenever she went she used to find a few women gathered together for a talk, so when the patients had fully recovered and she could no longer make visiting them a pretext for going, she said, 'If you would like me to, I will come this day next week and bring my "Book" and read to you.' The owner of the house at once expressed her pleasure at the prospect and invited a number of women to meet Miss McClure. Thus in time a weekly meeting was established at which on one occasion twenty-five persons were present.

'At Homes.'

Meetings in a caravanserai.

The ill-health of the missionaries prevented much being accomplished in the district, excepting during their so-called holidays. Dr. Dodson spent some time at a village named Jupar, and there twice a week gave medical treatment to the people who came to him. He and Miss McClure also went frequently to see a lady, of whom the latter writes:—

> She is an educated lady with comfortable means, and a person who evidently has been for years desirous of serving God in sincerity and truth. She told me that four years ago, she decided to 'leave the world entirely' and live a secluded life—never to marry, never to go out of her house nor have her friends in to see her—in order that she might please God, and be entirely for Him. She did not even eat ordinary food, but lived very simply. She informed me that the 'Word of God' (meaning the Koran) was her meat and drink. At first she was very ill, but by the time she was able to sit up a little she was intensely interested in the Gospel of Jesus Christ, of Whom, and His love, I had tried to tell her. She very soon read the four Gospels through most eagerly, and each time I went to see her she had some question to ask. At times she seemed really perplexed as to whether she ought to give the first place in her worship to the Prophet Mohammed or to Jesus Christ, and she would often say in a most pensive way, 'I think what you say is true, Khanum, and Jesus Christ must be the Son of God: if so, He must have first place, before our Prophet,' and then again she would fall into doubt. I gave her a New Testament, and have promised her a copy of the whole Bible.

'Christ must have the first place before our Prophet.'

Dr. Winifred Westlake, too, had many opportunities of speaking to the women of Qait-ul-Arab, the village where she resided during her convalescence. She found that several of the people where addicted to opium-smoking, a vice which is extremely prevalent in Kerman.

SHIRAZ.

Shiraz. The Rev. C. H. Stileman, who remained at SHIRAZ until he was relieved by the arrival of the Rev. and Mrs. N. Malcolm from England in May, 1905, was able before his departure to secure premises for the mission-station inside the city gate instead of those about half a mile away which had been previously used. The school, which had been almost emptied of pupils through the hostile action of the authorities at the end of 1904 (see last year's Report, page 164), gradually recovered under Mr. Malcolm's care, and in December, 1905, there were twenty-five boys in fairly regular attendance. A public speech-day was held at which the brother-in-law of the Prince-Governor was present. Mr. Malcolm explained his views concerning the teaching of the Bible, prayers, fees, &c., and all the Persian guests were most cordial. By an ingenious arrangement the schoolroom was transformed into a chapel on Sundays, and about twenty persons were generally present at the Persian services. Mrs. Malcolm carried on a little medical work, and her husband from time to time had interesting conversations with the Shiraz mullahs and their students, who came to his house to the number of sixteen or more at a time. When Bishop Stuart was at the station in the autumn a number of these people assembled in the mission-house at their own request to discuss a point of Christian doctrine. All were most amicable, and they concluded by asking that a similar meeting might be held weekly.

BENGAL MISSION.

Lutheran missionaries under the S.P.C.K. laboured in South India in the eighteenth century, and many thousands of converts were baptized; but the Missions, after the death of Schwartz and other leaders, languished, and at length only a few Christians remained. For some years prior to the renewal of the East India Company's charter in 1813 no missionaries were allowed to reside within the British Dominions, and Carey, the famous Baptist missionary, and his companions had to take refuge in the Danish settlements. Among the Government chaplains, however, there were men like Brown, Buchanan, Henry Martyn, Corrie, and Thomason, who did what they could to prepare the way for future workers. The C.M.S. had an important share in the establishment of the Bishopric of Calcutta in 1814, by its publication of Claudius Buchanan's work on the subject; and it granted the first Bishop, Dr. Middleton, £5,000 towards the cost of Bishop's College. His successors have been: Bishops Heber (1822), James (1826), Turner (1829), Daniel Wilson (1832), Cotton (1858), Milman (1867), Johnson (1876), Welldon (1898), Copleston (1902).

Before India was open to missionaries, a Corresponding Committee of the C.M.S. was formed at Calcutta, of which the above-named chaplains and several influential laymen were members. Two English missionaries were sent to Calcutta in 1816; Burdwan was occupied in 1817; Krishnagar (Nadiya) in 1831; and Bhagalpur in 1850. Great interest was aroused by a remarkable movement in the Nadiya district in 1838, when some 3,000 persons forsook Heathenism, and on one occasion 900 were baptized in the presence of Bishop Daniel Wilson. Work among the Santals, an aboriginal tribe in Bengal, was begun at Hiranpur in 1860; Taljhari was occupied in 1863; Godda in 1872; and Bhagaya and Barharwa in 1878.

Growth of C.M.S. work in India in 30 years.

THE tour of their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales in India naturally directs the thoughts of students of Foreign Missions to the progress in the Christianization of our great Eastern Dependency made since the visit of the King to it as Prince of Wales in 1875. During the intervening years the Indian communicants in connexion with the Society have advanced from 16,059 to 42,723, the Indian clergy from 97 to 162, and the Indian lay agents from 1,638 to 3,182. The increase in the Indian Christian community has, of course, been far greater than that indicated by the above figures, and there is every reason to hope that in the immediate future a further large increase will take place. For from many different parts of India, from the Khassia Hills of Assam, from Poona, from Berar, from Lucknow, from the Sialkot district of the Punjab, and, as will be seen from the following chapters of this Report, from several of the Society's stations, come tidings of an apparently real and deep revival. If the spiritual life of the Indian Christians is quickened the result will soon appear in large ingatherings from among the Heathen.

While the number of Indian Christians has grown in a marked degree of late years it is still exceedingly small compared with the vast population amid which it exists, and cases which are reported from time to time of cruelty committed in the name of religion serve to strengthen the plea which is furnished by the right of all men to have the Gospel of love proclaimed to them. The case of suttee mentioned in last year's Report (page 185) as occurring in Behar in 1904 was succeeded in 1905 by similar instances of the self-immolation of Hindu widows on their husband's funeral-pyres in the neighbourhood of Ajmere and in Oudh. Cases of a different form of cruelty are described in the following letter of a correspondent of the North India C.M. Gleaner:—

The pathetic lot of two Hindu boys.

We were visiting in a house, and noticed among its many inhabitants one little boy of about seven looking the picture of matured misery, sitting immovably in one place. While we were speaking another and yet younger lad, evidently a brother, went up to his side, and both sat like statues of grief, so haunting was the misery of their faces. We asked what caused it. 'Oh, the horrible wickedness! the vile sinners they must have been in a former birth to have brought such disaster as they have!' was what greeted us. Then we were told what had occurred. Their father used to work for half the year some long distance away, leaving his wife and children in his parents' house, and the other six months was at home. One of these times he never returned, and from that day to this has not been heard of; they do not know if he is dead or alive. The young wife died soon after of grief, leaving a girl and these two boys. All was charged against the poor children: they were kicked about, neglected, half-starved, always kept under the sense of some mysterious former birth and heinous sin committed by them, for which this punishment had come. The girl soon died under it, and, with a fist shaken in their faces, these poor desolate little boys were again told, 'These must die, too, the sinners,' and in patient, plaintive sorrow they both shivered, but never spoke. They were not allowed to play, yet daily saw the other boys doing so; and when there was a fair the others were all excitement to go to it, and came back laden with sweets, but none were given to those two.

When we went again the younger was ill. One woman mockingly asked if he would eat rice; he shook his head in pathetic negative; then she said, 'Will you have milk?' and when he a little eagerly responded, she just laughed and gave him none: he has not died yet, though, not yet! We offered to take them and bring them up ourselves if they would give us them, but of course they would not; to kill them with slow cruelty they think quite justifiable, but never to break their caste. We even offered to place them with a Hindu woman whom we know belonging to their own caste, just that they might know some pitiful attempt at love in their lives; but no! 'They must die, that is what they must do,' is all we can get from them, and we think they will, from sheer lack of love and hope.

The same course has been carried out in the case of a newly-born infant quite near us. Ten days after its birth the mother died; the poor mite was cursed from that moment, accused of sin in a former birth, and therefore of having killed its mother. 'Die, can't you!' was the one phrase we heard. They hardly ever fed it, and though it made a noble struggle for life, the little thing has succumbed at last, to their great joy. This is the Hinduism we are told not to disturb, that is good enough for Hindus.

The Hinduism that is 'good enough' for Hindus.

The sequel in the case of the two little brothers is unsatisfactory. For several times we have been denied entrance there by some young men of the family, but getting in the last time we looked for the boys in vain, and asking about them were told they had been taken to some of their relatives and are well; but we are not allowed to know their whereabouts, and our personal feeling is they are both dead. But one is helpless to discover the truth in such matters.

In the work of the evangelization of India much may be looked for from the movement which is springing up for the formation of a National Missionary Society of India, controlled by Indians, aided at first by the advice of a few foreign missionaries, employing Indian agents, and supported by the money of Indians. Concerning this movement the Rev. W. E. S. Holland, of Allahabad, wrote in August, 1905 :— The National Missionary Society of India.

The movement originated in South India (see Annual Reports, 1903–4, page 287; 1904–5, pages 287, 288), but has spread with the greatest enthusiasm all over the land, and is now on the way to a strong beginning. At present, for reasons familiar to every Indian missionary, chiefly perhaps subordinate position, very few of the earnest Indian graduates and leading young men are willing to enter missionary service. But already many have expressed their readiness to enter such a body, and others have said that had there been such a movement when they were young they would have entered it. One young Indian has just returned from Cambridge, and is about to commence practice as a barrister. His father was asked whether he would allow his son to join the movement. He said, 'Yes.' Would he support his son in it, providing his whole maintenance? 'Yes.' Would he, if for any reason his son could not do as he hoped, undertake to support some one else as his representative? 'Yes.'

The movement has re-acted as a spiritual force, carrying with it real revival wherever it has gone—as the missionary spirit ever must. A committee for advice is being formed, including all the leading Indian Christians from all over India, and some of the most trusted missionaries. Their investigations have revealed one striking fact, that even assuming every district where there is a missionary is being reached, the virgin districts of India, as yet totally unreached, contain a population of over 100,000,000, or a third of the whole. They will first of all open these tracts, and then bit by bit hope to take over the existing Missions from the foreign societies, maintaining their present denominational lines—though this latter part of their programme is, of course, yet in the distant future. Virgin districts.

The National Missionary Society of India appears likely to derive strength, as it has certainly acquired additional importance, from what is known as the Swadeshi (own country) movement. It should be explained that during the year under review a new province, called Eastern Bengal and Assam, was formed by the addition to Assam of fifteen districts belonging to Eastern Bengal, and was placed under a Lieut.-Governor with a Legislative Council of fifteen members. This step was made the pretext for much agitation, which originally took the form of a boycot of English goods with a view to the encouragement of home industries. The patriotic feelings aroused and stimulated by this movement place the Indian in a position in some senses superior to that of the European, and it seems probable that in the future the Indian evangelist will not only have that advantage over his European confrère which appertains to his greater acquaintance with the workings of the Oriental mind and with Oriental imagery, but also that which arises from the higher estimation in which he is held by Indians. On this point the Rev. J. Qalandar, tutor of the Divinity College, Allahabad, writes :— The Swadeshi movement.

An Indian Christian now has a great opening before him. The fact of his being a Native now places him in a position to present Christianity to his countrymen with an ease and facility unexperienced before. At a time when patriotism reigns supreme in the minds of the Indians, it is absolutely necessary for the furtherance of the Gospel in this land that the native element in missionary work should receive due recognition. To insist upon this is not to overlook or under-value the policy of the missionary societies in which the native element has already a place—though subordinate—but to ask for fresh and better opportunities where the latent powers of an Indian mind can come into full play.

Death of the Rev. C. Bomwetsch.

The Rev. Christian Bomwetsch, who laboured for more than thirty years as a C.M.S. missionary in North India, passed away in Calcutta on November 2nd, 1905. He went out to Santipur in 1845, and seven months after his arrival in Bengal he was able to preach in the vernacular to a Bengali congregation. He was also a competent scholar in both Greek and Sanscrit. It is said that his knowledge of the latter was so thorough that it was no uncommon thing for pundits to consult him on points of interpretation of the sacred books. In 1854, after his first furlough in Europe, he returned to India as Principal of the Training Institution, Santipur. He was subsequently engaged in evangelistic work in Calcutta. While in charge of the church in Cornwallis Square, he was instrumental in the conversion and eventual baptism (in 1862) of several brothers and their wives and children, members of the Dutt family. In 1864 he translated and published one of the Gospels in Bengali, and for a number of years afterwards devoted most of his leisure to the work of translating the whole of the New Testament into Bengali. He was placed on the retired list in 1877, but remained in Calcutta, and eight years later published his translation of the New Testament. For many years he worked steadily at revision.

Reinforcements.

The Mission has been reinforced by the following:—the Rev. and Mrs. Charles George Monro, the former a B.A., M.B., B.C., Gonville and Caius College, Cambridge, who since 1893 has worked in the Mission established at Ranaghat by his father, Mr. James Monro, and which was taken over on January 1st, 1906, by the Society; the Rev. Max Gerson, of Islington College; the Rev. Henry Robert Holmes, M.A., Th.L., Melbourne University, of the Victorian Association, and Mrs. Holmes, M.A., Sydney University; and Miss Rosamond Agnes Brown, also since 1893 of the Ranaghat Mission. On the other hand the Rev. and Mrs. A. Le Feuvre and the Rev. L. K. Morton have been transferred to the United Provinces Mission, and the Committee have accepted the resignation, on medical grounds, of Miss V. Macfarlane.

The following are the members of the Calcutta Corresponding Committee:—The Bishop of Calcutta, Mr. C. G. H. Allen, Mr. J. H. Bernard, I.C.S., Hon. J. H. Bourdillon, the Rev. E. T. Butler, Mr. A. F. Cox, Mr. R. E. Currie, Mr. J. C. Dutt, the Rev. A. G. Lockett, Mr. F. E. Pargiter, Colonel Ranking, and the Acting-Secretary, the Rev. E. T. Sandys.

I. CALCUTTA AND BURDWAN.

CALCUTTA.

Calcutta. Old Church.

THE Rev. S. H. Clark was in charge of the work connected with the Old Church, CALCUTTA. The building had a narrow escape from destruction by fire in January, 1906, for a conflagration broke out in some large storehouses adjoining the Society's head quarters in Mission Row, close to the Church. The Rev. E. T. Sandys and his family at first were in great peril, but they were wonderfully preserved, for the wind shifted and the fire was turned aside.

Divinity School.

The foundation stone of the new buildings for the Divinity School, of which the Rev. C. Grant was Acting-Principal, was laid at Cossipore by Mrs. W. H. Ball in March, 1905. During the year the students were accommodated at Ranaghat, where it was hoped the men would enjoy better health than they had at Kapasdanga in the previous year. Unhappily, however, these expectations were falsified, and it was seldom that all the students were able to be present at the lectures. Two of them completed their course and took up work under the Society, one at Kushtia and the other at Mankar. Mr. Grant, who handed over the charge of the Divinity School to the Rev. A. G. Lockett, the Principal, at the beginning of 1906, and took up his residence at Bollobhpur, mentions with thankfulness the fact that during the two years that he was alone at the school there was not a single instance of bad feeling or quarrelsomeness among the students.

College.

The students of the College did not meet with much success at the First Arts Examination in the spring of 1905, for of the twenty candidates who entered only three passed. This small proportion may have been due to the fact that when the College was first opened in 1903, only a few 'plucked' students could be persuaded to enter it, and most of them only for a few months and not a full course. Since then the institution has grown in popularity, and in the year under review, for the first time, the Principal, the Rev. R. F. Pearce, was in a position to refuse admission to such students, and was able to make up two good-sized classes of men reading for their full two years. At the end of the year the number of students was twenty-six, more than half of whom were Christians. The conduct of these men was good, and the large proportion of Christians among them probably had something to do with their quietness in the midst of the prevailing excitement aroused by the Swadeshi movement and the agitation against the so-called partition of Bengal, which made many of the Bengali students in the city unfit to attend to their work, or rebellious against the Christian teaching of mission-colleges. Mr. Pearce was able to keep in touch with some former Hindu students, one of them coming once a week from a distant suburb to read the Bible with him. He was cheered, too, by the zeal of several of the Christians. One was diligent in taking advantage of his train journeys to converse on religion with his fellow-passengers, and another, being invited by some Hindu relatives, who are owners of a press, to write articles and booklets on public questions of the day, utilized the opportunity of emphasizing the Christian standpoint on such matters. Two members of Mr. Pearce's household, both of them Christians, were carried off by the plague. Of the remaining domestics one was a Christian and the rest Mohammedans: all the latter fled the night after the deaths occurred, but the former bravely stuck to his post.

Boys' High School.

The Rev. A. F. Ealand had an anxious time at the Boys' High School, containing more than 300 pupils, in consequence of the abnormal amount of fever prevailing in Calcutta and of the plague. The boarders were kept in the compound for six weeks while the latter dire visitation was carrying off numbers all around, and every known precaution was taken, with the result that providentially none of the lads were attacked. For some reason, for which Mr. Ealand is at a loss, the examination results were as unexpectedly poor in 1905 as they had been good in the previous year: three of the eight boys sent up for the Entrance Examination of the Calcutta University succeeded in passing, two in the second division and one in the third. The athletic prowess of the pupils, however, was undiminished, for at the Calcutta sports, open to all Natives of Bengal, the boys and old boys carried off seventeen prizes, and one of the masters, himself an old boy, won two challenge cups. In cricket, hockey, and football, too, the school held its own with larger schools and colleges. Of the spiritual side of the work it is naturally difficult to speak with assurance, but it is a significant and gratifying fact that when inquiry was made as to the occupations of the 300 boys who have passed through the school during the last twenty-five years, those of 250 were ascertained, and it was found that nineteen were pastors or catechists, and twenty-four were teachers in mission-schools; in other words, one of every six was engaged as a missionary. A striking testimony to the value of educational work!

One old boy out of every six a missionary.

Girls' Boarding-school.

Both Miss A. M. Sampson, the Principal of the Girls' Boarding-school, who returned to her post after furlough at the end of 1904, and Miss H. C. Watney, speak in their annual letters of the revival among the girls which took place in January, 1905, and was described in last year's Report (p. 168). The latter says that a great deal of the seed then sown fell upon 'stony ground' and 'among thorns,' but that, nevertheless, it was evident, by the tenderness of their consciences and their greater readiness to acknowledge sin, that an abiding work had been accomplished in the hearts of some. Among the teachers, too, there was a real spirit of prayer, and instead of meeting merely once a week for united intercession, they assembled every evening and spent an hour in bringing the needs of their pupils before the Throne of Grace. Two of the children were baptized. One, a Brahmo girl, was brought to a decision during the special meetings in January, and afterwards witnessed bravely and clearly for her Saviour, refusing, when she visited her married Hindu sister, to even look at the image of Kali in her house. The other child baptized was the daughter of a Bengali gentleman, who himself had been led to Christ by his own son, a schoolboy in Lahore. His daughter asked his consent to her baptism after the January meetings, but he advised her to wait and make quite sure of herself. In the summer, however, she became seriously ill, and accordingly she was baptized. Special prayer is asked for three Brahmo day-scholars, one of whom, a bright girl, who was greatly interested at the time of the January meetings, will soon be leaving the school. Five girls went in for the Entrance Examination of Calcutta University and two passed, a result which compared favourably with those obtained by other institutions. The names of eighty-three girls were on the rolls. Miss K. M. W. Farler was transferred to the Nadiya district early in 1905.

Baptism of school-girls.

There was improvement in each of the three schools carried on in connexion with the Hindustani Mission, of which Mr. A. H. Phillips was in charge. The Garden Reach High School contained over 300 boys; the Muttia Burj School, for which an earnest Christian man was secured as first master during the year, had fifty-six names on its rolls; while the interest taken in their work by the staff and the boys of the Burtolla Primary School was so great that they several times demurred to the 'gazetted holidays' allotted to them, preferring to attend school! A good hearing was generally obtained at the seven regular preaching-stations, and there was a fair sale of Gospels, but Mr. Phillips felt that he needed more assistance than could be rendered by the two untrained and inexperienced men who acted as evangelists.

Work among Mohammedans.

The work of the Hindi Mission was handicapped by the serious illness of the Rev. A. C. Kestin, which laid him aside for three months, but happily his colleague, the Rev. B. Grundy, though only a recent arrival, was able to do much to maintain its efficiency. There was a diminution in the number of boys at the Chamar schools owing to the policy of the municipality in demolishing insanitary houses, thus steadily driving the lowest classes to the suburbs. One school was discontinued during 1905, leaving three, all of which are supported by the Old Church Gleaners' Union. The hostel for Christian lads was fortunate in having a good house-master. The accession of some new workers enabled the village work to be carried on more thoroughly than for some time past, and eight of the twelve adult baptisms were the fruit of it. Mr. Kestin mentions as a happy feature of the work that the converts are diligent in seeking to win others.

Bengali Work.

The Rev. W. V. R. Kamcké, transferred from Burdwan, had the help of the Rev. K. C. D. Biswas in the Bengali Evangelistic Work. The latter expresses his opinion that prejudice and belief in the caste system are fast vanishing among the Hindus and Mohammedans in Calcutta, and states that many shop-keepers hang in their places of business placards containing verses of Scripture. He adds, 'I am sure there are many like Nicodemus in this city, who will come forward to accept Christ as their Saviour.'

Howrah.

The Rev. E. P. Herbert resided at Howrah, the great railway terminus of Calcutta, connected with it by a pontoon bridge, over which an average of 19,000 vehicles pass daily. The suburb contains a population of 180,000, and the triangular district of which it is the head quarters covers an area of 510 square miles, with 1,451 villages, and 850,000 people, of whom less than 3,000 are Christians. Mr. Herbert found many openings, especially among the 100,000 coolies who are employed and live in the municipality. The Grand Trunk Road swarms with men from the various workshops at closing time, and evangelistic work was carried on among them by preaching at the roadside and talking to groups which assembled.

BURDWAN.

Burdwan.

On his return from furlough, at the end of 1904, the Rev. C. B. Clarke exchanged the principalship of the Calcutta Boys' Boarding-school for the superintendence of the work of the Society in BURDWAN, a town of 30,000 people, and the surrounding district, with its village population of 2,000,000 and more. In this huge district he was the only ordained minister of the Anglican or any other Church; two of his three Indian evangelistic helpers were hors de combat for a great part of the year through ill-health; and there was but one other member of the staff, a young convert who worked the book-shop. It is true that the C.E.Z.M.S. labours in the district, but it was unable to do more than allot one lady to it for eight months of the year. Nevertheless, at least in Burdwan itself, the conditions are most favourable for the spread of the Gospel. Mr. Clarke writes:—

Favourable conditions.

Church work in Burdwan is carried on under circumstances of great advantage. First and foremost there is very pronounced public opinion in favour of Christian work. From the Maharajah downwards we receive a warm welcome wherever we visit.

Then, too, we command good positions by means of our buildings. Our church stands where it cannot be hid, and our church services are observed and commented upon. It caused quite a flutter at first when we used our church for daily prayer, one Hindu observing that he thought Christians only worshipped on Sunday. The church stands, moreover, in a large compound with room for building. Passing down the main road of the town we come, after half a mile, to the Weitbrecht Hall. Here we have a building that will accommodate 300 people. Besides the hall there are two spacious rooms in front, one of which is already a book depôt and reading-room, and is greatly appreciated. Farther down the road we come to a preaching chapel. It is in the midst of the bazaar. It seats 100 to 150 people. In fact, we have got the very best positions in Burdwan, and we are, therefore, as a city set upon a hill.

Then, again, not only have we the goodwill of the educated classes of Burdwan, who treat us as one with themselves; nor have we merely commanding positions in the town; but we have the leaven of a faithful ministry of eighty-eight years Christianizing the thought of the place, and making our message one of sweet familiarity. One is sometimes almost in danger of forgetting that Burdwan is not yet won for Christ, such is the reverence and devotion which His Name evokes.

Reverence for the Name of Christ.

Prior to the arrival of Mr. Clarke, owing to sickness and the need which arose for transferring to other stations the missionaries assigned to Burdwan, there had been little continuity in the work, and Mr. Clarke's first steps were consequently taken with a view to making known the fact that it had been resumed. The school-building was opened under a new name, 'The Weitbrecht Hall,' with a large board and other paraphernalia to attract attention. The chapel was cleaned and opened for preaching, and occupied three days a week. Wherever there was a C.M.S. house, there a board proclaimed the fact. Every week a letter was left at about 100 homes, and by means of arranging a football league for the three High Schools of the town Mr. Clarke gained a private entrée to each. These proceedings were welcomed on all hands, and one of the Hindu professors at the College even went so far as to remark, 'We thank you for opening the chapel, for, though we cannot be present at the meetings, it reminds Burdwan of God.' The Sunday evening gatherings were attended by from sixty to seventy men and boys, and three lectures on the Pilgrim's Progress delivered in the summer attracted good audiences. Later in the year, in spite of the resentment caused by the partition of Bengal, more than 200 people were present at some meetings which were held during the pujas.

'It reminds Burdwan of God.'

The Rev. W. V. R. Kamcké has been transferred to Calcutta.

II. NADIYA DISTRICT.

KRISHNAGAR.

Krishnagar.

Some new buildings, consisting of a mess-room, lecture-hall, and dormitory, were opened in February, 1905, in connexion with the Training School at Krishnagar. Soon afterwards the Principal, the Rev. J. F. Hewitt, left for England, and his place was taken by the Rev. P. H. Shaul. The latter reports that eight of the forty-three students passed the Government Vernacular Mastership Examination, and were awarded certificates by the Education Department. One of the High School boys obtained a Government scholarship; two out of the three who entered for the Matriculation Examination of the Calcutta University passed; and all five who sat for it were successful in the Entrance Examination. The boys took no part in the agitation about the partition of Bengal, but stuck to their work, and by so doing gained honourable mention from the magistrate in his report to the Government on the movement. The Rev. P. N. Biswas took part in the Scripture teaching both at the High School and also at the Girls' Boarding-school, superintended by Miss Bristow, of the C.E.Z.M.S. The accommodation at the latter was taxed to its utmost, and the workers were cheered by observing that some of the children made strenuous efforts to overcome evil and glorify God in their lives.

DOYABARI.

The Ranaghat sub-division of the Nadiya district covers an area of 600 square miles, and contains about 1,000 villages and a population of 250,000 souls. In 1893, Mr. James Monro, C.B., who, after some years in the service of Queen Victoria in India, had succeeded Sir Charles Warren as Chief Commissioner of Police for the Metropolis, resigned that office, and at his own charges commenced a medical mission at Ranaghat. The staff at first consisted exclusively of members of Mr. Monro's family, but as the work extended other missionaries were added. Some of the staff having left the Mission through ill-health and other causes, the problem of arranging to adequately carry on the work presented some difficulties. Eventually, as briefly mentioned in last year's Report (page 177), Mr. James Monro, who, with Mrs. Monro, has returned to Europe, offered to transfer the buildings and all the property of the Mission to the Society, and these offers were accepted. Three of the workers, the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. C. G. Monro, and Miss R. A. Brown, have joined the staff of the Society as honorary missionaries. The average number of out-patient attendances of late years has exceeded 50,000 per annum, and the hospital with its forty beds has often been full, so that patients have had to be turned away.

The Ranaghat Mission adopted by the C.M.S.

During the greater part of 1905 the Rev. E. C. Smith and Mr. R. H. Cooper resided at DOYABARI, the present head quarters of the work in the district.

CHUPRA.

Chupra.

The effects of the work at the Boys' Boarding-school carried on at CHUPRA by the Rev. C. H. Bradburn and Mr. R. Ayres, a trained schoolmaster, are widely felt in the surrounding district. Five years ago there was hostility to the Gospel at some places, but the boys have repeated in their homes the lessons they have learnt, and the evangelist is now warmly welcomed everywhere within ten miles of the school. Pleasing testimony was received concerning the character of some former pupils. Mr. Bradburn writes:—

Christian lads in request.

The foreman of the electric light installation of the goods yard at Chitpore, in Calcutta, says the best worker he has on the place is one of the Chupra boys. He tells me that the boy has nearly finished his apprenticeship; that he intends making him his head journeyman eventually, starting him on three times his present apprentice-boy's pay, and he ends up by saying, 'I shall be glad if you can let me have two more like him.'

Here is another instance which occurred somewhere about the same time. The representative of the leading house of its kind in Calcutta called me into his office and said, 'I will finance you up to Rs. 20 a month for two years if you will train a boy for such and such a purpose.' Of course I accepted the responsibility, and the boy is now in training.

I am now in the office of the manager of one of the Indian railways asking for a rebate on the charges for carrying timber. His reply runs somewhat as follows: 'I am glad to meet you; I have heard of your work among boys, and I wish to say how much I appreciate the value of such work. I will do all I can to help you.' The result is a 20 per cent. reduction.

DISTRICT CHURCH COUNCIL.

The Pastorates.

The Rev. E. T. Butler is Chairman of the NADIYA DISTRICT CHURCH COUNCIL. He refers in his annual letter to the change in the temporal lot of the Christians which has been brought about by the increased demand for land. Writing in January, 1906, he says:—

It has for some time been obvious to thinking people that the land could not for long sustain the demand made upon it. Formerly, the ryot would cultivate a portion of land for three or four years, then allow it to remain fallow for that period, and take up another piece. By this means, among people who never manured, good crops were obtained. Of late years, with the rush for land, there has been scarcely any to leave fallow in the proximity of villages. The land has consequently deteriorated. This, followed by unfavourable weather for two or three seasons, has caused some ninety-five per cent. of the ryots to fall into the hands of the moneylender. Once in this gentleman's clutches is in nine cases out of ten to be always there.

Some of our Christians were in this condition, and it became incumbent on me to find some way out for them. The jute-mills at Dum Dum, near Calcutta, were desirous of taking Christians. At present, seventy of our Nadiya Christians (in a few days this number will be increased to 100) are settled there, and are working to the complete satisfaction of the managers. A small church has been built by the firm, and I trust that our people may bear such a witness among the 5,000 non-Christian mill-hands, that many may be drawn to the Saviour. One of the joint managers is an Armenian gentleman who was educated in our mission-school in Ispahan, Persia. He is delighted in this way to repay the debt he considers he owes the Society.

Very few of the 250 Christians in the Krishnagar Pastorate were able or willing to take any part in Sunday-school work. One of them conducted a class for old women, but the whole burden of teaching the ninety boys and girls fell on the shoulders of the Rev. P. N. Biswas, the quasi-pastor. A favourable report of the Christians under his care is given by the Rev. K. L. Biswas, of the Chupra Pastorate, who describes them as both diligent and successful in their efforts to influence their relatives and friends in behalf of Christianity, zealous in preaching the Gospel to the Heathen, and devoted in their ministrations to poor and destitute pilgrims. The Rev. M. D. Biswas, of the Bohirgachi Pastorate, was laid aside for some months by ill-health. Many of the converts belonging to the Ranabanda Pastorate, to the charge of which the Rev. G. C. Biswas, of Sholua, was appointed, were punctilious in Sunday observance, but some of the women were cold and indifferent. Malaria was sadly prevalent in the Kapasdanga Pastorate, which was under the Rev. S. S. N. Biswas, and in the Ratnapur Pastorate, under the Rev. D. N. Sircar, and the people in the former pastorate suffered also from cholera and through the destruction of their crops by two hailstorms. Three men, two of them Mohammedans, were baptized at Khejora. The Rev. J. S. B. Biswas, of the Bollobhpur Pastorate, received much assistance in his evangelistic work in the villages from a band of fifteen young men, who were brought to Christ at a series of special meetings which were held. The Girls' Orphanage, which was under the care of Mrs. Butler, had sixty inmates. Three adults were baptized at Dumukdia.

THE NADIYA ITINERANCIES.

The work in the Southern Itinerancy was superintended from KRISHNAGAR by the Rev. P. H. Shaul, who with three Indian evangelists visited Santipur, Nadiya, and some of the villages in the neighbourhood of those towns. Miss K. M. W. Farler accompanied the ladies of the C.E.Z.M.S. as they ministered to the women in the district, and quotes the remark of a very old Hindu woman, who on hearing the Gospel for the first time said, 'Where, then, has Jesus been throughout all these ages that we only hear of Him for the first time now?'

Krishnagar Itinerancy.

'Where has Jesus been throughout all these ages?'

There was no European missionary at MEHERPUR, the head quarters of the Central Itinerancy.

The missionaries connected with the Northern Itinerancy, with their head quarters at SANTIRAJPUR, were the Rev. E. T. Noakes, Mr. J. H. Hewison, and Mr. W. J. Tillott, of whom the last named was transferred in July, 1905, to Santalia.

Santirajpur.

Mr. Noakes says that there was a more tolerant spirit among the people than in former years, and, as a case in point, mentions a certain village, at one time regarded as a specially difficult spot, owing to the habit of the people of engaging in useless discussions. During the year the evangelists, while encamped there, suffered much from a heavy storm, and the Hindus living near by treated them with the greatest kindness, not only giving them shelter, but lending clothes to them as well. The three schools had on their rolls the names of nearly 100 children, most of them Mohammedan boys. A number of inquirers came forward. Some made no progress, and others were deterred from confessing Christ in baptism by dread of the loss of family, property, &c., which would surely follow. Mr. Noakes asks for constant prayer that the hearts of the people may be so touched that they may not hinder those who are ready to decide for Christ. Mr. Hewison was brought face to face with the difficulty referred to at Tetulberia, where he spent a little time, visiting each house in turn, and again at Murutia. There he met a Brahman widow, whose son treated her so shamefully after her husband's death that she was compelled to seek police protection. In her adversity all her Hindu relatives deserted her, declaring that the gods were punishing her because of her great wickedness. This led her to exclaim, 'Hinduism is exceedingly cruel to its widows. It is false, and I am going to become a Christian.' At another place the missionaries were challenged to a public discussion by a Mohammedan moulvi. When he failed to appear at their tent they sent to inquire, and discovered that he had fled. Among those whom they met was a Mohammedan schoolmaster, who fifteen or sixteen years before had bought a Bible from the late Rev. H. Williams, and had since read it regularly. He was convinced that Mohammedanism was false, but was not prepared for the cost of following Christ. One of Mr. Hewison's experiences was very sad. He writes:—

'Hinduism is cruel to its widows.'

A former inquirer becomes a bitter opponent.

> One day a Mohammedan fakir came to see me. He was clothed in his yellow garment, and accompanied by a number of his disciples. From his knowledge of Christianity I inferred that he had at one time been brought into contact with a missionary. On making inquiries about him I found that he had formerly been a most promising inquirer, but instead of coming out boldly for Christ he had clung to his old associations and faith, with the result that he was now a most bitter antagonist of the Cross.

Kushtia.

The Rev. E. Cannon, who had his head quarters at KUSHTIA, says that the hostile feeling engendered by the Swadeshi movement found expression now and again in acts of violence, and that the open-air work was several times broken up by bands of students shouting the first words of a patriotic song in Sanscrit. Most of the Mohammedans held aloof from the movement, and were confirmed in their resolution as they saw articles of food, &c., daily become dearer, and realized that the poor agriculturist was the chief sufferer. Several educated Hindus came to read the Bible with Mr. Cannon during his sojourn at Kushtia, but he was there for a shorter time than usual as he was called upon to take charge of the Old Church, Calcutta, for six weeks in the summer. During his itinerations in the cold weather numbers of sick persons, sometimes as many as 150 in an afternoon, came to him for treatment, and in their villages the Gospel was listened to with eagerness. He had good opportunities also at a place called Khoksa during a mela in honour of the goddess Kali, who is worshipped by most of the Hindus in that district. Mr. Cannon mentions, as illustrating the weakness of merely secular education, that some of the teachers in the neighbouring High School, men with University degrees, worship their fish before they begin to eat it, and on the occasion of an eclipse of the moon carefully scour their brass vessels and bathe in the river in the middle of the night. The Mohammedans are not exempt from superstition, for he met with one who advocated the growing of long beards, saying that the longer they were the more sins would be forgiven! Both during the cold weather itinerations and during the rains, when Mr. Cannon and the catechists travelled by boat on the river Matabhanga, some people were found who were impressed with the truth of Christianity. Among them were a high-caste Hindu postmaster, who constantly read the Bible and confessed that he had lost all faith in his old religion; a Hindu doctor who declared that he believed in the Saviour; a young Mohammedan, whose father, hearing that he was receiving Christian instruction daily, first shut him up and then carried him off to another place; and another Mohammedan, who eventually was baptized, and afterwards went to the Rev. C. H. Bradburn at Chupra to learn a trade. But while Kushtia and the immediately surrounding villages have now been at least evangelized, there are many parts of the district in which the people have as yet had little opportunity of being taught. One day a teacher remarked to Mr. Cannon after he had been preaching in his school, 'Sahib, if you stayed here a week and preached daily we should understand, but coming only once, your message soon leaves our minds.'

III. SANTALIA.

SANTAL NATIVE CHURCH COUNCIL.

Santal Pastorates.

THE Rev. Canon F. T. Cole, Chairman of the SANTAL NATIVE CHURCH COUNCIL, has the supervision of 4,000 Christians, some of whom are scattered over an area of 1,800 square miles in Santalia, while others belong to the Santalpur Colony and other districts across the Ganges. He describes the people as having done 'splendidly in the matter of self-support,' several gifts having been made by them to various churches, and promises to a considerable amount secured towards building a new church at Barhet as a jubilee memorial of the Santal rebellion, which broke out within a mile of the proposed site. It may seem strange to commemorate a rebellion by erecting a church, but it was through a conversation with one of the officers engaged in suppressing the rising that the Rev. E. L. Puxley was led to commence the work. Some special services were held at Barhawa for the agents employed by the Council and for the converts in general by the Rev. A. H. Bowman. A large number of villagers came in and encamped in the mission-compound, and the agents, many of whom live in isolated places, greatly enjoyed their opportunity of Christian fellowship. Eighty-seven adults were baptized during the year in the pastorates connected with the Council. The story of some of the converts is thus given by Mrs. Cole :—

A church to commemorate a rebellion.

Converts

We have lately had an interesting movement amongst the Hindus of the Kuire caste. Some weeks ago we were asked to visit one of their women suffering from dysentery in the last stage. Her husband, it seemed, had expressed his intention of becoming a Christian, and she bitterly opposed it, threatening to kill herself if he carried it out. After this she was attacked by this disease, which some of the Heathen told her was a judgment on her for the attitude she had taken. This frightened her, and her mind was completely changed. She now became most anxious to be baptized before she died. Believing her to be in earnest, and both expressing their faith in Jesus, she and her husband were baptized. The woman afterwards partly recovered, and was brought to our compound to be better tended. At this time her relatives, being angry, did all they could to frighten them, appearing to them at night covered over with a white cloth. This so frightened one woman, who was also anxious for baptism, that she lost her reason for a time, but afterwards quite recovered. The sick woman died, and yesterday, after having been instructed, the other woman, her husband, Sobha, and their two children were baptized.

When the parents and the younger child had received the rite the father brought the other one, a boy of three years. Then it was found that the child had several matted locks of hair on his head, evidently in connexion with some heathen ceremony, which looked suspicious, as if there might be some reserve in the minds of the parents. Until the locks were removed baptism was refused. A pair of scissors being produced, they were severed from the head and the child was baptized. There is a history in connexion with this incident. The parents, being childless, went to a Hindu priest or devotee, made their request, paid their offering, and made a vow to the gods. In due time God gave them this son, and in fulfilment of the vow they left the matted locks. Evidently there was some little remaining fear of the gods' displeasure in the hearts of the parents, but at the evening service, to show their sincerity, they brought each an offering to God.

A vow to the gods.

At the afternoon service we had some adult baptisms. One of those baptized was our bearer, who had long been wishing to become a Christian, and had regularly attended church, but had been prevented by the strong opposition of his wife from taking this step. Now, seeing his determination, she and other relatives no longer oppose, and even say that in due time they also will follow.

The Santalpur Pastorate is situated in the colony of that name, 250 miles from Barhawa, at the foot of the Himalayas. The Christians, who number over 1,300, are ministered to by the Rev. Nimbai Hansda, Canon Cole paying them a couple of visits a year. After some special services which were held in 1905, the people met for united prayer that men might be raised up to be their 'Own Native Missionaries' to the surrounding Heathen. Before long two men offered and were solemnly set apart for the work, the money for their support being subscribed by the Christians. They are only expected to work for six months in the year, for during the rains the country is flooded and the jungle grass very dense and full of wild animals. Other of the people, also, were led to bestir themselves for the evangelization of those around them, and went from village to village at the end of the year praying and holding meetings. At a place called Pukhuria a prayer-meeting was held which lasted from eight o'clock at night until dawn, but the people showed no signs of fatigue.

'Own Native Missionaries.'

TALJHARI.

Taljhari.

The Boys' Boarding-school at TALJHARI had three different Principals during 1905: first the Rev. H. J. Jackson, who was obliged, by the serious illness of Mrs. Jackson, to come home in May; then the Rev. D. M. Brown, transferred from Godda; and lastly, when Mr. Brown left on furlough, Mr. W. J. Tillott, who had previously been working in the Nadiya district. There were about 200 boarders and sixty day-scholars, and the catechumens' class had four members. Mr. Jackson says that in the last fourteen years 129 of the pupils have been baptized while in the school, and that no year has passed without at least one being admitted into the visible Church. The school is of importance, too, as the chief source of supply of school teachers and probationary preachers among the Santals. One of the senior girls of the Sunday-school under Mrs. Jackson, died early in the year, giving 'glorious testimony' of her faith in Christ.

Barharwa.

At BARHARWA, where the Rev. Canon and Mrs. F. T. Cole, and Miss A. D. Cole resided, the Girls' Boarding-school was attended by more than 100 pupils, all of them above eight years of age. The educational part of the work was under Miss Cole's care, and she reports good examination results. One of the children died of pneumonia. Just before her death she asked those standing around her to sing 'The sands of time are sinking,' saying that she was going to Emmanuel's Land, and adding, 'I have drunk of Christ, Who is the Fountain.' Three of the girls were baptized during the year. A little Sunday-school for Chamar children, who spend their time herding cattle, was set on foot. About 5,000 attendances were registered at the Dispensary, and the medical work was the means of winning some converts, the firstfruits of the Kuire caste, who were baptized during the year. Besides continuing the translation of the Bible into Santali, Canon Cole completed a translation of Miss Stock's Lessons on Israel in Egypt.

BHAGAYA.

Bhagaya.

The principal occupation of the Rev. J. Blaich at BHAGAYA was training a couple of Santal catechists for ordination, but he also superintended the work in the district in general. He speaks of much rivalry and inconsistency among the Christians, and instances one particular case of grievous sin. A woman, the widow of a former agent of the Mission, was found to have been leading a dissolute life with heathen men while professing to be an earnest Christian, constantly attending the services (even on week-days), regularly coming to the Holy Communion, and when sick asking to be visited and prayed with. Even the Heathen were shocked at her sinful conduct. On the other hand there were cheering signs in the growing attendance at the services and Sunday-school, and in the spread of the custom of publicly returning thanks and making thank-offerings for deliverance from sickness or any special danger. Mr. Blaich is not sanguine concerning the prospects of evangelistic work in the district. The people are ready enough to listen to the Gospel, and he himself was often received with cordiality, especially where he met with any former pupils of the boys' school at Taljhari, of which he was the Principal for some years, but he says that in spite of all the friendliness manifested towards him he is sadly conscious that the thoughts of the people are chiefly concerned with 'drink and the money-lender.'

A praiseworthy custom.

Godda.

The Boys' Boarding-school at Pathra in the GODDA sub-division, where the Rev. J. Brown was in general charge, contained about forty Pahari lads, but the Upper Primary School for Santal boys and the school for girls and infants had a great struggle for existence. Nearly 400 attendances were registered at the Dispensary. A young man of the cotton-weaving caste was baptized, but the people as a whole are said to manifest little or no desire for the Gospel, and to be unwilling to break away from their own people.

The work in the Telgaon Pastorate was grievously hindered by a sad case of immorality which occurred among the Christians. A few adults were baptized in the Ratanpur Pastorate, and also in the Mohonpur and Bhatonda Pastorates.

IV. BEHAR.

BHAGALPUR.

Bhagalpur.

THE Rev. J. A. Cullen, who was in general charge of the work at BHAGALPUR, says that there was progress in every branch of the work, and a spirit of expectation among the workers. The English Congregation grew so much that the Church was hardly large enough to accommodate all who came to the services, and the High School, under the Rev. H. M. Moore, had 170 names upon its rolls, forty more than in the previous year. About two-thirds of the boys are Hindus. A commercial department was opened in the spring and soon gained a good number of students. Similar success attended the setting on foot of a Girls' Boarding-school, under Mrs. H. Perfect. Several of the boys belonging to the Orphanage left to become apprentices in the Jamalpur workshops, and three volunteered for evangelistic work. Nearly 7,000 patients received treatment at the Dispensary, the work at which was instrumental in the conversion of a family of Mohammedans, who were baptized during the year. The Christians among the 110 inmates of the Leper

High School.

Six lepers baptized.

Asylum appeared to grow in grace, and six persons were baptized. Mr. Cullen writes :—

> One of them has been in the asylum for ten years, and being a man of some education has a considerable influence over his Hindu brethren. This influence, we felt, was used steadily and persistently against Christ and His Gospel. We are aware of several instances in which he had hindered men from confessing Christ. Knowing all this we started praying for him at our weekly prayer-meetings, and asking definitely for his conversion. Our prayers were very soon answered, and a marvellous change came over the man. He who had been a stumbling-block to many, became an earnest seeker after God. He then confessed that for years he had been convinced of the truth of the Gospel, but had been hardening his heart against the strivings of the Spirit.

A considerable number of inquirers came forward, several whole families among them. Some of these persons were baptized, and others were still under instruction at the close of the year, a few being received in the Home for Women Converts, managed by Mrs. Perfect.

The new Hostel at Jamalpur had twenty inmates, and its usefulness even surpassed expectations. The difficulty of finding employment for the boys was solved by the evident anxiety of the railway authorities to secure the services of Indian Christians in their offices as well as their workshops.

The evangelistic work was superintended by the Rev. H. Perfect, with whom the Rev. P. C. Biswas was associated. The firstfruits of the work at Forbesgang were gathered in by the baptism of a Brahman, but the service had to take place at Bhagalpur because of the opposition of his relatives. Mr. Perfect describes an interesting incident which occurred in the Bauka district :—

Villagers seek a spiritual God.

We were in the Bauka market one day when a man entered into conversation with the native pastor, and told him that he and his brother would like to hear more of the teaching. The villagers of the place in which they lived had thrown away their idols, and, as far as they could, were now worshipping the One Who they thought was the one true God. We went to the village mentioned by the man, and spent two or three hours with them, talking and answering questions. As far as we could learn, the whole village had forsaken idol-worship, and along with this had given over the customary reverence paid to Brahmans, and were worshipping to the best of their ability a spiritual God.

UNITED PROVINCES MISSION.

The Society's first agent in India was stationed in the United Provinces. He was a Native, Abdul Masih, Henry Martyn's solitary convert from Mohammedanism, and he was placed, under Corrie's auspices, at Agra in 1813. Abdul Masih was ordained in 1826 by Bishop Heber, being thus the first Indian clergyman of the Church of England. Meerut was occupied in 1815; Benares, 1817; Gorakhpur, 1823; Azimgarh and Jaunpur, 1831; Lucknow, 1858; Allahabad and Dehra Dun, 1859; Faizabad, 1862; Aligarh, 1863; and Muttra, 1878. A remarkable work was done by W. Smith and C. B. Leupolt at Benares, which began in 1832. In 1853, St. John's College at Agra was opened as a High School by T. V. French (subsequently Bishop of Lahore) and E. C. Stuart (subsequently Bishop of Waiapu, now in Persia). The Sepoy Mutiny of 1857 destroyed much of the Society's property, but the deep interest aroused by it caused a great extension of the work afterwards. Lucknow was occupied immediately on its re-conquest, on the invitation of the Chief Commissioner, Sir R. Montgomery. Allahabad was also occupied, and Christian villages established there and at Gorakhpur. In 1892 a new diocese (Lucknow) was formed for Oudh and the Jhansi Division of the United Provinces, the Bishop (Dr. A. Clifford, previously a C.M.S. missionary at Calcutta) having also, by consensual jurisdiction, episcopal supervision over the remainder of the United Provinces. In 1903, another new diocese (Nagpur), with Dr. Eyre Chatterton as Bishop, was formed, including the Central Provinces and Rajputana, and certain 'assigned districts' of Hyderabad.

Conference of missionaries.

A CONFERENCE of the missionaries of the Society was held in the autumn at Allahabad. The sermon at the service of Holy Communion was preached by the Rev. W. McLean on October 31st. The afternoon of that day was taken up by a meeting at which the reports of the various missionaries were given. November 1st was devoted to the discussion of general matters connected with the work, and an address was given by the Rev. H. B. Durrant in the Cathedral. On the concluding day of the Conference the Rev. J. P. Haythornthwaite gave an address in the Divinity School.

Death of the Rev. J. Leighton.

A former missionary of the Society, the Rev. J. Leighton, died at Kilpeck, Herefordshire, on May 4th, 1905. He went out to India in the year 1854 as colleague of the Rev. T. V. French in the work of St. John's College, Agra, where he laboured till 1859, sharing with Mr. French all the anxieties of the Indian Mutiny. In 1860 failure of health compelled him to return to England. In the various charges which he afterwards held both in England and New Zealand he was ever a warm friend of the Society.

Reinforcements.

The staff of the Mission has been strengthened by the re-acceptance of the Rev. J. W. Hall, M.A., Durham University. He first went out to Uganda in 1878; in 1881 he was transferred to the Bengal Mission; and he laboured in the United Provinces from 1893–1903, since which time he has acted as the Society's Organizing Secretary for the dioceses of Exeter and Truro. He has now gone out, leaving Mrs. Hall in England, to take up the duties of the Secretariat in succession to the Bishop of Travancore. Six of the year's recruits have been assigned to the Mission, viz., the Rev. Alfred James Harvey, M.A., London, Vicar of Shirehampton, near Bristol, and Mrs. Harvey; the Rev. Norman Henry Tubbs, M.A., Gonville and Caius College, Cambridge, and Ridley Hall, Curate of Whitechapel; Mr. Louis Stahlschmidt, F.I.A.; Miss Annie Elizabeth Lowick, of Torquay, trained at Bermondsey; and Miss Elizabeth Morgan Waller, of Little Coxwell, a sister of the Rev. E. H. M. Waller, of this Mission, and of Mrs. F. O. Lasbrey, of the Egypt Mission. The Rev. and Mrs. A. Le Feuvre and the Rev. L. K. Morton have been transferred from Bengal to the United Provinces, and the Rev. and Mrs. W. Latham from Western India. The names of the Revs. Samuel Johnson Edwin, B.A., and Yohusafat Dharmjit have been added to the list of Indian clergy. The Committee have accepted the resignation of Miss E. J. Puckle on her marriage.

The following are the members of the Allahabad corresponding Committee :—The Bishop of Lucknow, Sir G. E. Knox, Mr. H. O. Budden, and the Revs. P. H. Chapman, J. P. Haythornthwaite, H. Menzies, W. McLean, and J. W. Hall (Secretary).

ALLAHABAD.

Allahabad. Divinity School.

The Rev. E. H. M. Waller, the Principal of the Divinity School, ALLAHABAD, describes the year 1905 as having been a final one in that it brought to a close the preparation of the Rev. Hari Narayan for Priests' Orders, and of Messrs. S. J. Edwin, J. N. Mukand, H. Samida, Y. Dharmjit (all of whom since their ordination have taken up work under the Society) and W. Tirki (who has become a pastor in the Chota Nagpur Mission), for Deacons' Orders. Mr. Edwin passed the Universities' Preliminary Examination for Candidates for Holy Orders in 1904, but, being too young to be ordained, he remained at the Divinity School as a teacher during the year under review. Moreover, the members of the senior catechists' class, six in number, completed their training and went out to various spheres of work in the Mission. Mr. Waller received much assistance in the teaching from the Rev. F. W. Hinton, who was Acting-Principal between the departure of Mr. Waller on furlough in August and the arrival of the Rev. J. N. Carpenter from Gorakhpur in the following January, and from the Indian tutor, the Rev. J. Qalandar.

Oxford and Cambridge Hostel.

When the year under review opened the Oxford and Cambridge Hostel was under the management of the Rev. P. B. Davis, for although the Warden, the Rev. W. E. S. Holland, had returned from Peshawar, whither he had gone for a short change after the death of his wife, he asked Mr. Davis to retain the reins of office. Mr. Holland was absent on a visit to England from March until August, but he resumed his former duties on his return, and in the autumn he was joined by the Rev. N. H. Tubbs, one of the year's recruits. The fifty rooms were fully occupied and several applications for admission had to be refused. By degrees the men have been trained in self-government: at first monitors were appointed by the Warden; then the men were allowed to elect their own prefects; and during the year the management of the hostel servants was handed over to them. For a few months Mr. Holland and Mr. Davis acted as honorary professors of Muir College. One of Mr. Holland's servants was baptized at Holy Trinity Church in the autumn, and among others received into the visible Church were four inmates of the Z.B.M.M. Converts' Home. Five adults were baptized by the Rev. J. B. Ventura, of Muirabad, where the Voluntary Association of the Church maintained a Bible-woman and a school teacher as their substitutes.

Evangelistic Work was carried on in various forms. Mr. Holland was unable to call on as many Indian gentlemen as he had done in some previous years, but he mentions having an interesting talk with a judge, a man of considerable distinction and a recognized Hindu leader. In the course of conversation the judge maintained that Hindus, on discovering their oneness with God, would have an experience very like a Christian conversion. To this Mr. Holland made answer that there was one great difference, for whereas he could point to many Christians who had really been converted, he had never met with a Hindu who had had such an experience as was referred to. To which the judge replied, 'You are not overstating the case. I have a far wider knowledge of Hindus than you, but I am ashamed to confess that among all my educated friends I have never known one case of real heart-illumination.' Mr. Qalandar visited among Mohammedans, and with the help of an Indian doctor was able to bring Christian literature under the notice of a number of people, most of whom were beyond his reach. His annual letter narrates an instance which shows the power of ungodly papers and books. A Mohammedan pleader, who appeared to be very near the Kingdom of God, one day stated that although he was once convinced of the truth of Christianity, he had now lost all faith, and it proved that this sad result had been brought about by his reading infidel tracts published in England and America, and a book written by a moulvi to refute one of Dr. Imad-ud-din's works. An effort was made to preach the Gospel to some at least of the vast crowd, said to have exceeded 3,000,000 of people, who assembled for the Kumbh mela. This mela is held every four years at one or other of three places, of which Allahabad is one, taken in turn; and it is attended by, besides the ordinary pilgrims, some 80,000 sadhus, whose temporary huts closely cover about a couple of square miles.

'I have never known one case of real heart-illumination.'

Sad result of reading infidel tracts.

The Kumbh mela.

Mr. Holland gave a description in the Intelligencer for April, 1906, of some scenes which he witnessed at this mela, from which the following extracts are taken :—

Arrived at the fort, we pass in to where the underground temple lies. Above is a seething crowd, forcing their way down the steps in endless file. In the passages below are hundreds of nameless images, and the underground passage supposed to lead to Benares, and a tree alleged to be ever green, which, however, the eye of the profane observes to have been comparatively recently cut and placed there. This year Government have had the audacity to open out this place by letting in several skylights, to the furious indignation of the priests of the shrine, who used to do a roaring trade by ripping open the pockets of the swarming pilgrims in the pitch-dark labyrinth below. The extortion still goes on, and from above one looks down on the rattle of pice fiercely demanded by the clamouring priest, but now it is a case of persuasion, not of physical force.

We pass on to the corner of the fort, where, high up in the angle of the walls, we can look down on the sea of heads below. Along a strip of sand, fifty yards wide, a solid body of humanity stretching in endless line as far as the eye can reach, keeps forcing its way on to a point whence it is the ambition of each pilgrim to bathe, till at last the mass, packed absolutely solid, can receive not a person more. The crowd making its way down to bathe, pressed on by the dense mass behind, still forces on. The solid mass below surges back. There is a sickening clash, and in five minutes, right at our feet below, eighteen women are forced under and trampled to death, and thirty more men and women are terribly crushed. It is over two hours before the last of the dead bodies can be extricated, and meantime a regiment of cavalry has been telegraphed for to cut off and force back higher up the crowds who are still trying to make their way to the bathing-point.

Eighteen women trampled to death.

Referring to a procession of sadhus he says :—

At its head is a train of gorgeously caparisoned elephants, followed by a string of sumptuous standards heavily embroidered in gold thread. Then, carried in handsome palanquins, come the mahants, or heads of the different monastic orders. Behind them, walking two and two, follow some hundreds of 'holy' men, absolutely unclothed and shameless, their bodies covered with ashes, and their long matted locks tied round their heads. Then several hundred more men with a minimum of clothing, similarly besmeared with dust. Their faces are most degraded and sensual, and many look half-witted.

The sadhus of the present day stink in the nostrils of all respectable Indians. They are a by-word for fraud and immorality, and are mostly scoundrels of the lowest type, making their living by begging and shameless imposture. India swarms with them. There are said to be over a lakh of them at this mela. Yet here and there one will find really good men who have retired from the world for meditation, and who will have nothing to do with their baser brother ascetics.

Sadhus 'a by-word for fraud and immorality.'

The long, straggling procession winds along to the water-side, the crowd opening to let them pass and then closing in again to cover their heads with, and even eat, the sand trodden by the feet of these holy men.

After speaking of the camp of sadhus, in whose number even women are included, Mr. Holland thus expresses the impression left upon his mind by what he had witnessed :—

Never till now have I known what Hinduism meant. This is a side of things one may never see while working among educated men. I simply did not know it existed. Degradation unspeakable, that cannot be exaggerated. Yet this is Hinduism, natural, naked, hideous. No missionary description of the blackness of idolatry can approach the reality. In this account I have perforce had to draw a veil over the worst (and a good deal of what one saw came under that head). The shock to me was to realize that this existed alongside of one of the sublimest, profoundest, and most spiritual philosophies in the world. Yet these sadhus are at once the living representatives of philosophic Hinduism, and the personification of all that is most degraded in Hinduism.

'Unspeakable degradation.'

The 'blackness of idolatry.'

Work in the Trans-Gangetic Mission was carried on by the two Indian clergymen, the Revs. S. Nihal Singh and M. Ján, as well as by Mr. Hinton and the Divinity students. The district covers an area of 1,800 square miles and has a population exceeding 1,000,000 souls, of whom not more than eight per cent. can read and write. Extensive itinerations were made during the cold weather, and the evangelists were frequently requested to open schools in the villages. A little difficulty was experienced owing to the prevalence of the plague, but as a rule the people were friendly and willing to listen. At Partabgarh, the centre of a district extending for some thirty miles on every side and containing more than 100,000 people, which Mr. Hinton made his head quarters while on tour, a quiet work is going on in the face of much opposition from the members of the Arya Somaj. When Mr. Ján was there he was hospitably entertained by Rajah Partab Bahadur Singh, one of the Coronation guests of King Edward. An Anglo-Vernacular School was opened at Junaitpur to take the place of that at Kotwa which was closed in 1904, and agents were also placed at Handiya and Moongarsan.

A European soldier joins evangelists in prayer.

A pleasing incident occurred at Saidabad, where as the evangelists were holding evening prayers and singing bhajans a European soldier appeared on the scene. After remaining in conversation for nearly an hour he said he would like to engage in prayer before he left, and kneeling down he pleaded earnestly for the evangelists and for the work in which they were engaged. Mr. Singh reports the baptism of two adults, and writes of one of them, a young Government schoolmaster, as follows :—

Baptism of a Government schoolmaster.

This young man has a wife and two little ones, who were also to have been baptized with him, for he had prepared his wife, who can read Hindi, for the reception of the holy rite of baptism. On Sunday morning, May 7th, the young man started with his wife and two little ones, accompanying the two preachers and their wives who were to come across the River Ganges to have the Communion service in St. Paul's, and when they had walked a little distance they heard the uproar of a large rowdy crowd stirred up by a Gaur Brahman, who told them that the respectable Kaistha Master with his wife and children were going to become Christians and that he would become bedharm and bhrisht, i.e., irreligious and outcaste. They caught hold of him and snatched his two little ones away from him, put his wife with the children into an ekka and sent her off to Phulpur. When the husband tried to stop this the Brahman ringleader pushed him back and knocked him on the ground, and when the preachers tried to help him they also were roughly handled. The inquirer, in spite of losing his wife, stood firm and in the afternoon was baptized.

The young convert is quite happy. The Brahman ringleader in whose house he lived as a tenant and held the school has broken the lock of his room, taken all his things away and made the rest over to the father, and the latter has taken everything home, leaving only the clothes on the person of the son and nothing else. But though he is now penniless and homeless, yet he rejoices, for he has found rest in his heart at the feet of our blessed Lord. Mind, he is a village teacher in a Government school, and is under orders to proceed to another village school on the same pay which he has been drawing here. His immediate superiors are all non-Christians—Hindus, some of them of his own caste, and Mohammedans—who do not sympathize with a young convert at all.

The Rev. L. C. Perfumi superintended the work at SULTANPUR from Allahabad until November, when he was transferred to Meerut.

BENARES.

Benares.

The Rev. J. A. F. Warren was missionary in charge at BENARES throughout 1905, his European colleagues of the Society being, besides Mrs. Warren, the Rev. and Mrs. J. J. Johnson, the Rev. R. S. Bennertz, Principal of Jay Narayan's School, and Mrs. Bennertz. There were 114 Christian girls under the charge of Mrs. Barr, Miss G. L. W. Richardson, and Miss Leetch, of the Z.B.M.M., in the Girls' Normal School, which is divided into four sections, the Preparatory, the Lower Primary, the Upper Primary, and the Middle School, with two classes in each. When the pupils enter the Middle School they at once begin their training as teachers. During the year under review the teachers' class contained twenty-six girls, the largest number the class has had since the institution was recognized by the Government as a training-school. Mrs. Barr took these senior students twice a week in Mohammedanism and Hinduism as compared with Christianity, and was much cheered by the seriousness and thoughtfulness of many of them. In order to develop a missionary spirit in the school a British and Foreign Bible Society meeting was held monthly, besides a general missionary meeting, and a weekly gathering took place in connexion with the Y.W.C.A. One of the girls was baptized; she had been left as a waif on the steps of the Z.B.M.M. house at Jaunpur several years before, and after being cared for there for some time was sent to the Normal School, where she is now being trained as a teacher. On the occasion of the visit of the Prince and Princess of Wales to the city, their motor passed through the mission-compound and halted opposite the spot where the girls of the Normal School and Orphanage were assembled. Her Royal Highness graciously accepted a beautifully-worked lace collarette and some drawn-thread work handkerchiefs from the two institutions, and afterwards expressed herself as greatly pleased with the warmth of the reception given to the Royal party in the Sigra compound. Orphanage.

Orphanage, with eighty inmates, was superintended by Miss G. Goetze, of the Z.B.M.M. The majority of the adults connected with the Congregation, which was under the pastoral care of an Indian clergyman, the Rev. T. Noah, consisted of helpers in the various forms of educational and Evangelistic Work. The latter form of effort was under the supervision of Mr. Warren, who says that most of the residents in the city have heard the Gospel, and alas, have rejected it, but adds that the preaching is generally granted a respectful hearing by the pilgrims who throng the streets and ghats. The Rev. J. J. Johnson continued his labours among the learned and ascetic classes in Benares, and during the year visited several places in Central India and Rajputana in order to speak to these Hindu leaders about Christ.

The out-stations are four in number. At Jaunpur, thirty-five miles from Benares, there is a very efficient High School, under Mr. Ghosh, containing more than 200 Hindu and Mohammedan pupils. Chunar is more easily reached by a railway journey of thirty miles, than by the more direct but bad road twelve miles long. The Anglo-Vernacular School of 100 boys is well worked, and two catechists and a Bible-woman labour in the town and surrounding district. At Gharwah, a remote spot, most of the Christians are farmers, and, unhappily, are backward in paying their rent. A widow from this out-station was under preparation for baptism, as also was a young girl belonging to Ahraurah, where the school suffered through an outbreak of plague.

AZIMGARH.

Azimgarh.

In 1905, as in the previous year, the work at AZIMGARH and in the surrounding district was seriously hindered by the plague, while an outbreak of cholera in the autumn added to the difficulties under which the missionaries laboured. The Rev. W. B. Collins, who resumed the general superintendence of the work on his return from furlough in the spring, reports that the results of both the secular and religious instruction given at the High School, with its 250 boys (not 300 as stated in last year's Report), were good, several prizes for Bible knowledge being carried off by the lads in competition with the boys of other schools. The head-master and one of the other masters of the school at the cost of some sacrifice conducted the services for the Indian Congregation when both Mr. Collins and the catechist were absent. Work among Women was carried on by Miss E. A. Luce (until February, 1905, when she was transferred to Agra), Miss A. M. Tottenham, and Miss C. M. Carrington. There were some hopeful pupils in one or two of the zenanas, including an old Mohammedan woman, who with tears in her eyes urged her companions to pay attention to the teaching, saying, 'Come and listen to the good words.' 'Come and listen to the good words.'

Concerning the outlook in the district, Mr. Collins writes:—

In some villages we still find ourselves abhorred as plague distributers, but these are getting rarer.

In most Hindu and practically all Mohammedan villages we get a patient hearing. Some of the principal men in the last class of villages are regular in their ritual observance. But far the larger number of Mohammedans know nothing of any form of worship except what they pay to the spirits of their great men or saints of the past; here they often add to this the worship of Hindu saints. I have known an educated Mohammedan gentleman to visit a Hindu shrine for this purpose. In the northern part of this district there are three large shrines (two Mohammedan and one Hindu), all tombs. These are worshipped annually by thousands of Hindus and Mohammedans. I once visited two of these, and the gross ignorance, mingled with the keen desire to make gain (on the part of the shrine-keepers) was appalling, even to one who is getting only too used to the sights and sounds of this heathen land. Mohammedans worship at a Hindu shrine.

Mr. Collins is able to bear testimony to the good influence of the Europeans on two estates, saying that even beyond their boundaries there is less gross superstition than in other parts of the district, and that a polite and attentive hearing is given to the Gospel. The school at Sidhari had to be closed in consequence of the plague.

GORAKHPUR.

More than eighty-two years have elapsed since work was commenced at GORAKHPUR by the opening of five vernacular schools, and during that period the educational institutions of the Society in the city have grown until now there are a College, teaching up to the First Arts Examination of the Allahabad University, a High School, two Middle Schools, and five Primary Schools, containing nearly 900 pupils, all under the superintendence of the Rev. R. J. Kennedy. St. Andrew's College had the names of thirty-five students on its rolls. Nineteen went in for the F.A. Examination, and eleven of them passed. Their general attitude towards Christianity was distinctly hostile, and they discussed religious difficulties with great zest in the time devoted daily to the Bible-lesson. All but one of the ten boys of the High School (which had 300 pupils) who sat for the Entrance Examination of the Allahabad University, were successful. The Alinagar Anglo-Vernacular Middle School, with a Christian head-master, was thoroughly efficient, and great progress was made at the Swinton Memorial Vernacular Middle School, to which a new head-master was appointed. The Boys' Orphanage, under the Rev. J. N. Carpenter, who was in general charge of the station, had thirty-two inmates, three of whom were able to support themselves entirely by their industrial work, while seventeen were apprenticed as printers, carpenters, or domestic servants. At the Girls' Anglo-Vernacular School and Orphanage, superintended by Miss T. G. Stratton and Miss Gorakhpur. St. Andrew's College. Orphanages.

M. H. Laurence, with its fifty-three orphans, a Sunday-school was set on foot, and much prayer was made, especially by the elder girls, for a real revival in their midst. A little deaf and dumb girl was baptized in the spring. At both of the orphanages much trouble was experienced in May, 1905, on account of plague infection, and the girls had to be temporarily transferred to Basharatpur. Services were regularly conducted for the English and Hindustani Congregations, and industrial work for the benefit of the latter was superintended by Mrs. Carpenter. The inhabitants of the three Christian villages, Basharatpur, Sternpur, and Dharmpur, were sorely tried by the unusual severity of the winter and the damage done to the crops by the unaccustomed frost, and the exceptional stress of poverty prevented them from maintaining the advance in their contributions which had characterized the previous year.

One European missionary for nearly 5,000,000 people.

The Rev. W. Walton, who was in charge of the Evangelistic Work, describes the district under his care as comprising an area of 7,381 square miles, and containing a population of 4,803,227, scattered in 14,447 villages. Many of these villages are principal villages of groups, containing three, four, and sometimes as many as six and seven smaller villages. When it is remembered that to evangelize this huge district there is one European missionary with seven helpers, it will easily be seen how utterly impossible it is to touch even the fringe of such a work. Moreover, the great closed land of Nepal which lies all along the northern border, with its chief highways running through the C.M.S. districts, calling aloud for medical missions, is as yet untouched by the Society.

During the hot weather and rains the efforts of the evangelists were confined to the city, where services for servants were held in a lady's house, bazaar preaching was carried on, and the people were visited in their homes. At Basti, forty-nine miles to the west of Gorakhpur, there is a High School with nearly 200 pupils, and a catechist was stationed at Tahsil Deoria, the same distance to the east of the head station. In the course of a tour in the cold weather of 1904–5, the country to the north was visited, and the itineration was extended to the borders of Nepal. The Gospel was proclaimed in over 300 villages, many of which had not previously been reached, but the effect of the message of salvation was hindered by the low standard of life prevailing among those who professed to follow Christ. Two men were baptized, one being Mr. Walton's servant.

Low standard among Christians.

LUCKNOW.

Lucknow.

Excepting from July to December, when he was Acting-Secretary at Allahabad, the work of the Society at LUCKNOW was superintended by the Rev. J. P. Ellwood, his European colleagues, besides Mrs. Ellwood, being the Rev. and Mrs. C. G. Mylrea, the Rev. S. R. Morse, and Messrs. J. McIntosh and W. H. Gray, who were joined in the autumn by the Rev. and Mrs. A. J. Harvey. The Congregation, which numbers some 600 souls, was under the pastoral charge of the Rev. Hari Narayan, who was assisted in the Sunday-school and open-air work by members of his flock. The names of nearly 200 boys were on the rolls of the High School, of which Mr. Morse was the Principal. Of the nineteen who were sent up for the Entrance and School Final Examinations of the Allahabad University, twelve passed, one gaining a first class, eight a second, and two a third. Both of the boys who went in for the High School Scholarship Examination, which is optional and has taken the place of the former compulsory English Middle Examination, passed high in the list, and were awarded a scholarship of Rs. 6 per mensem, tenable for two years. In the Scripture Scholarship Examination also the school was successful, a Bengali Brahmo boy winning a prize, and four others gaining certificates. There was some difficulty in securing suitable Christian masters for the two small primary schools under Mr. Morse's superintendence. Mr. Mylrea was in charge of the Evangelistic Work in the city. He was able to make many friends among the educated classes, but a good deal of his time was taken up with superintending extensive alterations and repairs in two old mission-buildings which were in good situations but had fallen into disuse. Two young men were baptized in Lucknow, who were first influenced in behalf of Christianity by recent converts, and afterwards encouraged and directed by maturer Christians.

High School.

A new church was opened at Nigohan, twenty-three miles from Lucknow. At the first service four women were baptized who had been instructed by the ladies of the Z.B.M.M. One of these women had had her leg amputated, but nevertheless she would not be excused from following the custom of kneeling by the font to be baptized. Nearly 12,000 visits of out-patients were registered at the dispensaries at Nigohan and Bachhrawan, which were under the charge of Mr. J. Williams, an Indian Christian doctor. Both of the lay missionaries on the staff itinerated in the district, but, as in so many parts of the country, found the plague a great hindrance. There was a great difference in the attitude of the people in places which had been well worked and in those where merely occasional visits had been paid, but the evangelists were able to proclaim the Gospel widely, notwithstanding interruptions on some occasions from moulvis and others.

A crippled woman baptized.

FAIZABAD AND SULTANPUR.

Faizabad.

FAIZABAD was left without a European missionary for some months after the departure of the Rev. R. Baker on furlough in the spring of 1905, for it was not until November that the Rev. J. C. Harrison, transferred from Meerut, stayed there for a short time on his way to Sultanpur. The boys' school at Ajodhya, six miles from Faizabad, had about seventy pupils.

Sultanpur.

SULTANPUR was visited periodically from Allahabad by the Rev. L. C. Perfumi during the spring, and towards the end of the year Mr. and Mrs. Harrison took up their residence at the station. The district contains a population of 1,080,000, among whom very little missionary work has hitherto been attempted.

AGRA AND SECUNDRA.

Agra.

St. John's College.

The European staff of St. John's College, AGRA, consisted of the Principal, the Rev. J. P. Haythornthwaite, who returned from furlough in September, 1905; the Rev. H. B. Durrant, the Vice-Principal, who was in general charge during Mr. Haythornthwaite's absence; the Rev. H. W. V. Birney, the Warden of the Christian Hostel; and Mr. W. K. Bonnaud, who took one of the intermediate classes in English and history. Some help was also kindly rendered by the Rev. W. Huntley, the Principal of the Missionary Medical Training Institution at Agra, who made himself responsible for teaching philosophy to the B.A. class. These workers were joined in the autumn by the Rev. A. Le Feuvre, formerly of the Bengal Mission, who has been appointed Warden of the Hindu Hostel; and, early in 1906, by Mr. L. Stahlschmidt, who has taken charge of the Business Department. The staff is imposing, but it is not more than equal to the requirements of the work, which has grown so rapidly of late that an income double that needed five years ago is now called for. The number of students was higher than ever before, the College Department containing 180, the Collegiate School 465, and the Branch Schools 290, making a total of over 900. No candidates sat for either the M.A. or LL.B. examinations, but twenty-five went in for the B.A. Examination, of whom ten were successful, and sixty for the Intermediate Examination, of whom nineteen passed. Many of these latter candidates were 'failures' of other Colleges, and although the percentage of passes was small, yet the College gained the first, third, and sixth places in order of merit. The Law Department was closed, and the number of men in the Business Department fell from forty to twenty-five, owing partly to the fees being higher than at other institutions, and partly to the impatience of the students to leave the department when they had but a smattering of the special subjects taught. Several of the classes in the Collegiate School were so large that they had to be divided into two sections, but in spite of the difficulty arising from the pressure of numbers the examination results were unusually good, fifteen out of twenty-one passing the School Final Examination and twenty-seven out of thirty-five the Entrance Examination. The Branch Schools were greatly affected by the plague, which visited Agra for the first time, and caused something of a panic. Indeed, some of the men as well as the boys lost their heads, for more than ninety of the College students signed a petition that the College might be closed, but they responded to an appeal that they, as educated men, should set a good example, and behaved exceedingly well when it was decided to continue work as usual. The conduct of the Christian masters and students is described as having been especially worthy of commendation, but it is said that their conduct may have been in some measure due to the remarkable immunity from the disease which the Christian community enjoyed. The various agencies for the promotion of the spiritual welfare of the students were continued as in former years, and in the Bible-teaching, which was listened to with respect and reverence, 'the life of Christ was upheld as the one perfect standard for those who aspired to the highest and best life possible to human beings, His redemption as the one perfect sacrifice for human sin, and His risen life as the one perfect source of spiritual power.' Mr. Haythornthwaite, when dealing with the question as to how far the College is advancing the Kingdom of Christ, says, 'Such subtle influences as moral tone and growth in spiritual perception are not easy to demonstrate on paper, and yet we who are in touch with student life are conscious that in this direction there has been advancement, for which we are profoundly thankful.' An interesting event of the year was a visit paid by Bishop Stuart, of the Persia Mission, on his journey from Persia, who addressed 400 of the men in the Great Hall. He writes:—

Immunity of Christians from the plague.

Spiritual growth among students.

> I gave them some characteristic reminiscences of the first Principal, the beloved Bishop French, whose name they still revere. I told them how I had been associated with him in beginning this College fifty-four years ago with a class of six in the adjoining compound; and how the superintendence of the building of St. John's College had devolved upon me; and pointed out the significance of the name the Principal chose for it. The eager and attentive faces around me showed how they were able to follow the address, and to catch the points of its allusions. I could not help mentally exclaiming, 'What hath God wrought!'

The Christian Hostel was overcrowded: among others, several former students, mindful of the good they had received there, applied that their sons might be admitted. Many of the men voluntarily engaged in Sunday-school work. Mr. Le Feuvre soon won the confidence and affection of most of the seventy-five inmates of the Hindu Hostel, to which a second new wing was added. The monitor system was introduced soon after his arrival.

Queen Victoria High School.

In the spring of 1905 Miss A. F. Wright, the Principal of the Queen Victoria High School, had to come home on medical certificate, and Miss E. A. Luce was transferred from Azimgarh to become Acting-Principal. The educational side of the work was under the management of Miss G. M. Dodson, who received temporary help from Misses A. Brutton, of the Z.B.M.M., W. M. Weitbrecht, and M. S. Lawson, of Muttra. In September the staff was strengthened by the addition to it of Miss Hawkins, a student of the Isabella Thoburn College, Lucknow, who had just graduated at the Allahabad University; and a little later Miss Agnes M. Cox returned from England to resúme her duties at the school. Mrs. J. N. Mukand, the wife of the Indian clergyman, the first Indian Christian lady to be granted the diploma of Associate of the Tonic Sol-fa College, London, gave some instruction to the girls in that system. Notwithstanding the many changes in the teaching staff the number of pupils steadily increased, and good results were obtained in the examinations. Both of the girls who sat for the Entrance Examination of the Allahabad University passed, as did the four who went in for the Middle Examination (one gaining the second and another the tenth place among ninety candidates), and three of the latter obtained Government scholarships. Six girls were awarded honours in the Diocesan Scripture Examination, two being bracketed first in New Testament knowledge, and one gaining the first place in that of the Old Testament. These secular successes were accompanied by much spiritual blessing. A branch of the Christian Endeavour Society was established in the spring, in connexion with which a weekly meeting was held for Bible-study, varied once a month by a missionary subject, and in the autumn many of the children—'nearly every girl in the school'—received definite blessing at some special meetings conducted in the town by the Rev. T. Walker, of Tinnevelly. After those gatherings there was 'quite a new atmosphere' in the school, much more faithfulness in little things being shown than before, and a greater earnestness in prayer and work for the salvation of others. The Vernacular Schools were superintended by Miss S. Bland. She had Misses C. E. Fry (who was absent on furlough during a great part of the year) and M. E. Schneider as her colleagues, and Miss V. C. Saunders also rendered some assistance. The plague carried off several of the pupils in the Hindu schools, though it did not touch any belonging to those for Mohammedans. One Mohammedan school was closed owing to declining attendance, but a new one for Hindus was opened, leaving twelve schools at the close of the year with an aggregate of 400 pupils. The Government inspectress spoke highly of the character of the secular work, and many of the children were evidently influenced for good by the Bible-teaching which they received, some of the bigger girls saying one day that they were trying to obey God's commandments, and had left off using bad language to their parents and brothers and sisters.

School-girls leave off using bad language.

The Congregation, which was under the charge of the Rev. W. McLean, continued to grow not only numerically but also spiritually. The Christians, who enjoyed remarkable immunity from the plague, were greatly helped by Mr. Walker's special meetings referred to above. One of the missionaries wrote afterwards :—

Special services at Agra;

> The ten days have left an indelible mark, not only in my life, but in the lives of my dear Indian Christian workers. The very fact of so many hundreds gathering together twice a day for ten days was in itself intensely encouraging. But more than this, lives known to me have been changed, sin has appeared in its true light, the sinfulness of so-called little sins, or weaknesses, has been felt as it never was before. The intense love, as well as intense faithfulness with which Mr. Walker gave his addresses, won all hearts. An Indian Christian worker said that he spoke as God's prophet, laying bare as it were the sins and failures of our lives, and showing us how we should walk so as to please God. Oh! that we could have such gatherings every year. Men and women have returned to their work with fresh zeal, renewing their vows to live for Christ and for India's people who are still outside the fold.

Another worker gave the following testimony :—

> Last Sunday I asked each teacher to say something about the Mission. One, a young teacher, said she gave herself to Christ then for the first time, and now everything is much brighter and easier than before. Another said that she had given her heart to Christ before, but never so fully, and she felt her spiritual life was deepened. Another said she had learnt more of the meaning of having been crucified with Christ. An old experienced teacher said she had got much help, and particularly about sin. We Europeans felt we have got special help, too, in much the same way as she.

One sign of the good accomplished was the establishment by the Christians on their own initiative of a Sunday afternoon prayer-meeting, at which they pleaded for yet fuller blessing. In the spring Miss Saunders was appointed to devote herself specially to the edification of the Christian women in the city and district. She visited them in their homes, and for six weeks held a Summer School for the benefit of those living in the villages. Evangelistic Work was carried on under the general supervision of Mr. McLean by the Rev. W. V. K. Treanor, who was transferred to Aligarh in July; the Rev. J. N. Mukand, an Indian Assistant Missionary; and Mr. W. H. Gray, who went to Agra from Lucknow in August; while Miss Bland and her helpers visited the zenanas in the city, and Mrs. McLean was responsible for the Women's Evangelistic Mission in the district. Two bands of evangelists preached regularly morning and evening in the bazaars, and held public discussions with Hindus and Mohammedans; and weekly visits were paid to the homes of members of the wealthier classes, many of whom were induced to purchase and read Christian books. Mr. McLean mentions a judge, a couple of barristers, and a Brahman pundit, who appeared to be at all events favourably impressed with Christianity, and one of whom was likely to be baptized before long. In their zenana visiting the ladies came across some hopeful cases, and Miss Schneider tells of a woman who remarked, 'Your Jesus is the only One Who can help us when we are in trouble. All our gods did everything for their own glory, and never did they say anything like what is written in your book, "Come unto Me, all ye that are weary and heavy laden."'

'Your Jesus is the only One Who can help us.'

Work in the district was interfered with by the plague, the people becoming so violent in January, 1905, that the missionaries were obliged to return to the city. Mr. Treanor wrote of his experiences at one place:—

Evangelists threatened with death.

> Men, who the year before used to sit for long in the cathechist's tent, chatting and hearing the divine message, now hunted us out with bamboo staves and curses, declaring that we were bringing the plague. With difficulty we got permission to pitch our tents near a neighbouring village; but when the men went out to preach they were surrounded and threatened with instant death if they did not go back at once to their tents, and to ensure their going back straightway men escorted them thither, presenting long bamboo staves to their backs.

A catechist refuses to abandon his post.

At Khandouli, a few miles from Agra, the disease raged with violence, but the catechist, although rats began to die in his house, declined an invitation to take up his quarters in the city, saying that if he could have a tent he would live under a tree and go on with his work. Dispensary work was carried on at this out-station, which is a good centre whence to reach the surrounding district. The invitation to Mr. McLean to take over the municipal school at Ferozabad (see last year's Report, page 207) was accepted. There were fifty-three names on the rolls when he assumed responsibility for it, but the appointment of a well-trained Christian head-master led to a considerable increase in the number of pupils, of whom there were 140 at the beginning of 1906. In the Scripture examination all the boys gained at least fifty per cent. of full marks, and in the Government examination also they acquitted themselves with credit. The converts at Tehu bear a good character, and when Miss Bland paid a visit to the village good numbers of Heathen as well as of Christians came to be taught. The evangelists had varied receptions in the different villages, but on the whole there was little active hostility, and there seemed to be a true spirit of inquiry. Mr. McLean says :—

'We ought to strike hard and strike now.'

Many of the educated are dissatisfied with their own jumble of beliefs, and it almost seems as if their 'fulness of time' had come. But if we are to strike, we ought to strike hard and strike now; if we delay, perhaps the opportunity which God is holding out may be taken from us for ever. It is an opportunity that calls for immediate and prayerful action. God grant that the Society may be enabled to rise to the occasion, and occupy these enormous unevangelized districts for Christ!

The motives of inquirers.

Numerous inquirers came forward as a result of the various forms of effort, but there was a great difference in their motives. One man wrote, 'I am willing to become a Christian when I am able to support myself, therefore I request you to recommend me for employment; then I will be baptized'; while another expressed himself as follows :—'I am an assistant station-master. About four months ago you came to see me, and gave me a few Hindi tracts. I had never heard the Gospel before, and am now convinced of its truth and wish to embrace Christianity, even if it should involve the loss of my present employment.' After much sifting and testing thirty persons received baptism, including a soldier, and a young woman from the Punjab who had been studying at the Queen Victoria High School. Good reports were received of some former converts, who were said to be leading truly Christian lives and striving to win others for Christ.

A soldier baptized.

Secundra. Orphanages.

As in 1904 the Rev. P. Webber was compelled by the dilapidated nature of the buildings of the Orphanages at SECUNDRA to spend much of his time in the supervision of necessary repairs. He felt the need of greater opportunities of personal contact with the boys, and writes :—

A bad Christian a good advertisement for Heathenism.

A bad Christian is a better advertisement for Heathenism than a good missionary is for Christianity. Evangelistic work for gathering in converts is worse than useless if we are to neglect those that have been gathered in. The nominal Christians are really worse than the Heathen around them, simply because they have not had the efficient pastoral control that they needed, and the same result would be seen here if the orphanage boys who grow up stayed on. They go out, but in too many cases become a disgrace to the name they bear, and are hindrances to the work they should be helping on.

MUTTRA.

Muttra.

Several changes took place in the staff of the Society at MUTTRA, Miss E. Worthington leaving on furlough in the spring, and Miss H. M. Forbes taking her place temporarily, while Miss E. M. F. Major was obliged by ill-health to spend several months in the hills. The Rev. P. M. Zenker and Miss M. S. Lawson were at the station during almost the whole of the year, and they were rejoined in the autumn by Miss M. Stratton, who then returned from furlough. The prevalence of the plague, and the belief of the Heathen that for some reason of their own the English were spreading the disease, compelled the closing of the city school for Hindu girls for a few months, and obliged the ladies to confine themselves almost entirely to work among the Native Christians. The school was reopened in July, and from that month the ladies constantly received fresh invitations to zenanas until there were from eighty to ninety which they or the Bible-women visited regularly. The school at Brindaban, a city said to contain 5,500 temples and shrines, was closed because the people refused to send their children unless there was a Hindu as well as a Christian teacher. Miss Forbes draws a sad picture of the superstitious worship of the numerous Bengali widows in that city:—

Licking the dust of a temple floor.

We used to stand outside a red sandstone temple which they have to pass, and as we are allowed to go inside this temple I have gone in to see them worship. They first prostrate themselves at the door of the shrine, some even licking the dust from the floor (the dust of Muttra, Brindaban, and Gokal is considered holy: it is not even called by the common word 'dust' but has a special name), then they go up and bow down before the shrine till their foreheads touch the steps, and the priest, sitting in the doorway, pours a tiny spoonful of water into the palm of their hands, which they drink, being the holy water in which the idol has been bathed!

The Rev. J. J. Johnson, of Benares, paid a visit to Brindaban, and had some interesting conversations with several of the pundits of the city.

The death of Aziz Masih, an old and earnest Indian agent, made it necessary to close the out-station at Karaila, but Mr. Zenker paid occasional visits, at the request of the Bishop of Lucknow, to Kasganj and Etah to minister to the few European residents at those places. He mentions in his annual letter some instances of indirect results of missionary work:—

An old Brahman influenced by reading the Bible.

The superintendent of police told me a brother official in the Civil Service had related to him that seven or eight years ago, when he was stationed as joint magistrate in one of the eastern districts of these Provinces, he had to investigate a case of assault. An old Brahman had been living quite alone in his hermitage. Certain evil characters had set on the old man and beaten him, it seems, without any provocation on his part. The police, hearing of the affair, had apprehended the culprits, and instituted proceedings in court. The old Brahman was summoned, and the magistrate called on him to make his statement. The man declined to do so, as he had no intention of having his assailants punished. On the magistrate pressing him to give a reason for his remarkable conduct, the old man turned on the magistrate with the words—'Has not your own Prophet said, "Whosoever shall smite thee on thy right cheek, turn to him the other also"?' The magistrate in consequence had to dismiss the case. Who had taught this Brahman (he was not a professed Christian!) or given him God's Word has apparently not become known. From his own experience the superintendent of police also communicated to me that the Indian civil surgeon in one of his former districts was in the habit of studying the Bible and coming to him for explanations of different passages.

Mr. Zenker also speaks of a Brahman student, an inquirer, of whom he had lost sight for a time, but whom he met during his stay at Simla in the hot weather. This man told Mr. Zenker that he had been sent for several months to Calcutta to help as a confidential clerk in the Foreign Office. While there, during the whole period of the British Embassy to the Amir of Afghanistan, he had to copy, arrange, and file important State documents, despatches, and correspondence in telegrams and letters, which passed almost incessantly between the Viceroy and the Secretary of State for India in London. But what impressed his mind more deeply than the political importance of the papers with which he had to do was the faithfulness of application and the singleness of purpose which he saw all the officials, from the Viceroy down to the assistant, show in their work. He considered that without the fear of God before their eyes they could not have done what they did.

The faithfulness of Government officials impresses a non-Christian.

ALIGARH.

Aligarh.

It was only with great difficulty that the work at ALIGARH was maintained at all, so many were the changes in the European staff of missionaries. At the beginning of the year it consisted of the Rev. and Mrs. J. F. Pemberton, Mrs. E. Durrant, Miss E. B. Durrant, and Miss J. E. Puckle. Early in the spring Mr. Pemberton left on furlough; the Rev. B. Herklots, who was transferred from Meerut to succeed him, was obliged to relinquish work after a few weeks, and eventually to come home on medical certificate; Mrs. Durrant was seized with a serious illness shortly before she left for the hills with her daughter in May, and has been obliged reluctantly to abandon her work; and the staff was further depleted by the marriage of Miss Puckle to the Rev. F. E. Markby, who at one time was a missionary of the Society. The Rev. J. S. C. Bannerjee, however, was at Aligarh throughout the year; visits were paid to the station from Agra by the Rev. W. V. K. Treanor, who in July became missionary in charge; and in the autumn Mrs. Rait was assigned to take Mrs. Durrant's place. Under the circumstances little more could be done than mark time. The Girls' Schools for Mohammedans and Hindus, containing some eighty children, went on without interruption, but the Bengali school had to be closed in consequence of the fall of its teacher into sin, and the Dispensary, which was attended by some sixteen patients each day, shared the same fate when Miss Durrant was obliged to concentrate her attention upon the care of her mother.

During the summer Mr. Bannerjee did what he could in the way of Evangelistic Work in Aligarh, paying a few visits to members of the educated classes, whom he regards as more religiously inclined than in former days. But both in the city and in the district there was a sad lack not only of European missionaries, but also of Indian agents. Mr. Treanor, contrasting the condition of affairs in this respect with that at Agra, where he had six or eight catechists to assist him in the care of half the district, while another contingent helped Mr. McLean, writes :—

> In Aligarh I found four men, one so old and feeble that he could not preach in the bazaar, and the other three all that Mr. Bannerjee had to work with him in the city and surrounding villages during the hot weather. By leaving out-stations vacant, we were able to get two more out for part of this cold weather for itineration, and I have managed to find two additional men, with some difficulty, whom we hope, if funds can be got, to be able to keep on entirely. Yet instead of half a district (in which, by the way, many villages could only be visited once in three years), we have three whole districts, Aligarh, Bulandshahr, and Etah, in which hundreds of villages have never been visited, and never can be visited by us unless we intend to visit each once in possibly six or seven years. With our present staff we are not even able to visit all the villages on the chief high-roads.

Mr. Treanor, however, recognizes with thankfulness the excellent work accomplished by the ladies of the Z.B.M.M. at both Bulandshahr and Khurja. During the cold weather Mr. Bannerjee was in camp. One day while he was absent at a confirmation in the city his colleagues were insulted and driven away from a village called Chhatari by the servants of the Nawab who owns it. Mr. Bannerjee sought an interview with the ruler, but was rudely repelled. Thereupon he wrote, explaining what had happened. No answer was received for some time, but just as the evangelists were about to leave Mr. Bannerjee was invited to tea with the Nawab, who expressed his sorrow for the discourteous behaviour of his servants, and invited the workers to stay at least three days more, so as to remove the reproach from the village. At another place the preachers were actually assaulted, and the police would have taken action against the evil-doers had the Christians not interceded for them. The latter had the reward for their patience in the autumn, for on visiting that village again the inhabitants displayed great readiness to listen to the Gospel.

A Nawab expresses regret for his servants' violence towards evangelists.

MEERUT.

Meerut.

An answer to the prayers which have been offered for MEERUT during the last two years, and especially during the latter half of that under review, began to be received in October, shortly after the return of the Rev. W. G. Proctor, the missionary in charge, from a short sojourn in the Hills. He wrote in December :—

> On Sunday, October 15th, God greatly blessed the message at the morning service. In the afternoon I was led to speak personally to two men. Both of them at once acknowledged their sins and gave themselves to the Lord. That was the beginning of the blessing.

All through that week my wife and I had to deal with individual cases who came to us under conviction of sin. The prayer-meetings, morning and evening, began to be well attended. There were heart-searching times, and confessions of sin and failure were freely made, some with tears, nearly all with broken voice. Within the first ten days there were fifteen cases of conversion, some under very deep conviction of sin, which my wife and I had to deal with, besides others with which we had no personal dealing. Since then there have been several more.

Deep conviction of sin.

Some special meetings for women had been arranged for while we were in the Hills, and afterwards meetings for men were arranged to take place at the same time. In these meetings there was much blessing and the power of the Holy Spirit was manifestly present, especially in the men's meetings. After a very solemn message on, 'If any man will come after Me, let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow Me,' an opportunity was given to those who had not previously done so and who wished to consecrate themselves fully to God's service, to stand up. Out of a gathering of about forty or forty-five men over twenty stood up.

At the time of writing, nearly two months after the blessing began, we can give thanks that it still continues. So far as we can tell, not one of those who seemed unmistakably to receive blessing has gone back.

Altogether we know of from forty-five to fifty who have received very definite blessing. Quarrels have been made up, and there is a peace and unity in the congregation unknown before.

Among the forty-five mentioned above were a young master and five of the elder boys of the hostel attached to the Boys' High School, of which Mr. E. T. Bobb was the head-master. It had the names of more boys upon its rolls than for many years past; the results of the Matriculation Examination were good; and the school earned the commendation of the inspector. The Girls' Schools, which came under the superintendence of Miss M. Cadman-Jones in May, 1905, when Miss E. Stroelin left for Europe, lost several of their pupils through the plague, but nevertheless were commended by the Government inspectress. All the teachers are Christians, and Miss S. Willis, who was transferred from Benares at the beginning of the year, and who had a Hindu school with fifty pupils placed under her charge, says that the Bible-lessons were evidently appreciated by the children. She mentions an instance in which a woman whom she was visiting repeated to her the story of Adam and Eve, saying that she had learnt it from her daughter, who repeated to her the substance of what she heard at school. The Mohammedan school slowly recovered from the effects of the baptism of the converts mentioned in the Report for 1903–4 (page 214), and once more was fairly prosperous. Unhappily one of those converts, the woman described as 'A,' reverted to Mohammedanism. While being prepared for confirmation, apparently at Allahabad, she became ill and was sent to a hospital. There she met some of her former co-religionists, and they persuaded her to run away with them. She was traced, but refused to go back, and when visited she appeared to have been drugged. Once she almost broke down, but nothing would induce her to return, and she went with her father to Delhi and was lost sight of. The Work among Women was in the hands of the ladies already mentioned, and of Miss H. L. Stowell, and although none of those whom they instructed were baptized during the year, in several instances there were grounds for hopefulness.

In the Evangelistic Work in the district Mr. Proctor had as colleagues the Rev. J. C. Harrison, who was transferred in the autumn to Sultanpur, his place being taken by the Rev. L. C. Perfumi, of Allahabad; the Rev. B. Herklots, until February, 1905, when he was assigned to Aligarh; and, from January, 1906, the Rev. S. J. Edwin, an Indian assistant missionary. The outbreak of the plague necessitated the temporary closing of the work at Hapur, and a good deal of antagonism was met with at the hands of the members of the Arya Somaj. Mr. Proctor says, however, that these people are defeating their own ends, and unintentionally and unconsciously are helping forward what they seek to oppose. He writes:—

Opposition of the Arya Somaj.

> At one place where this sect is very active, we sold to its followers a number of Christian books, chiefly Gospels and Gospel portions. The sect publishes pamphlets and leaflets with the avowed object of exposing the false and immoral teachings of the Christian Scriptures. In these, quotations are given, which are wrenched from their contexts or deliberately misquoted, in proof of their assertions. It is for the purpose of reading these quotations for themselves that these Arya Somajis purchase the Christian Scriptures. The result must necessarily be the exposure, not of Christianity, but of the Arya Somaj.

Unpopularity of the Arya Somaj.

The Arya Somaj does not appear to have altogether commended itself to the people, for frequently when books were offered for sale at the Garhmukteswar mela, the remark was made, 'It is the Arya Somaj teaching: take it away, we do not wish to be ruined by it.' In many cases when the people were told that the books contained Christian teaching, which was opposed to that of the Arya Somaj, they bought copies, and helpful conversations often ensued. At a place called Khasspur, when the women showed a readiness to listen, the men came out in force and drove them away from Miss Stowell; but near Pilkhua, one of the out-stations, there were many encouraging openings. Mr. Harrison was cheered by his experiences when in camp in the east of the district, but Mr. Perfumi has to report that in many of the villages which he visited the Christians had fallen away and denied Christ. Nevertheless, Mr. Proctor is not wholly disheartened at the aspect of the work. He says:—

The 'tenacity of old habits and customs.'

> I have been watching with sympathetic interest, and some sorrow, the perplexing condition of things in this department of our work. The gross ignorance, the hereditary tendency to evil, and the limpet-like tenacity of old habits and customs, occasion much conduct on the part of these village

Christians which calls for the most Christ-like patience and faith. My view of the work, however, in the face of all the natural disappointments experienced, remains unchanged. I believe that, rightly dealt with, the opportunity presented is one which will eventuate in a healthy, vigorous Christian Church, all the more virile, perhaps, because of the rank soil from which it springs.

Ghazia-bad.

Miss G. L. West and Miss E. R. Hall, who resided at GHAZIABAD, were able to do very little work in the city during the first six months of 1905 in consequence of an outbreak of the plague; indeed, from April until the end of June the suspicions entertained by the Hindus and Mohammedans that the missionaries were employing Indian Christians to put plague poison in the wells, made it impossible for the ladies to attempt anything among the Natives. The attendance at the Middle School for boys, however, was well maintained, and the Bible-class for European ladies and the Sunday-school for their children were continued without interruption. In the medical work Miss West felt the need of a building in which patients could be received, and she was gladdened at the end of the year by the gift of a piece of land on which to erect a hospital. Nearly 3,000 visits were paid by the Bible-women, and though fewer houses than in 1904 were open to them, many of their pupils manifested a deeper interest in the Gospel.

ANNFIELD.

Annfield.

The pastoral charge of the nearly 400 Indian Christians of ANNFIELD was in the hands of the Rev. H. Bennett, who supervised the work from Mussourie and Dehra Dun. During the cold weather he conducted some English services for the benefit of the European residents. Three-weekly prayer-meetings were held throughout the year, and evangelistic work was carried on in the villages and on the tea plantations during the winter months. A special effort was made to circulate in the district the Jaunsari version of the Gospel of St. Mark, which was one of the last productions of the late Rev. T. Carmichael.

MUSSOURIE AND DEHRA.

Mus-sourie.

The Rev. Dr. W. Hooper returned to MUSSOURIE in March, 1905, after a stay of several months at Meerut, and resumed his ministrations to the members of the English Congregation of All Saints' Church.

The work among the Natives was in the hands of the Rev. H. Bennett. He gives the history of one of the three adults baptized, a Mohammedan, as follows:—

He first heard the Gospel years ago in some down-country station, and was instructed for a time in Lucknow by the Rev. A. W. Baumann. Year after year, however, he put off making an open confession of Christ in baptism, and apparently wandered about the country dissatisfied. He even went to Australia. I first saw him four or five years ago, and on more than one occasion he begged me to baptize him. He is a Sayyid by birth, and well connected. This season after a fierce struggle he fully decided for Christ, and was prepared for baptism. The actual ceremony passed off quietly, but was immediately followed by bitter persecution. His friends connected with the Mohammedan mosque made a special collection for his benefit, and this was brought to him as an offering, those who brought it begging him to recant. The temptation was great, but he stood firm and refused to deny Christ. Beating was then resorted to, and in consequence the poor man was confined to his bed. Ultimately I thought it best to send him to Lahore for protection. He has now returned to me at Dehra and is working well.

A Mohammedan convert severely beaten.

Two adult Hindus were received into the visible Church at DEHRA, where Mr. Bennett spent the cold season, and six persons, one an adult, and all inmates of Miss Sharp's industrial institution for the blind, at Rajpur. Work at Arcadia and Markham Grant was maintained much as in previous years.

Translation Work.

Dr. Hooper was able to complete the revision of the Hindi Old Testament in the autumn, but the health of Dr. Lambert, his colleague in the work, failed before the end, and the former had to revise the greater part of the book of Job alone.

CENTRAL PROVINCES AND RAJPUTANA MISSION.

The Central Provinces of India, together with Rajputana and the other Native States known as Central India, were formed into the diocese of Nagpur in 1903, the first Bishop, Dr. Eyre Chatterton, being consecrated on March 25th in that year. The Society's work, which is carried on in the Central Provinces (since 1854), and in Rajputana (since 1880), was separated from that in the United Provinces and placed under a separate Committee in the same year. Jabalpur, the oldest of the C.M.S. stations in the diocese, was occupied in 1854; Mandla, 1879; Marpha, 1892; Patpara, 1897; Katni Murwara, 1899. In Rajputana, Kherwara was occupied in 1880; Biladia, Lusadia, and Sukulpura, 1901; and Bharatpur, 1902.

Reinforcements.

THE Mission has been reinforced by the acceptance of a re-offer of service from the Rev. Robert Hack, who from 1895 to 1903 was a missionary of the Society in the United Provinces, and retired in the latter year for family reasons. Mr. F. D. O. Roberts, who since 1893 has worked in India under the Kirku Mission, has been accepted as a missionary of the Society in local connexion, and the name of the Rev. Henry Samida has been added to the list of native clergy connected with the Society. The Committee have accepted the resignation of the Rev. J. M. Paterson, for family reasons.

The following are the members of the Jabalpur Corresponding Committee: The Bishop of Nagpur, Archdeacon G. M. Davies, Mr. C. H. Candy, Mr. G. M. Harriott, C.I.E., and the Revs. J. Fryer, E. A. Hensley, and H. J. Molony (Secretary).

I. CENTRAL PROVINCES.

JABALPUR.

Jabalpur.

THE missionaries of the Society at JABALPUR during the whole or part of the year were the Rev. H. J. Molony, the Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Challis, the Rev. and Mrs. E. A. Hensley, Mr. E. Peters, Miss M. S. Molony, and Miss M. M. Crossley, of the Victorian Association. After the departure of Mr. Hensley in March, 1905, and of Mr. Challis through ill-health in May, the duties of Mr. Molony were very onerous. He describes them as follows:—

A missionary's manifold responsibilities.

As Secretary I have spent two or three hours a day in correspondence and business, and more when a committee was impending or just over; as station missionary I have had to superintend eight catechists' work, two out-stations, a colporteur, and (there being no pastor, though one has just now been appointed) be responsible for daily prayers, Sunday services, two weekly Bible-readings, inquirers (ten adults have been baptized in the year), and the many petty affairs that pertain to a Christian congregation; as educational missionary I have had to look after one High, two Middle, and ten Primary schools, a new one having been started in the Bishop's compound this year, and my anxieties have been greatly added to at this time by a steady accumulation of debt through the year, partly due to the falling off of fee receipts owing to plague and other causes, and partly to the Government's change of system, by which they pay grants quarterly instead of monthly. Besides all these duties I have had to pay visits to Mandla, Nainpur, and Sutna (chaplain's duty) from time to time. I have acted as Bishop's examining chaplain, and taken a part in the revision of the Hindi hymn-book.

High School.

Few direct results of the work of the High School were apparent, but nevertheless it was the means of wide-spread instruction in Christian truth. Two of the boys at the Christian Hostel were so troublesome that they had to be sent away, and the step was attended with a great improvement in the behaviour of the rest. Most of the inmates of the Women's Home were able to earn their living by means of the drawn-thread industrial work, by which more than Rs. 1,800 was earned as compared with Rs. 853 in 1904. Miss Crossley accompanied the Bible-woman on her rounds, and says that, generally speaking, her message was listened to with attention. There was, however, an exception to the friendliness with which she was usually treated, for one day as she was teaching two girls in the house of a Mohammedan moulvi, their mother flew into a great passion, declaring that while she would allow her daughters to be taught Urdu, she would not permit any instruction to be given them in Christianity. Happily the woman's husband did not approve of the attitude she took up, and obliged his wife to apologize. It was afterwards discovered that women reading with the missionaries had asked this old moulvi whether they might study the Gospels, and he had given his consent. Several of them in conversation expressed their belief in Christianity, but went no farther.

Katni Murwara.

The Rev. E. Walker, who resided at KATNI MURWARA, was sorely handicapped in his work by ill-health, but he was able to visit a number of members of the Arya Somaj in their homes, and to take part in the Church services and street preaching. Some opposition was met with at the hands of the Mohammedans and the town loafers, but the people of the better classes received him kindly, and many of the Brahman farmers with whom he came in contact were eager to hear about Christ. There were good opportunities, too, for reaching the railway clerks, some of whom at the smaller stations have much leisure. Indeed Mr. Walker tells of a young man just out of college, who was led by domestic trouble to desire to become a religious ascetic, and spend the rest of his life in contemplation of the Deity and separation from the world. He felt, however, that his English education had rendered him unfit to become a true sadhu, and he therefore proposed as the best relief to his feelings to become a railway clerk. A new school was opened in the heart of the town, and soon gained an average attendance of from forty to fifty. A young educated Brahman was baptized in August, and two inmates of the C.E.Z.M.S. Converts' Home as well as some of the girls belonging to the Orphanage worked by that Society were received into the visible Church.

MANDLA, PATPARA, MARPHA, AND SUKULPURA (GOND MISSION).

Several of the Society's missionaries who labour among the Gonds refer with deep sorrow to the fall of many of the Christians either through immorality or through caste entanglements. In the early days of the Mission little difficuly was met with in connexion with caste, and the Gonds as a whole used not to object to eating with Europeans, or with Christians of their own race or from among Hindus of good caste. But latterly there has been a change. The Rev. E. D. Price writes :—

Growth of caste feeling among the Gonds.

After the famine a large number of Pankas joined the church. These the Gonds hate, and consider one who eats with them as fallen and outcaste. The Heathen made many futile attacks on our Christians, but at last made the return to caste a very inexpensive one—costing only a few pence: viz., the feeding of a few heathen caste relatives. The Gonds are an affectionate and clannish lot, and the sting of being outcasted enters deeply. Another argument used by their heathen relatives is: 'What has caste to do with religion? You can go to church and so on, and yet keep caste.' In the case of the Gonds, so far as I know, no religious observances are gone through in institution into caste. But from that to the observance of many an old heathen superstition is an easy step. Alas! we fear some of our Christians have fallen away on this question, and some are wavering. In one case a young fellow, though called by the name of Christ, has left his father's house, because his father and mother are remaining firm, and refusing to go back into caste. In another case a poor young farmer has been offered a hundred rupees, a large sum to a man who would think six rupees a month a fortune, to go back into caste. But the bribe has been rejected.

So frequent were the falls of converts, and Mr. J. L. Wakeling was so constantly sitting on committees to inquire into cases which were brought up, that he says it made him almost wonder whether he was a missionary or a magistrate. On Whit Sunday, 1905, eight persons, four of them mission agents, were excommunicated, and the day was observed as a day of humiliation and prayer instead of as a festival.

Mauled by a leopard.

The danger experienced in Gondland from snakes and wild animals also constitutes a real temptation to the converts, who witness the worship of them on every hand. Mr. Price, who himself had a narrow escape from death, being badly mauled by a leopard, from which, humanly speaking, he was only saved by his dog, a fox terrier, and who was ill for nearly half the year in consequence, speaks of seven persons in his neighbourhood as having been killed by tigers and one by a hyæna, and says concerning snakes :—

One of our leading men was asleep on a charpoi out in his field, when a snake came from his house and went into the field as far as the charpoi, and began to climb up. The rustling noise awoke him, and he jumped off his bedstead just in time. He put this down to the fact that for some time he had not performed 'snake-worship.' The one and sole object of this is to keep Shesh Nag, the king of snakes, in a good humour, that he may restrain the serpents from harming the worshipper.

Mandla.

Until her removal to Jabalpur in March, 1905, Miss M. S. Molony superintended the girls' school at MANDLA, and visited in the zenanas, while the Rev. Failbus, the Gond clergyman, preached at the mission-hall and in the bazaar. One day as the workers were returning two Mohammedan policemen were overheard discussing what had been said, and saying, 'Truly the Christian religion is the true religion.' A leading Mohammedan official displayed great interest in the Bible. The school at Nainpur, a new out-station, made a good start.

Patpara. Orphanages.

The chief part of the work of the Rev. and Mrs. J. Fryer at PATPARA was in connexion with the Orphanages, which contained about fifty boys and half that number of girls. The children did well in their examinations, eleven out of fifteen who went in gaining their Upper Primary Government certificates. Besides the orphans there were twelve lads from the district being taught. One of these was baptized in 1904, and two others asked for baptism dnring the year under review, but it was felt best to defer them for a time. At the close of the year seven of the lads were about to leave, one to set up as a farmer on his own account and the remainder to work as a Junior Native Evangelistic Band under Mr. Wakeling. They voluntarily offered for this work, and it has been arranged that they shall live together as a community. All the nineteen inmates of the Leper Asylum were Christians. Preaching was regularly carried on in the villages of the district, but without any apparent result. Mr. Fryer says that the Gond priest spoken of in last year's Report (page 221) was still much resorted to by the people, although he confessed to the missionary that he only followed Kali for the sake of making a living and knew that Christianity was true. This man, who is called a panda (priest), has great power over the people as the following incident shows. Mr. Fryer wrote in the summer :—

The power of a priest.

On April 12th I found a messenger awaiting me, who had been sent by the panda to demand my presence at his house at once.

When I arrived, I found women and men with their hair matted, &c., certainly under Satanic influence. Some of them were rolling on the ground and foaming at the mouth; others were dancing around idols, beating themselves with spiked chains. Some of the men were hitting themselves with axes and pretending to cut their throats and hack pieces out of their limbs.

Soon there were cries of 'the panda is coming, the panda is coming.' Then the panda bounded out of his house just like a madman, carrying a trident (an iron with three spikes, representing the Hindu Trinity) in his hands, with which he danced and made many thrusts in the air and towards me. He then made pretence to strike it into his body, and fell down as dead.

The women approached the panda on all fours, and began to wave their matted and very dirty hair in his face frantically. My messenger then got some oil from a bottle and poured it into his (the panda's) ear; then ashes were brought and thrown over him. This revived him, and he actually got up and had a smoke!

I then left; but the next day, about 1 p.m., two of my catechists came to me and implored me to go to the panda's, as one of our Christians—Timon, by name—was there possessed with the devil, and was dancing and doing the very same things as the panda had done.

This time headless goats and sheep were scattered about, and the people were dancing in the blood of the victims. I found Timon dancing most vigorously. I need hardly state that I was very soon among the dancers and pulled Timon out of the place.

I had him taken home, for he was not in a fit state to be talked to then. The same night after I had gone to bed I was awakened by some Christians, who said, 'Come at once, Sahib, Timon is outside his house and has erected flags on bamboos, and is dancing most frantically round them, and is calling out, "the devil is in me; I can't help myself, and he (the devil) says he will not leave me unless Fryer Sahib gives him the order to do so."'

I hastily dressed and went to Timon's house, and found him in the state just described. He seemed almost ready to drop with fatigue, but could not stop himself from dancing round the flags. I got hold of him by the arm and said, 'What is the matter, Timon?' He said, 'I can't help it; Satan is inside and won't go unless you make him, Sahib. Do make him go.'

All the time he was dancing; so I said, 'In the name of Christ I command thee, Satan, to come out of him.' Immediately Timon was all right, and pointing with his hand, cried out, 'There he goes, Sahib; I am all right now. Come on, Christian brothers, break up these flags.' We did so promptly. Then Timon said, 'Let us have some prayer, Sahib;' and we all knelt down and prayed.

A convert 'bewitched.'

The next day Timon said, 'I was sitting in my field and had some sweet potatoes, when the panda's son came and stole some. I was angry and hit the lad, and the panda being angry, bewitched me.'

Since then Timon has come regularly to church, and seems a much brighter Christian than he was before, and I have been able to tell him more explicitly the need of keeping near to Jesus, and that if Jesus went with him everywhere, Satan would have no power over him.

Mr. J. Fleming resided at Patpara while studying the language.

Marpha.

The Rev. and Mrs. E. D. Price had the companionship of Mr. A. Charles, an assistant missionary, at MARPHA during the greater part of the year, and were joined there in the autumn by Miss M. M. Crossley, transferred from Jabalpur. The dispensary was popular, and most of the cases fared well under Mr. Charles's treatment. Only one proved fatal, that of a girl who had been knocked down and mauled by a tiger when gathering wood in a jungle. Although, as already stated, the lives of many of the Christians caused sorrow, there were bright examples among them. A woman, whose baby was ill, was urged to resort to the enchantments in vogue among the Heathen. She stoutly refused to do so, and gave herself to prayer instead, and her child, whose recovery had been despaired of, was mercifully spared to her. The Bishop of Nagpur took an active part in the annual mela, which in 1905 was held at Marpha, and at which the Rev. E. H. M. Waller, of Allahabad, was the principal speaker. There were more than 100 communicants at the Sunday service. After the mela a women's school was held for a week, four hours daily being devoted to study. Besides instruction in secular subjects, systematic Bible-lessons were given, and an attempt was made to impress upon the minds of the women the uselessness of some of their native remedies for burns, scalds, and the like, and the proper treatment in such cases. A successful harvest festival was held at Diuari.

Sukulpura.

From SUKULPURA, his head quarters, Mr. J. L. Wakeling itinerated in the district, spending nearly six months in camp. One tour was to Amarkantak and to Karanjia, where the first missionaries to the Gonds, men belonging to Pastor Gossner's Mission, lived for a few months, and where four of them died of cholera in one week. Mr. Wakeling, who was accompanied by the Rev. Failbus on some of his tours, had a little trouble in procuring supplies when in the native State of Rewah, but as a rule the people listened eagerly. In some of the villages it was stated that five or even eight years had elapsed since a missionary spent a day there.

II. RAJPUTANA.

BHARATPUR.

Bharatpur.

THE Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Paterson, who carried on the work at BHARATPUR with the help of Miss Fowler, an independent missionary, until they left for England in the autumn, were cheered by the open expression of confidence on the part of the people of which they were the recipients at the time of the plague. When the outbreak first occurred the Council passed severe quarantine regulations, and entrusted the Indian doctors and police with the duty of dealing with all offenders. These men abused their power, with the result that the whole town rebelled against their tyranny, and demanded that the regulations should be altered, stating that Mr. Paterson was the only person whom they would accept as Plague Commissioner. Accordingly he was appointed, and the very day that step was taken the death rate dropped from thirty-three to three, and never rose above the latter figure until the plague was wiped out, which was within twenty-six days. The Rev. J. J. Johnson, of Benares, visited Bharatpur in December, 1905, and delivered a lecture in Hindi, which was followed by an animated discussion, before a meeting of some 500 people, including most of the important officials of the town and a large number of pundits.

Remarkable confidence shown in a missionary.

A new school was opened at Sewar, where the summer palace of the Maharajah is situated, but work in the district in general was hindered by the plague and by the reports which were diligently spread that the English were responsible for the outbreak. In one village, indeed, Mr. Paterson and his Indian catechist were attacked with sticks and stones by a large body of men. At another place, however, they were heartily welcomed by a wealthy Brahman, the hereditary teacher in a number of villages, whose authority is acknowledged by hundreds of Hindus. After the camping was over this man visited Mr. Paterson, and by so doing earned the animosity of some of his powerful neighbours, who trumped up a charge against him, and were successful in getting him fined. Another inquirer was a young Mohammedan soldier, who in his turn was persecuted, but who was only led by the action of his co-religionists to make fuller inquiry into Christianity. Evangelists attacked with sticks and stones.

KHERWARA, BILADIA, AND LUSADIA (BHĪL MISSION).

The partial failure of the rains in 1905 caused great scarcity in the Bhīl country, though the want was not so widespread nor severe as at one time was feared. There was sufficient distress, however, to make it advisable to set relief works on foot, and the people accordingly were assisted to deepen their own existing wells and make a few new ones.

At KHERWARA Mr. G. C. Vyse had several young men under training with a view to eventual employment in the Mission. Three of them asked for and received baptism, and six sat for examination, the latter rather a novel experience for the Bhīl accustomed for many generations to so wild a life. One of the six passed, and the remainder improved under further instruction. The twenty-two inmates of the Boys' Orphanage were diligent in the study of their Bibles, and showed by their lives the influence its precepts had upon them. In the general evangelistic work the hostile influence of the Brahmans in the regiment stationed at Kherwara was greatly felt. They practically boycotted any who associated with the Christians, and the son of one of the converts, himself baptized when young, fell away entirely when he joined the regiment. Mr. Vyse tells also of two cousins, who attended a mission-school, and with three other boys showed a distinct inclination to become Christians. These latter boys were baptized, whereupon the father of one of the cousins, a high non-commissioned officer, forbade his son and nephew to visit Mr. Vyse, and threatened with excommunication from caste all who associated with him. During the year this man died, and immediately the cousins recommenced attending the school. Mr. Vyse asks for prayer in their behalf that they may have courage to confess Christ openly. Kherwara. Boys' Orphanage.

The Rev. W. Hodgkinson set on foot industrial work in the form of farming for the boys of the Orphanage under his charge at BILADIA. Five of the senior lads married, and four of them settled on land near the mission-premises. Great advance has been made since the orphanage was first opened in the educa- Biladia.

tional attainments of the boys, and the school in connexion with the orphanage has been constituted a boarding-school for the whole Bhīl Mission, scholarships being offered to the pupils of other schools so that they may be able to avail themselves of the superior facilities afforded at Biladia. Some 500 attendances were registered at the dispensary which was opened, many of the patients coming from distant villages. At a place called Kantharia there seemed every probability at one time that a number of the people would become catechumens, but they were afraid of the consequences of any public profession of Christianity, saying: 'We are few in number and very poor, and if we become Christians the other villagers around will cut us off, and the ruler of the State will persecute us.' At another place, Chitrodi by name, a school was set on foot at the request of the head-men, but it had to be closed, notwithstanding the success with which it met, on account of the hostility of the authorities of the Idar State, the heir apparent of which is a member of the Arya Somaj. One adult was baptized in the district.

Boys' Boarding-school.

Hostility of authorities of a Native State.

The Girls' Orphanage at LUSADIA, under Miss A. H. R. Bull and Miss B. M. Newton, contained thirty-eight inmates, and in the spring of 1905 all who were unbaptized were admitted into the catechumenate, two of them receiving baptism later in the year. The sins of falsehood and dishonesty, so common among the Bhīls, cropped up now and again, but on the whole the character of the girls showed great improvement. Much of the time of the Rev. A. I. Birkett, the superintending missionary, was taken up with shepherding the Christians, in which task he had the valued help of the Rev. Luxman Hari, who was admitted to the diaconate during the year. As was but natural, several difficulties arose among the converts who have but lately been won from a wild and superstitious people, the chief being those caused by adherence to heathen customs and disregard of the sacredness of the marriage vow. Mr. Birkett writes:—

Lusadia. Girl's Orphanage.

Vitality of old superstitions.

> Three cases of superstition came to our notice during the year. One husband tried to cure his wife by tying some pulse round her neck like a locket. Another tied a string of black hair round his wife's leg. The pulse and the string had both been rendered efficacious by the use of spells and burning butter. In the third case the cowherd, a catechumen, offered a sacrifice of a cock to try to cure the buffalo belonging to the matron of the girls' orphanage. She had promised him a cloth if it got well, and so he did what he believed best to cure it. In another case a boy had grains of wheat strung on a string and put round his neck to cure his eyes, but, as the necklace was made at home and no spells were used, we took no action in the matter.

Among these trials there was encouragement in the liberality of the converts, notwithstanding their poverty, and in the marked answer which was granted to their prayers for rain. Seven adults were baptized, and there were several inquirers under instruction at Jeysingpur, a village eleven miles from Lusadia. Miss Bull spent six weeks at that place, and was much impressed with the kindness and love of the people and their ungrudging hospitality. She says that they vied with each other in seeking to give her of their best, although they were still suffering from famine and years of scarcity, and that when she protested one of them replied, 'You have come to be one of us, and our teacher of God.' Better still, it was evident that some at least of their old superstitions were being gradually abandoned. Miss Bull writes on this point:— Ungrudging hospitality.

> As I get into their confidence they tell many of their old superstitions and practices, and it has been a great stimulus to my own faith to hear such remarks as—'Yes, we used to listen for the "pewit's" call whenever we were about to undertake any journey or work. If one called on the right-hand side it was a good omen, if on the left it was thought so bad that we should have left whatever we had on hand to a more happy occasion, but now we recognize that God is over all our work, and we trust in Him.' There is superstition on superstition prevalent in Bhīl life, and though in the Christian Church much has died and is dying, yet a great deal still remains, and we meet with it again and again even in the seemingly more matured Christians. There is still the lurking desire to propitiate the 'evil eye,' and there is a strong undercurrent of belief in witchcraft.

PUNJAB AND SINDH MISSION.

The Punjab Mission was begun in 1851, soon after the annexation of the province to British India. The first station occupied was Amritsar, the sacred city of the Sikhs; Kangra was occupied in 1854; Peshawar, 1855; Multan, 1856; Narowal, 1860; Dera Ismail Khan, 1862; Srinagar, 1864; Bannu, 1865; Lahore, 1867; Clarkabad, 1869; Batala, 1878; Dera Ghazi Khan, 1879; Tarn Taran, 1885; Quetta, 1886; the Jhang Bar and Simla, 1899; Islamabad, 1902. Work was commenced at Kotgur in 1847, prior to the annexation of the Punjab. At Lahore, the capital of the province, the Divinity School was founded in 1870 by the Rev. (afterwards Bishop) T. V. French. The Rev. G. M. Gordon (who was killed at Kandahar, August 16th, 1880) established, mainly at his own expense, stations at Pind Dadan Khan and Dera Ghazi Khan, the latter as a base for work among the Beluch tribes. Several other stations fringe the British frontier, the most important of which is Peshawar, where work among the Afghans was established in 1855 under the auspices of Sir Herbert Edwardes, then Commissioner of the Division. In the valley of Kashmir a medical mission was started by Dr. Elmslie in 1865, which has been a great blessing to the people, especially at the time of the famine in 1880 and the earthquake in 1884. The work in the Punjab is deeply indebted to men like Lord Lawrence, Sir H. Edwardes, Sir R. Montgomery, Sir D. McLeod, Generals Lake, Taylor, and Maclagan, Colonel Martin, and others, who nobly exerted themselves to bring the Gospel to the people under their administration.

The Sindh Mission is older in date, having been begun in 1850, but is far behind in progress, owing mainly to its having always been quite undermanned. Yet important fruit has been granted to the patient labours of the Rev. J. Sheldon and others at Karachi (commenced 1850) and Hyderabad (1856), and later at Sukkur (1887) on the Indus.

The Diocese of Lahore was founded in 1877, the Rev. T. V. French, a C.M.S. missionary, being the first Bishop. He was succeeded on his retirement in 1887 by the Rev. H. J. Matthew; and he in 1899 by the Rev. G. A. Lefroy, of the Cambridge Delhi Mission.

Terrible plague mortality.

THE Punjab suffered severely from the plague in the spring of 1905, most of the victims being young people of both sexes between fifteen and twenty-five years of age. During the week ending May 6th, 1905, the plague mortality rose in the Punjab from 15,710 to 30,909, the deaths in the whole of India from that disease during the same period being 52,253, and it is estimated that since the census of 1901 the population of the Province has been reduced by nearly 1½ per cent.

Death of Mrs. A. H. Browne,

Death has been active, also, among the workers of the Mission. Mrs. Browne, wife of Dr. A. H. Browne, of Amritsar, died at Srinagar on May 30th, 1905. While her husband was away in the spring of the year on earthquake duty Mrs. Browne was exceptionally busy both in home and hospital, and when the doctor returned he found his wife tired out and exhausted. He immediately made arrangements to get her out of the heat to the hills, where he expected she would soon recover. Srinagar was selected as the most suitable place under the circumstances. The journey thither proved most trying and difficult, taking fourteen days instead of only two or three. This was owing to terrific rain-storms which destroyed many bridges en route, and caused landslips which blocked the roads for several miles. It was during this terrible journey that Mrs. Browne was attacked with fresh and serious complications, which finally resulted in her death two days after reaching Srinagar.

Miss F. A. M. Van der Pant succumbed to typhoid fever at Quetta on September 8th. She was a fully qualified nurse, having received her training at the London Hospital, and only arrived at Quetta in March, 1905. Brief as her term of service in the mission-field was, it was not without effect. Mrs. Summerhayes in an In Memoriam article which she contributed to the Punjab Mission News wrote:— Miss F. A. M. Van der Pant,

> We thank God for her beautiful consistent life, for her deep humility and readiness to learn, for her glorious faith and persistence in prayer, her strong yearning for souls, and her conviction that God would bring them in.
> A bright, holy, happy, capable Christian soul, full of love to all, one with the Indians from the first, with a high Christian standard and pre-eminently a missionary, God granted her the deep joy of seeing four inquirers come for instruction in answer to her prayers, of whom three were Mohammedans, in that last month of her life on earth. As one after another these came forward her joy increased. But she felt no surprise—hers was the faith of experience, she knew in Whom she had believed.

A few weeks after the death of Mrs. Browne, on July 3rd the Rev. Bhola Nath Ghose was called to his rest. Head-master of the school at Narowal, he was ordained in 1875, and played an active part with the Rev. R. Bateman in the remarkable revival which took place in the school about that time and gave the Punjab a band of converts who have since been prominent among the Christians. After seven years he was transferred to Amritsar, and in 1883 became pastor at Karachi. He retired from active service in January, 1900. the Rev. B. N. Ghose, Another earnest worker, though her name did not appear on the Society's list, was summoned to her eternal home in the person of Mrs. Datta, daughter of the late Dr. Rama Charan Bose, and widow of Mr. Nobo Gopal Datta, for some years head-master of the Society's school at Peshawar. After her husband's death in 1886 she laboured for five years among the poorer Christian families and adherents who attended the C.M.S. church at Lahore, and spent the remainder of her life in work among the educated classes carried on in connexion with the American Presbyterian Church, to which she belonged. and Mrs. N. G. Datta.

The Mission has been reinforced by the following:—the Rev. Harry George Grey, M.A., Wadham College, Oxford, Principal of Wycliffe Hall, Oxford, who laboured in the Punjab from 1887–1900; the Rev. Francis Edward Lucey, M.A., Worcester College, Oxford, and Bishop's Hostel, Liverpool, Curate of Rainford, St. Helen's; Mr. Harold Ernest Rawlence, M.B., B.Ch., Edinburgh, and M.R.C.S., England; Miss Emily Stuart Hamilton Lighton, of Clifton, Bristol, trained at The Olives; and Misses Ellen Roughton, of Kettering, and Florence Ethel Reinforcements.

Tunbridge, of Colwick, Staffs, both qualified nurses, who also received training under the Society at Highbury and The Willows respectively. Miss Tunbridge is a daughter of the Rev. J. Tunbridge, of this Mission. The staff has also been strengthened by the addition to it of Miss Marion Janet Price, since 1899 a missionary of the C.E.Z.M.S. at the Alexandra High School, Amritsar, who has been transferred to the C.M.S. with the sanction of that Society. Mr. Hamlet E. Clark, B.A., LL.B., Camb., a son of the late Rev. Robert Clark, whose name was identified with this Mission for fifty years, has been accepted in local connexion. The Committee have accepted the resignations of the Revs. C. E. Barton, F. Papprill, and E. Rhodes, and of Dr. W. H. Lowman, tendered on medical grounds. Dr. H. Martyn Clark has also retired from the work.

The following are the members of the Punjab Corresponding Committee:—the Bishop of Lahore, Dr. N. P. Datta, Mr. W. de M. Malan, Major R. S. Maclagan, R.E., Mr. H. E. Clark, Colonel Hendley, I.M.S., Lieut.-Colonel J. B. Hutchinson, C.S.I., and the Revs. T. R. Wade, H. G. Grey, A. C. Clarke, and P. Ireland Jones (Secretary).

I. PUNJAB.

LAHORE.

Lahore.

THE European missionaries of the Society at LAHORE during the whole or part of the year were the Rev. and Mrs. P. Ireland Jones, the Rev. and Mrs. T. R. Wade, the Rev. H. G. Grey, the Rev. and Mrs. E. F. E. Wigram, Mrs. E. Inglis and Miss E. A. Wright. The Rev. W. F. Cobb, of Multan, also spent a few months at the capital, discharging the duties of Acting-Principal of the Divinity School between the departure of Mr. Wigram on furlough and the arrival of Mr. Grey, who took the latter's place. The English Class had three students until the ordination at Advent, 1905, of the Rev. Tulsidas Mansukhani, and the Vernacular Class contained four men. The Rev. J. Ali Bakhsh, the Bishop French professor, was absent first at Montgomery-wala and then in England until October, but the different Principals had the assistance in the lectures of the Vice-Principal, Mr. Hares. The latter reports a real spiritual quickening among the inmates of the Hostel, dating from the holding of a students' camp in the autumn. He writes:—

Divinity School.

The prayer-room never empty.

> We had a truly wonderful time there, and faces were transfigured and shining with joy. Men sang and praised and prayed all day and all night. The prayer-room was never empty, but once or twice for a short time, for three days and three nights—some men never left the room night or day except for a meal occasionally—and every heart was humbled before God.
> After the camp some of the students returned to St. John's, and the revival came there too, boys and men meeting night after night for prayer and praise far into the night. Twice a week now the students of the Forman Christian College, some of whom are our own hostellers, go out for preaching in a hall in the bazaar. This is a direct result of the blessing they have themselves received.

One of the hostel students was bracketed first in the B.A. Examination of the Punjab University. There was a substantial advance at the Industrial School, which was under the charge of Mr. J. D. Finlay of Belfast, and an improved tone was manifest among the boys. In the Work among Women Mrs. Inglis had the help of Miss E. A. Wright (until March, 1905), while the Rev. T. Howell, an Indian clergyman, was in charge of the Congregation. Mr. Cobb bespeaks the prayers of friends at home for these workers among the Christians of Lahore, many of whom fail to walk worthy of their vocation. Industrial School.

AMRITSAR.

The return of the Rev. C. E. McQuaide to England on medical certificate at the end of 1904, and the departure of the Rev. D. J. MacKenzie for his overdue furlough in the following March, threw upon the Rev. A. C. Clarke the responsibility for the supervision of the whole of the work as well as of the College at AMRITSAR, of which he is the Principal. The Rev. J. F. Snee did what he could to help him at the College in the intervals of his language-study, and Mr. C. F. Hall, of Srinagar, came to the rescue for a short time, but the difficulties were accentuated by the retirement of the head-master, Mr. S. B. Mitra, after twenty-six years' service, and the sickness and subsequent death of Mr. E. Jeremiah, B.A., who succeeded him. At the end of 1905, Mr. H. C. Sircar, M.A., formerly head-master of Jay Narayan's School, Benares, was assigned to the vacant post. Under the circumstances there was no alternative but to close the College classes early in the year. The boys were not particularly successful in the examinations, but the number of pupils was well maintained, notwithstanding the raising of the fees, and it is said that there was a remarkable spirit of inquiry among them, and that several showed signs of a work of grace in their hearts. The Alexandra Girls' High School, like the College, suffered many changes in its staff, which, at the end of 1904, consisted of Misses A. J. Edgley, the Principal, and M. J. Price, both then of the C.E.Z.M.S. but now on the Society's list of missionaries, Miss E. Andrews, and Miss W. M. Weitbrecht, but before long the first-named had to return to England on medical certificate, Miss Price also came home, and Miss Weitbrecht became seriously ill. In the emergency Miss M. H. Millett was transferred from Clarkabad to take temporary charge of the school. One girl passed the Junior Anglo-Vernacular Teachers' Certificate Examination, and Amritsar. College. Alexandra Girls' High School.

the one student who sat for the Senior Vernacular Teachers' Examination came out first in the Province. All but one of the six who went in for the Entrance Examination of the Punjab University passed, and seven out of the eight who sat for the Vernacular Middle Examination. The results of the Prayer-book Examination were disappointing, but five out of the six candidates sent in for the Senior General Lake Memorial Scripture Prize Examination passed, one gaining the second and another the fourth prize, while six of the eight candidates in the junior division passed, one of them carrying off the first prize. There were signs of an increasing faith in prayer on the part of the girls, and when the earthquake occurred, one, either of the staff or of the girls, it is not stated which, stood calmly saying, 'If the Lord is coming I should like Him to find me doing my proper work.' It had been proposed that the Princess of Wales should visit the school, but it was felt undesirable, in view of Miss Weitbrecht's illness, that she should pass through the compound. Her Royal Highness, however, graciously presented the school with her portrait to make up in some degree for the disappointment. At the Middle Class Girls' School Mrs. G. T. M. Grime had Miss E. A. Wright as her colleague from March, 1905. The school buildings 'swayed like a reed' at the time of the earthquake, but happily did not fall, though the upper storey could not be used for some weeks afterwards. Some additions were made to them in the autumn with a view to increasing the accommodation, for there were from eighty to ninety girls in the school and others were anxious to enter.

'I should like the Lord to find me doing my proper work.'

Congregation.

The most pressing needs of the Congregation, which included the pupils of the two girls' schools and the workers of the C.E.Z.M.S., were a deeper spirituality and a truer spirit of unity and love. There was a healthy increase in the Sunday collections, and nearly Rs. 200 was contributed at a crowded meeting in the Clark Memorial Hall at the close of the Society's Thankoffering Week. Every fortnight a congregational prayer-meeting was conducted, and periodical social gatherings were held with a view to drawing the Christians closer together. In these and other efforts for the edification of the people Mr. Clarke was loyally supported by the Indian assistant-pastor, the Rev. Fazl-ud-din. The Rev. T. R. Wade, who was at Amritsar for two months in the spring and again at the end of the year, says that never since he first went to the Punjab in 1863 has he witnessed such a widespread spirit of prayer among the Indian Christians, or seen so many signs of a true spiritual awakening. He adds that among the non-Christians many are true inquirers, and speaks of meeting two young men (one of them a graduate and a fakir) in the book-shop, who had just bought ten English books, and investigation showed that of these two were Christian biographies and one a hymn-book, and that most of the remainder dealt with Christian evidences. Mr. Wade concludes his annual letter by saying, 'Now seekers after truth seek us, whereas in the early years of our missionary life we had to seek them.'

Signs of a true spiritual awakening.

In the work of the Hospital with its forty-eight beds, the Rev. Dr. G. B. Davis rendered such help to Dr. A. H. Browne as his study of the language permitted. The latter, who was absent for about a month in connexion with the relief work after the earthquake, speaks highly of the spiritual efforts of his Indian colleagues. He says :— Hospital.

Under the kindly influence of Dr. Zahir our numbers of patients have steadily increased, and the reputation of the hospital has been spreading far and wide, so bringing people very long distances to Amritsar specially for treatment at the mission-hospital. Good work of Indian doctors.

Our in-patient department is a very happy and encouraging feature. Dr. Andrew Das, a convert from Brahmanism, is in special charge of the in-patients, and I am indeed thankful to have him as a fellow-worker; he is always kind and sympathetic to the very poorest of our patients, and while fond of his work and ever reading up his cases, he yet keeps well in the foreground that the main and leading principle of our work is to proclaim the love of God and the salvation to be obtained through the grace of our Lord Jesus. With co-workers like him and Dr. Zahir (a convert from Mohammedanism) my work in Amritsar has been greatly lightened; their influence on our hospital staff of Christians and on the non-Christian patients makes things work smoothly, and their loyal co-operation is certainly to be counted not least among the many blessings with which we have been surrounded.

The branch dispensary at Beas was re-opened after the lapse of some years, and steady advance was made at that at Narowal, of which Dr. Mohammed Hussain (see Report for 1903–4, page 233) was in charge. Good work was accomplished at the Jandiala and Ram Das dispensaries, but at Sultanwind there was a marked decrease in the number of patients.

In order to increase the efficiency of the Evangelistic Work, the Rev. R. H. A. Haslam, of the Canadian C.M.S., gave much attention to the spiritual and intellectual equipment of his Indian colleagues, encouraging them in a deeper study of their Bibles and seeking to lead them to greater earnestness in prayer and diligence in reading helpful books. Large and attentive audiences gathered at the city preaching-hall, there were many inquirers under instruction for baptism, and in several respects evidence appeared of a working of grace in the hearts of the people. Among those actually admitted into the visible Church were two girls, old enough to decide for themselves, and five women, all led to Christ through the medical work of the ladies of the C.E.Z.M.S. At Majitha, the school, under Mr. E. Nehemiah as head-master, added to its list of honours and successes. The Rev. Wadhawa Mull, who suffered much from ill-health, was pastor at Bahrwal-Atari. The Ajnala Evangelistic Work.

district was visited by the Rev. W. P. Hares and a band of the Divinity College students, who gained a fresh sense of the work left undone. Preaching in the villages all round their base they only met with two Christians, both of them agents of the Society, in the course of three weeks and a half.

BATALA.

Batala.

Baring High School.

At the distribution of prizes at the Baring High School for Christian boarders at BATALA, which took place in March, 1905, the Principal, the Rev. J. A. Wood, reported that four out of the five lads who sat for the Entrance Examination of the University of the Punjab were successful, and that a number of boys passed creditably in the Lake Memorial Scripture Examination, though none of them carried off a prize. Mr. Wood's duties include the superintendence of the A.L.O.E. High School, with its non-Christian pupils, of which Mr. L. M. Sircar, B.A., is head-master. The number of boys (280) is nearly double what it was five years ago, and almost ninety per cent. of those presented for the Upper Primary and Entrance Examinations in the year 1904–5 passed.

The work in the district, including that at the two out-stations, Fathgarh and Uddoke, was under the Rev. R. Force-Jones. At one of the villages a Mohammedan resides, the notorious Mirza of Qadian, who conducted the controversy with Mr. Abdullah Athim at Jandiala in 1893 (see Annual Report, 1893–4, pages 119–122), and who claims to be the Messiah. His pretensions have caused a widespread spirit of inquiry, and the people in their anxiety to test his claims display great anxiety to purchase copies of the Gospels.

NAROWAL.

Narowal.

NAROWAL, where the Rev. C. M. Gough was stationed, did not escape the shock of the earthquake, though happily the loss of life was but small. One of the churches was so badly damaged that its use had to be discontinued, and the tower of the other was injured. Later in the year there was an outbreak of plague, partly due to the obstinate folly of a man of some influence, which prevented its being dealt with in the early stages. About 100 persons died in the town, but, thanks to the prompt precautions taken by Mr. Gough, none of the Christians were attacked. The disease affected the attendance at the Anglo-Vernacular School, of which Mr. Chatterji is the head-master, but the Christian Boys' Boarding-school continued to grow.

In order to reach the children of Christians and catechumens in the villages, who could not be spared from work by their parents for long, three small schools were opened in which instruction was given for two hours a day. There are 250 villages in the district worked from Narowal, in about two-fifths of which Christians are to be found. At some places there was distinct advance in knowledge and spiritual understanding and in sincere endeavour to lead consistent lives, but in others the standard of Christianity was low. Mr. Gough writes:—

In all attempts to understand what these people really are, we must always remember the extreme degradation and ignorance out of which they are emerging. Not only the out-caste people, but the vast majority of Hindus and Mohammedans in the villages are enslaved by gross superstitions, and one might almost say that the real religion of many of the people in this part of India is the worship of fakirs (religious beggars) and pirs (so-called saints) and tombs. There are many among our poor Christians whose faces and manners, when compared with those of their heathen neighbours, show that even their limited knowledge of Christ and His salvation has produced a great change in them.

Changed faces and manners of those who become Christians.

Mohammedans and Hindus sometimes find fault with us for receiving these poor people, and say that their presence in the Christian Church is keeping away inquirers from the higher classes. Even if this is anything more than a mere excuse to cover their own indifference to the Gospel message, what else can we do? Not only have we the example of our Lord Himself, of Whom it is recorded that 'the common people heard Him gladly,' but it is now too late to take any other course.

The vast majority of the Indian Christians of the Punjab belong to the poorer classes, and our greatest hope of success is not in leaving these classes alone, but in raising them, so that they may themselves by their lives be witnesses to the power of the Gospel. Already in some places, where the Indian teacher is efficient and the Christians are making progress, people of the classes next above them are beginning to ask for teaching, while Hindus and Mohammedans often associate with even poor Christians with a friendliness which they would not show to non-Christians of a similar class. Christians have now a recognized position in the town of Narowal, and are tolerated and even at times welcomed in a way hardly dreamed of years ago.

Fifty adults were baptized during the year, and Mr. Gough says that since he took over the charge of the district nearly nine years ago 634 persons have been received into the visible Church. The lack of any marked increase in the number of converts as given in the statistics of the Mission is due in part to the removal of many of them to the Chenab Colony, and in part to the weeding out of merely nominal Christians as their true characters became evident. At the end of 1905 Miss E. M. Hall, who had been working in the Batala district for a few weeks, was transferred to Narowal.

TARN TARAN.

A graphic description of the earthquake of April, 1905, at TARN TARAN, and of the narrow escape of the Rev. R. H. A. Haslam, who was then staying at the station (see last year's Report, page 229), was given shortly after the event by the Rev. E. Guilford. He wrote:—

Tarn Taran.

We were sitting at chota hazri when suddenly the house seemed to be lifted from its foundations, and rocked to and fro at a terrifying angle. A bound and a leap took us in a moment into the garden to escape what seemed inevitable—the violent fall of the whole house.

At the time Mr. Haslam, of Amritsar, was staying with us, as he had come over with four Indian preachers to help at the great fair then being held here. He had gone off at about 5 a.m. with our chaukidar to see the wonderful sight which is presented at these fairs of tens of thousands of Sikhs all plunging at the same time into the sacred water of the tank, for which this place is famous throughout the whole of India. A few minutes after the earthquake had subsided, I was terrified by seeing the chaukidar return, with pale face and trembling limbs, saying that he had lost sight of the Sahib, and that some place around the tank had fallen and killed several persons. To dress was but the work of a few minutes, but just as I was rushing off to the scene of the disaster to ascertain the fate of our friend, my heart gave a leap for joy and gratitude in seeing him returned safe and sound. He had had a very narrow escape. He had been invited by one of the priests of the temple, which stands on the margin of the tank, to ascend to the roof of the temple and witness the scene from there, but learning that he would be required to take off his shoes to do so, he declined, and moved off to go to another place. This, too, he was prevented from entering by some mistake of his guide. Within a few minutes the huge golden dome of the temple had crashed down upon the very spot where he would have stood had he gone there, and the other place had fallen and mangled to death nine persons and severely crushed four others. On reaching the scene with the tahsildar and other officials, the sight that appeared was gruesome in the extreme. The mangled corpses of those who but a few moments before had been fine, handsome, stalwart Sikhs, the gaping wounds of the injured, and the look of terror which appeared on the faces of the thousands of pilgrims present, will never fade from one's memory. The houses in the town have suffered greatly, there being but very few that show no signs of their recent rude shaking.

A very narrow escape.

A day or two after the earthquake Mr. Guilford hurried off to Kangra to do what lay in his power for the sufferers from the overwhelming destruction in that region. Soon after his return to Tarn Taran he was joined by the Rev. B. L. Datt, a blind Indian clergyman on the retired list, formerly stationed at Kangra, who was able to render some assistance in the care of the 400 Christians in the district. A number of these people were confirmed in the summer, and they gave liberally of their slender means towards religious and other objects. A pleasing instance of their generosity was a thankoffering of Rs. 50 made by the pupils and teachers of a school for the recovery of a lady missionary who laboured among them. This gift was devoted to the building fund of a new church at the Leper Asylum which was consecrated during the year. Sixty-two persons were admitted into the visible Church, and the number would have been much larger but for the care exercised to ensure that there was a real change of heart in those baptized. Mr. Guilford writes as follows of the baptism of a young widow, who lived with her Mohammedan parents :—

Sixty-two persons baptized.

Her father was himself an inquirer some years ago, but shrank from taking the final step, and then fell back and became hostile to us as so many have done who have failed at the last moment to yield to the strivings of the Spirit within them. However, he did not object to his daughter going to the C.E.Z.M.S. Girls' School in the town. In due course she left school for a married life, but her husband died after some months, and she returned to her parents. She had not been long settled with them when she was stricken with a mortal disease and was taken to the Zenana Mission Hospital. Here loving care and daily teaching fanned her smouldering love for Christ into a flame. After a few months in hospital, her parents, seeing that her case was hopeless, took her home to die. Day by day she pleaded with them to let her confess her Saviour Christ in baptism, and at last, when they thought that she was at the point of death, they consented.

A striking baptismal service.

It was dusk when the father came and requested me to come and baptize his child. Never shall I forget the scene. There, in a large compound which contained the homes of several different families, whose maternal heads were cooking unleavened cakes of bread for the evening meal while the men and children squatted expectantly around, and the milch kine and draught cattle were munching their fodder from the troughs around the wall,—there in the midst of this strange collection of living creatures lay the frail and wasted body of the girl whose soul the angels were soon to carry to Abraham's bosom. At the foot of the bed stood the father with a lantern in his hand to lighten the pages of the grand baptismal service, while at the head stood the sorrowing mother, and on either side the two English ladies who had so lovingly nursed and taught the patient. The compound was profoundly silent while this regenerated soul was brought into Christ's visible Church; and His presence Who said, 'Suffer' them 'to come unto Me,' was felt to be very real and near. The girl lingered on for about a week after her baptism, and then entered into the joy of her Lord.

CLARKABAD.

Clarkabad.

All the work at CLARKABAD, the Christian village of which Mr. H. E. Clark, now a missionary of the Society in local connexion, was superintendent, was affected by the discontented attitude of the people. Miss E. M. Hall, who was at the station for the first part of 1905, and was afterwards transferred to Narowal, writes on this point as follows:—

Discontent of Christian settlers.

They insisted that having worked so long tilling the land they had a right to be owners of it, and they refused to pay the accustomed tax of the crops. They met together to talk over their grievances, and excited one another to deeds of disorder. The efforts of the missionaries to teach them or to show them their folly were of no avail: when we went round to visit the women sometimes they were very rude, and would not allow us to speak to them. Sometimes one party, sometimes another, might ask forgiveness, but there were evidently leaders whom they dared not offend. Attendance at church fell off, and they became very impatient under discipline.

Orphanages.

Two of the lads belonging to the Boys' Orphanage, under Mr. A. Dungworth, died of the plague, their sufferings during the famine having left them with insufficient stamina to withstand the disease. Several of the elder lads gave trouble, and towards the end of the year the attendance of day pupils at the orphanage school fell from thirty-five to six, the troubles referred to above making it impossible to put pressure upon the parents to send their boys. The twenty-six orphans received instruction in various forms of industrial work. Miss M. H. Millett was in charge of the Girls' Orphanage, with its forty-five inmates, until the return of Miss M. J. Farthing in February, 1905, when the former went to Amritsar. Much anxiety was experienced concerning the plague, for some dead rats were found in the compound, but happily the precautions taken proved effective, though the attendance of the day-scholars from the village had to be stopped. Visits were paid by the ladies to Chhota Clarkabad, the second Christian village, and to several of the heathen villages in the district, but in some places the people were too much occupied with taking advantage of an exceptionally good cotton season to listen to the Gospel, and in others they displayed antagonism to what was said. In the autumn Miss B. H. Nevill and Miss M. E. Farthing returned from England, and the latter and her sister were transferred to Montgomerywala, but the failure of Miss M. E. Farthing's health obliged her to leave that station after a short time, and she and her sister were assigned to Lahore. Mr. S. Gillespie has been transferred to Gojra.

THE CHENAB COLONY.

Chenab Colony.

The work of the Society in the CHENAB COLONY (see Annual Report for 1903–4, page 240) lies within the district known as the Jhang Bar. The Rev. E. F. E. Wigram gives the following explanation of the latter term :—

> A doāb (do = two, āb = waters) is the whole tract of country between two rivers. A bār is that whole tract minus the naturally fertile strip which runs down either river's banks; and is in fact all that portion which would be practically desert but for irrigation. The town of Jhang, being the head quarters of a Deputy-Commissioner, gave the name of Jhang Bar to the whole south-west end of the Rechna Doab, i.e. the country between the Ravi and the Chenab. When irrigation was brought in, the C.M.S. took the lower portion (S.W.) of the newly settled country, and the American United Presbyterians the upper portion (N.E.). All the district we work between these two rivers is Jhang Bar, but the Jhang Bar stretches N.E. of us as well, into the United Presbyterians' district.

The Rev. T. Holden, who was in general charge of the work in this tract of country, which contains nearly half of the 10,000 Christian adherents in the Punjab connected with the Society, had the pleasure of welcoming a European colleague in the person of Mr. S. Gillespie, who had previously been stationed at Clarkabad. Some trouble was caused by the incursion into the district of an agent of the American Episcopal Methodists, who baptized more than fifty unworthy persons in one of the villages, but who withdrew from the district in response to friendly remonstrances; an American member of a so-called Faith Mission also caused anxiety. The schools did not appear to be popular with the Christians, though they were energetically managed by Munshi Waris-ud-din, a diocesan reader, who also took part with the Rev. Ihsan Ullah in conducting the class which was held for seven weeks in the summer to give Biblical instruction to the scattered agents. A good deal of difficulty was experienced in finding suitable men to act as teachers. Mr. Holden writes on this point:—

Unsuitable teachers.

Of three Indian candidates during the year, one arrived in the morning, bringing a chair with him, and left by the first train the next day. Himself of Chuhra origin, he considered himself too noble, or too respectable, to work among low-caste Christians, who worship God sitting on the ground. Another confessed that he never expected that kind of work, and it would not suit his constitution at all. He left within a week. A third, transferred from Ajnala, in the Amritsar district, had nothing but complaints to utter about his hardships, one of which, by the way, was to live in a house Mr. Bateman and myself have often occupied, and after three months he withdrew, and is now working near his former sphere.

For the purposes of organization the district is divided into ten portions, each containing about fifteen villages, and each under the charge of an Indian agent. Mr. Holden himself resided at GOJRA, where a book depôt was opened for the sale of Scripture portions and vernacular school books. The Rev. Ihsan Ullah had his head quarters at Toba Tek Singh, but Montgomerywala, where the largest body of Christians is found, was without any resident clergyman after the departure of the Rev. T. Howell for Lahore early in the year, saving for a couple of months when the Rev. J. Ali Bakhsh was there. Both at Montgomerywala and Batemanabad there was a handful of settlers, for the most part former mission agents, who were 'potent for mischief.' At the latter village seven of the worst families, the same people who a few years ago avowed their intention of embracing Mohammedanism (see Report for 1902–3, page 239), joined the Plymouth Brethren, and did their utmost to induce others to follow their example. Happily there were some bright incidents, as in an outlying village where the Christians met for daily evening prayers and singing of hymns, and disregarded the orders of the non-Christian zemindar who called upon them to desist, on the ground that the music attracted numbers of children and might lead them in their turn to embrace Christianity, but nevertheless Mr. Holden is obliged to confess sadly that he is unable to perceive any 'signs of an advance all along the line.' Thirty-eight adults were baptized.

MULTAN.

The staff of the Society at MULTAN consisted of the Rev. W. F. Cobb, the superintending missionary, and Mrs. Cobb (excepting for a few months in the summer when Mr. Cobb was Acting-Principal of the Divinity School at Lahore), the Rev. Talib Masih, the Rev. and Mrs. E. Johnson-Smyth, Dr. Annie W. and Miss L. Eger, Miss M. L. H. Warner, and Dr. C. Muriel Scott, who had spent the first part of the year helping in the C.E.Z.M.S. hospital at Batala. Mr. Cobb speaks of the Congregation as sadly lacking in the spirit of unity and love, and says that there were several occurrences which caused great sorrow and shame; he adds, however, that a few of the converts led consistent lives and manifested zeal for the extension of Christ's kingdom, and that the contributions of the pastorate to the District Sustentation Fund exceeded the amount which had been promised. Among the sad occurrences was the perversion to Hinduism of a young man who was baptized at the beginning of 1905. He had often asked for baptism, but it had been deferred in the hope that his wife would stay with him. Soon after his admission to the visible Church the members of the Arya Somaj sent his wife away from Multan, and when the young man, who was much attached to her, followed her to Jhang to try to get her back, he was led to deny his faith. The examination results at the High School were fairly good, and the boys carried off eleven prizes in the Merk Athletic Cup Tournament, and easily gained the first place in the physical drill. The Sunday-school which had been started among the boys in the winter of 1904–5 had to be discontinued, partly because the numbers fell off, and partly because no voluntary teacher for it could be secured from among the members of the congregation. Mr. Johnson-Smyth says that of the three lads mentioned in last year's Report (page 241) as seeking after the truth, one was baptized at Bannu, another was taken away from the school because he openly announced his intention of becoming a Christian, and the third stood firm to his purpose. The lack of Indian workers was felt at the Women's Hospital as well as in connexion with the High School, for Dr. Annie Eger laments the great difficulty she experiences in obtaining nurses. Two were employed during the year, but one of them developed phthisis and had to be treated as a patient, and the other was anxious to receive further training in England, and was discouraged, moreover, at the smallness of the staff. One of the three girls obtained from the Secundra Orphanage for training as nurses died, and when Dr. Annie Eger wrote it appeared likely that another would follow her. The number of in-patients was well maintained, and a happy change took place in the attitude of some of them towards the Gospel. The dispensary in the city was closed in the spring of 1905 as it did not appear to be appreciated, but the village dispensary at Muzaffarabad was kept on, and a change of quarters which was made there brought about increased attendances. Miss L. Eger and Miss Warner found that the Work among Women was much hindered by the fear the women manifested of displeasing their male relatives by even appearing to favour Christianity. The school for Hindu girls, which was opened in 1904, seemed to be taking root, but that for Mohammedans was less successful. There is a great difference in the demeanour of the children of the two religions: the Hindus are very noisy, while the Mohammedans, who are kept in purdah at so early an age and have their minds dulled by the incessant repetition of the Koran, are listless and apathetic.

The Middle School at Bahawalpur, three and a half hours by rail from Multan, containing over 200 Hindus and thirty Mohammedans, is of great importance as the only missionary agency in the State of that name. Mr. Johnson-Smyth went over from Multan once a month to inspect the school and conduct services for the little congregation, while Mrs. Johnson-Smyth visited one or two zenanas into which she was introduced by the wife of the head-master. Mr. and Mrs. Cobb and Miss Warner spent several weeks itinerating in the district. At one place they met an old Sikh who had for some years possessed a Bible, out of which he taught his fellow-villagers. He had, however, led them to believe that he was specially imbued with the Spirit of Christ, with the result that he had taken the place among them which Christ should occupy. They were quite ready to be taught, and a catechist was occasionally sent to them. Another tour was made by Mr. and Mrs. Cobb in company with Dr. C. Muriel Scott. In some villages crowds of women came for medicine, and good opportunities for speaking in the zenanas were obtained in several places and utilized.

SIMLA AND KOTGUR.

At Simla, where the Rev. J. Redman was in charge, serious damage was done to the church by the earthquake, necessitating considerable temporary repairs pending the erection of a new building. Mr. Redman acknowledges with thankfulness the liberality of the Christians, their love of the Scriptures, their regularity in holding family prayer, and the cheerful manner in which they accept affliction and trial as the loving discipline of their Heavenly Father, but he longs to see among them deeper spirituality and more zeal. Two lectures to non-Christian Indian gentlemen were delivered by the Bishop of Lahore, the one on 'The Forgiveness of Sins,' and the other on 'The Resurrection.' A brisk discussion followed, and some of the audience, at their own request, were afterwards invited to the Bishop's house for a further consideration of the subjects of the lectures. One young man was baptized, who had been led to Christ at Ludhiana, and had devoted himself to work as a Christian sadhu. It is worthy of note that the local expenses of the Society's work at Simla are met by the European residents at the station, and that while he was in India Lord Curzon was a regular subscriber to the local fund.

Dr. A. and Mrs. Jukes were the only European missionaries at Kotgur during the year, excepting for a few weeks in the summer when the Rev. J. F. Snee and the Rev. Dr. G. B. Davis resided there while engaged in language-study. Most of the sixty Christians at the station were usually present at the Sunday services, and those held daily were attended by a large number of workmen engaged in carrying out the repairs rendered necessary by the earthquake. The opening of a Government primary school in the neighbourhood, at which no fees were charged to agriculturalists, made it necessary to discontinue fees at the mission-school, and involved considerable loss to the Society. In consequence of the severe winter comparatively few patients came to the Hospital, and pressure of other work compelled Dr. Jukes to close the dispensary on three days in the week, but the attention paid to the Gospel by the patients was greater than before, and was in marked contrast to the spirit of indifference which reigned in the villages.

Hospital.

At the beginning of March, 1905, the Rev. J. Tunbridge, whose head quarters were at SIMIALA, was in camp in the Native States of Mandi and Suket. Towards the end of the month he proceeded to the Kulu district, and was encamped with Mrs. Tunbridge and his daughter in an old bungalow at the top of the Dulchi Pass when the terrible earthquake of April 4th occurred. The party had a narrow escape, and passed through some dreadful experiences before they were again in safety. Mr. Tunbridge writes :—

> So sudden and violent was the shock that the out-houses came down with a rush, burying several of our people and badly injuring two. In the bungalow parts of the walls came down, and covered us with dust, but not a stone fell on us. We rushed outside to see and hear the cliffs and rocks falling around, but not even a tiny pebble moved just where I stood with my trembling wife and little one. The coolies and men of the place disappeared as if by magic, and left us to our own devices. We were twenty-seven in the party, besides fourteen mules, &c. There was a general rush of men and animals up to the little space where we stood trying to get on some clothes. It was about 6 a.m., and a more perfect spring morning never dawned on earth. The muleteers were callous and more brutish than the dumb animals they owned. I trust never again to see such specimens of humanity. But our Christians were heroic. It drew me nearer to them a long way to watch their quiet determination and energy as they helped each other and ourselves at imminent risk of their lives, for the shocks were almost continuous. To make matters worse they were hungry from the previous day, having been disappointed in getting supplies on arrival at the pass. As soon as possible I took my wife and child and the injured ones about a quarter of a mile down the road to a safer and more open spot. The road and hillsides were rent and torn everywhere, and the path to the bungalow had gone down the ravine except a narrow ledge. Eventually we picked our way over the torn road to some three miles down the hill to a place called Tiri. This we found in ruins, but no lives lost. We camped in some narrow ploughed fields, terraced out of the hillside below the road, and there remained for three days to recover our wits and rest the injured. The poor villagers were most kind, refusing to sell our people food, but giving them a handful of flour, &c., here and there as it could be found. It was some days before supplies could be obtained. We sent twenty-five miles in two directions, and the men returned with only a few pounds each.

Heroism of Converts.

They reported general destruction everywhere, and the people starving. When we left Tiri, the villagers—men, women, and children—all turned out to help us down the next few miles to Kathanle rest-house. About a mile ahead we found the road hopelessly blocked by landslips, but exactly at this spot we struck a narrow path down the hillside and a short cut to Kathanle. A hundred yards on, however, this too had gone. Here again God came to our rescue. A few huts on the other side—all down—provided us with road-makers. One of the men climbed the steep to give warning of falling rock, while others repaired the break below for us to pass. A perilous journey.

In the midst of these trials Mr. Tunbridge was cheered by his syce, who was an inquirer, asking for baptism. Death seemed so near that he was afraid to delay, but he was not baptized until later in the year. When the journey was resumed, the party, including it must be remembered two badly injured servants as well as the child, could only make their way with difficulty, for they had to clamber over fallen rocks, and the only spot for a camp was sometimes between huge boulders on the brink of a river, with a great hill towering above them. Their nerves naturally were in a constant state of tension, which was not lessened when one day, as they were climbing a hill, another shock was felt, and two mail runners came breathlessly round the corner, one of whom had nearly been hurled down the precipice, but had been caught by his companion just in time. Eventually the weary travellers reached Mandi, where more than 200 deaths had occurred, and there they rested for a few days, disturbed at night by the prolonged cry of terror which rose from the whole city whenever there was a bad shock. By April 21st they at length reached the Kangra Valley, and met the Rev. E. Guilford and Dr. A. H. Browne, who had come to the rescue, but there Mr. Tunbridge's daughter, who had cheered them with her simple faith all through the dangers of the journey, became seriously ill, and in a few days every member of the camp was laid low with fever, bronchitis, dysentery, or some other disease. As soon as possible Mr. Tunbridge went away to Dalhousie, and in the autumn, having seen Mrs. Tunbridge and his daughter off to England, he proceeded to Kangra. Four of Mr. Tunbridge's servants, including the syce already mentioned, were baptized. A dangerous camp.

KANGRA AND DHARMSALA.

Brief mention was made in last year's Report (page 229) of the destruction of the mission-house at KANGRA by the earthquake on April 4th, 1905, and of the death of three missionaries in the ruins. In all, forty-six persons were killed in the mission-compound; the Leper Asylum was levelled with the ground, and most of its inmates, including three Christians, met their death; while the Golden Temple, so long the pride of the place and the goal of many thousands of weary pilgrims from all parts Kangra. The earthquake.

of India, was utterly destroyed and not a single wall was left standing in the town. Everything possible was done for the relief of the sufferers by the Rev. E. Guilford, of Tarn Taran, Dr. A. H. Browne, of Amritsar, Mr. S. Gillespie, of Clarkabad, and Miss Macnaghten, of the C.E.Z.M.S., as well as by the Government officials who hurried to the spot, but their difficulties were enhanced by bands of men from the plains who joined the criminal classes of the hills in a general loot, and by the lawlessness which ran riot for weeks. The Rev. B. L. Datt, the blind Indian clergyman, who with his wife was buried in the ruins of his house, but providentially escaped without even a scratch, went to reside at Tarn Taran, and for some time Kangra was left without any missionary, but in the autumn the Rev. J. Tunbridge took up his residence there. He found the people more friendly than ever before, and clamouring for the re-opening of the High School, and writes :—

Detachment of mind from idolatry through the earthquake.

So far as I can judge there are many signs all over the district of the detachment of mind from idolatry produced by the earthquake. Fallen temples everywhere make eloquent appeals to the people. Everywhere and always we are getting evidence of this. Our prayer is for a revival of this little distracted Church, that through it a rich harvest of souls may be gathered in. Alas! that our hands are tied, and our numbers are so few. This is the day of opportunity, and we cannot adequately seize it.

At DHARMSALA Miss M. C. F. Michaelis, of the Berlin Ladies Society, who was in temporary charge of the Society's school, was buried in the débris of the house for three hours, but was saved by the railings of an iron bedstead meeting over her. All the fourteen children of the school were killed, and two of the servants. Miss Michaelis went to Dalhousie for six months to recruit, but returned to the district in the autumn.

II. KASHMIR.

SRINAGAR.

ALMOST all observers agree in regarding the Hindus and Mohammedans of Kashmir as peculiarly difficult to influence for good, although they display but little fanaticism. Dr. E. F. Neve writes :—

Absence of fanaticism in Kashmir.

The friendly relations existing between Mohammedans and Hindus are remarkable, and are partly to be explained by the fact that many Hindu customs have survived, even among Mohammedans. The worship of sacred places, shrines, tanks, and springs is still universal. Often one tank will have a Hindu astan on one side and a Mohammedan ziarat on the other. Recently, when on tour, I pitched my tent on a peninsula in the middle of a tank, and the droning sound of a Hindu chanting his Shastras on one side and of a Mohammedan dervish reciting the Koran on the other side seldom ceased.

Among the Mohammedans, the village worship usually centres at the tomb of some holy man. Gifts are brought to it by the villagers—fowls, rice, ghee, and sometimes money. The custodians of the tombs are usually descendants of the 'holy' man interred therein. They are called pirs or pirzadas, and wield considerable influence. They can usually read, and a common arrangement is for them to take turns in conducting the worship of the village mosque. Besides receiving the offerings of the faithful they eke out a rather precarious livelihood by making and selling charms. These consist of a short verse of the Koran, or even an undecipherable scribble on a scrap of Kashmir paper, folded up and stitched in a little piece of cloth or leather perhaps two inches long and one inch and a half broad. This is tied round the neck of the applicant or round one of his arms. If there is disease of the foot or leg it may be found attached to the ankle or knee. In cases of illness the pirzadas are usually called in, and they recite prayers and issue fresh charms. The common people have great faith in these pirs.

Srinagar.

In SRINAGAR, where most of the Society's Kashmir missionaries are stationed, the obstacles of ignorance and superstition are intensified by the prevalence of a low standard of morals, great religious apathy, and 'phenomenal timidity.' Bearing the character of the people in mind, the Rev. C. E. Tyndale-Biscoe has made it his aim to impress the practical side of Christianity upon the 1,500 boys under his charge in the High School and its branch schools, while at the same time setting forth Christ as the Saviour of the world. He thus describes some of his methods :—

High School.

Practical Christianity.

We bring before them the life of Christ morning by morning, and, though they are Brahmans, they allow that there could be no life higher. Then to make it practical, we ask them to live this life of unselfishness in their homes and streets, and we soon find ways for doing this. One boy knows of a blind man near him who with difficulty can fetch his water from the slippery banks of the river. Another boy knows of an old infirm woman who finds her water-pot a great strain to lift on to her shoulder and carry home. Then they all know of sick cases and cripples around them, who need a change from the fœtid air of their drainless surroundings.

Here comes in the use of the school boats. A crew marches off to the home, picks up the sick one and carries him through the streets to the boat, often being jeered, laughed and cursed at by the neighbours, who taunt the boys with wishing to become Christians, as, according to their views, these Brahman boys are defiling themselves by touching the sick, especially if the sick one is a Mohammedan. The boys are beginning to rather enjoy the cursing and go off in high spirits, heading for the beautiful lake, whence after two or three hours they return with their cargo and repeat the carrying job and receive the curses again from their fellow-religionists, the holy Brahmans.

You can well understand now how these boys listen to and read the Gospels, as they see that it is not all talk, but actual life, which touches not only school, but home and street.

An original method of awarding marks.

Mr. Tyndale-Biscoe says that during the year under review more than 150 sick folk were taken out in the school boats, regardless of caste, while at times of flood, such as in September, 1905, the masters and boys were able to help a large number of people in distress. Marks are given on an original plan, 900 being awarded for mind, 1,000 for body (not for skill in games but for keenness) and 2,100 for soul. Those given for soul include a maximum of 400 for conduct towards masters (obedience, respectfulness, truthfulness), 300 for conduct towards boys (comradeship, pluck, good-temper), 200 for conduct towards the school (esprit-de-corps), and 200 for conduct towards the city folk (citizenship). The persistent efforts of past years have happily made some impression upon the boys, and Mr. Tyndale-Biscoe in his characteristic annual letter writes :—

Increasing truthfulness of schoolboys.

Kashmiris are the greatest liars under the sun, so I tell them; to which they assent, saying, 'Han, Sahib, beshakk' ('Yes, Sahib, it is true'), Q.E.D. This being the case, you can understand how pleased I felt at an incident yesterday when three boys were brought before me for punishment for cribbing. I asked the first boy if it was true that they were guilty. The boy looked me straight in the face, and said, 'Yes, it is true that I cheated, but please, Sahib, the other boys did not do so.' I felt inclined to hug him, but I refrained and gave him his punishment, and to-day, when he brought me his task finished, I told him how proud I was of him, &c. In my first seven years here I do not remember one single case of a boy telling me the truth in face of punishment, but in the eighth year I had one boy. Then in the next year I had two instances; in the following year there were five cases, and since then the number has been increasing. As in the case of the improvement in truth-speaking, so in other virtues we are going uphill with increasing speed, which is cheering.

Moreover, although but few of the boys have been baptized, Mr. Tyndale-Biscoe and his colleague, Mr. C. F. Hall, have the satisfaction of knowing that the teaching given in the school is not altogether fruitless. To quote the former again :—

A schoolboy leads his mother to throw away her idol.

One of the C.E.Z.M.S. ladies had made friends with a Hindu woman, a Brahmani, after a good deal of difficulty, and after much persuasion (for she said that they taught dreadful things at the mission-school) she sent her little son to it. Last week the woman called on her, and said, 'Miss Sahib, what shall I do, for I can no longer worship the gods, for my boy tells me everything that he learns at the school, and the teaching is very good and beautiful? He told me that the Sahib had said that God made all things, and that He made all the gold and silver and all things. Now, I am a poor woman, and I cannot afford to have gold and silver gods, but my gods are of clay, and if the gold and silver belong to the great God, then the clay does also. Therefore, when I went to the river this morning to worship and looked at the clay god in my hand, I said, "This cannot be God, for God made all things." I therefore threw my clay god into the river, and now I cannot do my worship. Am I a very wicked woman? for all my neighbours say that I am. What shall I do? but what my son learns is very good words.'

Under the circumstances it is not surprising that Mr. Tyndale-Biscoe after reviewing the year's work, and mentioning the kind help given him by many friends—including the Rev. T. R. Wade, who with Mrs. Wade was at the station from May until November, and the Rev. A. H. L. Selwyn, a son of the Rev. S. A. Selwyn, of Hampstead, the chaplain at Srinagar—should conclude his report with the words, 'I have said enough to show that we have very much for which to be thankful, and I think a note of thankfulness runs through our day's work like the red line in the Government rope. If it does not, then it ought to.' The Rev. M. E. Wigram, who had temporarily been in charge of the School, resumed his work at Peshawar in April, 1905. Miss C. A. Churchill-Taylor experienced many vicissitudes at her Girls' Schools, but one of them had an average attendance of twenty-five pupils.

The second great missionary institution in the city, the Hospital, in the work of which Dr. E. F. Neve had the assistance of Dr. H. T. Holland from April to November while Dr. A. Neve was on furlough in England, is instrumental in bringing all sorts and conditions of men within reach of the Gospel. Occasionally a young Indian prince, or the wife or child of a high official, requires treatment, which has to be accorded them in their own homes, while the private wards are utilized by a number of respectable merchants and mullahs. At one time two of the private rooms were occupied by Hindus, one of whom gave over 500 pounds of rice to the hospital as a token of his gratitude, and in another ward were two patients who had come a ten days' journey from the east and some others who had travelled for four days from the west, while two Pathans from the Black Mountains, between Kashmir and Afghanistan, had only just left. Dr. Holland, after describing the hospital's wide range of influence, speaks of the spiritual side of the work thus:— Hospital.

No patient can be in the hospital wards for any length of time without being made familiar with at least the main facts of the Gospel story, and, above all, being convinced that Christianity is a practical religion, that cares for both the body and soul of the individual. The fact that came home to me time after time while I was working in the hospital was that here at any rate the first and foremost place is given to the religious, the evangelistic, the spiritual side of the work. Spiritual work in a mission-hospital.

At twelve o'clock each day a service is held in St. Luke's Chapel. The address or exposition is taken by the doctors, Indian and English, in rotation. The service is attended by all the staff, doctors, nurses, and assistants, be they Christian, Hindu, or Mohammedan. After this addresses are given in all the wards and the out-patient waiting-room. In the latter as a rule each doctor gives two and sometimes three addresses a day. The teaching is systematic and consecutive, for a regular course is gone through month by month.

The strain on the workers, especially in the summer, which is distinctly relaxing and enervating, and when the patients come in the greatest numbers, can well be imagined when I tell you that this last summer there have sometimes been over three hundred attendances at the out-patient department in the day, while some thirty to forty major and minor operations have been performed, and 120 to 140 in-patients attended to. Besides, there is the Leper Hospital, with its eighty beds, and here last summer visits were paid and addresses given four times a week. But notwithstanding all this work, never on one single occasion have I known the address to out-patients or addresses to the in-patients to be omitted. The doctors show by their example in an unmistakable way that they consider that the treatment of the maladies of the soul has the prior claim on their services.

There were some indications of blessing resting upon this widespread proclamation of the Gospel. Dr. A. Neve wrote in December of one man who had first been a soldier, then in succession had accompanied a scientific expedition to Central Asia, become a trader, and finally a fakir living in a mosque, as follows:—

A fakir as a patient.

For long he was ill at a mosque, and finding himself getting worse and neglected he had himself brought to us. For the first fortnight he required most constant nursing and attention. Now he is much better. One day he said, pointing to the church, 'What house is that? I have put myself under its shadow, for the Mohammedans have eaten my goods and done nothing for me.' And to-day he said, 'I look to the Holy Jesus, Who made heaven and earth.' Doubtless he knows on which side his bread is buttered, but he is in part earnest.

'Their faces are turned to the Cross.'

I was told by one old man that he had been treated in the hospital a year ago, and that he had then believed in the Lord Jesus Christ, and still does so. The faith of such may be neither clear nor strong, but their faces are turned upwards to the Cross. The people vary greatly in intelligence, and most are like animals and seem to remember nothing, while a few will readily repeat the substance of yesterday's lesson. Perhaps it may be said that during their stay a considerable proportion for the time being look to Christ as their Mediator, but that does not appear to them any reason for ceasing to be followers of Mohammed also. There are now two Mohammedans under definite teaching for baptism.

The women, to whom Misses M. N. Neve and A. Robinson, both of them trained nurses, specially devoted themselves, with the help for a short time of Dr. Kate Knowles, appear to have been unresponsive to the teaching of Christianity, and of the 400 who received treatment not more than three or four manifested the slightest interest in the Gospel.

ISLAMABAD.

Islamabad.

Miss C. A. Newnham left ISLAMABAD for England in the spring of 1905, and nothing much was done at the station until September, when Dr. Kate Knowles re-opened the hospital. The in-patient department was very full, most of the people coming from a distance, but the out-patients were few in number.

III. NORTH-WEST FRONTIER PROVINCE.

PESHAWAR.

Peshawar. High School.

IN the work of the Edwardes High School, PESHAWAR, the Rev. H. J. Hoare, the Principal, had the help of the Rev. M. E. Wigram, who returned in April from Srinagar, and in lesser degree that of the Rev. Aziz-ud-din, the Indian pastor, and the Hon. M. Waldegrave. Mr. Hoare and Mr. Waldegrave had the honour of being presented to the Prince of Wales on the occasion of his visit to the town, the Chief-Commissioner having previously notified the missionaries of the Society and of the C.E.Z.M.S that he wished to bring their work specially under the notice of His Royal Highness. The Prince afterwards presented his photograph to the School, which was spoken of in the official report on public education in the Province as 'a model in regard to systematic instructional arrangements.' The Hospital Work continued to prosper under Dr. A. C. Lankester, who had Dr. L. E. Wigram as his medical colleague, while Mr. Waldegrave carried on evangelistic work among those who came for treatment. One of the most interesting patients was a mullah attached to the retinue of the eldest son of the Amir of Afghanistan. During his illness he was visited by numbers of his followers, who themselves listened with interest to the message of salvation, and he returned to Cabul with many of his old prejudices against Christianity removed by the experience he had gained of the practical outcome of that religion. One of the inquirers, who for a time gave great promise, fell away completely, but on the other hand a young Pathan (apparently the youth referred to in the Report for 1903–4, page 251), whose ungovernable passion at first seemed to make it almost hopeless that he would ever be anything but an anxiety and a disgrace to his profession, showed in his life the power of God to change and control his wild nature. The new hospital, for which a magnificent site was obtained from the Government on most generous terms, was dedicated in February, 1906, and Sir Harold Deane, the Chief Commissioner of the North-West Frontier Province, soon afterwards performed the opening ceremony. The expenditure on the buildings has amounted to nearly Rs. 44,000, of which sum Rs. 40,500 has been raised. The ladies of the C.E.Z.M.S. were called upon to sympathize with one of the inquirers brought in by their medical work. She confessed her faith to her husband and father, and on one occasion the latter put an iron into the fire, and then down upon her foot, bidding her to repeat the Kalma. On her refusal he burnt the other foot, but he failed in his attempt to make her declare faith in Mohammed.

BANNU.

Drs. T. L. Pennell and S. Page Barton were joined at BANNU in February, 1905, by the Rev. Fath Masih, transferred from Batala, who assumed the charge of the pastoral work. There were the names of nearly 400 boys on the rolls of the High School. The school won the football cup and the cricket belt in the District Tournament, and received an excellent report from the Director of Public Instruction, who spoke of Dr. Pennell's success in gaining the affection and admiration of the boys and the confidence of the parents as having been brought home to him in more than one way during his visit to the town and district. Seven out of the twelve lads who sat for the Matriculation Examination of the Lahore University were successful. More than 1,000 in-patients were received at the Hospital and 70,000 visits of out-patients were recorded: these people came from a wide area, including many unvisited districts in Afghanistan, and all returned to their homes with at least some knowledge of Christianity. One young man was baptized on Easter Day, 1905. He came from the High School at Multan (see supra, page 196), and showed remarkable powers of argument, for though only eighteen years of age he proved himself able to hold his own with any mullah.

The out-station at Shekh Mahmud was visited by the Bishop of Lahore, who there consecrated a cemetery and baptized the first convert of that part, a farmer who received the name of Habib Ullah (Beloved of God). The latter had to leave his village, eleven miles from the out-station, shortly afterwards, in consequence of the persecution to which he was subjected. A few months later a branch dispensary was opened at Karak, a place in the Khattak Hills, thirty-three miles from Bannu, around which are a hardy race of Pathans called Khattaks. The town was first visited by Dr. Pennell in company with some of his Indian workers in 1895. The people then received them rather roughly, as one of the chief mullahs of the district had warned them to beware of the infidels' medicine and not to listen to their preaching. However, the evangelists spent some time preaching at various places in the Chawatra Valley. One day they happened on a village where there was a woman whose life had been saved in the mission-hospital. She had evidently been telling the people how kindly she had been treated, for there not only did the party get a warm welcome, but the mullah of the place offered them hospitality and recommended the people to go to them without fear. This mullah was a close relative of the hostile one, and it was not long before they both took copies of the New Testament in Pushtu and Persian to read, and finally became so friendly that the latter placed his sons under Dr. Pennell's care in the Bannu mission-school. The doctor's next visit was in 1899: he then found that much prejudice had been broken down through the work of the mission-hospital, and through the mediation of the two friendly mullahs the party were able to get audiences for the Gospel-preaching. The attitude of these two mullahs had become so openly friendly that they were arraigned before a sort of ecclesiastical court composed of the chief mullahs of the neighbourhood and charged with having shown undue friendship to the Christians. However, they were able to prove (from a verse in the Koran in which Mohammed recommends his followers to make friendship with the Christians because there are so many devout men among them) that they had done nothing contrary to their law, and they were acquitted. After that Dr. Pennell visited the valley frequently and had as many patients as he could attend to, and the people begged him to start regular work among them.

Hostility overcome

Mullahs arraigned for undue friendliness to Christians

A little while ago a suitable site for a dispensary was offered; the people of the town subscribed more than enough to meet the cost of it; and an unexpected gift of Rs. 1,000 from a frontier officer enabled the work to be set on foot. At the opening ceremony one of the chief native gentlemen of the town, a Sikh, made a speech in the course of which he said that look where he might he could not find any religion so practical as that of the Christian, nor one in which the teaching of its leader is carried so thoroughly into effect. The medical work soon attracted from thirty to forty patients a day, who were treated by Jahan Khan, one of Dr. Pennell's first converts, and before long a leading mullah of the place made a public confession of having accepted Christianity and was received as a catechumen. The other mullahs promptly pronounced sentence of excommunication upon him.

A leading mullah becomes a Christian catechumen.

DERA ISMAIL KHAN.

There were more in-patients at the Hospital at DERA ISMAIL KHAN, which was under Dr. C. Somerton Clark, than in 1904. The majority of them were povindahs, merchants, from Khorassan, on the Persian frontier of Afghanistan; but they also included a Beluch chief, who had been shot through the knee by an enemy while hunting, and had come a distance of 300 miles for treatment; a Mohammedan fakir who said he had read the Gospel for three years, but who when interviewed by the Rev. Mulaim-ud-din, the Indian clergyman, proved to be unsatisfactory; and a girl belonging to a Nawab's household, who declared that she wished to become a Christian. This girl disappeared two nights afterwards, and her hospital clothes were returned the following day. A bookbinder in the police was baptized, and afterwards employed as porter at the hospital. Mr. H. C. Guyer was in charge of the High School.

Dera Ismail Khan. Hospital.

At Tank the branch hospital was under Dr. Nathaniel Williams, a graduate of the Punjab University and a son of the late Rev. Dr. John Williams whose popularity among the wild Waziris was so great that his property was to a large extent spared when they raided the place during the Afghan war (see Annual Reports 1878–9, page 76; 1879–80, page 67). The district is still turbulent, and a British officer was murdered in the neighbourhood in February, 1905, but it may be hoped that the successful operation upon the eye of the Nawab's mother which was performed by Dr. Somerton Clark will lead to a more favourable attitude towards the Mission on the part of that potentate. At Gul Imam, ten miles to the east of Tank, a moulvi was very friendly and many patients were prescribed for, while at Bhakkar and Leiah, two towns in the district, the magic-lantern was effective in procuring an audience for the Gospel.

DERA GHAZI KHAN.

Dera Ghazi Khan.

There was no clergyman stationed at DERA GHAZI KHAN in 1905, and for six months the Christians were without any opportunity of partaking of the Holy Communion, but the morning services in the cold season were kindly taken by the Rev. T. J. Lee Mayer. There were more than 400 in-patients at the Men's Hospital under Drs. W. F. Adams and S. Gaster, and during part of the year it was overcrowded. Three or four addresses were given to the people daily, besides the exposition of the Second Lesson for the day in the church before the work began. One of the patients was a rich Hindu lad, who was visited while in the hospital by many of the important men of the district. His friends, and especially his father, were most grateful for the care bestowed upon him, and showed much interest in the teaching, even attending the services in church. On leaving they made a contribution of Rs. 250 to the hospital funds in addition to the fees which they had already paid. Another patient was the servant of a Hindu of good standing. He told the missionaries that his master daily read to a group of ten or twelve men in his own city a New Testament given to him by Dr. Summerhayes some years before, and had lately declared that he wished to become a Christian. The boy added, 'When he does so I should like to become one at the same time.' The death of the compounder, named Saif-ud-din, was attended by sad circumstances. He was baptized at Multan some years ago, but though visited by Christians even to the day of his death, he was taken off in a dying condition by his Mohammedan relatives to their village ten miles from that town. He died on his way there and was buried with Mohammedan rites. This was not discovered until four or five days later, and all that could then be done was to read the Burial Service at the grave. Dr. Eleanor Dodson was in charge of the Women's Hospital, which had the same number of in-patients as the Men's Hospital, and an out-patient attendance of 3,000. The Indian assistants proved unsatisfactory, and Miss A. W. Gross for want of a fully trained nurse had to act as a missionary nurse rather than as a medical evangelist. A welcome change was observed in the demeanour of patients who were at the hospital for any length of time, and a Beluch woman on leaving said, 'I shall tell to my people on the mountains all the things that I have heard here.' A Book-shop and library was opened in the autumn, and was attended by some forty persons daily. Two adults were baptized, the one a lad from Bannu, whose brother followed him and put himself under instruction, and the other the dai for whom prayer was asked in last year's Report (page 251). The last named, who knew when she asked for baptism that she was fatally ill, died two or three weeks afterwards.

The dispensary at Fort Monro, which lies in an area linguistically but not politically belonging to Beluchistan, was kept open during the summer months, and 120 in-patients and 1,500 new out-patients were registered. September was an especially busy time, for then the place was visited by all the Beluch chiefs and their followers. A Government munshi, who has been an inquirer for three years, asked for baptism, but eventually drew back, saying that he needed further teaching before he could meet the persecution which he was sure to encounter at the isolated post where he lived. Dr. Adams itinerated in both the south and north of the district. At one centre, where the local moulvi and others came for friendly discussions, the camp was pitched close to the shrine of a saint. Permission was given to the Christian assistants who accompanied the doctor to use some of the wood growing there for their fire, but they were warned that if they did some great calamity would be sure to overtake them: when no evil followed their action much astonishment was expressed by the villagers. Another tour was made by the Indian doctor, Dr. Khair-ud-din, among the hills where it is very difficult for a European to go. He and his companion were well received though they had to 'rough it,' sleeping either in the open or in some shelters under rocks or matting which serve the Beluchis as homes.

IV. BELUCHISTAN.

QUETTA.

There was an increase in the Congregation at Quetta, where the Rev. A. E. Ball was in general charge, and though two of the members had to be excommunicated, the character of the majority, their regular attendance at the services, and their gifts to the Church funds, were matters for deep thankfulness. The Medical Work was carried on by Dr. J. O. Summerhayes with the help until April, 1905, of Dr. H. T. Holland. The in-patients numbered over 1,000; the visits of out-patients 37,000; and operations 1,200; and the work was rendered additionally heavy by the fact that so many different languages are spoken by those who come for treatment. Dr. Summerhayes says that a large number of people became favourably inclined towards Christianity, softened by the kindness they experienced, and that three inquirers placed themselves under definite instruction. Fruit in that respect was also reaped from the school, containing some fifty low-caste Hindu children, conducted by Mrs. Summerhayes, who, during the year, added to her responsibilities by opening a school for Mohammedans. A new building was erected to serve as a book-shop, at which, in addition to the sales, a number of leaflets were distributed. Mr. Ball quotes the testimony of a Hindu as to the efficacy of these. He writes:—

The usefulness of Christian leaflets.

The bookseller, with his cart, was one day near a temple. A Hindu objected to his being so near. 'But,' said the bookseller, 'I am not preaching, I am only giving away leaflets.' 'That,' replied the Hindu, 'is worse than preaching, being more effective.'

Three adults were baptized—a smaller number than for some years past—one of whom was first taught about Christianity some fifteen years ago by the wife of an officer at Karachi. There were, however, a good many inquirers, and Dr. Summerhayes mentions an interesting incident which shows that some of the Punjabis are impressed with the rapid spread of Christianity. He writes:—

Testimony of Punjabis to the spread of Christianity.

When I came back from Persia overland in 1904, I first landed at a civilized railway-station after 2,000 miles of riding, and as I was travel-stained and wore a pagari (turban), the small crowd of Natives evidently took me for one of themselves, and so I came to hear the following conversation:—

A.: 'Oh, brother, how is our mutual friend B.?'

C.: 'He has turned Christian!' (with indignation).

A.: 'Well, truly, nowadays all the world is turning Christian!'

Medical itinerations.

The Rev. A. D. Dixey devoted himself to itinerating in the district, and after careful study of the country and the openings it presented he decided to confine his efforts to the State of Kelat, making occasional tours in the independent tribal areas of the Mani and Bugti countries, which at one time acknowledged the suzerainty of the Khan of Kelat. In these districts two centres have been selected, viz., Dadar, in the Kachi province of the Kelat State, on the plains of Beluchistan, where a dispensary has been erected on a plot of ground presented by the Khan, and Teri Wali Khan, in the Sarawan province, the largest centre of population on the new Nushki railway. The former will be the head quarters of the work in the cold weather, and the latter in the hot weather. Mr. Dixey says that his work is essentially pioneering. Preaching, in the ordinary acceptance of the term, is not allowed, but as the people gather round for medical treatment, in giving which much assistance is rendered by Dr. Hira Lal, an old Baring High School boy, or to gaze at the magic-lantern pictures, there are many opportunities of speaking to them of the Saviour.

V. SINDH.

KARACHI.

Karachi.

On resuming his work at Karachi after his second furlough, the Rev. W. J. Abigail found that the English congregation had dwindled away to almost nothing, but he was happily enabled to draw it together again. A striking feature about it was the large proportion of communicants, twenty-three out of the twenty-five present at a service often remaining to the Holy Communion. The High School, also, suffered during Mr. Abigail's absence, but there, too, matters improved until there were more than 200 boys in attendance. Suddenly, however, about ninety of them left owing to the action of one of the masters, a Christian, who became discontented, poisoned the minds of the lads, and at length joined the rival school carried on by the leader of the Arya Somaj in the city. Severe competition adversely affected the Sindhi school, but the Gujerathi school was crowded. Unfortunately at the end of the year dead rats began to be found in the latter, a sure intimation of the recrudescence of the plague. Two adults were baptized, and at one time it was hoped that a sadhu who was under instruction might be admitted into the visible Church. His wife, however, was unwilling to learn about Christ, and persuaded her husband to leave with her. Mr. Abigail quaintly observes:— High School.

> We are called to be fishers of men, but again and again I have had to confess I do not know when to pull up my line. Are the American Episcopal Methodists right? They hook their fish at the first bite. 'I do not know when to pull up my line.'

The Rev. D. S. Harper resided at Karachi and gave himself to the study of the language.

HYDERABAD.

The Rev. and Mrs. A. H. Abigail were stationed at HYDERABAD. Hydera-bad.

SUKKUR.

At the end of 1904 the Rev. A. E. Redman returned from his temporary sojourn at Karachi and resumed his work at SUKKUR, where he had the help of the Rev. Tulsidas Mansukhani. No inquirers came forward as the result of the bazaar preaching, but there was not the same utter indifference as in many previous years, and a fair number of people listened as a rule to the proclamation of the Gospel. In the autumn Mr. Redman itinerated in the north-west corner of Sindh, and had a more encouraging tour than ever before. His description of it and his touching appeal will call forth sympathy and prayer from many. He writes:— Sukkur.

> Past experience has been of weariness almost to deadness of faith at the insensibility and indifference to the glorious Gospel, which has been the attitude of the people. This is not present experience. On the contrary, we are taken seriously, and the attitude observable at the preachings is of sustained, maintained, and interested attention. People seem actually to believe in us, or nearly so. Do not mistake me. I do not mean that they are ready to believe the Gospel as we understand the phrase, but that they are ready to think, at the moment at any rate, that what we preach may be worthy of 'Weariness almost to deadness of faith.'

attention and has attraction, and that we are not mere hare-brained faddists. This is much by comparison. But there is something far better, and that is the readiness to accept Gospels at a nominal price. Hitherto these have not been wanted at all, or considered of any interest. Now they are taken freely. We always have a handful with us, and at the close of a preaching offer them, and not infrequently our hand is soon empty, and I hardly remember an occasion that none have been taken. Thus on this season's touring so far, some 250 portions have passed from our hands.

I do not want to overstate or mislead. These people are not hungering for the Word of God, there is no evidence that they are attracted by its beauty, for of that they are still ignorant. But the great encouragement and hope is this, that living pure seed, the very Word of God, is sown from our hands, and some must fall into good ground and give a yield.

Are there any prayer-bands who will adopt Sindh, a barren field for fifty years, and pray that this seed that is being sown may yield fruit to the Lord of the Harvest? I think the time is ripe for such prayer and prayer-bands. Remember it is still sowing time, no sign of harvest yet; that is why we want the prayer.

Another tour in the district was made by the Rev. J. Redman, of Simla, who visited six places, spending a week or more at each, and met with a hearty welcome from many former pupils of his at Hyderabad.

WESTERN INDIA MISSION.

For fifty years after Bombay became a British possession the English had neither church nor chaplain in the city, and it was not till a century later still that any effort was made for the evangelization of its inhabitants. The first Protestant missionaries, agents of the American Board of Foreign Missions, arrived in 1813. It was in 1820 that the C.M.S. work was inaugurated in Bombay by the Rev. Richard Kenney. The operations of the Society there have been very limited, but in 1832 the work was extended to Nasik; Junnar was occupied in 1843; Malegam, 1848; Aurungabad, 1860; Poona, 1882; and Manmad, 1901. Special efforts are made to reach the Mohammedans and Parsis.

The first Bishop of Bombay, Dr. Carr, was consecrated in 1835. His successors have been: Bishops Harding (1851), Douglas (1869), Mylne (1876), Macarthur (1898), and Pym (1903).

A Christian mela leads to increased prayer.

In October, 1905, a Christian mela for the agents of the whole Mission and the Indian Christians connected with the Society in Western India was held at Nasik. It was attended by about 300 persons, but the Christians belonging to Manmad were unfortunately prevented from being present by an outbreak of the plague in their town. The addresses were given by the Revs. T. Walker, of Tinnevelly, R. S. Heywood, Ruttonji Nowroji, and S. B. Lotlikar, of Poona, and were instrumental in bringing many under conviction of sin. The mela was followed by a marked increase in united prayer.

Death of the Rev. J. M. Macdonald.

The Rev. J. M. Macdonald, rector of Sherfield English in the diocese of Winchester, who laboured in Western India from 1886 to 1890, died on May 20th, 1905.

Reinforcements.

Three names have been added to the list of the Society's missionaries in Western India, viz., those of Mrs. J. Jackson, Miss Ellen Beatrice Gifford, of the New Zealand Association, and Miss Hannah Donella Sever, who has been accepted as a missionary in local connexion. The first named went out to India under the Z.B.M.M. in 1881, and in 1894 was married to the late Mr. J. Jackson, Principal of the Robert Money School, Bombay. Shortly after his death in October, 1901, she rejoined the Z.B.M.M., taking charge of the C.M.S. Boarding-school in Bombay for Christian girls. She has now, with the cordial consent of the former Society, been transferred to the C.M.S. staff. On the other hand the Mission has suffered by the resignation, on account of his wife's health, of the Rev. W. C. Whiteside, and the transference of the Rev. and Mrs. W. Latham to the United Provinces.

The following are the members of the Bombay Corresponding Committee:—The Bishop of Bombay, Lieut.-Col. W. F. Cahusac, the Hon. I. Jacob, I.C.S., Mr. R. G. Monteath, Mr. H. E. E. Procter, and the Revs. E. J. Jones, H. McNeile, and R. S. Heywood (Secretary).

BOMBAY.

Bombay.

The services at the Girgaum Church, BOMBAY, were conducted by the Revs. R. S. Heywood and H. McNeile. Those held in the morning were not so well attended as those later in the day, owing to the number of special Bible-classes and to the vernacular services, to which latter many went who were present at the English services in the evening. The congregation showed increasing liberality, contributing Rs. 840 more than in 1904. A similar account is given of the Marathi Congregation, under the Rev. D. L. Joshi, which, notwithstanding some losses through the plague and other causes, increased in numbers. The members were divided into four main groups, for each of which a centre was established for daily prayers. Stimulated by the formation of the National Missionary Society of India, the people resolved to undertake the support of one of their own number, whom they selected to work as a catechist in a certain locality. Mr. Joshi expresses his opinion that a great change is taking place in India, and says that more reverence for the Saviour is shown, and that many people are now close students of the Bible and even of Church history. He mentions, as a case in point, a venerable Sanscrit professor, who, in a pamphlet which he asked Mr. Joshi to review, spoke of Christ as 'the Bethlehemite Prince of Yogis.' A layman was appointed as quasi-pastor of the Gujerathi Congregation, which, together with its branch at Bandra, consisted of 150 souls. Eight adults were baptized. The Urdu Congregation was under the care of the Rev. T. Davis.

Changed views of Christ.

Robert Money School.

The Rev. W. Latham was Principal of the Robert Money School until his transfer to the United Provinces Mission in January, 1906. The pupils increased from 176 to 262 during his three years' tenure of office, but the examination results in 1905 were not good. Bibles were given to nineteen boys on their leaving the school, and a former pupil, hearing that that custom had been adopted, came and asked that he, too, might receive a Bible. Several of the lads showed clear indications of a desire to please God in their daily life. Mr. Latham has been succeeded by Mr. McNeile. The Boarding-school for Christian Girls was under the care of Mrs. J. Jackson, now one of the Society's missionaries, and Miss Lambourne, of the Z.B.M.M. It contained forty-six inmates, two of whom were teachers and one a medical student, and three were girls preparing for a teachers' examination. The remainder attended the day-school, which had some 200 names in all upon its rolls. Several persons were baptized as a result of the work of Mr. Davis in the Mohammedan Mission.

Girls' Boarding-school.

A new out-station was opened at Andheri, a place about twelve miles from Bombay, where work among the Marathis was carried on by a catechist, kindly superintended by Miss Clarke, of the Z.B.M.M. The catechist at Bandra, nine or ten miles from the city, visited the Christian men at the Leper Asylum at Matunga.

NASIK.

Nasik. The work at NASIK was under the superintendence of the Rev. E. J. Jones until the return of the Rev. A. Manwaring from England in the autumn, the other European missionaries being the Rev. G. Clark, transferred thither from Poona early in 1905, and the Rev. W. Wyatt, who went to that station a month or two later. The Rev. B. L. Salve, who was quasi-pastor of the Marathi congregation, is unable to speak well of the contributions of his people to religious objects.

Sharanpur. Orphanages. All the industries in connexion with the Orphanages at the Christian Settlement of SHARANPUR paid their way, with the exception of the printing-press, but the work suffered for want of a practical layman to superintend it. Mr. Clark gave much attention to the boys and youths among the 330 inmates.

The Rev. S. S. Suryawanshi was in charge of the pastoral work in the Igatpuri and Deolali Districts, having his head quarters at Deolali. Some opposition was experienced there, and the workers were for a time forbidden to draw water from the public wells in the bazaar.

POONA.

Poona The Rev. A. D. Henwood had as his European colleagues at POONA the Rev. W. Wyatt, transferred from Nasik in March, 1905, and the Rev. J. H. Robinson, one of the recruits of 1904. The latter was able to spare time from his study of the language to assist Mr. Henwood in the English Services. Several series of special meetings were held for the benefit of the Marathi Congregation, of which the Rev. D. P. K. Shindé was the pastor: first, for two months in the autumn, by Pandita Ramabai, with the help of a number of her girls; then, after his return from the mela at Nasik, by Mr. Shindé himself, many of the addresses being given by Mr. Henwood, who was Chairman of the District Church Council; and finally for a few days by the Rev. T. Walker. The results of these efforts were seen in a healing of divisions among the Christians, and in the prevalence of a spirit of love and harmony, though naturally there were some disappointments, and several who at one time appeared to have been really helped fell back. Twelve persons were baptized in connexion with the Marathi work. The Divinity School was still closed, but work among students was carried on in co-operation with the missionaries of the United Free Church of Scotland, in the form of lectures. Mr. Henwood had seven schools under his supervision. That at Khed gained favourable reports from the officials who visited it, but the Bible-teaching did not seem to be appreciated by the boys.

Junnar.

Three visits were paid to the JUNNAR district, which contains about 1,600 square miles, Savergaon, to the north of the district, where there is a small congregation in connexion with the Society, being chosen as the temporary head quarters of Mr. Henwood and Mr. Wyatt. The former speaks of a door of opportunity as being opened in that neighbourhood, and says that there are prospects of a considerable ingathering of souls. He particularly mentions the case of one inquirer, in whose behalf he asks for prayer. He writes :—

Parents led to Christ by the death of their child.

> Ranu, a man whom we have known for three years, and whose three brothers have been baptized within that period, but whose old father still refuses to listen to our entreaties, was recently in trouble, his only boy being very ill. He took him to the goddess Muktabai at Pimpalgaon, with offerings of fowls and a goat, a matter of half a month's income, and vowed that if she would heal the child he would remain her faithful worshipper. This he did in the simplicity of his heart, and in full faith that she would be able to help him in his trouble. The child, however, died as they re-entered their village, and this decided Ranu and his wife to become Christians. Accordingly from that day they stopped their Hindu idolatry, with its observance of festivals, &c., and on our arrival in camp openly said they wished to be baptized. Upon this the old father grew very angry, and said he would kill himself if Ranu persisted in his determination: all the other sons had left him, and if the one remaining followed suit it would be more than he could bear. Ranu has therefore drawn back for the present, saying that he has never yet given pain to his father, and cannot do so now.

MANMAD.

Manmad.

MANMAD, which, as mentioned in last year's Report (page 260), has superseded Malegam as the head quarters of the work in that portion of the Mission, is a village some 160 miles from Bombay. At present it does not contain more than about 3,000 inhabitants, but it is on the main line from Bombay to Calcutta, and is the terminus of a branch line which takes passengers to the Madras and South Indian railways, while it also lies on the Nizam's railway from Hyderabad and Aurungabad: consequently it is fast becoming an important junction and has a growing population of railway employés. In the village the Society has Anglo-Vernacular and vernacular boys' schools and a vernacular school for girls, while the Z.B.M.M. maintains an orphanage of 150 girls and a widows' home with about twenty inmates. The pastoral work was in the hands of the Rev. R. G. Jagtap, an Indian deacon, superintended by the Rev. L. B. Butcher, who was in general charge of the station. Two of the Christians were carried off by the plague, one of them being the colporteur. Some special meetings, conducted by the Rev. T. Walker in the autumn, were greatly blessed to many of the people.

Unhappily, however, they were not followed by any reconciliation between the two factions into which the converts were divided in consequence of a dispute between some of the agents of the Mission. Nine adults were baptized.

The out-stations worked from Manmad include Nandgaon, where there are two boys' schools, and services are regularly conducted by Mr. Jagtap; Dhulia, the capital of Khandesh, where Mr. Butcher acted as chaplain to the European population; Sinnar, which was closed for part of the year owing to the plague; Chandori; and Yeola. At the last-named place the death rate from plague was very high, but the two agents and their families did not abandon the out-station, but contented themselves with leaving their houses and encamping in the fields near the people, whom they were thus enabled to point to Christ in the hour of danger. In one town Mr. Butcher met with a leading Brahman official, well on in years, who said that he possessed a Bible and a Prayer-book and used them daily. It afterwards appeared that as a boy he had been a pupil in one of the mission-schools, and there had obtained his knowledge of the Bible and a copy of it. He is said to have incurred the opposition of his Brahman friends because of his attitude towards Christianity.

A Brahman official studies the Bible.

Most of the members of the congregation at MALEGAM, where the Rev. J. P. Butlin was stationed, are agents of the Mission, but in consequence of the city having been left for some time without any resident missionary the Christians had fallen into a grievous condition, quarrels, fighting and drinking being common, and impurity not unknown. One of the first things to be done was so far as possible to cleanse the Church. A drinking bout having been reported in which some of the mission-agents took part, those implicated were severely fined by the authorities of the Mission, and a temperance society was instituted, which was joined by the majority of the converts. Next Mr. Butlin was called upon to deal with some cases of impurity, and he was led to preach a series of sermons on practical subjects, pointing out what the Scriptures say about such sins as anger, evil-speaking, uncleanness, Sabbath-breaking, and the like. Soon afterwards came the mela at Nasik, which has been referred to above (page 213), and when the people returned a daily prayer-meeting was set on foot. Mr. Butlin thus describes the sequel:—

Malegam.

Cleansing the Church.

> People came forward and made up quarrels and confessed sins. Many who had never opened their mouths in prayer before now did so for the first time in the confession of sin. We praise God that the former state of things has been largely removed through the working of His Spirit, and many have awakened and become God's true servants. We ended the year with a series of meetings for the deepening of the spiritual life. Papers were read at these by the people themselves on Prayer, Consecration, Bible-reading, the Sacraments, and Christ's Second Coming. When I proposed such subjects some two years ago the people showed no desire to take them, but now the reverse was the case, and everybody was pleased with the set of subjects chosen.

Meetings for the deepening of the spiritual life.

The Society for some years has had several schools both in the city and in the cantonment, all of them being for Marathi-speaking children, but Mr. Butlin felt that something ought to be done to reach the 15,000 Mohammedans among the population, who were described in last year's Report (page 261), and accordingly he opened a day-school for their benefit, which by the end of the year had some thirty pupils, and also a night-school which was attended by nearly the same number of adults. In connexion with the older schools also there was advance, for Mrs. Butlin, who has been trained in the kindergarten methods, held a training-class for teachers during two months in the rains. The work at the station occupied nearly all of Mr. Butlin's time, but he was able to visit all the villages within six miles of his bungalow, and found many in which the Gospel had not been preached for several years. Two adults were baptized.

AURUNGABAD.

Aurungabad.

The country around AURUNGABAD suffered in 1905 as in the previous year from the partial failure of the rains, and the Christians again betook themselves to prayer. For weeks they continued their petitions, notwithstanding that all prospect of rain appeared to have vanished completely, and at length, as in 1904 (see last year's Report, page 262), their faith was rewarded, and the longed-for downpour came. Narrating this circumstance, the Rev. C. W. Thorne, the superintending missionary at the station, expresses his belief that before long there will be a great flood of blessing all over India, and he mentions one or two facts which appear to indicate an approaching change. He writes:—

'Hinduism is becoming old and decrepit.'

Hinduism is becoming old and decrepit. Its gods are neglected because the people are losing all confidence in them: its priests and philosophers no longer enjoy the esteem of the masses as they once did. Let me give an illustration of this.

A new god to counteract the plague.

In a little town not far from one of our preaching-stations plague broke out with fearful virulence. After due consultation, the people determined to have a new god to counteract its dire effects. Accordingly a god was fashioned out of the rich black soil, and painted most beautifully with bright red paint—a good fast colour. He was adorned with tinsel and garlanded with flowers; he was fed on the choicest of the grain, and water was poured over him to quench his thirst and keep him cool. To secure his aid in their time of trouble the people gave much money to the attendant priests, and treated the god with great respect. But it was all in vain! The plague increased by leaps and bounds, and numbers of the villagers fell a prey to the dreadful scourge. This was too much for the survivors. In wrath and anger they went to the god's shrine, they pulled him off his pedestal, and with every gesture of loathing and contempt they scattered his fragments in the dust.

But this is not the only occasion by a good many when such a thing has happened. The plague has struck a great blow to the yearly pilgrimages held at various centres. Ten years ago on the banks of the river where we are encamped a hundred thousand people used to assemble in the month of March to bathe in the sacred Godavery, and worship the gods whose temples crown the river banks. But since 1896, when plague first broke out, this annual pilgrimage has suffered so severely that now it is completely defunct; and though, no doubt, the Brahmans will endeavour to revive it when the danger is over, it will never be the same again, because the people are losing their belief in such things. The more sensible ones are waking up to see that the net gain from all the trouble and expense incurred is nil. At another town we visited I found the doors of the main temple closed, and I was told that nowadays people give so little heed to the goddess Bhowani there enshrined that for days together her temple doors are shut and no one visits her.

A defunct festival.

In the work at the Orphanage School Mr. Thorne had the assistance of the Rev. C. W. Wootton, who was able to spare a little time from his language study to treat the sick and mix with the boys. Instruction in various industries was given to the lads, ten of whom left for different posts, the majority going to the Indian Mission Aid Society's carpet factory at Ahmednagar. The demand for the drawn-thread work of the girls made under the superintendence of Mrs. H. J. Smith, was greater than could be met. The efficiency of the day-schools was maintained, and the Nizam's inspector of schools was so struck with the performance of the girls in arithmetic that he came himself to verify it. He found that no mistake had been made in the matter, for a number of the pupils again obtained full marks in that subject. At the request of some Indian gentlemen a Marathi school was opened in the city. Services were conducted in three languages—in English, for the officers and ladies in the station, by Mr. Thorne, who has been appointed chaplain by the Bishop of Madras; in Marathi, by the Rev. S. C. Kurhade; and in Urdu, by the Rev. H. J. Smith. Mr. Kurhade was responsible for the pastoral charge of nearly 2,000 baptized Christians, and found the Christian Endeavour Society which was formed in 1903 a great help among the women and girls. Mr. Smith, who came home on medical certificate in December, superintended the Mohammedan Work, in which Qazi Aziz Masih still assisted. The book-shop was visited by a number of Qazis, lawyers, clerks, doctors, and various officials, whom the man in charge endeavoured to interest in Christianity. At the end of the year a couple of young men occupying independent secular positions voluntarily undertook preaching and discussion among the Mohammedans on three evenings in the week. Mr. Smith writes:—

Industrial Work.

Efficiency of school girls in arithmetic.

Mohammedan Work.

> One of these young fellows is himself a Mohammedan convert, and the other is the son of an old Mohammedan moulvi, baptized many years ago in North India. The moulvi's son can be referred to as an argument to the contrary when any one says that there is no such thing as a good Mohammedan convert. Here is the son of one, voluntarily preaching the Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ, as taught him by his father!

A moulvi's son preaches Christ.

A girl about nineteen years of age, a trained hospital nurse, who had successfully passed through a long period of instruction and testing, was baptized.

There are eleven out-stations, all within thirty miles of Aurungabad. At Walunj, where the congregation had latterly decreased, several backsliders were reclaimed, and at another place more than seventy Mangs came forward asking for baptism. Early in the year Mr. Smith undertook an itineration to Paithan, thirty-one miles from Aurungabad, where he was favourably received by the influential people, and had an opportunity of showing the lantern and preaching the Gospel in a Hindu monastery. A number of persons were admitted into the visible Church in the district in the spring of 1905. Mr. Thorne describes some of their cases as follows:—

Preaching the Gospel in a monastery.

Baptisms.

In our camp under the spreading trees, Ramji, his wife, Mainabai, and their little child were baptized.

'I wish to become a Christian,' said the head of the family, 'not from any hope of personal gain, but because I believe that Christ alone can save me. I have worshipped the gods; I have given money away in alms to our "holy" men; I have bathed in the sacred rivers; and on one occasion I killed a goat and shed its blood as an atonement for my sin; but none of these things did me any good. I long for peace, and now, after four years of waiting and instruction, I wish to be baptized into the faith of Christ.'

'Yes,' agreed another man sitting by, 'while I was a Hindu I prayed a good deal, and tried hard to get salvation, but it was all in vain till I came to Jesus.'

'I want a Saviour like Jesus.'

Another candidate said: 'I have waited seven years for baptism. Jesus healed the sick, the lame, and the blind, but our gods did none of these things. I want a Saviour like Jesus, for I have found no heart-salvation in the god Krishna.'

SOUTH INDIA MISSION.

The Tamil country south of Madras was the scene of the S.P.C.K.'s Missions in the eighteenth century. But the first two clergymen of the Church of England who went to India as missionaries were sent to Madras by the Church Missionary Society in 1814. The East India Act of 1833 made provision for a new bishopric of Madras, and Daniel Corrie was consecrated in 1835. His successors have been Bishops Spencer (1837), Dealtry (1849), Gell (1861), and Whitehead (1899). Work was commenced at Ootacamund, on the Nilgiri Hills, in 1870.

The Telugu Mission was begun in 1841 by two of the most devoted men on the roll of C.M.S. missionaries, Robert Noble and Henry Watson Fox. Noble started the famous English school at Masulipatam, now known by his name, worked it for twenty-four years, and died at his post in 1865. Many Brahmans trained in it have embraced the Gospel, and it has sent forth several Indian clergymen to labour among their countrymen. Fox was a preaching missionary, and set the example of those itinerating and rural missionary efforts which have resulted in the foundation of an increasing native Church, chiefly drawn from the Malas and other low-caste or out-caste people. Ellore was occupied in 1854; Bezwada, 1858; Raghavapuram, 1872; Khammamett, 1888; and Hyderabad, 1901. A Mission among the Kois, a non-Aryan tribe on the Upper Godavery, was founded at Dummagudem by General Haig in 1860.

In 1820 the Rev. J. Hough, Chaplain at Palamcotta, drew the attention of the Society to the claims of Tinnevelly, where there was already a community of 3,000 professed Indian Christians, an offshoot from the S.P.C.K.'s Lutheran Mission in Tanjore. Two missionaries were at once set apart for this work, and from that time to this, through the labours of Rhenius, Pettitt, Thomas, J. T. Tucker, Hobbs, Sargent, and others (not to mention workers of the S.P.G., which has a fruitful Mission contiguous to that of the C.M.S.), the Gospel has not ceased to spread among the Tamil population, chiefly among the Shanars, or cultivators of the palmyra tree. In North Tinnevelly a vigorous Itinerant Mission was established by Ragland, D. Fenn, and Meadows. Dr. Sargent and Dr. Caldwell were consecrated in 1877 as Assistant Bishops to the Bishop of Madras for the Native Churches. The former died in 1889 and the latter in 1891. Dr. Morley was consecrated in 1896, his jurisdiction (consensual) extending over Tinnevelly and Madura. He resigned in 1903, and has been succeeded by Dr. Williams.

Death of the Revs. E. E. Hamshere,

THE Rev. E. E. Hamshere, of this Mission, died at Ootacamund, from cholera, on September 17th, 1905. Mr. Hamshere was ordained on Trinity Sunday, 1899, by the Bishop of London, after training at Islington, being Gospeller on that occasion. He sailed for the mission-field in the autumn of 1899, and for the past five years had been engaged in evangelistic work at several stations in the Telugu country, having charge of the Bezwada Itinerancy.

A. Nallathambi,

Two of the Indian clergy of Tinnevelly, also, have been called to their rest. The Rev. Asirvatham Nallathambi, who died on August 24th, 1905, was pastor of Marudhakulam, in the Alvaneri Circle. He was ordained Deacon in 1888. The Rev. Thomas Hastings, pastor of Nallammalpuram, in the Suvisesha-puram Circle, died on October 8th. Born of Christian parents, and educated at the Palamcotta Preparandi Institution, he was ordained Deacon in 1878. His first station was Nanjankulam, and he subsequently laboured at Palamcotta and other places in the Mission.

The Mission has been reinforced by the Revs. Henry Alexander

Reinforcements.

Davidson Moorhouse and Alexander Robert James Young, both of Islington College, and by Mr. Henry Matthew Bray, an accountant, who has been appointed to assist at the C.M. Office at Palamcotta. The names of the Revs. John Cherriyan Bunyan, Devasagayam Jesudian Harris, B.A., Madras University, and Govadi Nathanael have been added to the list of Indian clergy connected with the Society.

The following are the members of the Madras Corresponding Committee:—The Bishop of Madras, the Bishop of Tinnevelly, Archdeacon Hyde, Mr. S. D. Pears, Mr. A. S. Cowdell, Mr. W. H. Dobbie, Mr. E. S. Hensman, and the Revs. W. G. Barry, H. Pegg, H. D. Goldsmith, and J. B. Panes (Acting-Secretary). One of the above is an Indian Christian layman.

The Kasir-i-Hind Gold Medal conferred on Canon Sell.

The Rev. Canon E. Sell, the Secretary of the Mission, who has completed forty years as a missionary in South India, has had the Kaisir-i-Hind Gold Medal conferred upon him by the King-Emperor, in recognition of his public services. Several missionaries have received the silver medal of the same order, but only a few, among whom are Dr. A. Neve, of the Society's Punjab Mission, and the Rev. Dr. Ewing, of the American Presbyterian Mission, Lahore, had previously been the recipients of the gold medal. Owing to failing sight in one eye, Canon Sell has been obliged to come home for medical treatment.

I. MADRAS AND THE NILGIRIS.

MADRAS.

Madras.

THE city of MADRAS, with its 500,000 people, suffered in 1905 from three great evils—famine, plague, and cholera. The last-named made great ravages for four months, but the Christians as a body were mercifully preserved, and very few of them were carried off by the dread disease. The failure of the monsoon in 1904 caused the price of food to rise considerably, but in October, 1905, plentiful rain was granted, and the fear of scarcity removed. Reference to this gracious supply of temporal need was made by the Christian Patriot in a leading article on a call to united prayer issued by the Madras Missionary Conference. The article contained the following passage:—

A call to prayer for a Revival.

> The 'call' is a summons to God's people in Madras to pray definitely that the Revival may come to Madras as it has come to other places. In the material world there was urgent and imperative need of the rains which have recently fallen so abundantly. In the presence of drought and scarcity, threatening to develop into actual and acute famine, there was only one thing to save the situation, and that was the monsoon. Thank God, the monsoon has come and the situation is saved.
> Let us transfer the allegory to the spiritual world. The parallel is perfect at all points. If we say we must have the monsoon or the people will perish, so let us say we must have the Revival or the state of things spiritually must go on from bad to worse. But already there is the 'sound of abundance of rain.' It is not premature to say that the Revival in India is already begun.

The 'sound of abundance of rain.'

The Rev. W. D. Clarke, the Indian Chairman of the District Church Council, which is composed entirely of Indians and is self-supporting, speaks of great blessing having been vouchsafed in the Southern Pastorate, of which he is in charge. For several months earnest prayer was offered for a Revival, and from the beginning of October, 1905, special meetings were held twice a day in the Memorial Hall as well as in the houses of some of the members of Zion Church with evident blessing. In recognition of this and the other mercies referred to above, a thanksgiving service took place in November, at which over Rs. 200 was contributed, some of those present taking jewels of gold and silver from their person and putting them in the plate. The people, moreover, improved in the matter of ordinary thankofferings and of the 'handful of rice collection.' In explanation of the latter Mr. Clarke says that every time rice is cooked in a house, i.e., twice a day, a handful of rice is set apart in a small vessel, and is devoted to the pastorate fund. The famine caused rice to be sold at exorbitant rates, and it was expected that there would be a falling off in the income derived from this source. Mr. Clarke partly attributes the improvement to the lesson taught by the heavy deficit with which the Society's financial year had closed, viz., that Indian Christians must put forth increased efforts to raise money and send out their own men and women to preach the Gospel to the Heathen of India. Twelve adults were baptized. One of them, who was called to her rest soon afterwards, was first brought under Christian influence by her daughter, who had been baptized some ten years before. A slight increase is reported by the Rev. J. Satthianadhan in the congregations at Black Town and the Tinnevelly Settlement, which comprise the Northern Pastorate, the members numbering 710 by the close of the year under review, of whom more than half were communicants. About Rs. 200 was contributed at the ingathering service, and the total contributions of the people, the majority of whom are in very poor circumstances, amounted to over Rs. 1,300. The work of the pastorate was carried on as in recent years, and thirty persons, twelve of them adults, were baptized. One was a young man who had been won by a Christian; another, a young woman, was convinced of the truth of Christianity while a pupil in a mission-school; a third was led to Christ by two members of the congregation; and five others were pupils at one of the schools connected with the pastorate. On the other hand, Mr. Satthianadhan has to report that a member of the congregation at the Tinnevelly Settlement apostatized, together with his family, with a view to getting his daughter married to a Heathen. Mr. Clarke was temporarily in charge of the Mount and Palla- veram Pastorates. The former sustained a great loss by the death of Mr. S. Joshua, the senior catechist. The Poonamalee Pastorate was under the care of the Rev. S. Vedhanayagam.

Divinity School.

The Divinity School, under the Rev. H. D. Goldsmith, had six students at the beginning of 1905. Two were then entering the last of the three years of their course, a third was in his second year, and three new men were admitted, one of them, G. Kantayya, being a son of the Rev. G. Krishnayya and grandson of the Rev. W. T. Satthianadhan and a member of the staff of Noble College, Masulipatam, and another hailing from the High School at Bezwada. Later in the year Mr. J. Bunyan, a retired railway official, who for twenty-five years has been a leading member of Zion Church, entered with a view to preparation for Holy Orders. The Revival mentioned in the account given of the Southern Pastorate was felt in the Divinity School, and one day so great was the heart-searching among the men that an hour and a quarter was given up to confession of sin and to prayer.

Harris High School.

The Harris High School was without a European Principal and suffered in consequence, though the five Indian Christian masters did their utmost.

Hindustani Work.

Mr. Goldsmith superintended the work of the Hindustani Mission, the assistance of Rev. L. S. Dhan Singh having been temporarily lent to Bangalore. The services were discontinued in consequence of the death or removal to other places of those who used to attend them, but the evangelistic meetings were continued in spite of the reduction of the band of preachers to two members, Mr. Goldsmith and a Hindu convert, by the death of the catechist, Abdul Qadir Masihi, after twenty years of faithful work. A man who had been baptized, but in a weak moment had become a Mohammedan, was won back by the efforts of Mr. Clarke, and a Mohammedan peon, who had been an inquirer for four years, was baptized at Bangalore by Mr. Dhan Singh. Mr. Goldsmith also mentions a moulvi who told him that after reading the Bible through seventeen times he was forced to the conclusion that Jesus Christ died on the cross, notwithstanding the statements to the contrary made in the Koran.

THE NILGIRIS AND THE WYNAAD.

Ootacamund.

The work at OOTACAMUND, where the Rev. and Mrs. A. H. Lash were stationed, was hindered by an outbreak of the plague. Up to the end of November none of the converts had been attacked, and they remained calm, betaking themselves to prayer for the removal of the visitation. But while the number present at the services was undiminished, the attendance at the schools fell off greatly, and when Mr. Lash wrote his annual letter it was only about one half the average. A new cemetery was dedicated by the Bishop of Madras, and was soon called into use, a lad who had been ill for some time being laid to rest there on the day after the dedication. Work in connexion with the Y.M.C.A., lectures to educated Hindus, &c., were carried on as usual, and a new departure was made by the establishment of a flourishing branch of the Mothers' Union, in which Mrs. Lash took a deep interest. The 'Children's Day' was again a success, and will remain a permanent memorial of the brief sojourn at Ootacamund of the Rev. A. S. Devapiriam, who left in October, 1905, to return to Tinnevelly, where his services were urgently needed.

Coonoor.

The Rev. D. S. Joseph was in charge at Coonoor, where both the congregation and school prospered, and work was carried on among the servants of European residents, at the cordite factory and elsewhere. One adult was baptized.

The Wynaad.

In the autumn Mr. Lash made a long tour through the Wynaad, where work is carried on at five centres. He found that great laxity of morals prevailed, unhappily due in some degree to the bad example set by European planters, but on the other hand he was permitted to baptize several Kurumbers and Kurichers, and also some Nairs and Tiyas, and he was hopeful about some Brahmans who were under instruction with a view to baptism. Among those received into the visible Church was a native of Coorg, through whose influence at his home another young Coorg man came forward; the parents of two Kuricher girls, who had entrusted their children to Mr. Lash's care on a previous visit; and Mara, a Kurumbur blacksmith, of whom he writes:—

Baptism of members of hill tribes.

> Some time ago I baptized some cousins of his, David and his wife. Mrs. David is a woman of prayer, and she taught Mara about Christianity and urged him to join our Church. Mara's wife had lost several children, so Mrs. David begged them to pray to Jesus that their next child might be spared. Their prayer was granted, and Mara decided to be baptized with his eldest boy. His wife, however, would not consent, and left him, with her baby girl, who had been spared to them in answer to prayer.
> I examined Mara, and found him intelligent and devout; the catechist spoke very highly of him. He took the name of Abraham, and with his son Isaac was baptized at Sultain Balting.

Several others were under instruction in spite of the efforts of the Roman Catholics, who have European priests in every important village, to prevent them from joining the Protestants.

II. TELUGU COUNTRY.

ITINERANCY.

Itinerating Band.

The Rev. E. E. Hamshere superintended the work of the Itinerating Band until his lamented death in September, which has been recorded above. The last tour which he was permitted to take was in the Kistna Delta. At one place he discovered that the Christians were in the habit of working on Sunday, and coming to a late service about noon. He felt it his duty to rebuke them sharply when he spoke to them in the evening, but he afterwards wrote in his journal the following words, which afford sad cause for thought:—

Neglect of the Lord's Day by Europeans.

As I was speaking my heart failed me, for the growing neglect of the Lord's Day in India by the Europeans and also by some educated native Christians in the towns, must ultimately become subversive of all maintenance of discipline among the village Christians. We have no business to fine or excommunicate the latter while allowing the former to go scot free. To give an instance. In an important place (I will not mention the name), on one Easter Sunday a large number of civilians were in the station, attracted from other places by a cricket match on the Saturday. A goodly few came to the morning Celebration; not a single one came to the evening service in the English church, preferring the tennis-courts and the billiard-table at the club to attendance at divine worship. Comment is surely needless. Try to realize the adverse influence in that place, and the moral effect upon Christians and Heathen alike of such behaviour. This is but one instance of many.

In the course of his tour Mr. Hamshere came across several men who had been educated at mission schools or colleges, and who, though personally unknown to him, came up to give him a welcome. He wrote:—

Friendliness of old mission schoolboys.

By their influence I have been enabled on several occasions to secure the use of the local fund school or some other large building for a Gospel magic-lantern address. At N——, in December last, an old student of the Christian College in Madras not only obtained for us the use of the club hall for this purpose, but secured the attendance of the rajah and his dewan, together with all the principal men of the town, and was eager himself to help me in interpreting the Gospel story to them. Other similar instances I could mention. There must be many such men all over the country, who, although not outwardly Christians, are undoubtedly so at heart, and are perhaps only waiting for one of their number, braver than the rest, to come out boldly on the Lord's side and thus give them the lead. Do we pray enough for these old students of our schools and colleges? After they have returned, with vastly increased influence, to their own native villages or have entered Government employ, their attitude towards Christianity is of the utmost importance and calls for earnest consideration and prayer.

After Mr. Hamshere's death the superintendence of the Itinerating Band fell on the Rev. R. W. Peachey, but his duties in connexion with the oversight of the Raghavapuram and Khammamett districts prevented him from doing more than arrange the tours for the evangelists.

MASULIPATAM.

Masulipatam. Noble College.

In the absence of the Rev. C. W. A. Clarke in England the Rev. W. C. Penn was Acting-Principal of the Noble College, MASULIPATAM, in the work of which he had Mr. G. R. Ennis as his European colleague. The number of students in the College department was greater than ever before, among them being five Christian students of Panchama origin, and in all there were about 900 names on the rolls of the College and the branch schools. The results of the University Examinations were above the average; in the Peter Cator Scripture Examination, open to all schools and colleges in the Presidency, a Brahman student won the second prize of Rs. 70; and in the Diocesan Prayer-book Examination the second and fourth prizes were carried off by boys of the College.

Baptism of a Brahman student.

In April, 1905, a young Brahman, B. Raghavayya by name, who for seven years had been a student at the American Lutheran College at Guntur, was baptized. He left Guntur because his parents refused to support him in consequence of his expressed determination to become a Christian, and he had only been at the Noble College for three weeks. Soon after his arrival he made a public confession of his faith before a large class of boys, giving as his reasons for changing his faith that Hinduism is inconsistent with itself; that idolatry is a sin; and that Christ is infinitely to be preferred to Krishna, to whom so many grossly immoral acts are attributed. Mr. Penn describes the events which occurred in connexion with this young man's baptism as follows:—

The same evening that he made this confession there was great excitement, and Raghavayya was taken off to several houses, and finally to the house of a pleader, where he was plied with all sorts of questions. The boy did not realize his danger, and thought that he would still be left a free agent after his confession, but he soon discovered his mistake. At ten o'clock at night he did not come to me, so Mr. Ennis, two or three Christian friends, and myself went to the pleader's house. We were asked to come in; after some conversation, Raghavayya said he would come with us. For the next three weeks my compound was in a state of siege, and I had to have police constables on duty day and night. A deputation of three pleaders came to me asking me to delay the baptism until the boy had seen his parents, who had been summoned from their village, some seventy miles away. Of course I consented to this, as it would be best for the boy to have his testing before baptism. For a few days some Brahman friends sent the boy his food, but they soon got tired of this, and the boy soon began to take his meals with me. This was the first step in breaking caste, and the second was when he took off his sacred thread after the interview with his parents.

A trying interview.

The greatest test for the boy was when his parents arrived with a party of friends. When they saw him they rushed at him with cries, and proceeded to mop his face and head with a wet cloth, because they said I had given him something to drive away his senses. They tried in every way to induce him to follow them. They fondled him, they cried, they threatened, they beat him. After this had been going on for about two hours his mother seized him, and would not let him go, until at last he broke away, and ran round the house and hid himself in a corner of my bedroom. The mother then got very violent, and ended by cursing her son and me in most emphatic terms. While this scene was going on in my house some pleaders got hold of the father, and induced him to file a suit against me and get an injunction of the court to prevent us baptizing the lad on the ground that he was a minor. All kinds of bad motives were imputed to the boy, and it was said that I received Rs. 1,000 for every conversion! Even the educated men seemed to believe this. Various tricks were tried to get the youth away. One day his mother was brought in a bandy apparently very ill. The pleader who brought her wanted the boy to get into the bandy and go with her to the hospital! But when Raghavayya went to speak to his mother she showed herself most vigorous, and tried to drag him into the bandy.

Eventually, on April 6th, the case came up for hearing. Our evidence, which consisted of a doctor's certificate and school registers going back for seven years, showed clearly that the boy was over nineteen. After six hours of legal haggling the injunction was removed, and Raghavayya was baptized the same evening in the Normal School.

The baptism of Raghavayya did not affect the numbers at the College as did that of converts under Noble in 1852 and again in 1855, but in other respects the results were very similar. Mr. Penn says :—

The veneer of Western civilization.

There is the same want of religious toleration, the same excitement, the same attempts to bring the courts into action against the missionary. Caste and bigotry are as strong as ever. Ostensibly the educated Hindu is a very progressive up-to-date sort of person if you only hear him talk on platforms, but touch him on a point of his caste or religion (which is the same thing), and he is on a par with the most ignorant villager. You experience a drop from the twentieth century A.D. to the fifth century B.C. Beneath the veneer of Western civilization the laws of Manu hold him fast.

Training Institution.

The Training Institution, under the Rev. J. B. Panes, has three departments, viz., the Divinity Class, the Normal School, of which the Rev. G. Nathanael is head-master, and the Central Boarding-school. Applications from three new candidates for ordination led to the re-opening of the Divinity Class; one of them has worked for nine years in connexion with the Telugu Itinerancy, and another for sixteen years has been in the service of the Society as schoolmaster and catechist. The examination results among the Normal students were good, especially in the Primary Grade Examination, in which all but one of the twenty-four candidates passed the written test. With a view to meeting the pressing need of additional agents to carry on the work in the villages of the Telugu country fifteen additional free scholarships were provided at the Central Boarding-school. Twenty of the boys were confirmed during the year. On the departure of Mr. Panes to take up the duties of the Secretariat at Madras the Rev. H. W. Eales, of Raghavapuram, was appointed to the charge of the Training Institution. The Sharkey Memorial Girls' School was under the care of Mrs. Panes.

The Rev. A. E. Goodman, who resided at GUDIVADA, twenty miles to the north-west of Masulipatam, was in general charge of the Pastoral and Evangelistic Work in the district, the Rev. J. Gnanapragasam being transferred from Jaggiapett to assist him. About 200 candidates were confirmed at Masulipatam in February, 1905, and more than 300 at Gudivada in December, some of the latter travelling thirty miles in order to be present at the service. At the beginning of 1905 there was some difficulty about providing for the needs of the Masulipatam Pastorate in consequence of the removal of the Rev. M. Devanandham to Raghavapuram, and for a few months Mr. Gnanapragasam undertook the superintendence of it. In the summer, however, Mr. G. Nathanael, who has been mentioned above, and who had offered his services, was ordained and appointed pastor: he still continues to discharge his duties at the Normal School. Two harvest festivals were held in the pastorate during the year, that which ordinarily would have taken place at the end of 1904 having been postponed to the following March. Mr. Gnanapragasam, who is responsible for the oversight of the work at twenty-six stations, expresses his belief that caste has lost its hold in the towns, while in the villages many Hindu temples have been abandoned and Hindu customs are not observed as rigorously as of old. There were several calls to occupy new villages, but through lack of funds it was impossible to respond to them, and the inquirers had to be left without instruction and the children without schools.

BEZWADA.

Bezwada High School.

At BEZWADA, where the Rev. J. Harrison was in charge, the High School had 282 names upon its rolls, while the three branch schools contained nearly 400 pupils. The Rev. D. Anantam, who superintended the educational work, reports that seven of the twenty-eight boys who entered passed the Matriculation Examination. Mr. Anantam edited the Hitavadi, a monthly Telugu magazine, published under the auspices of the C.M.S. Telugu Missionary Conference, and The Messenger of Truth, a magazine published by the Madras Religious Tract Society for non-Christian readers..

ELLORE.

Ellore. High School.

The High School at ELLORE, which has some 450 boys, fifty more than in 1904, profited by the closing of the rival High School. Eleven of the pupils passed the Matriculation Examination of the Madras University, and twelve the Lower Secondary Examination, while eight out of the fourteen who sat for the Peter Cator Scripture Examination secured certificates of merit. At the inter-school sports the Ellore boys won forty out of the forty-eight prizes, including the champion cup. Mr. J. Gnanamuttu, who has been acting head-master since 1898, reports that there are now three Christian graduates on the staff of the school and two other Christian masters, a considerable improvement over the condition of affairs in this respect seven years ago. He mentions many cheering incidents in connexion with the spiritual side of his work. The boys of the sixth form studied their Bibles with enthusiasm, and more of them than ever before entered for the Peter Cator Scripture Examination at the end of 1905; several of these elder lads on leaving the school, in response to Mr. Gnanamuttu's offer to do all in his power to assist them, wrote to him asking for help, not in the form of recommendations to employers, but by remembrance in his prayers; and one day a dozen lads of the preparatory school were found sitting round a table, while a Tamil Christian boy told them in broken Telugu how they might please God. Mr. Gnanamuttu also refers to the testimony of a Brahman to the influence of Christian education. He writes:—

A schoolboy witnesses for Christ in his home.

I was talking to the town magistrate, an intelligent and very upright Brahman graduate, when another high Brahman official came in and said to me, 'Can you exempt some boys at least from attending your daily Bible-classes?' 'Why?' said I. 'You lay hold of our boys at the most impressionable period of their life and teach them about Christ. Sooner or later the fabric of our Hindu society and religion will be shaken to its very foundations,' answered he. 'Is there imminent danger in any particular case?' inquired I. 'Why, there is in my own house. My boy refuses to believe in our gods. He teaches my wife all day about Jesus, and tells her that Jesus alone is the Saviour. If I question his assertion, he turns round upon me and says that I have not been properly instructed,' answered the inspector. I said, 'I have to thank God that our work has not all been in vain. I am only encouraged to teach the Bible more earnestly, and not to exempt boys from attending Bible-lessons.'

A cheering sign of the times.

The annual meeting of the debating societies of the school was held in November, under the presidency of a highly-educated Brahman. In his speech he advised the students to read daily at least two verses of the Sermon on the Mount and to ponder over them. A cheering sign of the times!

Fifty years' progress in the Ellore district.

The Rev. F. W. N. Alexander, who has completed forty-nine years of service in the Telugu Mission, says that when he first reached the country in 1857 there was no congregation in the Ellore district of which he is now in charge, and only a very small one in Masulipatam, whereas at the present time the Christian adherents in the two districts exceed 30,000 in number. Mr. Alexander had the help of the Rev. G. H. Asirvatham, an Indian assistant missionary, four Indian pastors, ten evangelists, and seven catechists, but the staff was too small to effectually minister to all the congregations and carry on the evangelistic work as well. A special gathering of the teachers in the schools in the district was held for combined religious instruction at the beginning of 1906, and more than eighty men were present, the great majority of them converts from the district. There was a considerable increase in the number of communicants, but the people were in much distress from the scanty nature of the rains of the last few years, though it could hardly be said that actual famine prevailed, and their contributions to religious work were affected by the scarcity of food and employment. Unhappily caste prejudices were not altogether laid aside among them. Many Chucklers continued to join the Church, but no visible impression was made upon the Sudras, who form the 'backbone of the population.' At one time twenty-eight of the former were baptized together. Among them was an old woman at Polsanipalli, who had given a Christian name to all her children at their birth as a sign that when they were older they were to embrace Christianity. Her husband and children were baptized with her. In the Nuzveed sub-district (comprising the Nuzveed, Chekkapalli and Chintalapudi Pastorates) there was a marked improvement in the attitude of the higher castes towards Christianity, and Mr. Asirvatham speaks of two men among them who were secret inquirers.

RAGHAVAPURAM.

Raghavapuram.

The Rev. R. W. Peachey, who was in charge of the RAGHAVAPURAM district, describes his experiences during 1905 as having been a fight: a fight to maintain the work, seeing that he also had charge of the Khammamett district, and for the latter part of the year the superintendence of the Itinerancy; a fight with the distress caused by the scarcity of food, which was at nearly three times its usual price; and a fight with caste and intrigue among the Christians. The feeling between the Malas and Madigas was intensified by the advent to the district of another Mission, the work of which is confined to the latter, while at various times several congregations absented themselves from public worship and announced that they were about to join the Baptists. There was a slight increase in the contributions of the people, which was the more gratifying as it occurred in a year of scarcity. The appointment of fourteen new evangelists and teachers rendered it a little more possible to cope with the needs of the Christians and inquirers in the district, many of whom had previously only been able to receive one or two visits in the course of a week. Eighty-six adults were baptized. Among them were the firstfruits at Velidandla, a village which for some years has seemed hard and barren soil, but where twenty-nine persons were baptized during the year.

Caste and intrigue among converts.

Firstfruits on once hard and barren soil.

Mr. Peachey's task would have been even heavier than it was but for the appointment of the Rev. M. Devanandham, formerly pastor at Masulipatam, to act as assistant missionary. Mr. Devanandham, who entered upon his new duties in March, 1905, was placed in charge of the work in forty-four villages around Raghavapuram, containing nearly 2,000 Christians and inquirers, and had practically full responsibility in his sub-district. He had much trouble, through some question of caste, with the converts of three congregations, who tried to join first the Roman Catholics and then the Baptists, but, to the credit of those communities, were refused admission. Mr. Devanandham is unable to give a good account of the older congregations, for he says that their aim appeared to be to get as much as they could out of the Mission; much of his time, moreover, was occupied with settling their disputes among themselves; and he has to add, alas, that some of the Christians did not hesitate even to commit perjury in an open court.

KHAMMAMETT.

Khammamett. In the KHAMMAMETT district the Rev. R. W. Peachey had the help of two Indian pastors, the Revs. K. David and P. Yohan, in ministering to the native Christians, who numbered about 2,000. Several new congregations were formed; the number of inquirers on the roll increased from 600 to 800; and sixty-four adults were received into the visible Church. Many of these were baptized at Kampally, where whole families embraced Christianity. There were, however, some disappointments, notably at Copal, a village in the extreme west of the district, where the inquirers were unwilling to be baptized, because in that case their children could not be married to certain heathen relatives. Even Rama, the leading inquirer, was involved in this difficulty. Mr. Peachey writes:—

Baptism of a Hindu family.

> One man alone held firm, and marriages or no marriages, relatives or no relatives, desired baptism. As he was ready I baptized him and his family. The service was held in the open courtyard of Rama's house, under a leaf-pandal. Directly facing me all the time was in the same courtyard a temple to Hanuman, the monkey god, built by Rama's father, but now neglected and in ruins. During the service I happened to look over at Rama, and found him in tears. When it was all over we sat down to talk. 'I have not been so sad since my father died,' said he. His burst of grief was not to be mistaken. He had a glimpse of what he had missed, when a man his inferior in mental attainments, coming to Christ through his influence, yet stronger than Rama in faith and desire, entered into the covenant of the Children of Light, while he remained outside. I am glad to say that Rama settled the matter definitely that night, and is only waiting till I go there again to receive baptism with all his family.

HYDERABAD.

Hyderabad. Canon M. G. Goldsmith was joined at HYDERABAD, a city with a population of 300,000 souls, one third of whom are Mohammedans, by the Rev. and Mrs. G. E. Brown, of the New South Wales Association, but Mr. Brown was naturally unable to do much beyond study the language. Services were held on Sundays both in Canon Goldsmith's house and in another private house, and preaching in Hindustani was maintained every morning and evening in the city near the Residency, and occasionally elsewhere. Opposition was less marked than in previous years, and the discussions which took place were generally friendly, notwithstanding the presence in the city of a large number of the followers of Ghulam Mirza, of Qadian, who are bitter antagonists of Christianity. Canon Goldsmith regards them and the members of the Arya Somaj as helping to keep up a spirit of inquiry, and he mentions that at the weekly services of the Brahmo Somaj the Lord's Prayer and Christian hymns are used, although our Lord is only conceded a place alongside of Gautama Buddha and other human guides. The chief book-shop was under the charge of Abdul Masih, whose baptism was recorded in last year's Report (page 281), and of whom a good account is given.

Canon Goldsmith paid visits to the Kistna district, Bangalore, &c., labouring among the Mohammedans wherever he went.

DUMMAGUDEM (KOI MISSION).

Dummagudem.

The people of DUMMAGUDEM, as of so many other places in the Telugu country, suffered from the comparative failure of the crops in the spring of 1905, and the consequent high prices of grain which prevailed during the year. Unhappily there was little prospect in December, when the Rev. J. Cain the superintending missionary wrote his annual letter, of any improvement, for the rains of the two previous months had been very slight and great scarcity was then inevitable. Mr. and Mrs. Cain had the help of two Australian ladies of the C.E.Z.M.S. and of the Rev. M. Sadhuvu, the Indian pastor, who was admitted to Priests' Orders during the year. The Sunday schools made greater advance than in any previous year, and many of the parents of the pupils heard the Gospel from their children's lips. The usefulness of the Girls' Boarding-school received fresh exemplification, for Mr. Cain found that in some villages the services were taken by former pupils when there was no one else to conduct them, while at one place the evangelist found it necessary to give himself more time for study, since three girls from the school, having married, had settled in the district in which he worked, and their knowledge of the Bible was equal to his. The lace industry employed about 200 persons, Christians and non-Christians alike, who, but for it, must have fallen victims to the hard times. Their work was awarded medals at the Madras Fine Arts Exhibition and the Indian Christian Exhibition, and also gained the fourth certificate for lace work at the Exhibition held in Bombay in connexion with the National Congress. Some 7,000 attendances were registered at the Dispensary.

Girls' Boarding-school.

Dispensary.

In the south of the district there was a noteworthy spirit of inquiry among the Kois, who hitherto have not been much influenced by the Gospel, and to the south-east there were great openings which could not be utilized because of the lack of Indian agents. In many places, to use Mr. Cain's expression, men and women were 'waiting to cross the threshold,' but could not be prepared for baptism. Thirty-three weavers belonging to a place called Gangeleru, ninety miles from Dummagudem, who had heard the Gospel at the dispensary, were baptized by a worker of the Methodist Episcopal Mission whom 'Waiting to cross the threshold'.

Mr. Cain told about these people, the distance being so great that he himself could not arrange for their teaching. The Rev. M. Gnanasigamoni continued his devoted labours in the Malkanagiri and Rampa Taluqs where he has worked since 1885 in the midst of trying isolation.

III. TINNEVELLY.

PALAMCOTTA.

Palamcotta. Preparandi Institution.

The Rev. T. Kember had sixty-two students under his charge in the Preparandi Institution at Palamcotta. Twelve of them belonged to the Senior Theological Class, the members of which gained the first and two other prizes in the Bishop Gell Bible Prize Examination. The Junior Theological Class is composed of schoolmasters who are brought in from the district for a year's special study of Holy Scripture, history and doctrine. There was a perceptible improvement in the nine students of this class, and they evidently appreciated the help afforded to them. The Normal Department contained about twenty students in both the Lower Secondary Class and the Primary Class. Fourteen of those belonging to the former passed the written Government Examination and the same number the Practical Test, while of the latter the corresponding numbers were thirteen and fourteen. Thirty-six normal students went out as teachers at the beginning of 1905. Every opportunity was given the men of gaining practical experience by conducting services in a mission-church, preaching in the open air, and holding prayer meetings for little bands of Christians in neighbouring villages. Mr. Kember is happily able to report a greater interest in the truth among the men under his charge, and a more eager desire for and striving after likeness to Christ.

High School. Showers of blessing in a mission-school.

The Rev. R. F. Ardell was Principal of the High School. Early in the autumn half an hour every day was devoted to special prayer for an outpouring of blessing upon the staff and the pupils, and within a fortnight the answer was received. Writing in February, 1906, Mr. Ardell says :—

> I am thankful to be able to say that though four months have now passed since this happened, the boys still continue in prayer and supplication for others, but now, not for half an hour only, but for an hour each day between 6 and 7 p.m., and again after school is over for the day from 9.10 to 9.30 p.m. I believe that about fifty boys have really received blessing and renewal, while the hearts of many others have been moved, and these are being brought, one by one, to unite with the others in prayer. Some of them show the reality of the blessing received by taking an interest in the souls of others, both in praying and working for them. Some forty or forty-five go out to the surrounding villages preaching on two Sundays of the month. They start off in bands of five or six at about 4 a.m. in the morning, with a little rice tied up in a cloth for their mid-day meal: each band preaches in two or three villages, and returns about nightfall, tired and hungry, but very happy.

Three of the boys were baptized. Two of them were former pupils of the Mary Arden Lower Secondary School. They met with a good deal of opposition from their parents, but had grace to stand firm. The parents of seven other lads were willing for their sons to be baptized, but the boys were old enough to understand what they were taught while yet too young to decide for themselves, and it was therefore deemed advisable to wait until they should ask for baptism of their own accord. Schoolboys baptized.

At the Sarah Tucker College Miss A. J. Askwith had the assistance of Misses M. L. Pawson, A. M. Naish, F. E. Henrys, and R. E. Howard in the work among the 345 girls belonging to the College, High School, Lower Secondary School, and Upper and Lower Primary School Departments, and to the Training College. One of the girls of the Second Grade Collegiate Department of the last named, and three of the Upper Secondary Department passed the written test, while seventeen out of thirty-one of the Lower Secondary Department and six out of nine in the Primary Grade were successful. All six candidates who sat for the F.A. Examination passed, as did five out of the nine who went in for the Matriculation Examination, and in the Lower Department of the College also the examination results were good. There were twenty-three boys and sixteen girls in the blind school, and five of the children passed the Primary Examination, one boy gaining full marks in arithmetic. In the earlier part of the year a little trouble was experienced owing to the unwillingness of some of the girls to exert themselves sufficiently to observe the rules of the institution, especially those relating to speaking English at stated times of the day. There was a happy change, however, in the autumn, several coming under conviction of sin and turning to God. Miss Naish, who mentions these facts, adds, 'Oh, that we may have more of this shower! We want a full monsoon!' The branch of the Gleaners' Union and other religious organizations mentioned in last year's Report were continued, and greater interest was taken in the missionary working-party than in 1904. Thirteen of the children were baptized on the same day in March, 1905, about half of them being from the blind school. From time to time visits were paid to the forty-three branch schools. The master of one of them has a Sunday-school with about ninety children. In another, where the children are Mohammedans, a little girl one day declared, when questioned at school, that Jesus Christ was the Son of God, and, when beaten at home in consequence, held to it that her answer was correct. A new school was opened in a village of Pallars, who are regarded as even lower than the Sarah Tucker College. 'We want a full monsoon.

Pariahs. The children were very wild, and the teacher had to sit near the door to keep them from running away.

Girls' Boarding-school.

Fifteen of the elder pupils of the Girls' Boarding-school, which was superintended by Mrs. Kember, were confirmed in the summer, and some of them acted as Sunday-school teachers. A desire to help others was fostered by the Sowers' Band, the members of which raised Rs. 15 for the Hang-chow hospital by the small profits of many hours' needlework. There appeared to be real spiritual blessing among the girls, accompanied by deep conviction of sin.

TINNEVELLY TOWN.

Tinevelly Town.

The College.

On his return from furlough in January, 1905, the Rev. H. J. Schaffter resumed his duties as Principal of the College in TINNEVELLY TOWN. Notwithstanding that the fees were higher than ever before the classes were fuller, and Mr. Schaffter states that the authorities of the Hindu College are closing their branch school at Tinnevelly, because while its purpose is to feed their college, the boys, as a matter of fact, pass on to the C.M.S. institution. A little trouble was experienced in consequence of the Swadeshi excitement. Some of the students became unruly and threw stones at the Christian masters, and it became necessary to inflict severe punishment. Moreover, the momentary glorification of everything Hindu and Asiatic, brought about by the victories of the Japanese, led to renewed admiration for Hinduism, and affected the Scripture classes. The Hostel boys carried off the two first prizes and a lower prize in the Bishop of Madras's Prayer-book Examination.

MENGNANAPURAM.

Mengnanapuram.

Misses F. E. Thomas and E. Wiles resided at MENGNANAPURAM, and carried on the work at the Elliot Tuxford School. The latter was laid aside for a considerable time by a serious illness.

THE TINNEVELLY DISTRICT.

Itinerating Band.

Mr. E. Keyworth and his six Indian colleagues of the Itinerating Band made monthly tours, each of three or four weeks' duration, in the district. Among the cheering incidents recorded is the forsaking of their errors by five Roman Catholic families in a place called Srivaikundam, led to do so by an address given by one of the band. They had been influenced before in some measure by some Christians living in the town, and afterwards continued steadfast in spite of the persecution to which they were subjected. As a rule the evangelists were treated with kindness, and in one place Mr. Keyworth lived for ten days in a Hindu temple, holding Bible-classes and prayer-meetings close to a stone image of Vishnu, represented as sleeping on the folds of the seven-headed cobra and shaded by its hoods. At Ettaiyapuram, the Rajah lent the premises of his High School for an exhibition of Bible lantern-slides, and a former student of Tinnevelly College spoke in defence of Christianity and begged that a boarding-school might be started under Zenana ladies for little girls of his own and other well-to-do families. Several weeks were spent among the agricultural robber tribes, but nothing was stolen from the members of the band, though the people knew that Mr. Keyworth had a considerable sum of money about him. One of these robbers, Andi Thevar by name, is an inquirer. Mr. Keyworth writes of him:—

An inquirer's trials.

I first met him when out for a walk. He embraced my feet and told me that he and his family wanted to become Christians, and were only waiting till the pastor would arrange their baptism. He told me cheerfully of the persecution that he underwent in his distant village, where his and another household were the only Christians. The rest were mostly his relatives, but would not allow his family to draw water from the public well. His family used to set down vessels near the well and wait till some one would appear to fill them. He had a well of his own about a quarter of a mile off, among his own fields, but the path to it, which was a very old one, had been blocked up and ploughed up by an old lady of great influence in the hamlet. I saw all this when I visited them in my daily programme. This old lady had poisoned her own mother for objecting to the marriage of the daughter to her uncle or nephew. As this new husband had some children by a former wife, she poisoned them also to get all the land. After we had preached to an attentive crowd, including this lady, I was begging the people to be brotherly to my friend, Andi, when they all commenced to violently abuse him, especially this matriarch. He looked amused, as if it was a usual thing, and we went to his house for a prayer-meeting. Next day he came four miles to tell me that after I left there had been an attack on him, in which his wife had joined, and that he had been stoned out of the village. I feared that my attempt at mediation had done him harm, but he did not think it would injure him eventually, and the next day his wife and he, having made it up, came to see me.

Wholesale poisoning.

At one place, the name of which is not given, an incident occurred which showed how the teaching received in boyhood is sometimes remembered. Mr. Keyworth thus narrates it:—

Teaching remembered sixteen years later.

A young pastor was requesting me to give our magic-lantern lecture on Biblical scenes in his chief town-hall, but asked me to omit the pictures in which our Saviour's form is represented. I at first demurred, as we often show all the slides from Genesis to Acts with much acceptance at a bajanai, or lyrical service with our violins and other instruments. The pastor then said, 'About sixteen years ago, sir, when I was a small boy in the High School, you preached in Palamcotta about Hezekiah breaking up the brazen serpent, and said that deed was included in his worthy acts, and that there was a danger lest even good things such as pictures of our Saviour might be worshipped. Now there are Roman Catholics and Mohammedans and some Hindus here who oppose us and say that we Protestants also worship images.' I could not help smiling at his kindly tact and agreeing to his proposal. Of course the slide of the 'Brazen Serpent' itself, preceded by the scene on Mount Moriah and followed by the Prodigal Son and other parables, furnished grand texts for preaching the Gospel.

Several persons were baptized. One was a cousin of a great landowner at Kadambur, claiming relationship to an ancient royal family which formerly had great influence in South India; he afterwards attached himself for a time to the band of evangelists. Mr. Keyworth says:—

Baptism of a member of a robber caste,

He belongs to a powerful caste who were robbers by creed. Some of them, who are revered and rich, still believe that they are bound, for their souls' welfare, to steal something at least once a year, on a certain night of new moon when robbery can be with difficulty detected. Immediately after his baptism his people were very kind, but afterwards they urged him to marry a girl of their choice who is a Heathen, so that they might get some landed property for him and the family. He refused to do this, and they were so hostile to him on a recent visit that he was afraid to take food in his own father's house.

and of a Brahman post-master.

Another interesting convert, a young Brahman postmaster, was baptized at Turaiyur. He had been under instruction for about two years, but was brought to a decision by what he heard from the evangelists. Mr. Keyworth says:—

He gave up his appointment and his ancestral property, which latter was a great deal to him, and was baptized as Jacob Devathanjam ('Divine Refuge'). Moreover, just before his baptism a great Hindu landowner, who is called a Maharajah, sent for him and offered him a tempting post in his service if he would remain a Hindu, and also proffered him about Rs. 200 for marriage expenses, and said he would arrange for his wedding. The young man declined these honours and returned sixty miles to Palamcotta. Shortly before his baptism he was carried off by relatives on Sunday when coming to the Tamil Church, but escaped to Mr. Carr's house. He begged to join the band, even if only temporarily, that he might testify in public, and learn Christian truth with the Itinerancy. To such converts we make a temporary allowance of a shilling a week and their food. We do not give them leave to visit their non-Christian friends, as there is great danger of their being drugged and detained, or even killed He went away one or two days without leave, but returned to us all right, to our great relief.

Gift to the Society from the Tinnevelly District Church Council.

Among the most interesting contributions to the funds of the Society during the year has been one of £500 received from the District Church Council, of which the Rev. E. S. Carr is the chairman. Several series of special services for the Tamil agents were held by the Rev. T. Walker and Mr. G. Sherwood Eddy, of the Y.M.C.A., and were distinctly fruitful. Speaking of the general character of the Indian Christians, the former expresses his belief that there is a more intelligent apprehension among them of the meaning of the Gospel, and that there is ground for real hope of better things in the future.

In the Palamcotta Circle several were baptized, including a brother of the Rev. A. N. McTier's servant. The Brahman matriculate, whose baptism was recorded in last year's Report (page 289), and who was afterwards employed at the Sarah Tucker College, fell away, and with his wife and child returned to their heathen relatives. An interesting baptism took place in Tinnevelly Town. Some years ago the services in the little church were interrupted by the drumming of a very energetic Hindu sunyasi (hermit or sage), a man with a remarkably long beard. Remonstrances were of no avail, and he made such a din that the intervention of the police had to be sought. Early in December the Rev. H. J. Schaffter wrote :— A former opponent baptized.

> I had lost sight of the man for some four years, two of which I spent in England, but last Sunday, when, at the pastor's request, I preached at the Tamil service in the morning, there was a baptism of a tall, thin man. I had no idea who he was, and was surprised to hear the pastor after the baptism bespeak our love and sympathy for my old friend, the bearded drummer. No wonder I did not recognize him. He was minus his beard and noisy drum and yellow robe. I dare say he has much still to learn, but a serious illness seems to have decided him to give up Hinduism. He ought to make a valuable evangelist—for he knows lots of Hindu ideas of God and can speak with power, and sing—if, as he will now, I hope, he speaks and sings the Gospel only. His baptismal name means 'Servant of Jesus.'

The Rev. V. Gnanamuttu, the chairman of the Alvaneri Circle, reports an increase in the contributions of the people, and expresses his hope and expectation that his circle will shortly be self-supporting. Thirty-two adults and more than 100 children were received into the visible Church, twenty-six of them being baptized on the same day at a village named Vadivalpuram.

In spite of the failure of the crops in three successive years the Christians of the Seval Circle, of which the Rev. D. M. Pakkianadhan is chairman, are steadily pressing forward towards self-support, and their contributions increase year by year. The ingathering festival was honoured by the presence of the Bishop of Tinnevelly, who gave a number of addresses, confirmed nearly 300 candidates, and baptized thirty-nine adults. The proceeds of the festival, Rs. 367, were nearly Rs. 100 more than in 1904. Fifty-nine adults were received into the visible Church in the Idayunkulum Pastorate, bringing the number of baptized Christians up to 1,650.

The Rev. F. W. Breed was acting-chairman of the Panni-kulam Circle. It is a sad but familiar fact that native Christians often fall away through contracting marriage with the Heathen, but it is seldom that the converse happens. Mr. Breed, however, mentions that in a certain village he met a man who had become a Christian because he wished to marry a Christian girl. His mother was a devil-dancer, and tried to tempt him back to Heathenism, but thanks to his wife's influence he stood firm.

Since the Mengnanapuram Circle became self-supporting, it has not only paid its way in spite of scarcity of rain and consequent famine, which have naturally affected the giving powers of the people, but an increase has even taken place in the staff of workers, and in the number of villages in which Christian instruction is given. The Rev. M. H. Cooksley, the medical pastor and secretary of the Circle, says that he has observed that the people who are most liberal in giving their sangam money are also forward in helping outside objects. From the beginning of 1906 the Circle has undertaken the support of the dispensary carried on at Mengnanapuram by Mr. Cooksley. Nearly 4,000 visits of out-patients were there recorded during the year under review, and both a Roman Catholic and a Mohammedan who were benefited by the treatment, made thankofferings. Some of the Christians of the village undertook a three days' evangelistic tour, their expenses being paid by others who were not able to render personal service in that way. Forty adults were baptized.

Forty adults baptized.

The Rev. P. G. Simeon, the chairman of the Suviseshapuram Circle, is responsible also for the supervision of the Dohnavur Circle, the total area under his charge being over 700 square miles, and the number of Christians between 7,000 and 8,000. He describes the year under review as having been in many respects one of 'unprecedented progress.' Thirty-two adults were baptized, and the gifts of the people were higher than ever before. Some special meetings were conducted in the summer by the Rev. T. Walker at various centres in the Suviseshapuram Circle, and the effort was succeeded by other gatherings in December, lasting for nine days. At first the attendance at these latter was but sparse, but it gradually improved, and on the second Sunday in Advent there was a remarkable scene. Mr. Simeon writes:—

'Unprecedented progress.'

> During the sermon at the morning service many were seen shedding tears and sobbing; and some had even to leave the church because they could not contain themselves. The special prayer-meeting the same night was crowded, and some Christians from the surrounding villages also were present. When the call went forth for prayer, one man of the village offered prayer with tears, and pleaded with anguish of heart with the Heavenly Father for mercy and pardon. Before he ended the whole assembly spontaneously broke out into prayers. The cry was very great; many bewailed their sins, others unreservedly confessed their past misdeeds, and the rest poured out their hearts in the presence of the living God. Thus almost all present were moved and touched by the Spirit of God. It seemed as if there was disorder in the prayer-meeting, but there was none in reality; and as if there was confusion, but there was none in spirit. Some fainted, and the whole village, usually dull and cold and indifferent, was stirred to its very bottom. It was wonderful to see how men who would not writhe and cry under even severe bodily punishment, were crying like children and shedding tears of bitterness. The effects, thank God, are miraculous. The village is unusually quiet in the day, and especially in the night. The use of bad words—a common sin of many native Christians—and other flagrant sins are being given up; the whole conduct of many souls is changed; and prayer-meetings are carried on by the people themselves without a leader—a thing unknown till now; while there is an expression of joy and gladness visible in many a face.

An indifferent village stirred and transformed.

A season of great blessing was experienced in the Surandei Circle in November, 1905, when the Itinerating Band visited the town of that name. On their arrival they at once began to gather together the boys belonging to the boarding-school, and Mr. E. Keyworth relates what happened as follows :—

Revival among school-boys.

From the first meeting the fifty boarders were greatly impressed with a sense of sin. About twenty-five were converted at the first prayer-meeting. They had heard little about the Welsh 'revival,' or other such seasons before. They began to openly confess their sins and to pray for mercy for themselves and for others. During the twelve days that we were there the teachers testified to a great change in the daily life of many troublesome and some very bad boys, who now are arranging to preach the Gospel during the Christmas holidays. About twenty more boys were converted in the school, and in the church eight men and about three women witnessed to their own conversion, while the whole congregation was in a state of rapture. Two teachers also praised God for being born again. We left on December 5th for another centre, where similar events took place in the congregation and in the neighbourhood, and we heard that the good work in Surandei was continuing after we left it.

The Christians of the two Circles in North Tinnevelly, of which the Rev. F. W. Breed is chairman, are almost entirely dependent on agricultural employment, and suffered greatly through the partial failure of the north-east monsoon in 1903 and its complete failure in the following year. Work was scarce and prices high, but many of the people showed real self-denial in order that there might be no falling off in their contributions towards the funds of the Tinnevelly Church. Special meetings were conducted by the Rev. T. Walker and Mr. G. S. Eddy for the agents in January, 1905, and the good effects of them were still being felt at the close of the year. Mr. Breed states that there is a spirit of inquiry abroad in many villages in North Tinnevelly. He came in contact with several individuals who seemed hopeful cases, and he also had interviews with a number of Maravar families in two different places, who expressed a desire to embrace Christianity and asked for teachers.

Whole families desire to embrace Christianity.

In the Sachiapuram Circle there was a religious movement in the town of that name at the end of 1905 among the children of the boarding-schools for boys and girls, similar to that already reported as occurring in the Surandei Circle. Mrs. Breed writes :—

A religious movement in mission boarding-schools.

There has been much private prayer, but no other human means to influence the children. The girls broke down quite suddenly on Sunday, just like 'a little Wales,' all praying together. They have all, without exception, received peace, and now they are constantly at prayer.

The boys are working up for their examinations, but most of them, too, have received blessing. It is very wonderful. Please pray for us, that the work may be deep and lasting, and that Satan may be kept out altogether.

Several families were baptized in the spring at Vadapatti, a Maravar village near Sachiapuram (see Annual Reports, 1903–4, page 289 ; 1904–5, page 291), and the converts proved zealous in preaching to others of their own class in adjoining villages.

Observance of Day of Rest.

Moreover they contributed even more liberally than had been hoped to the Native Church Fund, and were scrupulous in observing the Day of Rest. When the rains first set in several of their heathen neighbours begged them not to lose the opportunity of ploughing or, at any rate, if they would not go themselves, to lend their bullocks, but both requests were refused by the Christians. The High School at Srivilliputhur still suffered from the agitation caused by the baptism of two Brahman pupils (see last year's Report, page 291), but the number of scholars slowly but surely increased.

A village munsif baptized.

A village munsif was baptized in the Sankaranainarkoil Pastorate of the Vagaikulam Circle. For fifteen years he had been studying the Bible, but had held back from baptism.

TRAVANCORE AND COCHIN MISSION.

The Mission in the semi-independent native States of Travancore and Cochin, which occupy a narrow strip of country on the south-western coast of India, between the Western Ghats and the sea, was established in 1816 at the invitation of Colonel Munro, the British Resident. For twenty years it was worked by Benjamin Bailey, Joseph Fenn, Henry Baker, sen., and others, mainly with a view to the reform of the ancient Malabar Syrian Church, which claims to have been founded by the Apostle St. Thomas. Since 1837 the missionaries have laboured independently, the result of which has been not only the adhesion of many Syrians to the purer worship of the Church of England, but an active reforming movement within their own Church, which was much fostered by the late Metran, Mar Athanasius. The labours of Peet, Hawksworth, H. Baker, jun., and others, among the Heathen, particularly the lowest castes and the Hill Arrians, have been also greatly blessed. Allepie was occupied in 1816; Cottayam and Cochin, 1817; Mavelikara, 1839; Trichur, 1842; Pallam, 1845; Tiruwella, 1849; Kunnankulam, 1854; the Arrian Mission was begun in 1855; and the Alwaye Itinerancy in 1881.

On July 25th, 1879, the Rev. J. M. Speechly, a C.M.S. missionary and for some time Principal of the Cambridge Nicholson Institution, was consecrated first Bishop of Travancore and Cochin. On his resignation in 1889 the Rev. E. N. Hodges, who had previously been Principal of the Noble College, Masulipatam, and of Trinity College, Kandy, Ceylon, was nominated to the See, and was consecrated on April 25th, 1890. Dr. Hodges retired in 1905, and Dr. Charles Hope Gill, a missionary of the Society, succeeded him.

Consecration of Bishop Gill.

THE Rev. Charles Hope Gill, whose selection to succeed Dr. Hodges as Bishop of Travancore and Cochin was recorded in last year's Report, was consecrated in Westminster Abbey by the Archbishop of Canterbury, assisted by the Archbishop of the West Indies and others, on October 18th, 1905, and eleven days later sailed for his diocese. He was accorded an enthusiastic welcome on his arrival at Cottayam on November 28th, and was enthroned the same morning in the pro-Cathedral in the presence of more than 2,000 people. A special feature of the service was the benediction of the Bishop by the senior missionary, the Rev. J. H. Bishop. Pending the arrival of Dr. Gill the Rev. Dr. W. J. Richards acted as his Commissary.

Convention of the Syrian Reformed Church.

At the invitation of the authorities of the Syrian Reformed Church the Rev. T. Walker, of Tinnevelly, conducted a convention at Maramanna in February, 1905. The Rev. A. E. Dibben, Secretary of the Ceylon Mission, who was spending a short holiday in South India and assisted Mr. Walker, says that the attendance at the meetings, which were held in a huge pandal (booth) erected in a dry river-bed, varied from 10,000 to 15,000. The Metran (Bishop), his Suffragan, and from thirty to forty of the Syrian clergy were present at the gatherings. At the closing meeting many testified to blessing received, and many others stood up as a token that they then and there accepted Christ as their Saviour.

Death of the Rev. A. Johnson,

Two former workers in this Mission have been called to their rest. The Rev. A. Johnson, who died in March, 1906, laboured in Travancore from 1862–8. He was afterwards Vicar of Fulstow, near Louth, a very poor parish, which nevertheless has long sent up nearly £50 a year to the Society.

and Mrs. J. Johnson.

In the same month as Mr. Johnson, Mrs. Amelia Johnson died at Forest Gate. She was a daughter of Henry Baker, senior, and was on the mother's side a granddaughter of the Rev. J. C. Kohlhoff, of Tanjore, a contemporary of Schwartz. Her husband was the Rev. John Johnson, a missionary in Travancore from 1837 until his death in 1846.

Reinforcement.

The Mission has gained one recruit in the person of the Rev. William Saunders Hunt, Theological Associate of King's College, London, Curate of St. Matthew's, Fulham. The name of the Rev. J. Joseph, who was ordained in 1906, has been added to the list of native clergy. The Committee have accepted with regret the resignation of Archdeacon J. Caley, and placed on record their warm appreciation of the earnest and faithful work done by him during the thirty-four years of his connexion with the Society in this Mission. The resignation, on medical grounds, of the Rev. C. E. R. Romilly has also been accepted by the Committee.

CHURCH COUNCILS.

Cottayam Council.

The pastorates connected with the COTTAYAM CHURCH COUNCIL number twelve. For some years the Christians of the Kunnankulam Pastorate, of which the Rev. P. J. Joshua was in charge, have displayed little interest in the work going on in their midst, but in 1905 there was a happy change in this respect. Thirty members of the congregation undertook to pray earnestly for a revival; several commenced to visit those who were irregular in their attendance at the services; and steps were taken to meet the excuses made for not being present by the provision of a supply of clothes for those who lacked them. At the request of some Hindu gentlemen of influence, who declared that they had no objection to the Bible being taught, a vernacular school was opened at a village called Parannoor. After a few months, however, the Scripture teaching began to be opposed, owing, it was thought, to the regulation of the Cochin Government that attendance at religious teaching should not be compulsory in schools aided by them.

Meeting excuses for non-attendance at church.

There were seventeen adult baptisms in the Trichur Pastorate under the Rev. A. E. David. Concerning one of the converts he writes:—

Baptism of a student.

> He was much struck with the teaching of the Bible, but being young he had not the courage to give up all, even his parents, for Christ, and therefore wisely waited until he got more strength. Last September he left everything and went to Mr. Palmer and told him that he wanted to become a Christian. Mr. Palmer then sent him to me. I received him as a catechumen, instructed him, and found him very earnest and sincere. While he was preparing for baptism, his father and brother with two others came here to take him away, by force. The interview between the father and son was very touching. The father shed tears like a child, and passionately pleaded with his son to go back to his home. These cries and entreaties affected the young man very much: he lost his courage, and wavered for some time. But the Lord gave him strength: he soon came to himself, and pacified his father by promising to go to him in December. The father reluctantly returned home. The young man urged me to baptize him as soon as possible, and a few weeks later I admitted him into the Church by holy baptism.

The Rev. K. P. Varkey, whose health had failed at Mallapalli, was transferred thence in the summer to take charge of the Cochin Pastorate, with its 400 baptized Christians. Most of the members of the congregation who for one reason or another had joined themselves of late years to other bodies of Christians came back to the Church. The Rev. M. T. Chakko, of the Allepie Pastorate, had three evangelists under his direction. Sixteen adults, including the firstfruits of the work at Karimadi, were received into the visible Church. In the Olesha Pastorate, under the Rev. C. C. Thommen, a few families joined the Roman Catholics. Eleven persons were baptized. The Rev. A. J. Pothan, of the Arpukara Pastorate, reports the baptism of thirty-two persons on one day at Thalayalam, one of the out-stations. In the Cottayam Pastorate the Rev. T. K. Benjamin baptized a woman whose husband had been dead for some years, and who had been living with a man of higher caste than her own. For this she was expelled from her own caste, her funeral rites being performed by her family. The contributions of the people to the Native Church Missionary Association were more than double those of the previous year. The Rev. J. Chandy had 2,700 converts under his care in the Pallam Pastorate. There was some falling off in the number of Christians in the Pampadi Pastorate, due partly to the removal of some of the people in search of work and partly to the influence of certain schismatics.

Tiruwella Council.

There are three pastorates connected with the TIRUWELLA COUNCIL. More than forty adults were baptized in the Tiruwella Pastorate by the Rev. A. O. Matthai, who was transferred in the summer from the Kaviur Pastorate, where he was succeeded by the Rev. K. M. Matthan, formerly of Mavelikara. The latter speaks of his people, who are chiefly drawn from the depressed classes, as backward in attendance at public worship and in contributions to the Church Fund, owing to the machinations of some disaffected converts.

Mavelikara Council.

Of the twelve pastorates connected with the MAVELIKARA COUNCIL, the Tallawadi Pastorate was under the Rev. T. Koshi. Thirteen adults belonging to the depressed classes were admitted into the visible Church, but the Christians were lacking in liberality. The Rev. M. C. Thoma, of the Kodawalangi Pastorate, had to cope with disaffection among the members of his flock, and was called upon to intervene in behalf of some of the poorer Christians, against whom charges were brought in the police courts. The Rev. T. K. Joseph, of Puwattur, was placed in charge of the Mavelikara Pastorate. He mentions that the failure of the crops in three successive years has seriously affected the power of some of the congregations to support the work by their gifts. Dissension unhappily prevailed among the people of Mankuly, one of the stations in the Kattanam Pastorate, and the interference of the Salvation Army adversely affected the congregation at Chunakara. The Rev. M. P. Matthan, however, is able to speak hopefully of the work at Pallikat. In the Putupalli Pastorate evangelistic work was carried on at the Ochira Hindu festival by the pastor, the Rev. T. I. Cheryan, and others. One who was present wrote:—

> In all my experience as an itinerant preacher for the past fourteen years I have never come across more orderly or attentive audiences than those we had day after day. The Mohammedan, ever ready to be quarrelsome and controversial, was this year all that could be desired by a preacher. I am informed that they even asked for the tracts for Mohammedans, and, what is more important, they read them carefully.

Much evident blessing rested upon the efforts made in the Kannit Pastorate by the Rev. W. C. Cherryan and his colleagues. Special evening meetings which were held in Advent and Lent were attended not only by the Christians but also by large numbers of Hindus and Mohammedans, and the pastor describes the year as ending with a 'great spiritual thirst.'

'Great spiritual thirst.'

Melkavu Council.

The MELKAVU CHURCH COUNCIL has four pastorates in connexion with it. The Rev. W. C. Kuruwella, of the Melkavu Pastorate, mentions in his annual letter the case of a pupil at one of the schools who died during the year. He writes:—

> He was eager to read the Word of God, and to pray. His parents rebuked him for this, but he went on praying without fear, telling them that they worshipped idols while he worshipped the Christian's living God. He was attacked with typhoid, and was at the point of death. He sent for me, but I was not able to go and see him, as I was away at Cottayam. His last words were very hopeful. He said, 'I am going to my Father, and my Saviour has received me, and my father will also follow me.' His mother was very much moved by this sad event, and I hope she will soon be brought into the fold of Christ.

'My Saviour has received me.'

In the Erumapara Pastorate some special services which were held were instrumental in the conversion of seven young men. The Christians, who belong to one of the hill tribes, are described by the Rev. P. O. Matthan, their pastor, as ignorant and in some respects as of doubtful honesty.

NATIVE CHURCH MISSIONS.

Native Church Missions.

Work in the Pandalam and Adoor district was carried on by the Rev. T. K. Ninan. He met with very little opposition, but he is afraid that the calmness of the people was due to their absorption in agriculture and other earthly pursuits and not to any eagerness to hear the truth. The existence of so much merely nominal Christianity in the country proved a stumbling-block in the way of several Hindus, who, while expressing their admiration for the teaching of Christ, excused themselves from yielding Him allegiance by saying that Christians were not only no better than themselves, but were very much worse. Two families of Koravars were admitted as catechumens, and others put themselves under instruction. The Rev. W. A. Stephens and three evangelists made a short tour in the district in the autumn.

Nominal Christianity a stumbling block to Hindus.

COTTAYAM AND PALLAM.

At the beginning of 1905 the Rev. J. J. B. Palmer, the Principal of the Cambridge Nicholson Institution, COTTAYAM, had the assistance of the Rev. W. A. Stephens, but the latter was transferred early in February to Tiruwella, to take the place of Archdeacon Caley. Of the six students in the senior divinity class when the year opened, one left almost at once on account of the urgency of the need at Mankompu, where for some years he had been catechist-in-charge; and two others left in March for work, one as a catechist and the other as an evangelist. Fifteen of the students in the normal classes completed their course, and the great majority of them took up work in connexion with the Anglican Church. Some, however, belonged to the Reformed Syrian Church, three to the Jacobite Church, and one to the Romo-Syrian Church. Members of the last named have to obtain the permission of their Bishop to attend the Institution. A valedictory meeting was held for the outgoing students in the chapel. Mr. Palmer speaks thankfully of the 'spiritual atmosphere of the Institution,' and says that the men are keen on their voluntary work in the schools and in open-air preaching, and that the interest in foreign missions is on the increase. He was able to give some assistance to three young Hindus who were anxious to come out on the side of Christ. One of them, who was afterwards baptized, was a young man belonging to a bigoted and wealthy Nair family. He came bearing letters of introduction from the Suffragan Bishop of the Mar Thoma Syrian Church and from the pastor at Elantur. His people concocted a criminal charge against him, and got a warrant issued for his arrest, but he escaped in time. The Rev. E. V. John, the Indian clergyman, was still engaged on the revision of the Old Testament.

classes, and there are now fifty-one in the senior and seventy-eight in the junior First Arts class, as compared with eleven and twenty-one respectively in 1895. The total number of scholars connected with the institution is just over 600. The results of the examinations which took place at the end of 1904 were not made known until after Mr. Askwith's last annual letter had been written. They showed that twenty-five out of thirty-three students had passed the F.A. Examination, and twenty-nine out of fifty-one the Matriculation Examination. Four men went in for the Higher Grade Peter Cator Scripture Examination, all of whom passed, one gaining a first class and prize of Rs. 40, his name standing third on a list of thirty-five candidates. Similar success was met with in the Lower Grade, for twenty out of twenty-three passed, and one stood third on a list of 268, winning a first class and a prize. A few of the students, led by two of the masters, devoted part of their vacation to a preaching tour in the district, and many of them engaged in Sunday-school work among the Heathen and open-air preaching on Sunday afternoons, sometimes having to wade through floods in order to reach their destination. The Rev. J. Booth, who was Mr. Askwith's colleague at the College, visited some of these Sunday-schools from time to time. He also acted as Secretary of the C.M.S. Press at Cottayam.

Baker Memorial School.

A wave of zeal for female education is said to be passing over the Syrian community, and the women among them who have been taught in the Society's schools are anxious to get Bible teaching for their girls. This may have conduced to the rise in the number of pupils of the Baker Memorial School, under the Misses I. and A. Baker, which by November, 1905, had the names of ninety-five boarders and 126 day-pupils on its rolls. On the other hand the opposition of the Roman Catholic convent schools, and the early age at which even the daughters of Christians are withdrawn in order to be married, militated against success. During the year the school was raised to the standard of a High School by the establishment of a sixth form. The branch day-schools at Nagampadam, two miles north of Cottayam, and Kettekalkunoo, seven miles distant, prospered, and at the invitation of the Syrians of the Reforming Church a third day-school was opened at Evukart, with a former student at the Cottayam College and his wife, trained at the Buchanan Institution, as teachers.

Pallam. Buchanan Institution.

The woman just mentioned is one of the 100 and more fully-qualified teachers who have gone forth from the Buchanan Institution, PALLAM, during the fourteen years which have elapsed since its foundation, more than seventy-five of whom are now at work in mission and other schools. The Rev. E. Bellerby, the Principal, mentions with thankfulness that the ambiguous circular concerning religious instruction in State-aided schools, which was referred to in last year's Report (page 300), has been suppressed, in response to the strong representations made to the Government. The total number of students was about 170, more than half of whom were boarders. Twenty-four were in the Normal Department, divided into senior and junior classes. Of the ten candidates from the former who sat for the Lower Grade Peter Cator Scripture Examination eight passed in the second class. The results of the secular examinations are given as follows:—In the Lower Secondary Grade seven senior students appeared for the Madras Teachers' Written Test, and five junior students took this examination in the Primary Grade, and all passed; these with some former students, entered for the Madras Teachers' Practical Test, and nine out of eleven candidates in the Lower Secondary Grade and all seven candidates in the Primary Grade were successful in gaining certificates. Three students also appeared for the examination for the Travancore Lower Vernacular Normal Certificate, of whom two passed both the written and the practical tests, one of them standing first in the published list. From the School Department twelve pupils from Form III. appeared at Cottayam for the Madras Lower Secondary Examination, and six passed the complete test, one being placed in the first class. Nine girls from Forms I. and II. appeared for and passed the Madras Fifth Standard Examination, and four out of seven candidates passed the Madras Primary Examination. The Gospel meetings, Gleaners' Union and Scripture Union gatherings, and other efforts for the spiritual welfare of the students were continued as in previous years, and some special meetings were held by Mr. R. T. Archibald, of the Children's Special Service Mission, which were instrumental in definite blessing to some of the girls. There are eleven branch schools, containing nearly 600 children, and only lack of funds, not lack of openings, prevented their number being increased. Besides his responsibilities in connexion with the Institution Mr. Bellerby had those which came upon him as Secretary of the C.M.S. Educational Board and several other organizations, while Mrs. Bellerby carried on some dispensary work.

TIRUWELLA AND ETTAMANUR ITINERANCY.

Archdeacon J. Caley was succeeded at TIRUWELLA in March, 1905, by the Rev. W. A. Stephens, of Cottayam, but the latter did not labour at the station for many months, for at the end of the year the Rev. C. A. Neve returned from furlough and was placed in charge, and Mr. Stephens went to Pallam to gain a little practical experience of the work before taking over the superintendence of the Buchanan Institution. There are two Tiruwella.

small Boarding Schools in the mission-compound for the children of poor Christians, and three miles away is a school for Hindu girls. The congregations of the old Tiruwella mission district having been formed into pastorates and placed in connexion with the Native Church Council, it was decided that the chief work of the missionary at the station should in future be to lead an itinerating band of evangelists, and make special efforts to reach people of the higher castes. Three evangelists were transferred from the Native Church Council to form the band, and they were able in six months to preach the Gospel in more than fifty towns and villages. Though opposition was sometimes encountered, the workers frequently had large companies of interested listeners, while opportunities for conversation with individuals were plentiful. Indeed, the senior evangelist, a man who has had long experience of work in Travancore, declared that he had never before known the people to give such earnest heed to the message of salvation. In one town a magistrate, who came accompanied by the head-master of the Government school to call on Mr. Stephens, struck by the 23rd Psalm which was read to him, asked where he could procure a copy of the book, and at another place a few of the leading officials gathered together to hear an address on 'The Greatest Need of the Human Race,' and a Hindu himself took the chair.

Earnest heed given to the message of salvation.

The ETTAMANUR ITINERANCY was superintended by Dr. Richards as the Bishop's Commissary. The Rev. P. A. Samuel, an Indian clergyman, laboured among the people working on the plantations in the neighbourhood of Peer Maad. He was permitted to baptize fifteen adults.

ALLEPIE.

The Rev. Dr. W. J. Richards had much of his time occupied with the duties which fell upon him as Commissary, first for the Metropolitan of India, during the vacancy in the see of Travancore and Cochin, and then for Bishop Gill. He speaks of Hinduism as increasingly active, and refers to the hindrance to the work at ALLEPIE, where he had his head quarters, caused by the opening of a Theosophical High School, which drew away more than twenty boys from the mission-school. The first block of the new C.M.S. High School was completed by the end of 1905, much to the thankfulness of Dr. Richards, who says that he is 'more than ever convinced of the value of schools as a missionary agency—the best for making Christ known in an abiding way.' The senior evangelist in the diocese, whose striking lecture at Allepie was mentioned in last year's Report (page 302), was called to his rest in the summer. Writing in Allepie.

High School.

the Travancore Diocesan Record, Dr. Richards gave the following account of the way in which this man, Mr. S. Satiadasan, had originally been won for Christ:—

Converted through reading the Scriptures.

The story of his interest in the truth, as he told it to the Rev. Jacob Chandy, is as follows:—A colporteur in Trevandrum asked him, as he was passing, to buy a New Testament, praising it up, and saying it was only four annas (6*d.*). He agreed to purchase in the evening, and duly bought the book and began to read it. The Gospels did not interest him, but looking through the book he was attracted by the Epistle to the Romans, and from thence led back to the Gospels. Eventually a friend carried off his book, and he bought another and studied it with the result that he came to believe in Jesus.

He had interviews from time to time with the Rev. Henry Baker, then in charge of Cottayam, and with the Rev. Samuel Mateer, of the L.M.S., Trevandrum, where he had married the daughter of a temple priest, as well as with the Rev. J. M. Speechly. Then in 1876 he came forward for baptism, and he and his wife were for a few days the guests of Mr. Baker and of the Rev. K. Koshi (afterwards Archdeacon). The foreign Brahmans in the place made a 'to do' and gave out that the couple were unlawfully detained against their will; but Mr. Baker was able to convince the local Brahman magistrate that they were quite free. However, through the lies and cunning of the Brahman women-folk the wife of our subject was persuaded that she would be forcibly married to a low-caste man, and that her husband must take another woman, and she eventually ran away, and for three months could not be found. It ended, however, romantically. The husband, through the assistance of Mr. Mateer, received secret information as to the whereabouts of his wife, and in the disguise of a washerman he gained access to the Brahman house where she was being detained against her will. She had learnt that it was all false about his being forced to marry another. He told her of a bullock-carriage waiting outside the village; she escaped; and the man had the pure pleasure of eloping with his own wife!

ALWAYE ITINERANCY.

Alwaye Itinerancy.

The sphere of the ALWAYE ITINERANCY is a district occupying the northern portion of Travancore and a part of Cochin, and is somewhat sparsely populated, though there are a few widely separated large centres. For the working of it Mr. A. V. George, an assistant missionary, was responsible, under the supervision of the Rev. J. H. Bishop. At Alwaye itself a band of workers from Trichur kept up an all-night preaching at the time of a famous annual fast. On the first day the work was stopped by a Brahman who raised a great tumult, and denounced the evangelists for coming to preach to people who were not without belief in God. He afterwards had a long talk with one of the workers, and accepted a small book, The Sacrifice of Christ, written by a Brahman convert. Wykium was visited during one of the most important of its ceaseless festivals by Mr. Stephens and his band of evangelists, who proclaimed the Gospel there for five days amid persistent interruption. The Anglo-vernacular school at Muwattapura, where Mr. George had his head quarters, suffered from the proximity of a rival Roman Catholic school which drew away many of the boys.

COCHIN, TRICHUR, AND KUNNANKULAM.

Trichur.

The Rev. J. H. Bishop, who was joined in the autumn by the Rev. W. S. Hunt, had several schools under his supervision in the TRICHUR district. The High School, which is situated in the Hindu quarter of the town, held its own under Mr. P. A. Stephen, the head-master, in spite of severe competition, and had 390 pupils, nearly all high caste Hindus. Mr. Bishop says that the evangelistic work was attended by signs of approaching blessing not among the Christians only, but also among the Hindus and Mohammedans. The preaching of the Cross, which once was a stumbling-block to the hearers, was listened to attentively and reverently, and the people showed themselves anxious to obtain the Gospel handbills, which in old days they used to tear up in contempt. The schools at Uragam and Shalakudi each had about 100 pupils of the higher castes, some of them at the latter place being girls. At Peringottakara the children of well-to-do Chogans, a caste below the Nairs, are received, and at Eringalakude most of the scholars are Mohammedans. The school at Mala is described as unique in that its pupils are Jewish and Mohammedan boys and girls.

Kunnankulam.

Bible distribution.

At KUNNANKULAM the Rev. F. Bower continued his efforts among the Namburi Brahmans, visiting them in their homes and distributing Bibles. He had the opportunity of preaching the Gospel in some houses, but he found that the Namburis were unwilling, as a rule, to discuss religious topics when any Nairs happened to be present. The latter showed a greater readiness than in former years to purchase the Scriptures, and among the Hindus in general there was less bigotry and greater inclination to search for the truth. Mr. Bower records, in his annual letter, an incident which shows the work which the Bible is doing among those who read it. One day in his study he was speaking to a high caste Hindu who proved to be acquainted with the facts of the Death and Resurrection of Christ. In answer to an inquiry as to how he had obtained this knowledge he replied that it was from the lips of a Namburi Brahman. Mr. Bower goes on to say:—

> He said a little time ago he was in a large audience (at Guruvayur) composed of Namburis, Pattur Brahmans, Nairs, and other high-caste men, including a few petty rajahs. Among them was a great Namburi, whom I will call N. He was an eminent man, both for learning and piety; in fact he appears to have been one of the best Sanscrit scholars in the Cochin State, and was also a celebrated guru. He was, moreover, very eloquent, and was highly respected by the other Brahmans. My informant assured me that he knew a great deal about Christ, and spoke of Him with deep interest and great reverence before the whole assembly. This, of course, was a matter of no small surprise to the other Brahmans, and soon aroused their anger. Some began to contradict his statements about our religion, and accused him of being a Christian in heart. A few now began to get very excited, and one of them said sneeringly that Christ was such a low, wicked fellow that even His own people, the Jews, had Him put to death in the most disgraceful and painful manner possible. An able Shastri then came forward and spoke very strongly against our blessed Lord and his holy religion. This was too much for N., who was very soon on his feet, and in a very few minutes completely silenced his opponent! To use the words of my informant: 'No one was able to stand before him, for, knowing both religions well, he immediately chopped up all that was said against Christ and Christianity.' This remarkable Namburi then, with much energy and eloquence, spoke of our Lord's exemplary life, his miracles, teaching, death, and resurrection, as though he had been a preacher of the Gospel. This made such an impression on those present that not another word was spoken by any one against the Redeemer, or His religion. He ended his discourse with the following words: 'I have examined different religions, and among them I have not found any one equal to that of Jesus Christ for excellence.' Who can tell how far-reaching such words as these may be, by the blessing of God, spoken to such an audience by a great guru like N.?

'He chopped up all that was said against Christ.'

An eminent scholar's testimony to Christ.

We now come to the dark side of the picture! 'The offence of the Cross is not ceased.' For this noble confession before his fellow-countrymen I fear he had to pay dearly, for after returning to his home he lived but a few weeks. The cause of his death does not seem to be known. All that we have been able to ascertain is that N. died in severe pain, and there are doubts among some who knew him as to whether foul means were not made use of to get rid of him. His death was much regretted by all who knew him among various classes of the Hindus. He was evidently a great admirer of our blessed Lord and Saviour.

You will be interested to hear that about five years ago this man received from us, most willingly, a Malayalam Bible and also a copy of The Dawn of Wisdom, which clearly shows that Christ is the Fulfiller of sacrifices. These books he seemed quite pleased to get, as he had already heard something about Christ, and he promised to read them. A Pattur Brahman, who lived near this Namburi, said he used to look upon him as an incarnation of Vishnu, and also asserted that he had frequently seen him reading the Bible.

There are two Lower Secondary and three Primary schools in the district supervised by Mr. Bower, and in January, 1905, he opened an English High School at Guruvayur, a Hindu town of great importance. The general desire for English education had led to several attempts by Hindu and Mohammedan gentlemen of the locality to open a school of their own, but without result. Consequently, towards the end of 1904 the inhabitants of the town offered Mr. Bower a sum of Rs. 2,500 and a suitable site for a building, and requested him to start a school. Regarding this as a direct call from God, he set on foot the Fourth and Fifth Forms, and in December, when he wrote his annual letter, he was hoping shortly to start a Sixth Form. By the autumn there were forty pupils in the school, including two Nair girls and six Mohammedan youths, and within a few months of beginning the work fifty Bibles were sold in the town. The great annual Hindu festival at the town was not attended by so many Hindus as usual, and there was no opposition by the people of that religion to the preaching of the Gospel by the evangelists of the Mission and those of the Reformed Syrian Church. A couple of Mohammedans declaimed against Christianity, and the more influential of them succeeded on the last day of the festival in gaining a fair audience, but no sooner did a Christian evangelist begin to speak than the Mohammedan stopped, and most of his hearers crossed the street to listen to the Gospel. At the conclusion of the evangelist's address a Mohammedan was heard to say, 'This is the preaching to which we should listen.' A young Namburi Brahman, who was baptized in 1904, and has since led a consistent life, boldly bore testimony before a number of Hindus and Mohammedans to the truth of Christianity and met with no interruption. So well behaved was the crowd that extempore prayer was offered twice a day immediately after the preaching, a thing which, Mr. Bower says, would have been altogether impossible twenty years ago.

Bold testimony of a Brahman.

CEYLON MISSION.

Ceylon, which became a British possession in 1796, was one of the first fields to which the fathers of the C.M.S. turned their eyes. It was not, however, until 1817 that the Mission was commenced among the Singhalese and Tamils, the two races (with distinct languages) which form the population of the Island. For the Singhalese population, work was begun at Kandy in 1818; at Baddegama, 1819; at Cotta, 1822; and at Kegalle, 1880. For work among the Tamils, Jaffna was occupied in 1818; Colombo, 1850; Galle, 1903; and the Tamil Coolie Mission was begun in 1855.

The first Bishop of Colombo, Dr. Chapman, was appointed in 1845, and has been succeeded by Bishops Claughton (1862), Jermyn (1871), R. S. Copleston (1875), and E. A. Copleston (1903).

The Buddhist Temporalities Ordinance.

Two matters connected with the Government of Ceylon, and affecting more or less directly the spread of the Kingdom of Christ in the Island, have called for the careful attention of the Committee. The first was what is called the Buddhist Temporalities Ordinance. By that it was provided that 'it shall be lawful for the Governor of Ceylon to appoint a Government agent of any province and the assistant Government agent of any district respectively to be a Commissioner for the purpose of controlling and assisting any of the committees in the administration and management of the funds and property of the Buddhist temples.' When this Ordinance was proposed a strong and influential committee was formed in Ceylon to protest against the Legislative Council doing anything which could be construed into Government patronage of Buddhism, for the temporalities are bound up inextricably with temple ceremonies. Notwithstanding their remonstrances the Ordinance was passed. Accordingly a deputation waited upon the then Colonial Secretary, Mr. A. Lyttelton, urging that the Royal assent should be withheld. In his reply the Colonial Secretary denied that the measure of control of the temporalities contemplated by the Ordinance could have the effect of identifying the Government with Buddhism. He regarded it as a primary function of the Government to protect the poor and ignorant from being robbed by the powerful and well-to-do, and he saw no chance whatever of these funds being honestly administered without Government control being applied, or recognized as applicable. In the event, however, the concession was made that the Bill should first of all be tried for a period of five years only.

Government action concerning education.

The second question, which is still under discussion, may have a serious bearing on the mission-schools in the Island. At the beginning of 1905 the Government of the Colony appointed a Commission to consider proposals for extending elementary education. More than one-half the children in the Island, it appears, do not attend school, and these illiterates are not only themselves handicapped in the race of life, but form a perennial fount from which the criminal classes are replenished.

tianity, and the more influential of them succeeded on the last day of the festival in gaining a fair audience, but no sooner did a Christian evangelist begin to speak than the Mohammedan stopped, and most of his hearers crossed the street to listen to the Gospel. At the conclusion of the evangelist's address a Mohammedan was heard to say, 'This is the preaching to which we should listen.' A young Namburi Brahman, who was baptized in 1904, and has since led a consistent life, boldly bore testimony before a number of Hindus and Mohammedans to the truth of Christianity and met with no interruption. So well behaved was the crowd that extempore prayer was offered twice a day immediately after the preaching, a thing which, Mr. Bower says, would have been altogether impossible twenty years ago.

Bold testimony of a Brahman.

The Buddhist Temporalities Ordinance.

Two matters connected with the Government of Ceylon, and affecting more or less directly the spread of the Kingdom of Christ in the Island, have called for the careful attention of the Committee. The first was what is called the Buddhist Temporalities Ordinance. By that it was provided that 'it shall be lawful for the Governor of Ceylon to appoint a Government agent of any province and the assistant Government agent of any district respectively to be a Commissioner for the purpose of controlling and assisting any of the committees in the administration and management of the funds and property of the Buddhist temples.' When this Ordinance was proposed a strong and influential committee was formed in Ceylon to protest against the Legislative Council doing anything which could be construed into Government patronage of Buddhism, for the temporalities are bound up inextricably with temple ceremonies. Notwithstanding their remonstrances the Ordinance was passed. Accordingly a deputation waited upon the then Colonial Secretary, Mr. A. Lyttelton, urging that the Royal assent should be withheld. In his reply the Colonial Secretary denied that the measure of control of the temporalities contemplated by the Ordinance could have the effect of identifying the Government with Buddhism. He regarded it as a primary function of the Government to protect the poor and ignorant from being robbed by the powerful and well-to-do, and he saw no chance whatever of these funds being honestly administered without Government control being applied, or recognized as applicable. In the event, however, the concession was made that the Bill should first of all be tried for a period of five years only.

Government action concerning education.

The second question, which is still under discussion, may have a serious bearing on the mission-schools in the Island. At the beginning of 1905 the Government of the Colony appointed a Commission to consider proposals for extending elementary education. More than one-half the children in the Island, it appears, do not attend school, and these illiterates are not only themselves handicapped in the race of life, but form a perennial fount from which the criminal classes are replenished.

The Report of the Commissioners recommends that, in all parts of the Colony where the population is sufficiently dense, attendance at school shall be made compulsory for boys, and in certain districts for girls also. One consequence of the adoption of the Report will be the enforcement of a Conscience Clause in the schools which the children are compelled to attend, and it was proposed that religious instruction should be given only during periods specified in the time-table of each school, and that it should not be given to pupils of other denominations except with the consent of the parents. As regards these proposals, it can, of course, only be a matter for congratulation that the advantages of education should be more widely available, and that parents should be pressed in some effective way to send their children to school. Moreover, the Society has no desire to force Christian teaching on children against their parents' wishes or without their knowledge. But, on the other hand, the main object of mission-schools is to impart religious teaching and non-Christian parents, knowing the aim of these schools, have hitherto, from various motives, been willing to send their children to them. In Ceylon some 19,000 children, most of them non-Christians, are taught daily in C.M.S. schools. The Committee, therefore, forwarded petitions in January, 1906, to the Colonial Secretary and to the Governor's Council in Ceylon urging a modification of the terms of the Conscience Clause, and it is understood that their views in the matter are likely to be met.

Convention for Singhalese workers.

In the spring of 1905 a Convention was held at Kandy for the deepening of the spiritual life of the Singhalese workers in Ceylon. The idea originally emanated from the late Rev. J. Ireland Jones, and for two years before the meetings a number of persons had been praying continually that a rich blessing might rest upon the effort. The speakers were the Rev. T. Walker, of Tinnevelly, and Mr. G. S. Eddy, of the Y.M.C.A. and S.V.M.U. of South India. The Rev. J. G. Garrett, the Convention Secretary, wrote thus of the closing scene:—

> The Hall was crammed to overflowing for our last night. Mr. Walker's loving words of comfort had lifted our hearts into the sanctuary where we are secure under the Precious Blood of Christ. The Kandy public had withdrawn and left our 300 workers a solid mass in the middle of the building. Mr. Eddy had once more searched our hearts by questions probing to the very depths. He had pointedly, with that intimate knowledge of mission work which made the application of every address so searching, explained all it meant to pledge ourselves to follow Christ at all cost. How my heart quailed as he mentioned the very missionary who 'would perhaps call you to the far-off, difficult, inaccessible out-station,' and then he put the test—'Will all pledge themselves from this day to take up the cross and follow exactly as Jesus leads?' I confess as I realized what it meant my heart failed me, as I sat in the far last bench in the hall; and when my highest hope was realized, and almost to a man every single worker rose, and as one man—not one after another as though following a leader, but as a body—the C.M.S. workers stood to pledge themselves henceforth determined to follow the Lord fully, my heart indeed overflowed with thankfulness, and I felt that the work had begun. The Revival had commenced.

Almost all the Singhalese workers connected with the Society were present at the meetings, and the annual letters of the missionaries, written at the close of the year, bear abundant witness to the lasting good done by the Convention. Both an encouragement and a stimulus to the workers are supplied by the Census returns, which show that almost exactly one half (4,156 out of 8,396) of the villages of Ceylon in 1901 had Christians within their borders.

Death of the Rev. J. S. Peter.

The Rev. J. S. Peter, formerly one of the native clergy of this Mission, was called to his rest on January 11th, 1906. After six years' service as a schoolmaster and ten as catechist, he was admitted to Deacons' Orders in 1872 and stationed at Kandy. Five years later he resigned his connexion with the Society and took up work under the Bishop of Colombo.

Reinforcements.

The Mission has been reinforced by the Rev. Walter Stanley Senior, M.A., Balliol College, Oxford, Chaplain and Lecturer of St. Aidan's College, Birkenhead; Miss Amy Kathleen Deering, of Long Ashton, Bristol, trained at The Willows and Bermondsey; and Miss Constance Emily Browne, who has been accepted in local connexion on special agreement. On the other hand the Committee have accepted the resignations of the Rev. H. E. Heinekey, of Misses A. C. Goodchild and E. G. Beeching on their approaching marriages, and of Miss H. P. Phillips on account of ill-health, after thirteen years of self-sacrificing work in the Mission.

I. WESTERN AND SOUTHERN PROVINCES.

COLOMBO.

Colombo. English Work.

The Rev. A. E. Dibben, the Secretary of the Mission, speaks of a growing attendance at the English Services at Galle Face Church, Colombo, and of applications for sittings beyond the available accommodation. Greater interest in the Church was shown by the leading members of the congregation, but Mr. Dibben was not able to detect among the people in general that anxiety for their own spiritual welfare or that zeal in God's service which he longed to behold. Besides his work as incumbent of the Church, Mr. Dibben was a member of some thirty different committees and boards, the most important of which was that concerned with the revision of the Singhalese Bible. The Rev. W. Booth was responsible for the English service which was held every Sunday at St. Luke's, Maradana, where a layman, Mr. J. M. Cary, superintended the Sunday-school and the Boys' Brigade. The Colombo branch of the Gleaners' Union, of which Mr. J. W. Ferrier, the Accountant of the Mission, is Secretary, contributed Rs. 300 towards the support of a Singhalese catechist, and also raised Rs. 200 for the Society by means of a Communicants' Shilling Fund.

Ladies' College.

The work of the Ladies' College, with its 212 pupils, Europeans, Hindus, Mohammedans, Parsis, Jews, &c., belonging to some of the highest families in Ceylon, was carried on by Misses E. Whitney and E. G. Bennitt after the departure of Miss L. E. Nixon on furlough at the beginning of 1905. Nine of the eleven girls presented for the Cambridge Local Examinations passed, three obtaining honours. One of these gained the Cambridge scholarship for seniors awarded by the Ceylon Government, and another the corresponding scholarship for juniors. A department for boys was opened with nearly fifty high-class pupils.

Singhalese Work.

During the first two months of the year under review the Rev. R. W. Ryde resided at Colombo and superintended the Singhalese Work: at the end of February he was transferred to Cotta, to take the place of Mr. Balding, but he continued to discharge his former duties so far as possible. The two Congregations were ministered to by the Rev. D. J. Perera. Two new vernacular girls' schools, besides the two already in existence, were opened during 1905, and Miss A. Higgens, who superintended them, reports that one soon gained an average attendance of nearly fifty pupils. She adds that the Bible-woman working in that district afterwards experienced a great change in the attitude of the people, barely civil receptions being exchanged for warm welcomes. The children of one of the older schools acquitted themselves well in the diocesan Scripture examination, seven of them gaining full marks, and many others obtaining over seventy-five per cent. In the autumn, on her return from furlough, Miss L. M. Leslie-Melville was appointed to help Miss Higgens temporarily in the Work among Women.

Increased opposition.

The Bible-women in some places met with bitter opposition, which appears to be on the increase, as the people are now being better instructed in Buddhism; but in spite of it they laboured faithfully. The old Bible-woman, too, who retired in 1904, and of whose zeal an account was given in last year's Report (page 309), continued to work unofficially. One day she came to Miss Higgens to tell her that a woman who had wandered from the right path was returning. Some years before this woman had been baptized, but then she was enticed away from her home and lost sight of. The man with whom she lived was afterwards crippled by rheumatism, and then suddenly recovered. As a thankoffering, on his return to Colombo he went to a Hindu temple (though he was a Buddhist) to dedicate himself to one of the Hindu gods. As he returned from the temple the rheumatism seized him again, and before he reached home his arm was well-nigh crippled. He took this as a sign that God was punishing him for doing a wicked thing, and expressed a desire to learn about Him and to lead a right life. Another woman was led to Christ in a remarkable manner. Miss Higgens writes :—

A woman won by a dream.

The niece of one of the Bible-women, a truly Christian girl, was dying. All her relatives were round her, and she prayed for many of them by name and called upon them again and again to trust in Jesus; she said she was going Home to Him and had no fear, no trouble, for she was going to receive a crown of life. All this was a great help to many of them, especially to her elder brother. His wife was a very bigoted Buddhist, who would not have anything to do with Christianity, nor even look at Christian pictures. One night this woman saw in a dream a very glorious Being with a long beard and hair falling down to His shoulders, standing in the sky near the sun, and as she looked she thought, 'That is the Christians' Jesus!' A few days later she was out selling fruit and came to a Christian house, where, opposite the doorway, was a picture of our Lord just as she had seen Him in her dream. No one being in the outer room, she went up to the picture and gazed and gazed till at last some one from the inner room inquired what she was so interested in. 'Oh, nothing,' she said, 'I was only looking,' but about two days afterwards she gave up Buddhism and said the picture was a representation of Him she had seen in her dream, and she knew He was the Lord. Her life bears testimony to her changed heart.

Visiting the gaol.

Visits paid to the gaol at Hultsdorf, where prisoners are kept while awaiting their trial, formed a specially interesting branch of the Singhalese Evangelistic Work. One of the men, who had been arrested for the murder of his wife in a sudden burst of anger, was baptized early in the year. Mr. Ryde gives the following account of him :—

Baptism of a prisoner.

After hearing an address on the words, 'What shall it profit a man, if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?' he decided to search further for the truth. He received and read a tract on Christianity, and then asked for a Gospel. On receiving one he began carefully to read it, and he learnt that there was One Who could forgive and Who would not cast out any that came to Him. The testimony of several who saw him about this time was that God was teaching the man, and that a work of grace had been begun in his heart.

He was very much touched by the story of the Good Shepherd, and said, one day, 'I am a sheep of that flock.' He had been puzzled by the strange foreign word for baptism (bawtisma), which he found in the Gospel, and asked what it meant. On learning that it was the rite of admission into the flock of Christ, he was very anxious to be baptized. So one day we had the baptismal service for him in the prison, and gave him the name of Paul, having previously read to him the story of St. Paul in the gaol at Philippi. After this his weakness increased, but his repentance was sincere and his faith strong. One day he told us that the Gospel was to him as the plank which a drowning man catches.

Tamil Work.

The Tamil Work was superintended by the Rev. W. Booth. The contributions of the Christians to religious objects were larger than in the previous year; some of the people who had not done so before joined in open-air work; and a weekly prayer-meeting was sucessfully instituted. This last was an outcome of some special meetings conducted by a Tamil evangelist who accompanied Mr. G. S. Eddy on his visit to the Island. Two Christians, who in 1904 had been sentenced to ten years' imprisonment on a charge of house-breaking, were liberated after an inquiry ordered by the Governor, in which it was clearly shown that a mistake had been made in identification. One of these men, a member of the Church committee, was found reading his Bible by the light of a lamp when he was arrested at 5 a.m. The Boarding-schools for Boys and Girls, which were placed under Mrs. Booth at the beginning of the year, were fairly successful in the examinations, and one of the girls was baptized, as well as a young woman who had been a pupil in days gone by.

The preaching-room in the centre of the native quarter of Colombo was the scene of much of the Tamil Evangelistic Work, for there addresses were regularly given to both Heathen and Mohammedans, and many informal conversations about Christianity took place. The women's side of this work was superintended by Mrs. J. D. Thomas after Miss E. S. Young left on furlough. Several Hindus were under instruction for baptism, including a man, his daughter, and her two children, in one house, and a woman and her daughter in another. The husband of the woman just mentioned is a baptized Christian, and has long been anxious that his wife should share his faith, but for many years she refused to listen to the Gospel. In another case the husband was a hindrance and not a help to his wife, for he would not hear of her baptism, nor allow her to attend the church services, declaring that she was 'Bible-mad.' In the Mohammedan homes great watchfulness is exercised by the men, and any leaning towards Christianity on the part of the women is at once suppressed if possible. Nevertheless, even among these people, there were proofs that the Gospel was making its way. Mrs. Thomas writes:—

'Bible-mad.'

> In one house an orphan girl, who lives with an aunt and her daughter, refused to join in the fast held in November of last year (1904). She used to read her Bible at odd times, chiefly while the others were sleeping. Her aunt expostulated with her for not fasting, but she said that she did not see anything about the fast in the Bible. Then the aunt was angry, and said, 'Because you have learnt a little you speak against our religion.' But in the fast which has just ended none of these three women fasted. The aunt said smilingly to the Bible-woman, 'Why should we? We do not believe in Mohammed.' They listen most attentively while the niece reads to them out of the Bible or tells them Bible stories. These women are living alone, or there would be a great outcry from the men at the fast being broken.

Mohammedan women discontinue fasting.

Besides visiting the people in their homes the workers went from time to time to the Victoria Home for Incurables. One of the inmates was a woman from Jaffna, who did all that she could to teach her companions about the Saviour. She said one day, 'I used to be a Heathen, but five years ago I fell at Jesus's feet, and now I am so happy.' 'I am so happy.'

The Central Educational Institute at Slave Island, as the school referred to in last year's Report (page 312) is called, maintained its position though the work was uphill. Addresses were given to the boys by Bishop Ridley and other missionaries passing through Colombo.

GALLE.

Miss E. C. Vines and Miss S. L. Ketchlee, who laboured among the Mohammedans at GALLE, had much to cheer them during the early part of 1905; but in April they met with great opposition, and were obliged to close the school and discontinue their visits to two outlying villages in which they had just begun work. They were able, in consequence, to devote themselves more to individual cases of need. Among those brought to them was a Hindu woman of the stonemason caste; she had been kidnapped in South India by two women, who had conveyed her and her baby to Ceylon, and there deserted her. Teaching this woman was a matter of considerable difficulty, and she took three weeks to learn the text 'God is love'; but then the truth seemed to reach her heart in some degree, for she asked one of the Bible-women to pray with her. Miss Vines says:— Galle.

We have had a difficult time, and every day we find more and more that our wrestling is 'not against flesh and blood, but against . . . the spiritual hosts of wickedness in the heavenly places.' We get so weary with hearing the same old useless arguments brought against our beloved Lord's divinity, and our hands often hang useless before the terrible onslaughts of the Enemy. 'Our hands often hang useless.'

COTTA.

The care of the work at COTTA was placed in the hands of the Rev. R. W. Ryde when the Rev. J. W. Balding left to take furlough early in the year. The former speaks in his annual letter of three great scourges which visited the district—the first two were dysentery and typhoid fever, which carried off large numbers of people and unhappily led some weak Christians to have recourse to devil-ceremonies; and the third was the free circulation of anti-Christian and often immoral literature in the form of blasphemous tracts. In order to cope with these a colporteur was employed to disseminate Christian literature, and the experiment was regarded, after six months' trial, as having justified itself. Cotta.

Several of the students at the Training School for Singhalese Female Teachers, under Miss K. Gedge, of the C.E.Z.M.S., which was removed to Cotta during the year, succeeded in passing the Government Entrance Examination. The need of such an Training School for Singhalese Teachers.

institution was sorely felt, for the staff of teachers at many of the vernacular schools was hardly efficient, and failures in arithmetic and geography on the part of the children were common. The opening of a rival Buddhist school was prejudicial to the Boys' English High School, of which Mr. W. de Silva was head-master, but the spiritual work among the lads prospered: one of them was baptized, and fourteen others belonged to the class for inquirers. The children under Mrs. R. T. Dowbiggin's care in the Girls' Anglo-Vernacular Boarding-school were remarkably successful in the Government Examination in every subject but arithmetic, and, moreover, there were many tokens of the working of the Holy Spirit in their midst. A girl, who when she first entered the school gave great trouble, changed so much that her mother expressed a desire that she herself and all her children should become Christians. Several instances occurred, too, which showed the love of the children for prayer. One small child, with a younger sister, during the holidays, prayed by the bedside of her sick father, and the Buddhist servant at the home of another pupil wept when term began, saying that there would now be no one to teach her to pray as her young mistress had done.

High School.

Girls' Boarding-school.

There are five centres of work in the district, at three of which a native pastor or quasi-pastor was stationed. The Rev. G. A. B. Perera was in charge of the Cotta Pastorate. One of the six adults baptized was a Buddhist priest, thirty years of age, and another had for some time been a Christian at heart, but had been prevented from declaring himself by the threats of his wife, who declared that she would leave him if he confessed Christ in Baptism. At length he summoned up sufficient courage to take the decisive step, and when the time came his wife failed to act up to her word. In the Talangama Pastorate the Rev. D. L. Welikala ministered to the Christians, and the triumphant deaths of some of the converts made a deep impression on the Heathen. The Rev. J. H. Wickramanayaka, who was in Deacons' Orders, conducted services regularly at three centres in the Mampe Pastorate, at one of which steps were taken to rebuild the ruined church. A young man was baptized in the district worked from Liyanwela. At Nambapane the native agent was boycotted by the local leaders of the Buddhist temperance movement, who refused to allow the dhobies to wash for him, or the doctor to attend him when he was ill. Mr. Ryde asks that this man may be specially remembered in prayer.

Held back by a wife's threats.

Triumphant deaths of converts.

In the Nugegoda Pastorate, of which the Rev. G. S. Amarasekara was in charge, four Christians, the sons of Buddhist parents, were attacked by the prevalent sickness. While they were unconscious a devil-priest was sent for, who muttered charms and tied on the sacred threads, but in spite of his intervention three of the young men died. Only one of them was restored to health, and he cut off the threads as soon as he regained his senses, much to the gratification of the native pastor and of another brother, and equally to the disgust of the superstitious Heathen.

BADDEGAMA.

Baddegama.

The general charge of the work at BADDEGAMA was taken over from the Rev. H. E. Heinekey at the beginning of the year by the Rev. S. M. Simmons, a great deal of whose time was necessarily occupied with organization. He speaks of the opposition to Christianity in the district as determined, and says that when it is absent the attitude of the people is one of utter indifference, and that there are but few seekers after truth. Six adults, however, were baptized, one of them being the head pupil of the Girls' Boarding-school, of which Mrs. Simmons was in charge. The girl, who was won for Christ at the school some years ago, had met with prolonged opposition from her father's family, but by her steadfastness at length gained the consent of her parents to her baptism. Her father said, 'Of what use is it to call her a Buddhist, when her heart is with Christ's religion? One is what one's heart is. She should be a Christian in name, for she is one already in heart!' At the close of the year the school contained fifty-one pupils. The Work among Women was in the hands of Miss E. M. Josolyne, excepting for a few months when she was once more lent to help Miss Johnson, of the C.E.Z.M.S., at Gampola. The mothers' meeting and the various classes did not flourish, and Miss Josolyne says that the Christian women require constant stirring up, and know but little of patient continuance in well-doing. Many of them, however, were stimulated by the Singhalese Convention held at Kandy, though the after-results hardly came up to expectations. In the course of her visiting with the two Bible-women Miss Josolyne met with several persons who were to some extent impressed in favour of Christianity. She tells of one woman who for many years had been trying to meet the requirements of her religion, but had not been able to find in it the satisfaction of her needs. When she heard the Gospel it seemed wonderful news to her, but at first she was ashamed to let it be known that she was not content with Buddhism and was learning about Christ. Happily her diffidence was removed, and she exclaimed in a satisfied voice, 'Jesus is my refuge.' Another inquirer was formerly a pupil in a mission-school.

'Of what use is it to call her a Buddhist?'

'Jesus is my refuge.'

Dodanduwa.

In consequence of ill-health Miss H. P. Phillips, of the New South Wales Association, was obliged to leave DODANDUWA for England early in 1905, and Mr. G. A. Purser was alone in the district until the summer, when he was joined by the Rev. R. H.

Industrial Work.

Phair. The Boys' Industrial School carried off two prizes with the five exhibits of carving which were sent to the agri-horticultural exhibition at Galle; and at the C.M.S. Sale of Work, held under the auspices of the Ceylon C.M. Association, one-fifth of the takings came from the sale of articles made by the boys, their work in teak realizing Rs. 650. Both the tailoring and printing departments did well, and some orders had to be turned away from the latter because the supply of type ran short. The Convention at Kandy was instrumental in arousing a more earnest spirit among the elder Christian youths, and Mr. Purser was cheered by a boy, who it was proposed should become a Buddhist priest and for whom he asked prayer in 1904, casting off his robes and refusing to continue as a disciple. Four young men were under preparation for baptism. Two of them at one time were very ill with dysentery, and their parents wished to have devil-ceremonies performed in their behalf and charms tied on their arms and neck, but both the youths refused to countenance such superstitious observances. In the Government Examination all but one of the thirty-two candidates presented from the Girls' Industrial School passed, but the loss of Miss Phillips was severely felt, for Miss Josolyne could not exercise from Baddegama the constant supervision which was needed. The latter, who six years before had resided at Dodanduwa, was struck with the fact that the people seemed to be less keen Buddhists than in former years, but states that unhappily it is not possible to attribute this laxity to any greater interest in Christianity. Many inquiries were made about Miss Phillips, who is much beloved in the district.

Inquirers discountenance devil-ceremonies.

II. CENTRAL PROVINCE.

KANDY.

Kandy.

Trinity College.

Soon after assuming his new duties in November 1904, as Principal of Trinity College, Kandy, Mr. A. G. Fraser saw the necessity of taking measures to deal with the custom prevalent among many of the boys of absenting themselves without due cause. With the names of 100 boarders and 392 day scholars on the rolls the average attendance was 377, so that nearly one-quarter of the total number of pupils was usually absent. A system of strict rules with respect to the matter was accordingly instituted, and other steps were taken which resulted in the reduction of the number of boys to 410, of whom 112 were boarders, but also in an average attendance of more than ninety-four per cent., while the remainder could be accounted for by medical certificates, or religious vows and festivals. One happy result of this reform was that the Government placed the College on a higher scale for grants, which in spite of the smaller roll increased by Rs. 350. Another change was the institution of a system of prefects, and it was found that the plan worked admirably, the sense of responsibility which it induced making the lads more serious. These and other measures which were adopted served to improve the tone of the College, and a visit by Mr. Sherwood Eddy furthered the good work, and led twelve lads to express a desire to read for baptism. Mr. Fraser mentions two instances, both occurring in connexion with athletics, in which the indirect results of the Christian teaching were manifest. He writes :—

Indirect results of Christian teaching.

In March we met the Royal College eleven at cricket. This is the great contest of the year, and we fully expected to win. Addressing the boys before the match, I urged them to give their guests of the Royal a good time, as they were strangers and had not their own supporters present. I urged them to remember that, though all of them were not Christians, yet they as students belonged to a College known as Christ's, and that they should bear themselves as He did, Who never sought His own. Next day our captain, the best bat and the best bowler in any college eleven, was ill with enteric, and we lost a good match. But every hit the Royals made, every wicket they bowled was cheered, even the winning hit. It was hard, harder here for them than for public-school boys at home; but they did it for the Christ, the King, and for the College founded in His Name.

Helping a rival.

For the swimming races this year two boys were easily best; each won his heat, and none knew which would win the final. One of the two came up to me and asked that the final might be put off for a quarter of an hour. I agreed, though he did not mention the reason. I found him later rubbing down his rival, who had had cramp. He had procured the delay that the race might be fairly fought. He is a Christian boy, the son of a Buddhist noble. He is a strong character, and has a powerful influence for good in the College as senior prefect. It is he who was mentioned last year as winning the Royal Humane Society's award for saving the life of a fellow-student in our large river. I am glad to add he has just won a scholarship at the Government Training College.

The Rev. A. M. MacLulich, the Vice-Principal of the College, spent part of the holidays with a band of pilgrims bound for Anuradhapura, walking the eighty-two miles there, and after a stay of two days retracing his way on foot. Among those whom he met was a priest who accepted a copy of the Singhalese Bible, and commenced to study it regularly.

The Rev. H. Gunasekara was in charge of the Singhalese Congregations at Kandy, Katukele, Gaetembe, Gampola, and Nawalapitiya. The fiftieth anniversary of Holy Trinity Church, Kandy, was celebrated in the summer. Two Christian marriages took place in the church, the first since 1903, all the persons being recent converts. Miss A. M. Denyer sketches the interesting history of one of the brides. She writes :—

A Christian bride's story.

When she passed the sixth standard she ceased to attend the village school, but she went to the schoolmaster's house and received further instruction in the Bible from him and his wife. Her parents forbade her to read the Bible in her home, but she managed to do so secretly. One evening there was a special meeting in the schoolroom. She ventured to attend. Her father was so displeased that he would not let her into the house, and she took refuge with a Christian burgher family whose daughter she had taught needlework. After two days her mother besought her to return home; she did so, and then a Buddhist marriage was pressed upon her. Being a true Christian she could not endure the thought of it, and resolved to come to the Converts' Home, leaving money, clothes, and her parents' favour that she might follow Christ. Very early the next morning her father and a contingent from the village appeared in our verandah, and begged the girl to return home, using threats from time to time; but she said she could not, for she refused to marry a Buddhist, and being over sixteen she was able to choose where she should live. In a month she was baptized, and took the name of Elizabeth.

Occasionally Elizabeth's father visited her, saying hard, cruel things. Her mother had a bad illness, and one day they sent two people from the village to fetch her. They said her mother was dying and she must return with them; they had a cart waiting near. Providentially she had that morning received a letter from the Christian schoolmaster telling her not to be persuaded to go home, as her mother would recover, so again she stood firm. Although Elizabeth had money of her own, scarcely a rupee of it would her father give his daughter. She often expressed regret at taking so much from us; she was always obedient, truthful, and conscientious, and we not only love but respect her. In June 1904 Elizabeth was confirmed, and she has been an earnest communicant ever since.

KANDIAN SINGHALESE ITINERANCY.

Singhalese Itinerancy.

The Rev. J. G. Garrett, who superintended the CENTRAL DISTRICT of the Singhalese Itinerancy, reports much cause for sorrow in the midst of much that called for praise. One of the native pastors had to be suspended and the oldest evangelist asked to resign, while the family of one of the teachers so disgraced his calling that the work in the village where he laboured had to cease. Moreover, at Urugala there was a sad fall of one who apparently was a most earnest Christian. Mr. Garrett writes:—

Sad case of backsliding.

Our old friend Louisa learned the faith at Cotta long ago, and her ministry to her own family led to her mother's marriage with her father and the baptism and confirmation of all her brothers and sisters. She was the means of laying the foundation of all our work there, and was one of our oldest helpers and most trusted, who had for years resisted a marriage with a man otherwise desirable but of no moral character. Louisa suddenly surprised and shocked us more than words can say by leaving the house and surroundings of Christian work and going to this man and flinging herself without rite or ceremony at his feet. She has never appeared to one of her family since, and, as the old catechist says, 'has made it hard for us to show our face in Urugala.'

Happily there is a bright side to the picture, for in that same village a monitor in a Government school, who for some time had varied between seeming reality and utter coldness, came out boldly on the side of Christ, giving his testimony nobly as he accompanied the workers in their house-to-house visitation. His fellow-villagers, headed by the priest, used all their wiles to induce him to reject Christianity, but he witnessed a good confession, was baptized, and commenced to work for the Saviour in a distant village. The work among Singhalese

Women, under Misses A. M. Denyer and A. L. Earp, centred chiefly round the Converts' Home. Many had to be refused admission because there was no room for them, but seven were taken in during the year and nine left. All of those admitted were of good caste with the exception of one, a country girl, and this girl soon left of her own accord. One of the others became ill when spending a few days with her own people, and was not allowed to return; and another, a girl in a high position, whom the missionaries had hoped to save, was found to be already corrupted. Of the four remaining new inmates one was a girl who used to belong to the school at Gaetembe, and during the three years which had elapsed since she left had had no help beyond that derived from reading in secret a copy of St. Luke's Gospel which she possessed. When her parents agreed to her entering the Home they told her to learn everything excepting religion, but the child, who is fourteen years of age, was earnest in reading her Bible and in prayer, and showed herself a true Christian. She resisted a Buddhist marriage which was proposed for her, and though superior in birth to many of her companions in the Home, was full of love and humility towards all. Indeed, Miss Earp mentions as a happy characteristic of the inmates that the high-caste girls took their turn with the utmost cheerfulness in cooking for and ministering to those of lower birth, and that a beautiful spirit of love and harmony prevailed. Another of the girls had to endure much persecution. Miss Earp wrote in December:—

Converts' Home.

A beautiful spirit of love and harmony.

> Her parents have endeavoured over and over again to get her to go back to the village. They have tried persuasion, threats, and bribery. On one occasion the mother tried to get the girl into the garden on the pretence of getting a rose for her sister's child, but R. was too wise to go. Another day her mother pulled her violently towards the garden, but the girl clung to me, and we managed to get safely into the school. Then her father threatened to shoot her, and said if only they could get hold of her they would knock all the Christianity out of her. At another time they smuggled a letter into the school, telling her they were going to have a case in court to force her to go back home. The letter was just full of lies that she was to tell the judge. She calmly brought this letter to us. This last week we have received a summons from the district judge in answer to a petition from her parents, and we have to appear in court with the girl on January 5th. I asked her which she would do, go home or go to court. She replied she would rather die than go home.

Persuasion, threats, and bribery.

The case was tried in due course and decided in the girl's favour. Of the eleven women and girls who were baptized in the district during 1905, seven were at the time resident in the Home, and two others had formerly been inmates. Good tidings were received of those baptized in previous years while they were at the institution; only one, the girl who went out of her mind (see Annual Reports for 1903–4, page 317; 1904–5, page 318), and whose mother had her married to a Heathen, has failed to cleave to her faith. The girl mentioned in last year's Report (page 319) as having married a Buddhist on his promising not to interfere with her religion, had the joy of witnessing her husband's admission into the visible Church. Twenty-six adults were baptized, including those already mentioned. Among them were a whole Kandyan family, consisting of the father and mother, a daughter eighteen years old, and four younger children, who had been influenced by one of the girls in the Home. Two months before the service the man was the victim of an attempt to poison him on the part of some of his relatives, and a serious illness ensued, but he counted it an honour to be allowed to suffer for Christ's sake. There were several hopeful inquirers. One of them was led to put herself under instruction by a dream in which she saw some one very great with shining garments standing near her, who took some water and threw it over her, and told her she must go to church. She acted upon the impression made, and asked to be taught daily, and though naturally slow of intellect made good progress.

Baptisms.

The pastoral work in the NORTHERN DISTRICT of the Itinerancy was placed under the supervision of the Rev. W. G. Shorten in January, 1905, Major G. H. F. Mathison continuing to be responsible for the oversight of the educational and evangelistic work. The latter resides at Anuradhapura, an ancient Buddhist town containing monuments which date back to the second or third centuries before Christ. In August, 1905, the Bishop of Colombo laid the foundation stone of a new church. Some controversy about the site took place in the press, the Buddhists in a certain part of the Island objecting to its being utilized for a church on account of its proximity to their temples; but the local Buddhists were friendly, and indeed the high priest of the town supplied the contractors with lime and bricks for the building. The services in the church, of which Mr. Shorten is the incumbent, were conducted in English, Singhalese, and Tamil, most of them being taken by the Rev. C. T. Williams, the Tamil pastor, as Mr. Shorten was unable to pay more than occasional visits. Major Mathison took six of his native colleagues to the Convention held at Kandy, and all of them afterwards testified to having profited by the gatherings. A new catechist was engaged in the person of Mr. R. Gunatileke, a former teacher at the Anuradhapura school, who for some years has devoted his spare time to evangelistic work. Great difficulty was experienced in awakening the people to any sense of sin, one old man, for instance, remarking that he might have sinned as a boy, but did so no longer. Sunday-schools were but poorly attended, but at one of them which Major Mathison twice visited ten of the boys professed to give their hearts to the Saviour. At Talawa, where some years ago several converts were won, nearly all of whom, however, afterwards fell away, some four or five of the backsliders were reclaimed and commenced again to attend the services.

The Rev. W. G. Shorten, who was in charge of the WESTERN DISTRICT of the Itinerancy, and Miss M. S. Gedge and Miss S. C. Lloyd, his European colleagues, had their head quarters at Kegalle. The Christians in the district, who were under the pastoral care of the Rev. J. Colombotantorige, numbered 868, and their contributions to religious objects, which had increased by Rs. 1,200 in 1904, rose by a further Rs. 1,500. Nearly all the native workers, fifty-two in number, attended the Convention which was held at Kandy in the spring of 1905. It was a time of great blessing for them. Some are said to have been different men and women ever since, and the results of the gatherings upon the character and efficiency of their work are thankfully referred to by each of the European missionaries. Miss Lloyd, who was in charge of the Girls' Boarding-school at Kegalle, attributes to the Convention the improved tone which was observed in the school. Three of the pupils were baptized, and also a former pupil, who was received into the visible Church at her home at Gampola, but shortly afterwards was suddenly called to her rest. The cause of her death was typhoid fever, an outbreak of which obliged the school to be closed for some weeks. The percentage of passes in the Government examination was higher than in former years in spite of the break in the work, and one girl, who has been in the school almost from the commencement, passed her third year's examination as a pupil-teacher and took up a post in her own village. The lace school was under Miss Gedge, who also superintended the work of the four Bible-women and visited the villages in the district. Of the eight adults baptized at Kegalle, one was won for Christ through the visiting and another was a Malay who for many years had been a seeker after the truth. His eldest daughter, who was educated in the Kegalle girls' day-school and was baptized in 1903, was witness of her father's baptism. Several new schools were opened in the district. One was at Debathgama, where Rankira, the man mentioned in last year's Report (page 320) as coming forward at an open-air meeting and expressing his wish to embrace Christianity, has his home. He is said to remain true to his decision, and is described as having 'strong faith in God,' and being anxious for the salvation of his friends. At other places, where the existing schools, used also for services, were in bad repair, the people showed much zeal in erecting new buildings. Thus at Potuhera, in spite of their extreme poverty, the villagers contributed Rs. 200, while four brickmakers gave 4,000 bricks, and others some valuable timber. Again at Meetanwela, one of the brightest spots in the district, the Christians, besides giving of their means, went to the brickfield and brought on their heads about sixty tons of brick mud from the pit to the kiln. There they trampled it into material of the right consistency, and delivered it over to the brickmaker, who, in consideration of their work, charged less than half the usual price for the bricks and tiles. Four men and two women were baptized at this village. Three of the former had long been inquirers, and were brought to a definite decision during some special meetings held by a Singhalese evangelist early in 1905. One of the women, when very ill, sent for the catechist. He prayed for her, and although her case seemed hopeless she recovered, and afterwards began to attend church.

The Church at Kurunegala is now entirely self-supporting. Three adults were baptized in that town. One was the wife of a Christian, a fairly well-educated woman. She had often been spoken to by the catechist and Bible-woman, but her only answer used to be, 'All that you say is very good, but I am a Buddhist now, and I will never become a Christian until I believe in my heart that Christianity is the true religion.' In course of time the workers began to look upon her as hopeless, but one day, as they rose from their knees after prayer with her, she said, 'I believe now in my heart. I want to be a Christian from this day.' The other two converts in the town were won by the interest taken in their spiritual welfare by their employers.

An apparently hopeless case.

Much blessing continued to rest on the efforts made at Talampitiya, and Miss Gedge quotes a remark of the catechist: 'Talampitiya is a very happy place to work in. At other places you sometimes work for years and see no results, but at Talampitiya, if only there are workers, there is fruit.' The school, which a few years since had forty-seven children, had over 200; the Christians numbered 179, nearly one-half of the adult converts being communicants; and three persons were baptized during the year, the fruit of the work of the newly appointed Bible-woman. Some difficulty was experienced at Talampitiya, as elsewhere in the district, through the intrusion of the Salvation Army, most of whose adherents were formerly connected with the Society. These people sometimes attended the church services, and sometimes those of the Salvation Army, and the catechist describes the consequence by saying, 'It is like the Singhalese proverb, "When there are two weddings in a village all the dogs starve"; which means that they keep running in quest of food from one wedding-house to the other, with the result that they get no food from either!'

'A happy place to work in.'

The total number of adults baptized in the district was twenty-three.

TAMIL COOLIE MISSION.

Tamil Coolie Mission.

For a great part of the year under review the Rev. R. P. Butterfield had to superintend the work in the Southern Division of the Tamil Coolie Mission as well as that in his own, the KANDY DIVISION, and in addition for three months he was in charge of the Central Division also. Such of the pastoral catechists as were able to speak English attended the Convention at Kandy and afterwards manifested increased zeal. Several cases of immorality occurred among the Christians, who are gathered in nine settled congregations, that in Kandy itself supporting its own catechist. Many of the converts, however, showed in their lives the transformation wrought in a man by the power of the Holy Spirit, while their outward persons bore witness to their changed lives. One day a planter asked Mr. Butterfield whether he could pick out Christians from a crowd of Hindu coolies without any personal acquaintance with the men, and on his replying that he could do so by their greater cleanliness, the planter expressed his agreement. Three new schools were opened in the district, one of them built with the help of the planters and the Tamil Christians, while a wealthy Hindu promised to erect a school in another place and hand it over to the Mission, although he was well aware that the Bible would be taught. There were several other promising openings for educational work of which Mr. Butterfield was anxious to avail himself, for he says that of the eighteen adults baptized during the year in the Kandy Division of the Tamil Coolie Mission all but three had been influenced by early training in some mission-school. Among the converts was a certain old man, Samban by name, of whom Mr. Butterfield gives the following account:—

How to pick out Christians from a crowd.

Fruits of school work.

Baptism of a former religious devotee.

Samban had left the Madura district in India many years ago and had become a religious devotee. In the traditional saffron robes of his cult he had wandered for years in the Kurunegala district seeking a remedy for sin in Hinduism. For forty long years had he striven by meditation and fasting to attain freedom from sin. In despair of finding it in the observances of Hindu asceticism, he contemplated seeking it in the Roman Catholic Church. Before taking this step, however, he heard in the house of a Tamil Christian of the true Sin-bearer. In the same house he met the evangelist, and heard further of the great Saviour Whom he had been seeking. He drank in the truth greedily, and then one night he had a dream of a Great and Shining One appearing above him and loosing the bonds that bound his sin to him. Gone was the burden that he had carried so long, for he had found the Sin-bearer. No more weary seeking for the union with the Infinite by fasting and meditation. By faith he had attained a true and abiding union with the Eternal God. Four days after his baptism he died, having constantly given expression to his joy at the prospect of living with Christ.

Growing keenness among the workers.

Work among the women was carried on by Miss V. M. L. Franklin, Miss E. J. Howes, and Miss E. M. Poole. The first named speaks of a growing keenness among the workers and a better spirit among the Christians. The daily meeting for prayer at which the agents gathered was a real means of grace, and the mothers' meeting served to draw the converts together. The visiting was chiefly in Mohammedan homes, and everywhere anxiety to learn to read was displayed. Many appeared to be interested in the Gospel, including the wife of a Mohammedan priest and teacher, but none came out boldly on the side of Christ; indeed it was almost impossible for them to do so unless they left their homes. Miss Franklin gives a graphic description of the hovels in which the poorer classes live, and emphasizes, as the moral, the need of some home in which girls desirous of regular teaching about Christ may be received. She writes:—

Kandian slums.

> In some instances, to get at the people you creep down passages walled in on either side, opening at last on what seems utter darkness in contrast to the outside lights. You find yourself in some small hut; no chimney to let the smoke out, no window, no door save planks—one or two are lifted to let you in—and these planks are fast closed at night. Here the people live herded together. Children swarm everywhere—pretty, bright little creatures, quick and ready to learn; some will come and repeat short texts the Bible-women have taught them. Here Mohammedans and Hindus huddle together in cramped, airless, dirty holes unfit for human beings, deeply degraded and sunk in sin. Their case seems almost hopeless. Now and again among them we find an eager soul hungry for something better. What hope have they, with parents and friends often dragging them down?
> These girls, learning of Christ and desiring to know more, are powerless to help themselves. We go and teach in their homes; that is good. It is a little spark of light, flickering fitfully in the darkness of night—a little brightness, but not the fixed and steady light of day, in which to see and work, rejoice and live. To get that they must be lifted right out of darkness into the atmosphere of light. That and that only in most cases can make them true followers of Christ. What they want is not a little teaching here and there, but the daily influence of a pure atmosphere.

A 'little spark of light.'

One or two women were baptized, and there were grounds for hope concerning another who died, happy and peaceful in the midst of miserable surroundings, asking that her daughter might be taught as she herself had been.

The Central Division of the Tamil Coolie Mission was under the care of the Rev. J. Ilsley, who resided at Nanu Oya, and had the assistance of the Rev. A. Sathianathen, a Tamil clergyman. There was little change in the methods adopted to bring the Gospel before the people. In addition to the parade preaching to the coolies on the estates and visiting them in their homes, evangelistic addresses were given in the bazaars on Sunday afternoons by some of the Christians in company with the catechists, while other of the converts had meetings for prayer in their houses during the week, to which they often invited their non-Christian neighbours. Indeed the zeal of certain Christians was one of the cheering features of the work, especially that of the wife of the conductor of one estate, who spoke to the coolies of the Saviour as she had opportunity, and of a man in charge of the labour force on another estate, who himself opened a school, placing it under the care of his Christian brother. The vernacular schools maintained by the Society were attended by many children of non-Christians, and it frequently happened that parents, who at first objected to their children learning the Gospel, at length requested the schoolmaster to teach it to them. Many of the children lost all faith in their idols, and it was found that they often repeated in their homes the Scripture lessons which they had been taught. Although the number of baptisms was hardly so large as had been hoped and expected, owing to some of the inquirers returning to India or going to other parts of Ceylon, yet thirty-seven adults were received into the visible Church. An appreciable percentage of them, it was found, had at one time or another attended mission-schools either in India or Ceylon. Some of the converts had histories of special interest. One of them had come to the Island when quite young, and had been a pupil in a mission-school. After he left he was lost sight of for a time, having joined the Police Department, but eventually he gave up that work, and becoming a conductor on a tea estate was again brought into touch with Christianity. He remembered what he had learned about the Saviour when a boy, and before long he became convinced of the truth of Christianity, but was afraid to confess Christ openly because of his bigoted Hindu relatives and friends. After a time, however, he conquered his fears, and, together with his two eldest children, was baptized by Mr. Sathianathen, who had been his teacher in his schoolboy days. Of another of the converts, the wife of a man whose baptism was recorded in the Report for 1903–4 (page 321), Mr. Ilsley writes as follows:—

Heathen parents ask that their children may receive Bible-teaching.

Baptisms.

Wife converted in answer to her husband's prayers.

From the first she opposed her husband's desire to become a Christian, and after he was baptized she continued her opposition, doing her best to thwart his plans and make his life a quiet martyrdom. She would jeer at him when he went to the Tamil service on Sunday, or to a devotional meeting during the week. Abuse, sarcasm, mockery, ridicule invariably formed the factors of her opposition; and the day that should have been the most restful, the most happy, became the most trying time in the week. A man of less individuality would probably have gone back, or, at any rate, have hidden his Christian profession; but he remained steadfast, and continued in prayer for his wife. And those prayers have been answered. The light gradually dawned upon her. The sense of need arose within her. And at last, in great distress of soul, she said, 'I have been fighting against God all this time. I have committed dreadful sin. I cannot worship devils any longer. I must go to my Jesus. He will take away my sin.' So, truly penitent for her sins past, and showing a lively faith in Christ her Saviour, she was received into Christ's Holy Church. The whole family are now Christians, and are rejoicing together in the joy which only Christ's presence can give.

Some idea of the onerous nature of the duties attaching to the supervision of the Southern Division of the Tamil Coolie Mission may be gained from the fact that there are no fewer than five churches in which services are held: one is at Haputale, where the Rev. T. S. Johnson, who was appointed to the district in July, 1905, has his head quarters; a second at Badulla, twenty-three miles away; and three others at places distant respectively thirty, forty-six, and seventy-eight miles in the opposite direction from Badulla. The journeys to the various plantations frequently involve ascending or descending about 3,000 feet, often along paths too narrow for any conveyance.

Kindness of European planters.

The missionary's labours, however, are materially lightened by the kind hospitality shown him by the planters, many of whom help on the work by subscriptions, by prayerful sympathy, or by building schools and assisting with the salary of the teacher.

A planter says that it 'pays' to subscribe to the Mission.

They are led to do this not merely by kindness of heart, but because, as one spontaneously testified, they see the good effects of the Mission as shown in the lives of their Christian coolies, and because they find, as another said, that it actually pays them well to subscribe. During the year an effort was made to form a band of voluntary workers among the Christians, by inducing them to read the Gospel to their heathen companions in the coolie lines. Twenty adults were baptized, and others were under instruction. Among the latter was a man who heard of Christianity from one of the catechists. The latter, while lying ill in the hospital, took advantage of the opportunity of speaking to the other patients.

III. NORTHERN PROVINCE.

THE Rev. W. J. Hanan was in general charge of the work in the Northern Province of Ceylon until August, 1905, when he left for England and was succeeded by the Rev. J. I. Pickford. The various native agents met every fortnight for Bible instruction. Increasing difficulty was met with in connexion with the vernacular schools, owing to the growing severity of the Government examinations and the falling-off in attendance in consequence of the failure of the food crops.

Jaffna.

St. John's College.

Some trouble was experienced at St. John's College, JAFFNA, which was under Mr. Pickford until the return of the Rev. J. Thompson from furlough in the autumn. The total number of pupils, including day-scholars, was 400. Prayers were held in the Church every morning for the Christian boys, while the Rev. C. C. Handy, the head-master, gave an address in the College hall to those who were Hindus. Miss S. L. Page had 120 children, twelve more than in 1904, under her care at the Girls' High School. The increase was in the number of boarders, which rose from forty-one to fifty-three. Nearly all the children were Christians, and one of the fourteen who were not was under instruction for baptism, while two others were being brought up as Christians. Two girls passed the Junior Cambridge Local Examination in December, 1904, and one of the teachers was successful in the Government English Teachers' Examination. Christian Endeavour Societies for both the senior and the junior pupils were set on foot, and promised to prove helpful in deepening the spiritual life of the girls.

Nellore.

After a short stay at Kandy, Miss A. T. Board was transferred in January, 1905, to help Mrs. W. J. Hanan at the Anglo-vernacular Girls' Boarding-school, which is situated at NELLORE, and later in the year she was placed in charge of that institution. The members of the training-class for teachers, and in less degree the girls in general, did well in their examinations, and the lower classes of the school acquitted themselves with special credit in the Diocesan Scripture Examination. The spiritual welfare of the girls was fostered by Christian Endeavour Societies (which once a month combined for a missionary meeting), by Bible-classes for communicants, &c. About two-thirds of the eighty-one girls are Christians, and five of the remainder were baptized during the year with the consent of their heathen parents. There were others desirous of thus publicly confessing Christ, but they were deterred by the opposition of their relatives. Miss Board says that it is difficult for people at home to realize the entreaties, the threats, and sometimes the cruel persecution which many of the converts have to face, and she gives one sad instance in which a former pupil failed in the hour of trial. She writes :—

Baptism of school-girls.

Failure in the hour of trial.

> She was baptized and confirmed, and was known as a good Christian girl, I believe. Her father, however, was a Heathen, one who had gone back to Heathenism on the eve of his baptism, and he was determined to marry his daughter to a Sivite. She withstood him for some time, but at last she lost heart and courage, and said that God had forsaken her and did not love her any more, and that she had no joy or peace in her heart. Her mother was rather kinder to her than her father, and tried to help her, and so her father sent her away into another compound to her grandmother's house, and there we saw her crouched up in a heap on a tiny verandah, looking like a hunted animal, having been beaten and most cruelly treated by her father. When the day for her marriage came she fought against those who rubbed the ashes on her forehead (the Sivite mark), but, like Samson, her strength had gone from her with her trust in God, and she was compelled to marry the man of her father's choice.

The fear of persecution held back another girl, who was over sixteen years of age, and therefore old enough to be baptized without the consent of her parents. She had been in the inquirers' class for some time, and judging by her own confession and her life in the school she was a Christian at heart, but she could not make up her mind to face the trials which she would be sure to meet at home. Unless baptized she cannot enter the teachers' training-class, and in that case will have to return to her home, where she will probably soon be forced into a heathen marriage. The congregation at Nellore were liberal in their contributions to the repairs of their church as well as to the support of their pastor, the Rev. J. Backus, and some of them strove earnestly to bring others to Christ. Many, however, were indifferent to the means of grace, and one, alas! went back to Heathenism.

Copay. The Training and Practising Institution at COPAY continued its good work, and the Boys' English School, a branch-school of St. John's College, increased in popularity. Three members of the former were baptized by the Rev. A. Mathias, the Tamil pastor. A little dispensary was opened by Miss E. G. Beeching, who observed that she afterwards met with a better reception than had been usual when visiting any of the villages from which patients had been drawn. She and Miss L. A. Case superintended the work of the thirteen Bible-women, who are held in growing respect, albeit they still require a good deal of moral courage to enable them to face all the difficulties with which they meet. Very few houses were absolutely closed to them, and they were cheered by the baptism of three of the women among whom they laboured.

MAURITIUS MISSION.

Though geographically more nearly connected with Africa, the little island of Mauritius is, in a missionary sense, a dependency of India. Two-thirds of the population are immigrants from Bengal and South India, brought hither to work on the sugar plantations; and among these are labouring Bengali and Tamil-speaking missionaries, whose work has been much blessed. Over 5,000 persons have been baptized, the majority of whom have returned to their own country. The Diocese of Mauritius was founded in 1854, when Bishop Ryan was appointed: his successors have been Bishops Hatchard (1869), Huxtable (1870), Royston (1872), Walsh (1891), Pym (1898), Gregory (1904).

In the general review of the Mauritius Mission with which Archdeacon H. D. Buswell has furnished the Committee he says that while there have been indications here and there of the presence and working of the Holy Spirit, there has been no lengthening of cords nor strengthening of stakes. On the contrary, there were several cases calling for the exercise of discipline during the year, and the number of adult baptisms—twelve—was the smallest that he can recall during the forty years that he has been connected with the Mission. He believes, however, that the smallness of the number is partly due to the greater care taken in administering that sacrament. Of the six whom he himself admitted into the visible Church four owed their first religious impressions to the teaching they received in mission-schools. When visiting the Heathen in their homes or speaking to them in groups the Archdeacon always had attentive listeners, but few of them went any farther.

First religious impressions received in mission-schools.

The superintendence of the schools in the Island devolved on Mr. H. H. Buswell when Canon V. W. Harcourt left on furlough in July, 1905. The former also tried to stimulate the Christians, and engaged in evangelistic work in various parts. Among those whom he met was a Heathen who had lately returned from a sojourn at his old home in India. The man said that when he left India some thirty years before all his relatives and friends were bigoted Hindus and very hostile to Christianity, but that on his last visit he found that some of them had embraced that religion, and that most of the remainder, like himself, were waiting for others to declare themselves Christians before being baptized too.

Waiting for others to declare themselves Christians.

The Port Louis Pastorate was under the care of the Rev. C. A. Blackburn, who conducted services there once a month, a resident catechist taking them at other times. The services were fairly well attended, but the standard of life prevailing among the converts was not high. Frequent visits were paid by Archdeacon Buswell to the Northern Pastorate, which was under the charge of the Rev. J. Ernest. The baptism of a man, who for some time had hesitated to receive that rite openly, caused a great stir in his neighbourhood, and there was reason to hope that it would lead others to come forward as inquirers. The Rev. I. F. Chorley ministered to the five congregations of the North Central Pastorate, and had the help of Mr. H. H. Buswell in the weekly services at the Barkly Asylum, the largest hospital in the island. Monthly prayer-meetings for the women were held by the women missionaries at each centre in the pastorate. A native teacher, superintended by Mr. Blackburn, was in charge of the Moka Pastorate, and the Rev. S. Toolsy, a Hindi-speaking deacon, was quasi-pastor of the South Central Pastorate. The agents of this and the North Central Pastorate met weekly for Bible-study and guidance about their work. The Southern Pastorate was under the Rev. S. Susunkar, who speaks of several men as convinced that salvation is by Christ alone, but they lack the courage to confess Him openly.

Pastorates.

Rose Belle. Girls' Orphanage.

Miss E. J. Bagley had the assistance of Miss H. J. North at the Girls' Orphanage at ROSE BELLE. There was an unusually large proportion of young children among the fifty-five inmates, and in one month seven were admitted who were under eight years of age. All of them were Heathen and five understood no language but Hindi, with which the ladies are but imperfectly acquainted. A short daily prayer-meeting was commenced in the summer to plead for a revival. No one was actually asked to attend: it was merely announced that the meetings would be held. Miss Bagley thus narrates the sequel:—

'God is working very mightily.'

> From eight to ten came every night, and I know that during this time, and afterwards too, some hard, stubborn hearts were convicted of sin by the Holy Spirit, and given grace to confess. We have been praying earnestly ever since, separately and together, that God will continue this work in our midst. One dare not and indeed cannot write details of this, but I can most rejoicingly testify that God is working very mightily, convicting of sin committed years ago, and giving real repentance and confession.

There was an increase in the number of patients at the dispensary carried on by Miss H. A. Wilkinson, and many of them were accompanied by their friends who came on purpose to hear the bhajan-singing and address which preceded the medical treatment. One man from among the patients was under instruction with a view to baptism. A night-school was set on foot through the earnestness of a Chinese lad, who had been baptized in his own country, and brought other lads and men to be taught. There were cheering signs in connexion with the work among Christian women, two of whom came to confess hidden sin, and also in the evangelistic work. Some people gave up their idols, and there were several men who were convinced of the truth, but held back from baptism on account of their families.

Vacoas, and conducted women's meetings at various centres and visited the people in their homes. Her place was taken by Miss M. B. Gwynn on the latter's return from furlough in May. A working-party with English and French, Creole and Indian members, was started, with the purpose of getting articles made for the annual sale of work, and still more with a view to interesting the members in the evangelization of the world. At the end of the year the woman, Adamah, who was mentioned in the Annual Report for 1902–3 (page 321) as having lost four of her children, and as being sorely tried by her heathen friends in consequence, was baptized together with her infant son. Vacoas.

Canon V. W. Harcourt was in charge of the Boys' Orphanage at Plaisance when the year under review opened, and when he left Miss Smyth took up the work. There were fifty boarders and about the same number of day-scholars, a few girls being among the latter. A Band of Hope was formed for the lads, and a good number of them became members. Plaisance. Boys' Orphanage.

In May, 1905, Miss M. L. Penley took up her residence at Quartier Militaire, a village which for some years has been periodically visited by Mr. Blackburn. The people soon began to throng round her when they knew that medicine could be obtained, and she was obliged to set apart one day in the week for dispensary work. Seldom did less than 100 patients assemble, and frequently numbers had to be sent away. The teaching which they received when they came for treatment led several women to ask for baptism. Some men, also, became inquirers, through the influence of a young fellow who had been baptized a year or two previously, and in whose life and conduct a wonderful change took place. Miss Penley relates his story as follows:— A new station opened at Quartier Militaire.

He came to me soon after my arrival, looking most sad and miserable, and said he had been baptized more than a year, but did not understand much, and was unable to answer the arguments of Hindus and Mohammedans. He asked how he could get wisdom and knowledge, and stated that he had given up reading the Bible as he did not understand it. He then began to come every evening for Bible-reading. One day he came alone, and to my surprise burst into tears, and then poured out the story of his trouble, how he had been persecuted and despised, but worse than all had no assurance or peace in his heart, and had been seeking for long, but had got no light. Another day he came, quite early in the morning, in great distress, and asked how he could be saved from sin and from all the evil within and around, and inquired if God would answer his prayers. Each time I exhorted him to pray and turned him to the Word of God, I myself praying very much for him. A few weeks later I began to notice a change in him: his face began to lose that hopeless, miserable look. One day he was reading with one or two others, and said something like this: 'Do you not see any difference in me?' I said, 'Yes, I see you are looking happier.' He said, 'Yes, God has heard my prayers, and a great happiness has come into my heart. I see that Jesus Christ has paid all my debt. I have found Him, and see that in Him I have all. I know I have been a great sinner, have often denied Him, but now I want to serve 'Jesus Christ has paid all my debt.'

'He is like a man who has found something.'

Him only all my life, and feel that I could give my life for Him. God is showing me wonderful things in His Word; now everything is changed for me. Pray very much for me that I may be a real, true Christian.' His friends and neighbours all testify to the change in him, and his one great desire is to tell others and bring them to Christ. One man said, 'He is like a man who has found something.'

The baptism of one of the inquirers mentioned above, which took place in the presence of a number of Hindus and Mohammedans, aroused the opposition of the Hindu priests, and his companions for a time ceased to come for instruction.

Beau Bassin.

The Rev. C. A. Blackburn, who had his head quarters at BEAU BASSIN, was privileged to baptize five converts. He utilized much the same methods in his work as in previous years, making a number of evangelistic tours, distributing tracts, holding private discussions with Hindus and Mohammedans, and conducting some more public meetings. The tracts were often thankfully accepted, and evidently were carefully read, and several interesting incidents occurred which showed how greatly they were valued. Little opposition was experienced, though some quarrelsome Mohammedan priests were only too ready to make a disturbance if a public discussion had been held.

SOUTH CHINA MISSION.

The great Empire of China was opened to missionary effort in 1844, when the Treaty of Nanking, which closed the first Chinese War, gave England the possession of Hong Kong and the right of residence at five leading ports; and more fully in 1858–60, by the Treaty of Tien-tsin and Convention of Peking. Hong Kong was occupied by the Society's missionaries in 1862; Pakhoi in 1886; Canton in 1898; Kuei-lin and Shiu-hing in 1899; Liem-chow in 1902; and Yung-chow in 1903.

China, south of lat. 28°, with the exception of the province of Fuh-Kien, is under the episcopal jurisdiction of the Bishop of Victoria, Hong Kong. The first Bishop, Dr. G. Smith; the third Dr. Burdon, and the fourth, Dr. Hoare, were C.M.S. missionaries; the second, Dr. Alford, was an active friend of the Society at home.

The situation in China.

A SAD token of the increasing unrest in China, of which close observers have for some time been aware, was afforded in October, 1905, when four American missionaries were murdered with attendant circumstances of even exceptional brutality at Liem-chow, a city lying to the north-west of Canton. The mob was incited to this deed of violence by the exhibition of a skeleton, stolen from the medical class-room, as a proof of the inhumanity of the foreigners. Another attack on a mission-station took place at Nan-chang, in the province of Kiang-Si in February, when six French Roman Catholic and two English Protestant missionaries were killed. Serious anti-foreign riots occurred in December in Shanghai, and throughout the year American goods have been subjected to systematic boycotting all along the coast. Notwithstanding these symptoms, those best qualified to judge have not apprehended a recurrence of the troubles of 1900. The riots have had local causes, and have for the most part been connected with interference on the part of Roman Catholic Missions with litigation.

Perhaps the best way of enabling readers of the Report to judge of the position of affairs and the manner in which the prospects of missionary work in China are thereby affected, is to give in close proximity the views of two competent judges, working in different parts of the country, each of whom has had more than forty years' experience of the Chinese. Archdeacon A. E. Moule, of the Mid China Mission, wrote in November, 1905:—

Japan's influence.

It is extremely difficult to judge and prognosticate about the near past and the near future of the Far East. A crisis has undoubtedly occurred. China, in a somewhat lumbering way, as becomes her huge size, is yet fast becoming wide awake, and she is, through her leading magistrates and keener sons, hungering for something!—the 'new learning' (rather indefinite still this is to their imaginations and desires); 'more knowledge about everything;' 'English,' erroneously looked upon as the high and royal road to knowledge; science, especially of engineering; all this.

And Japan, long awake, and for some years now assimilating Western learning and modes of teaching, and showing her supreme capacity by her unvarying triumphs by sea and land, offers herself, and is being accepted, as 'head-master' of the new Chinese school. Will she succeed? Will her 'secular' teaching succeed any less dismally than secular teaching divorced from religion can succeed in other lands? Will Japan, if she ignores religious teaching in her system, in any way oppose or discredit Christian teaching? Very much depends, under God, on the way in which she is treated and trusted or distrusted by Western Powers. My own glad belief is that she may on the whole be trusted; and that her conspicuous honour and honesty and chivalry and generosity and self-control and this last supreme victory of peace, owe very much more than the world believes, or than Japan herself is quite aware of, to Christian influence and teaching, and to the strong Christian element among her leaders and councillors. She will, I believe, strongly discountenance and restrain in China anti-foreign outbreaks, and she will never countenance the repression or persecution of Christian teachers.

What should our attitude be? We must hope for and work for, through the Divine Spirit's grace, the Christianizing of the teachers of China and Japan, perhaps by our missionaries gaining access as teachers to Government schools; and the educational staff and plant of the C.M.S. must be reinforced and fully supplied, only making that educational work more evangelistic (not less so, so as to attract the multitude of students) as a solemn supplemental duty, embracing indeed the beginning and the end and the fulness of wisdom.

I have not dwelt on the sudden, and some think too hasty, revolution in China, caused by the drastic measure of abolishing at once the educational methods and curriculum and examination processes of 1,000 years, and the establishment everywhere of Government schools. We are watching the effect and working of the system, and I include it silently in what I have written above.

Writing in December, 1905, Archdeacon J. R. Wolfe, of Fuh-chow, reviewed the position of affairs as follows:—

Educational changes.

There is a deep spirit of unrest all over the country. The ancient system of competitive examination which has been carried on for ages, and which has intertwined itself into the very fibres of the national life of the people, and in which they have taken the greatest pride and satisfaction, has been absolutely abolished, and an altogether new and, to the Chinese, a strange system, after the model of the Japanese and the West, introduced in its place. This radical change, as you may well imagine, is causing a deep dissatisfaction among the people generally, and in some parts of the Empire risings of the people have taken place, and the yamens of some of the high mandarins have been broken down and destroyed by the mobs. In connexion with the abolition of this old system, the emperor's edict, ordering the temples to be turned into schools and colleges for teaching this new learning, has added to the excitement, and has aroused the anger of the people. The ignorant masses, who understand very little and care less for reformation in teaching or the adoption of this new learning, think that their religion is about to be taken from them with their temples, and they naturally resent it. Then, again, the crusade against American goods which has been industriously preached all over the large trading cities of the Empire, and which preaching has been largely spiced with the most exaggerated accounts of the alleged cruel treatment which the Chinese in America have received, and are still receiving, at the hands of the American people, has aroused the most bitter feelings among the people here and all over the country against foreigners generally. Then, again, the influence of the Japanese with the officials is not favourable to foreigners or to Christianity. I have not for many years known the Chinese officials so hostile to everything foreign, except things Japanese, as they are at the present time, and though the masses of the people, in this province at least, intensely hate the Japanese, the latter are courted by the officials and the Anti-foreign feeling.

Government, and are employed as superintendents and teachers in all the civil and military schools and colleges.

From all these causes the feeling of the people against foreigners has of late been hostile compared with what it was some years back. Recently the American Consul at Fuh-chow was grossly insulted by a man spitting into his face as he was passing by in the public street. No one would have dared to do such a thing a year ago. There can be no doubt that the recent great victories of the Japanese over the Russians have emboldened the Chinese to think that they can do what the Japanese have done, and do it much better. The awe which has surrounded foreigners hitherto in the eyes of the Chinese no longer exists, and the whole condition of things in respect to the feeling of Chinese towards foreigners is changed. One rejoices to see the Chinese waking up after their long night of stupor and ignorance, but there is a great fear that in this case 'a little learning is a dangerous thing,' and that in their attempts to copy the Japanese they may by their great conceit go too far in their contempt of foreigners and commit some rash action which may bring down upon them the heavy hand of the West and be their ruin.

'A little learning is a dangerous thing.'

In the midst of the uncertainties as to the future it is consoling to reflect that many more copies of the Word of God are in the hands of the Chinese than ever before. In 1904 the circulation of the Scriptures in China by the British and Foreign Bible Society, the National Bible Society of Scotland, and the American Bible Society, together amounted to 2,308,109 copies, the vast majority of which (in the case of the first named Society all but 33,000 copies out of 1,088,000) were actually sold.

Bible circulation.

The Mission has been reinforced by the Rev. Arthur Dudley Stewart, M.A., Trinity College, Cambridge, and Ridley Hall, Curate of St. Paul's, Canonbury, a son of the late Rev. R. W. Stewart, who was murdered at Hwa-sang in 1895; Mr. Neville Bradley, M.B., Ch.B., Victoria University, Manchester, and Mrs. Bradley; and Miss Clara Cree, of Plumstead. The resignation, on medical grounds, of Dr. L. G. Hill has been accepted by the Committee.

Reinforcements.

I. PROVINCE OF KWANG-TUNG.

HONG KONG.

Large accessions to the congregation of St. Stephen's Church, Hong Kong, of which the Rev. Fok Ts'ing-Shan was the pastor, occurred in 1905, for nearly 100 persons were baptized, three times as many as in the previous year. The Bishop of Victoria is Warden of the Training College, otherwise known as St. Paul's College: when he left for England in the summer the Rev. W. E. H. Hipwell took charge, but much of the work fell on the Rev. P. Jenkins. There were four students, one of whom was about to leave at the end of the year to act as catechist at Pakhoi. The Christian Boys' Boarding-school had twenty-two inmates. A severe outbreak of beri-beri necessitated the anticipating of the summer holidays by a few weeks. A few of the lads gave trouble, three having to be sent away for misconduct, but on the whole there was much in the conduct of the pupils to call for thankfulness.

Anglo-Chinese College.

St. Stephen's Anglo-Chinese College, which was opened early in 1903 with seven scholars, had 109 names on its rolls. The Rev. E. J. Barnett, the Principal, had the help of seven English masters from the Colonies, five of them graduates, and writes as follows of the students under his care:—

> Many of them might be called men. They are sons, brothers, and cousins of the leading professional and commercial men of the Colony, with some drawn from coast ports and others from the official classes on the mainland. They come with little or no knowledge of Christianity—with wealth, but without moral training; Chinese degree men and aspirants for office mingle with beginners in knowledge, all ready to be taught and trained in what is useful and honourable and moral. And they well repay the labour spent upon them. Their readiness to receive Scripture teaching (after the first shock has passed) and their response to such teaching are constantly calling forth our surprise and thankfulness. There is no lesson more popular throughout the school than the daily Bible-class, and evening prayers with the boarders are a source of spiritual refreshment to one's self. But few of them are baptized, yet many are endeavouring to walk, so far as they know, in the right way, and the change in their conduct and in their very faces has been a strong testimony to their friends and themselves of the power of the Word of God.
> The difficulties of baptism in the case of many of these young men are greater than are usually imagined. It is not that they are unwilling to confess Christ Jesus publicly, or that they hold back because of probable pecuniary loss, but for a son, especially the eldest, to become a member of the Christian Church so overturns the family relationships, that, as we look on, we cannot wonder they sometimes hesitate to take the final step. The parents, as a rule, are opposed to baptism, though they welcome the teaching of the Bible, as supplying the moral power for their sons' lives.

Baptism of two students.

Notwithstanding the difficulties referred to by Mr. Barnett two of the students were baptized. One is the eldest son of the Chinese member of the Legislative Council. He procured Testaments and hymn-books in order that he might conduct family worship in his home during the holidays, and eventually his mother, who at first strongly opposed his baptism, was herself received into the visible Church. The other convert, after being three months in the College, was nearly being sent down for misconduct, but in process of time he was convinced of sin, and that in a degree exceptional among the Chinese. So much was this the case that at his baptism he wished to take the name of 'Sinner,' saying that he wanted to remember always what great sins he had been forgiven. He, however, received the name of Philip. A change was observable also in the attitude of the men towards Christianity. Holidays are never given at the College on the Chinese feast days, but many of the students have been in the habit of getting excused from work for half the day on those occasions. In 1905, however, there was no request made for any half-holiday, and more than that, no student absented himself on the festivals. Several requests were made to Mr. Barnett to recommend a tutor, 'a good moral man,' for a private family, the remuneration offered being $150 per month and a house, and he says:—

Officials destroying idols.

Officials are, in many places, turning the idols out of ancient temples, sometimes destroying them, sometimes stacking them under trees, and transforming the temples into schoolrooms. But they lack teachers. They themselves try to conduct schools on modern lines, and fail. They engage impostors whose ignorance, sooner or later, is made manifest; and now their hopes are centred in Japan. The Church is letting slip the opportunity of this decade. The need is men rather than money, for educational work among the upper classes, having been given a fair start, can be made self-supporting, while the young men and young women of China are being won for Christ. Where are the Student Volunteers? This is work for students and for volunteers? It offers a living, a life-work, and a sure reward for the soul-seeker.

Girls' Boarding-school.

The Girls' Boarding-school, containing about sixty pupils, was carried on by Miss M. E. Johnstone (who was temporarily transferred to Kowloon in the autumn) and Miss H. S. Fletcher, while Miss W. M. Carden was in charge of the Anglo-Chinese Preparatory School, which was opened in March, 1905. Besides these institutions there are a number of day-schools, those for boys under the superintendence of Mr. Hipwell, and those for girls under that of Miss A. M. Baker. In the past there has been little apparent result of the work in these latter, but recently Mrs. Hipwell, Miss L. A. Eyre, and Miss A. M. Pitts, who engage in the Work among Women, have in the course of their visiting met with several who have asked for baptism, and stated that their first impressions of Christianity were received while they attended the schools. The women missionaries had more abundant opportunities than ever before of reaching the ladies of Hong Kong, many of whom are said to be 'longing for the light and love of Christianity.'

Women's Work.

Kowloon. Victoria Home.

The Victoria Home and Orphanage at KOWLOON was superintended by Miss A. K. Storr until she left on furlough in the spring, and then Miss E. G. George, of Pakhoi, took charge of the institution for eight months, being succeeded in her turn by Miss M. E. Johnstone, of Hong Kong. All these ladies received much assistance from Misses S. L. Hollis and E. S. Houlder, the latter of whom was temporarily transferred to Hong Kong in the autumn. Ten pupils were admitted, all but two of them having been rescued from slavery. There were some great sorrows in connexion with the work, arising from the suicide of a girl of eighteen, the bad conduct of two of the teachers and two of the elder pupils, and the unsatisfactory behaviour of some of the nine girls who received baptism. Miss R. A. Bachlor, of the New South Wales Association, on her return from Australia in the autumn, superintended the labours of the Bible-women. She was often saddened by what she saw in the homes of the Christians, for she found that some of the men had taken second wives, and that in one house, where twin boys had been born, the ears of the babies had been pierced and ear-rings inserted with the object of leading the evil spirits to think that they were girls and therefore not worth hurting. At the same time there were several individuals whose lives were bright and consistent. An incident connected with one of these, an old woman, is narrated as follows :—

Superstition among converts.

She had been praying for her own relatives since her conversion, and was rejoiced to hear that a younger brother had come down from the country with his family and settled in a village some miles away. So one morning she started off with her little grandson to visit him, but they did not meet with at all a cordial reception. They were not asked to enter the house, but had stools brought outside to sit on, 'for,' said the brother, 'this is our idol's birthday, and you must not come in, for the sight of a tsun kaa kwai following the teaching devil will frighten to death our idol and make him give us bad luck all the year.' Poor old lady, to be so met by one she had been longing over! But she showed how truly she believed. To use her own words: 'I said to him and all the others, "Well, if your idol can be frightened to death by a poor weak old woman like I am, it must be feebler than I am, and then how can it help you?"' And then she told me with great pride and joy how little Ah Kwai, aged seven, her grandson, talked to them about Jesus quite as well as any minister.

'Your idol must be feebler than I am.'

The ladies of the Home went to a couple of day-schools weekly and visited among the people in the surrounding country. Miss Houlder tells of a woman, apparently belonging to the district, who was baptized during the year in the L.M.S. women's hospital at Hong Kong. Writing in December she says :—

She came to us just about a year ago, very anxious to learn 'the doctrine.' She was a small-footed woman who had heard a very little some years before, but her relatives and friends, who were much opposed to Christianity, prevented her from seeking any further opportunities of hearing, and though she had lived for a long time not very far from a L.M.S. chapel, they carefully kept the knowledge of it from her, and being small-footed she was unable to walk about and find out for herself. Then, for some reason, she came to live in Kau-lung city, and she at once invited a Bible-woman to come and visit her. The first time she came to church two other small-footed women came with her, and, being rather late for service, some one showed them the shortest way from the school to the church; this was very steep and most difficult walking, so the three women sat down, and pushed and slid down the slope! From that day she hardly ever missed a service, and was just as regular at the women's Thursday morning meeting. She was most eager to learn, and seemed to be taking in a great deal. She was never very strong, and her feet pained her a good deal at times; but she persevered, and only stayed at home when too ill to walk.

Sliding to church.

One day she caught cold from a wetting she got returning home from the meeting, and this brought out the weakness from which she suffered. The L.M.S. very kindly received her into their women's hospital in Hong Kong, but she gradually grew worse. The other patients marvelled at her eagerness to learn more of the Gospel story, and remarked on her 'hot heart.'

CANTON.

The influence of the girls' school at CANTON, the head quarters of Miss A. M. Jones, was not confined to the pupils, but was felt also by their relatives and friends. Some gentlemen who visited the city declared that they had read books from the school and believed in the Saviour, and asked what more they must do to be baptized. Three young men faced the ridicule of their companions and were received into the visible Church by the Rev. Mok Shan-Tsang, and several women and girls were preparing for baptism in November when Miss Jones wrote her annual letter. Canton.

The Heung-shan district contains a large number of Chinese who have returned from Australia and other countries. In certain respects their presence makes the work more difficult, for some of them are bitterly opposed to Christianity on account of the treatment which they have received from professing Christians in foreign countries, but others by word and example testify to that Saviour Whom they learned to love when far from their native land. A new church was opened at Shek-k'i in the spring of 1905. At the first evening service in the new building two men and five women and girls were baptized. A striking circumstance in connexion with one of these women is described by Miss Jones as follows:—

An idol invited to stay with a family.

An idol, Keung Chi-Nga, was invited to visit a family living opposite our church and to stay a year with them. It was hoped that Keung Chi-Nga would bring wealth to the family, and that the daughter-in-law would have a son. With great ceremony the idol, placed in a gay sedan-chair, was escorted by the priest from the temple to the house and enthroned there. At the end of the year had the riches or little son arrived? Neither. The family had had to mortgage part of their house and the daughter-in-law was childless! But during the idol's sojourn the messengers of Christ had visited that house and the grandmother had given up all idol-worship and found in Jesus her Saviour. She was baptized in the new church in the spring; and now the mother-in-law is preparing for baptism, and even the daughter-in-law, who was at first very much opposed to 'the doctrine,' says she does not believe in the idols.

In another house, apparently that referred to in last year's Report (page 339), where the idols had been re-established, the grandparents insisted on the customary heathen ceremonies being performed when the father died, but the eldest son, in spite of some persecution, refused to worship the reinstated idols; he was baptized in the autumn. Miss Jones also mentions with thankfulness a Buddhist priest, the son of Christians, for whom she asked prayer in her annual letter of 1904 (see last year's Report, page 338), and says that he has broken off his connexion with the Buddhists, and has joined a Christian Church. At Tai-ch'ung Ts'un-t'au, where Miss Jones visited some people by invitation, a woman and her daughter-in-law had prayer in their house before a number of heathen neighbours—a step which requires a good deal of courage. Four women were under preparation for baptism at Sha-kong (see Report for 1902–3, page 333), in the Kong-moon district, and at Kau-t'au Miss Jones had the opportunity of explaining the Gospel to a number of people gathered in an idol temple for shelter from the rain. Last year's Report (page 339) spoke of the request of some people of Tai-leung, in the Shun-tak district, that a preaching-hall might be opened in their midst, and of the offer made by some of them, including several Heathen, of a house for the purpose. After careful inquiry it was decided to accede to the request, and in March, 1905, the hall was formally opened in the presence of crowds of people, including a large number of wealthy women. Four mandarins called on the Rev. W. E. H. Hipwell in the morning, and accepted Bibles from him, but did not remain for the service. Twenty-two men were baptized in this district, including several well-known merchants, in May, 1905, and nine others later in the year. The total number of baptisms up to the middle of November in the district worked from Canton was eighty.

Merchants baptized.

SHIU-HING.

Shiu-hing.

The Society's staff at SHIU-HING consisted of the Rev. and Mrs. A. Iliff, Miss G. E. Dunk, Miss M. E. Commin, and (from August) Miss E. G. Lear. Unfortunately they had no regular catechist to help them, and although several voluntary workers came to the rescue and the colporteurs of the British and Foreign and Scotch Bible Societies gave invaluable help, yet much was lost through inability to follow up those who were impressed by the open-air preaching. The contributions of the Christians increased greatly during the year owing to the adoption of the plan of asking them to promise a certain sum weekly instead of annually to the Church funds. The result was that many who had been content with giving one dollar a year began to contribute five cents a Sunday, and the subscriptions rose by more than 100 per cent. There were usually about ten men present at the nightly class for Bible-study, and it was carried on by the Christians themselves when Mr. Iliff happened to be absent from the station. Four members of the Women's School were baptized, all of whom first heard the Gospel from Chinese Christians, and the baptism of another was expected to take place at the close of the year. Two of the pupils of the Girls' Boarding-school also were received into the visible Church, and two others asked for baptism, but that rite had to be deferred because the consent of their guardians could not be obtained. That school had eighteen pupils, including day-scholars, while the Boys' Boarding-school had about half that number. Two of the three boys not yet baptized were candidates for baptism. The dispensary was the means of opening to the missionaries some homes of the higher classes as well as of the poor.

There were several catechumens in the Kwong-lei district, where the Heathen gave quieter attention to the Gospel message than ever before, while in the San-hing district there is said to be a 'great hungering for the Word of God.' Unhappily there was no agent who could be stationed there, and the majority of the people are unable to reach Shiu-hing. Mr. Iliff writes:— A 'great hungering for the Word of God.'

> At my last visit I baptized an old woman in one of the villages whose husband, now dead, was baptized over twenty years ago, and who has two grown-up sons who are Christians of long standing. I asked her why she herself had never been baptized. She replied because she could not leave her native village, and added that my visit was the first opportunity she had ever had of being baptized there.

Two women belonging to this district attended the Women's School and were baptized in Shiu-hing. The colporteurs paid occasional visits to the Tung-on district, and the firstfruits of that part were received into the visible Church during 1905. The baptisms in Shiu-hing and the district worked from it, which in future will include Hok-shaan, numbered thirty-eight (all but seven being of adults), two more than during the eleven years before Mr. Iliff took up his residence in the city in 1899.

PAKHOI.

The Society's staff at PAKHOI consisted of the Rev. and Mrs. C. I. Blanchett, Dr. and Mrs. E. G. Horder, Mr. and Mrs. S. Wicks, Mrs. E. B. Beauchamp, and Misses E. L. Havers, E. G. George (from September), and E. G. Lear (until August, when she was transferred to Shiu-hing). The foundation stone of a new church was laid during the year, and the Christians contributed well towards the building fund, but many of them are said to be lukewarm, if not actually indifferent. Discipline had to be exercised in three cases, and unhappily was not followed by any repentance and amendment. About fifty of the Christian women supported themselves by means of the lace industry. To meet in some measure the inadequacy of the staff of Chinese helpers a Women's School was opened in the summer with five inmates and placed under the care of Miss Havers, who earlier in the year had conducted the station class, to which eleven women belonged. One of these women was asked to leave because of the inconsistency of her life, but the remainder of the class attended the church services, and some of them hoped at the end of the year to be admitted to the catechumenate. But Miss Havers writes:— Pakhoi.

> The longer I live in China the less sure I feel of the reality of these dear women. They get hold of all the phraseology and can often answer most satisfactorily, and yet when one comes to examine into their lives there seems so little of the love of Christ constraining them to be pure and true. 'They have a form of godliness, but deny the power thereof.'

Boarding-schools.

The Girls' Boarding-school, under Mrs. Horder, suffered from the lack of a head-mistress and in lesser degree from the marriage of one of the pupil teachers who had always been diligent in her studies and had memorized half the New Testament. Besides the boarders there were about thirty day-scholars, the unwillingness of respectable parents to allow their daughters, unless very young, to walk in the streets of the town accounting for the small number. One of the girls was baptized. Two lads belonging to the Boys' Boarding-school left for St. Paul's College, Hong Kong, to be trained for service in the Mission.

Medical Work.

Dr. Horder resumed charge of the Medical Work when he returned from furlough at the end of 1904, and Dr. F. Sanger, who had temporarily been in charge, went back to the Fuh-Kien Mission. The former was without any medical colleague until the arrival of Dr. N. Bradley, one of the year's recruits, towards the end of 1905, and there was no trained nurse to help him. The hospital had to be closed for three months—the first time for twenty years that the gates had been shut—in consequence of the doctor's ill-health, and the statistics were naturally affected, but nevertheless 460 in-patients were received and more than 16,000 visits of out-patients recorded. Mrs. Horder and Mrs. Beauchamp devoted a good deal of time to the dispensary and to ministering to the patients, and were cheered by several cases in which the Gospel seemed to meet with true acceptance. One woman, who was converted while in the hospital, on returning to her home witnessed boldly for her Saviour, and led two of her near relatives to become candidates for baptism.

Leper Hospital.

There were 130 persons in the Leper Hospital and Asylum, of which Mr. S. Wicks took charge for some months, many of whom were conspicuous for their bright Christian life. More than twenty of them asked for baptism. Miss Lear, and afterwards Miss George, accompanied the Bible-women in their visiting, and the former describes the ignorance and sin of the people as 'dreadful.' Twenty-five adults were baptized, and there were a number of inquirers. Classes for the women among the latter were held by Mrs. Wicks and Miss Havers.

Kotak, a large village four miles from Pakhoi, was visited by several of the missionaries and by the colporteur. There was little sign of spiritual life among the women, but the girls' school, with some twenty names on the register, was more hopeful.

Liem-chow.

Mr. C. N. R. Mackenzie had no European colleague at LIEM-CHOW, but during the latter half of 1905 monthly visits were paid to the station from Pakhoi by Mr. Blanchett. The boys were very irregular in their attendance at the school, partly because, as Mr. Mackenzie points out, a lad of even seven or eight years of age is a valuable asset in a Chinese home and may be employed in making crackers, and also prove useful in other ways. Every Sunday evening there was a meeting for the Christians which was devoted to Bible-study. Topics were chosen beforehand by the members in turn, and each was expected to come with a passage of Scripture bearing on the subject. A new place was rented as a preaching-hall in a busy street outside the city, adjoining the premises which were pulled down about sixteen years ago (see last year's Report, page 343). Moreover, the man to whom that house belonged was led by a dream to become an inquirer during the year, and it was hoped that he would be admitted to the catechumenate in December, a step which already had been taken with regard to two other men.

The engagement of a second colporteur led to increased itinerating, and the sale of books increased nearly fivefold. Mr. Mackenzie visited Ling-shaan, a sub-prefectural city, ninety miles from Liem-chow, and there came across two baptized Christians, who were previously unknown to each other. One of them was keeping the Sabbath regularly, but the other failed to do so. In the autumn the workers went overland to Pak-lau, whence Mr. Mackenzie travelled by boat to Hong Kong to attend the Conference of the Mission. In the course of his land journey of 180 miles he visited three sub-prefectural cities, and some fourteen market towns, but in the whole of this district he found only one city occupied by missionaries. Mr. and Mrs. S. Wicks have been transferred to Liem-chow from Pakhoi.

II. PROVINCES OF KWANG-SI AND HU-NAN.

KUEI-LIN.

Kuei-lin.

Soon after the arrival of the Rev. and Mrs. F. Child at Kuei-lin in December, 1905, the Rev. and Mrs. L. Byrde left that station for Yung-chow, and Mr. Child assumed charge, with Mr. J. Parker, most of whose time was taken up with studying the language, to assist him. A daily class was held for the benefit of the little band of Christians, one of whom gained a really good knowledge of the Scriptures, and other meetings of an evangelistic character were carried on regularly until the autumn when the missionaries had to leave for the coast. The people of the town, and especially the students in the new schools and colleges which were springing up on every hand, showed great friendliness, but no adult baptisms took place, and the one catechumen not in the employ of the missionaries joined the Roman Catholics. Mrs. Child gives some graphic descriptions of sad scenes witnessed in the city :—

Sad scenes.

One day a man went by—just an ordinary coolie. In one hand he carried a Chinese pickaxe, in the other a rough, dirty old vegetable-basket, and in the basket was the dead body of a little child, about two or three years old. There it lay, its little bare feet sticking out on one side of the basket, and the limp, helpless head hanging over the opposite edge. A bit of coarse, rough matting was just wrapped round the naked little body. Carelessly, and quite unconcerned, the man walked along, no one taking the slightest notice of him. Why should they? It was just an everyday occurrence. Only a dead baby being taken outside the city wall to be buried. Just anywhere will do, a hole hastily scraped in the ground and the little corpse thrust in—no coffin, no tears, no prayer.

Here come a couple of men laden with big envelopes; they are on their way to make bonfires with them, for every envelope contains paper money or paper clothes, which will be burnt for the use of departed ones in the other world. They are followed by a very old and feeble man, one of the greatest scholars in Kuei-lin, a man most highly respected for his learning; he is going to bow down with his forehead touching the ground whilst the paper is being burnt. Poor old man, his turn to die is so near, and he is so bitterly opposed to the Christians, and yet he is one of China's great scholars.

Yung-chow.

As already stated the Rev. L. Byrde took up his residence at YUNG-CHOW early in 1905. He met with considerable difficulty in procuring suitable mission-premises, and unhappily was deceived in the negotiations by the Mr. Liu mentioned in last year's Report (page 345), who it appears was baptized in 1904. Careful instruction was given to the few catechumens and inquirers, and one of the former, a native of Chang-sha, the capital of the Province, was baptized in the summer. Three men were admitted to the catechumenate. There were two catechumens at Dao-djow, fifty miles from Yung-chow.

FUH-KIEN MISSION.

The Fuh-Kien Mission has a truly remarkable history. Fuh-chow was occupied in 1850, and the first eleven years passed without a single convert appearing. Two out of five missionaries died during this interval, and two retired. The fifth died soon after gathering the firstfruits of his labours, leaving a new-comer, the Rev. J. R. (now Archdeacon) Wolfe, in charge. Up to 1864 the work was confined to Fuh-chow city. In that year and the following other large cities were occupied by Chinese evangelists. In 1866 the first two or three converts from these were baptized. Fuh-ning was occupied by European missionaries in 1882; Ku-cheng, 1887; Lo-ngwong, 1889; Kien-yang, 1891; Hing-hwa and Kien-ning, 1894; Ning-taik, Keng-tau, and Ko-sang-che, 1896; Lieng-kong and Deng-doi, 1897; Hok-chiang, 1899; Sieng-iu, 1901; Tang-tau, 1902; Huok-leng, 1903; Du-sung, 1904. In 1906 Archdeacon H. McC. E. Price, a C.M.S. missionary, was consecrated first Bishop of Fuh-Kien. The Province had previously been a part of the diocese of Victoria, Hong Kong.

Consecration of Bishop Price.

THE arrangements for the division of the diocese of Victoria, Hong Kong, and the formation of the Province of Fuh-Kien into a separate diocese, have been brought to a successful issue, and on February 2nd, 1906, Archdeacon H. McCartie Eyre Price, who joined the Sierra Leone Mission in 1887, and in 1890 was transferred to Japan, was consecrated first Bishop of Fuh-Kien by the Archbishop of Canterbury and other Bishops in Westminster Abbey. Bishop Price is a son of the Rev. W. Salter Price, Vicar of Wingfield, Suffolk, who was formerly a missionary of the Society first in Western India and then in East Africa.

Death of the Rev. Li Taik-Ing.

On February 9th, 1906, the death of the Rev. Li Taik-Ing occurred after a long illness. The son of Christian parents, he studied at the Divinity College, Fuh-chow, and in 1896 was admitted to Deacons' Orders. He was stationed at Kien-ning, but the climate being too severe for him he was transferred in 1904 to Sa-iong.

Reinforcements.

The reinforcements assigned to the Mission have been, besides Bishop and Mrs. Price: the Rev. William Pakenham Walsh Williams, B.A., Trinity College, Dublin, late General Secretary of the British College Christian Union; Miss Adelaide Margaret Hind, of Belfast, trained at The Olives, a sister of the Rev. J. Hind, of this Mission; and Miss May Bruce Moore, on special agreement, and Miss Beatrice Annie Mary Thomas, of Bristol, both qualified nurses, who have also received training under the Society at The Willows and The Olives respectively. The Committee have accepted the resignation of Mr. E. C. H. Moule.

FUH-CHOW DISTRICT.

Fuh-chow.

The chief educational institutions of the Society are situated on NANTAI ISLAND, the foreign concession of Fuh-chow, where, besides other missionaries, the Rev. Ll. Lloyd, the Secretary of the Mission, and Mr. W. Muller, the Assistant Secretary, have their residence. The former continued his work of revising the Wen-li Bible and compiling references to the Old Testament. The scheme of education followed in the Mission with a view to eventually raising up a supply of Chinese schoolmasters, catechists, and clergy, is thus described by the Rev. W. S. Pakenham-Walsh :—

> Let us suppose that a Chinaman up-country abandons idolatry and is baptized. He is anxious to have his children in a Christian school, and sends them to the day-school which has been opened in his village. One of these children is full of promise, he is in time recommended as a candidate for the boarding-school in the prefectural city, and after some years, at the age of seventeen, he is sent up by the Native Church Council for the entrance examination of the C.M.S. Boys' School in Fuh-chow. Here he remains three years, studying the Bible, the Chinese classics, and other subjects, such as geography, arithmetic, and so on, and coming into touch with boys and men earnestly Christian and anxious to take their part in the work of the native Church. He leaves the school at Fuh-chow at the age of twenty-one (Chinese) and is placed in charge of one of those small day-schools to which his father had sent him as a child. After three years of this work he is recommended for the Theological College, and comes up again to Fuh-chow at the age of twenty-four. He is now probably a married man, and his wife may also come up to Fuh-chow and enter the Women's School. At the close of four years he receives a certificate from the College and is appointed a catechist. Our hero, as he increases in influence and knowledge of affairs, increases also in wisdom and Christian humility, and in his great desire to see the Gospel transform and enrich his fellow-countrymen. The question of ordination is presented to him. He joins the Bishop's class for those who are thinking of entering the ministry. The examinations are duly passed, his nomination is accepted by the Bishop, and at the age of thirty-three he is ordained to a native pastorate.

Divinity College.

At the top of the educational tree is the Divinity College, of which the Rev. J. Martin was Principal, and the Rev. Ding Ing-Ong one of the tutors. At the commencement of the academical year it contained thirty-two students, five of whom afterwards, having completed their course, took up work in the Mission, while seven others went out as probationers for one year.

High School.

Next to the College comes the High School, under the Rev. F. E. Bland, assisted by the head-master, the Rev. Wong Hung-Huong and the Rev. H. B. Ridler. Six students left the school to take up posts as schoolmasters, and at the end of 1905 there were thirty-three in residence. Five of the pupils of the Junior Boys' Boarding-school passed the entrance examination of the High School, to which it acts as a feeder.

Stewart Memorial School.

The training of women agents is provided for at the Stewart Memorial School, of which Miss E. S. Goldie was in charge. There are two classes of inmates—the baptized women who have a two-years' course, and those selected for training as Bible-women, whose period of study lasts over a third year. At the commencement of the first term the women appeared very unimpressionable, and many seemed to be 'professors rather than possessors,' but the admission to the school of an elderly woman, one much given to prayer, was followed by an evident work of grace in the hearts of the scholars. Miss Goldie says that she has seldom seen a deeper sense of sin among the Chinese than was manifested by these women, and tells how one and another became full of earnestness and zeal. It was decided early in the term that no one was to be compelled against her will to engage in visiting, and at first very few took part in that work, but eventually the students became not only ready but even anxious to go out and tell others of the Saviour's love. The second term of the year was uneventful, but several testified at its close that the Bible had become more precious to them. The Girls' Boarding-school was under Miss J. Bushell, who had the help of Miss C. J. Lambert (until June, 1905, when she had to come home on medical certificate) and Miss M. E. Barber. Some special meetings conducted by Mr. Diong, of Lo-ngwong, a Chinese evangelist, were much blessed to the girls, seven of whom were received into the visible Church. Some of the pupils accompanied an elderly Christian woman when she went to teach in the surrounding villages, and afterwards narrated their experiences at the weekly Christian Endeavour meetings. The usefulness of the school is exemplified in the case of one, now a teacher in it, whose story has been given by Miss Bushell as follows :—

Girls' Boarding-school.

A teacher's story.

Some nine or ten years ago a poor beggar woman with two small children was often seen on the Long Bridge, in Fuh-chow, in rags and covered with dirt. The woman was half demented through the wrongs she had suffered at the hands of her deceased husband's relatives. When he died they deprived her of everything, and she went about destitute, with a placard on her back imploring the public to help her against her adversaries, and begging for money to carry on a lawsuit against them.

A lady missionary frequently saw these miserable creatures and thought, 'What a life for those poor children!' At length she took their case up, and sent the boy and girl to school, providing for them tidy clothing and paying for their support. The mother, not appreciating what was done for them, was continually trying to get them away to sell for money to enable her to carry on this absolutely hopeless lawsuit.

Sometimes the poor woman comes here demanding that we should give up her daughter. She tells a number of lies, saying that the girl is betrothed, and that we are keeping her from being married, &c., though of course we know all the time that she only wants to get her away to sell.

Sometimes she asks to see Ding Guong, but the interviews are not satisfactory, and the poor child is generally in tears when her mother leaves. Some time ago the girl was very unhappy because she feared her mother might some day sell her to a Heathen, but we told her to pray much about it, asking God to take her future into His own hands. Now she is the teacher of the upper second class, and at prayers recently gave a wonderful address on Moses. 'Moses was the meekest man; whence this meekness?' She referred to his hot haste in smiting the Egyptian, and his sudden flight to Midian. There he spent forty years till his fiery temper was subdued. She said, 'God could not use him till he learned to be meek, and gentle, and patient'; and then 'Do not resist God's polishing and chastening, He wants to make us fit for His use.'

Evils of infant betrothals and opium-smoking.

There were several instances in connexion with the school of the terrible misery caused by infant betrothals and opium-smoking. Miss Barber wrote in September:—

We had just come back from our holidays and were preparing to open school with hearts full of hope for the coming term, when a letter was handed to me telling me that one of our teachers was dead and that we must fill her place. Sad news at best! but imagine our feelings when we heard that when she had been at home a few days she was told that she must marry a man to whom she had been betrothed from infancy; and that although he was well-known as an opium-smoker! Poor girl! She was only eighteen years old—a sweet, refined, girl with a gentle manner and a sensitive spirit. Remonstrance was of no avail, so, two days before she was to be married, she threw herself down from the upper storey of a house, intending to kill herself. A few hours later she returned to consciousness, and the catechist's wife took her home and comforted her. On the date fixed she was married; and nine days after that she stole out in the middle of the night and threw herself into the river. Her body was recovered a day or two afterwards, and in that way her relatives discovered the deed. They thought for some time she had only run away.

Another case! The next day a young woman of twenty came to see me. She had been with us three terms in the school before we found out that she was married. She had come to us from a life of wretchedness, for she was married to an opium-smoker—a man, so the neighbours told me, who had not even a pair of chop-sticks to call his own. Of course we cannot keep girls in this school who are married, so she came to ask me what I could do for her. She had run away from her husband because he was arranging to sell her to another man!

Still another case! One of our scholars, a girl of about sixteen, said to one of her relatives the other day, when he was returning to his so-called 'home,' 'You can tell all my people I will not marry the man I am engaged to, and neither will I marry any other man.' The man she is engaged to smokes opium. Another infant betrothal! It is all very well, poor child, for her to say 'I will not,' but I fear she will be unable to escape.

Work among boat-women.

Evangelistic Work among the boat-women was continued by Miss E. Little with the help of a Chinese colleague. The day-school had an average attendance of twenty women, and four of them asked for baptism.

Native city.

Archdeacon J. R. Wolfe, who was in general charge of the work in Fuh-chow City and the two neighbouring counties, reports the baptism of fifty-eight adults, but says that the backsliders and deserters were more numerous than those admitted into the visible Church. At one station, where there were about 200 names on the Church rolls, it was discovered that the great majority of the people never attended the services and did not profess to be Christians. The catechist was an unworthy man, and by interfering with lawsuits, a proceeding which is strictly forbidden to all agents of the Society, had induced a number of men to give in their names as catechumens, some of whom, unhappily, had received baptism. On the other hand some meetings conducted by Mr. Diong, who has been referred to above, for the Christians connected with the five Congregations in the city and suburbs of which the Rev. Yek

Congre-gations.

Siu-Mi was the pastor, impressed the people greatly, and many of them showed signs of increased spirituality. Especially was this the case among those worshipping in the churches in Back Street and South Street. Without any suggestion on the part of the missionaries they commenced weekly prayer-meetings, conducted entirely by themselves, with an attendance of over 200, and these resulted in a band, thirty or forty strong, going forth to the streets and public places for evangelistic work. On one occasion six men, the wife and three children of one of them, and three other women of the North Street congregation were baptized. Miss A. K. Wolfe laboured among the women connected with the congregation at Christ Church: three of them joined the Women's School, which was under the management of Miss M. I. Bennett. There were about twenty inmates of that school, one of them being a widow, who was prevented from committing suicide early in 1904 by the intervention of the missionaries. For the first two months after her rescue she stayed at the hospital. She was much impressed by some of the services taken by Mr. Diong, and one morning shortly afterwards, as Miss Bennett was addressing her by her old name, she said, 'Never call me by that name again. "Pong-Cia" is dead; I am another person now.' Since then she has been known by the name of Giu-Ong (Beseech Grace). Towards the end of 1904 Miss Bennett took part in the rescue of a second widow who contemplated suicide (see Intelligencer for July, 1905, pages 498, &c., and Mercy and Truth for September, 1905, pages 265, &c.). A huge crowd, numbering some 10,000 persons, had gathered together near the scaffold, the men standing in the fields, and the women ranged in tiers on the pathways round. Efforts made in private to induce the woman to abandon her determination had proved in vain, backed though they were by a letter from the mandarin, for she only replied, 'I have had a very sad life since the age of four. I was the only girl in the family. When I was four years old my parents wanted money badly, so they sold me as a slave, and I was very badly treated till I was nineteen; then I was resold to an opium-smoking husband as a fifth wife; with him for nine years I had a far worse life than before. Three years ago my husband died, and now (I have no sickness of any description) I am willing to die and make a place for myself to sit down in, and you and these ladies come here to hinder me.' At length the day, and, after a long wait near the scaffold, the hour for the suicide, arrived. Miss Bennett wrote:—

Women's School.

A widow prevented from committing suicide.

'In the Devil's territory.'

Never have I realized, as I did through those weary five hours of waiting, that we were so actually in the Devil's territory, and I can also truly say that never have I realized such 'perfect peace,' for we both felt that the 'Lord of hosts' was with us and that He could overthrow all the plans of the Evil One, even though they seemed to be brought to a climax. At last the final gun was fired. It was 2 p.m., and the gruesome procession was wending its way nearer and nearer to us. 'Mount the scaffold' was our next order, and when we did what an awful sight met our gaze—nothing but eyes, eyes, eyes on all sides, and a roar of voices; one scarcely knew whether it was approval or disapproval. The widow was grandly dressed in nine garments, each one composed of two thicknesses of silk, different colours. On her head was a kind of crown, made up of silver flowers, and ornaments made from kingfishers' feathers. She was seated in a mandarin's chair, hired from Fuh-chow for the occasion, and carried by four coolies. In her hand was a very elaborate silken cord, with which she was to hang herself, and on a ledge across the poles were placed sticks of burning incense and flowers. As soon as she arrived some male relatives approached her and begged her to withdraw and not to take her life. At this she became furious, and dashing her hand on to the ledge, upset it and smashed everything on it. Some hired musicians, who preceded the chair, continued blowing their pipes and horns and the noises grew deafening. We were directed to descend at once, and Miss Massey was asked to again plead with the woman, with the usual result. The next thing that we were aware of was that clods of earth were coming in our faces, which was not at all pleasant, as the stubble was still in them, and these continued to come until the catechist (Mr. Ciu) told us to leave at once, and himself with some other Christians assisted us through the immense crowd.

A critical situation.

A few of the Christians conducted us, while the catechists, secretary, and soldiers remained behind to maintain order. I glanced back several times and saw the widow seated on the scaffold, and thought all would soon be over. The soldiers, acting on their own initiative, seized the offenders, and this began to break up the crowd, as many of the innocent ones were themselves afraid of being taken. We had not been back very long when our women workers arrived, full of disappointment and sadness. 'Could not we go back again, and try once more to save that poor woman?' pleaded our Bible-woman, with tears in her eyes; but this we were not allowed to do. Just then Mr. Ciu and the others arrived, after having a rough time, and to our unbounded delight told us the woman was alive and had been taken home—how, we do not know, for the grand chair had been almost smashed to pieces. Our indignation at the manner in which we had been treated soon changed to joy when we heard that the woman was alive.

Medical Work.

The Medical Work was superintended by Dr. G. Wilkinson. The men's hospital, which was mentioned in last year's Report as in process of erection, was completed and opened in May, 1905, increasing the in-patient accommodation by fifty beds. All of these, however, were not available for use, for no out-patient department had been built, and one section of the hospital had to be used as a dispensary and waiting-room. There were more than 10,000 attendances of out-patients, many of the people hailing from a distance, having come to Fuh-chow for trading purposes: among the patients were several persons connected with business in the city, and also an increasing number of those employed at the yamens. Besides treating the sick at the hospital and dispensary, Dr. Wilkinson was called upon to visit about seventy patients in their own homes. A blind boy who acted as evangelist at the hospital died during the year, but another was found to take his place. Miss E. E. Massey and Miss M. E. Baldwin, two trained nurses, were in charge of the women's hospital with its thirty beds. The year opened with an important operation which was entirely successful, and led several people from the patient's village to seek medical help for themselves. Among those who thus came was an old lady, who while in the hospital gave earnest heed to the message of salvation. One day Miss Baldwin found eight young women in the ward with her, who had come at her bidding to hear about the Saviour. The old lady was visited in her village after her discharge from the hospital, and it was found that she had discarded her idols. She was too ill to go to the city for the services on Sundays, but she said, 'My spirit is there, and God knows my body cannot go.' In December several people were baptized, some of whom had been influenced by the medical work. One woman was brought to Christ while in the hospital, and afterwards taught her husband who was baptized at the same time, while of another Miss Baldwin writes :—

A patient discards her idols.

She is the wife of a man who has been a baptized Christian for some years, but she herself could never let go her faith in her idols, as she is rather a dull sort of woman. The father had the eldest son baptized, but the four others and the mother remained outside in spite of much teaching. In 1904, when we returned to our work after the holidays, this woman came to us crying and wringing her hands, and saying her son (the eldest one) was very ill. She was afraid he would die. Miss Massey went to see him, and asked them to bring him into hospital; he is a small boy, and his mother came with him.

When they arrived, we found this boy, who had been baptized, dressed in idol clothes and his head shaved. The mother had promised to give him to the idols, to be a priest when he grew up. The poor lad was very poorly, and we had to nurse him carefully, often despairing of his life. The poor mother's distress was great when we were trying to feed him or give him his medicine; she would kneel down in a corner and call upon God to enable him to take it. Whenever she could be got to listen she was told about Jesus and His power to save, and the powerlessness of the idols to help in any way; and about the third day of her stay with us she decided to risk all and trust Jesus. She took the idol clothes off her boy and cut them up, saying, 'No more idols for me.' It was a great joy to all that her boy recovered, and though she is dull and does not know much, yet she has 'turned from idols,' and we must just pray that she may learn how to 'serve the living God.'

'No more idols for me.'

Some trouble was experienced at the Blind School, which contained fifty boys. When Mrs. Wilkinson, who superintended the school, returned, after an absence on Nantai Island on account of ill-health, she found that the boys were not joining in the church services as they had done formerly, and that the early morning prayer-meeting had been discontinued. Moreover she received letters from two of the pupil teachers and one of the elder lads, saying that they were unhappy and wished to leave. It was discovered that one of these boys had threatened to beat a pupil if he did not repeat his lessons well, and had so frightened the latter that he tried to hang himself. It was resolved therefore to let the malcontents go, which was really the very last thing which they desired. Two of them returned to the school before long, after repeated applications on their part, and appeared all the better for the lesson which they had received. Two of the boys were baptized.

Work among upper-class ladies.

The Evangelistic Work among the women of the city was in the hands of Miss E. M. M. Brooks, who after many unsuccessful efforts was able to rent a house in the Manchu quarter. Visiting among the upper classes was carried on amid many manifestations of welcome and interest, and a service was conducted every Sunday afternoon in a yamen where live two ladies who have been baptized as a fruit of the work of the C.E.Z.M.S. High School for Girls. These services afforded a good opportunity for getting hold of the children, and Miss Brooks sometimes saw the mandarin, who thought he was unobserved, listening near the window. Among the inquirers was an officer's widow, who, after meeting with a severe accident, one day remarked, 'If I die I have a Saviour. Let your heart have peace.' Several places in the country districts were visited by Miss A. K. Wolfe, but the lack of means and of suitable agents prevented any marked extension of the work.

Du-sung.

At DU-SUNG, where Mrs. E. Saunders and Miss E. E. Merchant, a trained nurse, resided, the women continued to flock to inspect the mission-house. A building which for five hundred years had been used as an idol temple was opened early in the year to serve as a church and dispensary. The number of attendances registered at the latter, including visits to patients in their own homes, was about 6,000. Several itinerations were made, Mrs. Saunders staying for several months at the large market town of Nang-seu, and there carrying on a school for girls and another for women. At another place, Gua-sang, the head of the literati of the district was very friendly, and at the earnest desire of his son devoted half of his house to a boys' school. The young man afterwards became seriously ill and was baptized on what appeared likely to prove his death-bed at the end of the year: his broken-hearted parents and his wife declared their intention of asking for baptism.

Miss A. E. H. Burton has been assigned to this station.

LIENG-KONG DISTRICT.

Lieng-kong.

The work in the Lieng-kong district was under the supervision of the Rev. F. E. Bland. Although there were some bright individual cases the condition of the Church as a whole caused much grief. The Rev. Li Sie-Mi was transferred from Ku-cheng to act as pastor in LIENG-KONG CITY, which is said to be under the power of the devil to an exceptional degree. The people seemed really to believe that the spirits which they worshipped could protect them, and spent a very great sum of money in 1905 on an idol procession.

The missionaries of the Society at DENG-DOI were Miss M. Searle, of the Victorian Association, and Misses S. S. Newton and N. O. Marshall, of the New South Wales Association. The last named, who was in charge of the dispensary, speaks of the prevalence of the opium evil, and of the snare which it proved even to one of the Christian women. Deng-doi.

LO-NGWONG DISTRICT.

On his return from furlough in October, 1904, the Rev. W. C. White, of the Canadian C.M.S., relieved the Rev. Ll. Lloyd of the oversight of the Lo-ngwong District. About four months later wonderful blessing on the work began to be manifested in several places. Mr. White says:—

'While they are yet speaking I will hear.'

> At one little out-station, where the congregation did not average more than ten, and where they had no catechist, no less than ten new men came on two Sundays and enrolled themselves as 'hearers,' and in six weeks the average attendance rose to thirty-four. I asked one of these new 'hearers' what led him to come to church. He said he did not know, but on the Saturday previous at such and such a time the thought came into his mind that he must go to church the next day. It was more than a coincidence that that was the very time we were praying for this village, and especially that new men might be led by the Spirit to come.

This time of refreshing continued until May, but in the following month some discord in the Church and disputes concerning the ownership of certain church property 'quenched the Spirit,' and the 'showers of blessing' which had seemed to be coming failed to fall. Forty-two adults were baptized in the district.

The Boys' Boarding-school in LO-NGWONG CITY, which had been closed during Mr. White's furlough, was re-opened on his return, and by the close of the year had about twenty picked lads as pupils. Other and perhaps greater educational opportunities were offered to Mr. White by the civil mandarin of the district, who built a large hall in the precincts of the yamen for the purpose of teaching Western learning, and said that he was relying on Mr. White, to whom he showed himself very friendly, to there instruct the literati of Lo-ngwong. Work in the Leper Settlement was carried on, chiefly by the catechist set apart for the purpose, and several of these afflicted people were under instruction with a view to baptism. A novel aid to evangelistic work in the city was used in the form of the gramophone. The one objection to it is that it is usually called by the people the 'English theatre,' and careful explanation is therefore necessary as to what it really is. On the other hand it has an advantage over a lantern in that people have to be silent in order to get the benefit of it, thus affording an opportunity of giving short Gospel messages between the 'records.' A week of these gramophone meetings was held. On the first day only about fifty persons were present, but by the end of the week there were audiences of from 500 to 600.

NING-TAIK DISTRICT.

The financial situation in the Ning-taik District caused by the diminution in the grant from the Society, led to anxious discussion on the part of the Native Church Council. They resolved unanimously to at once commence on the principle of self-support, even going so far as to return to the Society the grant received for the year under review, only requesting that for the present the full complement of itinerating and evangelistic catechists might be maintained in the district. The Rev. W. C. White, who superintended the work, describes this as a 'bold move' on the part of the Council. Ninety adults were baptized in the district.

A 'bold move' towards self-support.

Ning-taik.

The Society's European staff in NING-TAIK CITY consisted of Miss J. C. Clarke, Dr. Mabel L. Hanington, and Miss E. M. Scott (until March, 1905): Miss L. F. Bradley (now Mrs. Butler) also resided at the station for various portions of the year. The converts were ministered to by the Rev. Wong Hung-Ong, who, however, was laid aside for some time by ill-health. Some disappointment was met with in connexion with the Women's School. One of the members neglected and at length ill-treated a child whom she had adopted, and had to be dismissed; another could not be received back after the vacation because of grave charges which were brought against her moral character; and at the end of the year the number of members was small. The loss of one of them, however, was the cause of much sorrow. Ming-Ong ('Instructed by Grace'), as her name was, had shown herself an apt and eager pupil, and with her sweet and humble disposition gave every promise of future usefulness as a worker in the Mission. Suddenly she became seriously ill, and it was evident that she would soon be called to her rest. The day before she died, when consciousness was fading fast, Miss Clarke asked, 'Do you know me?' The recognition of a few hours earlier was lacking; but when the words followed, 'Jesus you know?' there was a faint smile and inclination of her head, showing, as Miss Clarke says, 'that that Name could penetrate when her senses were dulled to things of earth.' Testimony to Ming-Ong's faithfulness was afterwards borne by her grief-stricken father-in-law, who said, 'She was always filial, but from the time of her worshipping God she became still more filial.' There was trouble in the Girls' School, too, though it began the year well with fifty pupils and with increased attendance at the early morning prayer-meetings. Before long the spirit of prayer seemed to be quenched; one candidate for confirmation had to be kept back because of serious carelessness of conduct; and another girl was dismissed for insubordination. Later on the girls asked Miss Clarke again to join them in prayer saying that they had found it very profitless to leave the Saviour. Dr. Mabel Hanington's Medical Work was limited until the autumn to the treatment of a few out-patients, but then she commenced to receive one or two in-patients, although the accommodation at her disposal was very insufficient. She was also called to several sick people in their homes, among them some members of the wealthier classes. Medical Work.

Miss Clarke made two tours in the district, accompanied on the second by Dr. Mabel Hanington. At King-se-hung, an old-established out-station, she received a warm welcome from some former pupils, and at Muo-a she was pleased to find that, contrary to the usual custom, the men were taking steps to instruct their women-folk. Miss Bradley visited a number of the villages on the Ning-taik Bay, staying at Hi-luang, where the majority of the people are very indifferent to the Gospel, and at Ni-tu (see For Christ in Fuh-Kien, page 86), where at one time there were a fair number of Christians, but where now only one, a son of the martyr, seems to remain true to his profession.

The ladies at HUOK-LENG, Misses M. D. Boileau and (from March, 1905) E. M. Scott, who had the companionship of Miss L. F. Bradley for some months, were helped in their work among the women by the zeal for its development shown by the Chinese pastor, the Rev. Ding Huai-Ngie, and his wife. The last-named undertook the teaching of the nine members of the Women's School during Miss Boileau's absence at the Conference of the Mission at Fuh-chow. One of the new members, a woman living in a village about eight miles from Huok-leng, was formerly a vegetarian for many years. She first heard the Gospel from a Christian who happened to pass through her village, and became anxious to learn more about Christianity. Then her nephews, who went to Ku-cheng for trading purposes, procured her a New Testament and hymn-book, but the Boxer troubles came soon afterwards and her relatives dissuaded her from making further inquiries, telling her that all the Christians were soon to be killed. She, however, kept her purpose in view, and meeting another Christian she learnt all she could from him, studying his books. At length she applied to be received into the Women's School, having already abandoned her vegetarianism, and after her case had been investigated she was admitted. She proved an eager listener; unbound her feet of her own accord; and asked for baptism. Most of the ten women baptized during the year under review had been pupils in the Huok-leng.

A woman abandons vegetarianism.

Women's School. One of the girls belonging to the city day-school was married to a convert, the service being the first in Huok-leng at which both the parties were Christians. The bride and her husband and his father are the only Christians in a household of from twenty to thirty people, and the young woman found the opposition with which she met so trying that she asked to be allowed to become a teacher in one of the mission-schools.

A convert's home trials.

Miss Boileau visited Ciu-dong, the most northerly out-station, thirty miles from Huok-leng, and from that centre went to several of the neighbouring villages, finding an open door everywhere, but she was told by the catechist that to the north-west the people were rough and unfriendly. An attempt was successfully made to set on foot a girls' school in Ciu-dong itself. Some inquirers were brought forward from Chie-ka by the catechist stationed there, but at Song-iong, one of the older out-stations, the character of the Christians, some thirty in number, was not such as to attract others to the religion they professed. Regarding the women's work in general Miss Boileau says that it is going forward, and adds :—

> This 'forward movement' is not merely numerical, but moral: a certain (though small) number of the Christians have a higher standard, and thirst for greater knowledge of the truth. One longs still to see them accept as an axiom in their lives that the Bible is intended by God as our rule for every part of our daily life, and not for Sundays and school hours only; and that to live it is to prove it learnt.

FUH-NING DISTRICT (DUBLIN UNIVERSITY FUH-KIEN MISSION).

Fuh-ning.

The staff of missionaries in FUH-NING CITY during the greater part of the year consisted of the Rev. and Mrs. J. Hind, Dr. A. W. Goldsmith, and Misses J. E. Clarke, E. M. K. Thomas, and A. M. Heard, and they were joined in the autumn by Dr. M. Mackenzie, and by Miss B. A. M. Thomas, one of the recruits of the year. Most of the work in the Hospital was in the hands of the Chinese doctors, Dr. Ding and his assistants, for Dr. Goldsmith was obliged to devote his chief energies to the study of the language. Two former patients were baptized during the year, one having been a fortune-teller and opium-smoker. A new men's hospital was opened in the autumn, seven mandarins being present by invitation at the inaugural ceremony. The number of women in the Women's School and station class under Miss Clarke varied between thirteen and nineteen. Of the three members of the latter, who were mentioned in last year's Report (page 359) as having been sent by the wife of a chapel-keeper, two were baptized and the third was hoping to be admitted into the visible Church soon after Miss Clarke wrote her annual letter. Eight other women and one girl were baptized, and there were also several candidates for baptism from among the sixty children belonging to the Girls' Boarding-school under Miss Thomas. Of late years the accommodation at that institution has been insufficient, but the buildings were enlarged in 1905, and a chapel was provided by the gifts of the Clifton and Bristol Gleaners. Miss Thomas speaks of many things in the conduct of the children as having caused deep joy and thankfulness, and says:— Girls' Boarding-school.

> Year by year I learn to know them better, and whereas at the beginning of my work I would have rejoiced to tell that a girl had been able to take part in a prayer-meeting, I have now learned to look for quite other characteristics by which to gauge their Christian life, so easy does it seem to be to the Chinese to take part in outward expressions of religion while their characters are quite unchanged. So I am most happy when I can see in their everyday life indications of bad habits broken off, of selfishness and dishonesty lessened, of a true understanding of what the Christ-life is. This year I have been gladdened by these signs of progress in many of them. Bad habits broken off.

Two girls, whose marriage contracts had been made before their parents became Christians, left to be married to Heathen. One of them refused at her wedding ceremony to bow to the ancestral tablets of heaven and earth. The onlookers remarked, 'This is a strange daughter-in-law; she begins by disobeying,' to which the poor girl replied, 'I will obey in everything else, but in this I cannot.'

Miss Clarke spent a fortnight in the Fuh-ang portion of the district, and Miss Thomas made several short tours while the alterations were being carried out at the school. At Fuh-ting, where three years before she had experienced a good deal of opposition, the people were much more ready to listen, and one woman was met who had been won for Christ by a few words spoken by the late Mrs. Mackenzie. There are only two Christian women at Sang-sua, where the names of many men are on the Church roll, but one of them displays much earnestness, spending all her time in trying to lead others to the Saviour. At Song-tau, on the contrary, where a catechist has lately been stationed, a considerable number of women attend the services. Miss Thomas stayed for ten days at Swa-siek, preparing some women for confirmation, and visiting the homes of between twenty and thirty others who had discarded their idols and unbound their feet. That, however, was the extent of their Christianity, for the lack of workers had prevented their being properly taught.

HOK-CHIANG DISTRICT.

The Rev. J. B. Carpenter, who superintended the work in the Hok-chiang District, is happily able to report that the good results of the Convention held in December, 1904 (see last year's Report, page 360), proved abiding in the case of many of the catechists and other workers, and their lives seemed to have Lives lifted to a higher level.

been lifted to a higher level. So great was the blessing experienced that not only were further meetings held at Tang-tau (see infra), but Mr. Diong, the evangelist, was also invited to revisit Upper Hok-chiang. The second series of meetings were well attended in spite of the fact that they were held at a season when it was difficult for the Christians to leave their homes, and very few of those who came failed to profit.

Hok-chiang.

The staff of the society in HOK-CHIANG CITY consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter, the Rev. Ngoi Ki-Seng, who was in charge of the pastoral work to the north and south, Dr. A. W. Scatliff (from October), Miss A. L. Leybourn, Dr. Mabel C. Poulter, and, until she left on furlough in February, 1905, Miss J. H. Poulter. The Bible-readings which Mr. Carpenter held for the benefit of the city Christians were usually attended by from fourteen to twenty persons, and the prayer-meetings grew steadily.

Boys' Boarding-school.

For some time past the need of a Boys' Boarding-school for the sons of the converts has been sorely felt, and at length Mr. Carpenter was impelled to open one, although no proper building for the purpose was available. There were ten boys in the first term, and the short experience he had with them convinced Mr. Carpenter more than ever of the importance of influencing the children as early as possible. The Station Class was conducted by Miss Leybourn after Miss Poulter left. In the autumn there were eighteen pupils, eight of whom hoped soon to be baptized, while four others asked to be admitted to the catechumenate.

Hospital.

Two of the members of the class were patients at the Hospital, which was very full, though the people were still shy of operations. Several of the patients gave up their idols and commenced to attend the church services regularly, and one girl who died seemed to be really converted. Of a woman who was an in-patient in 1903, Dr. Mabel Poulter writes:—

A patient determined not to listen to the Gospel unless cured.

> She was very hard, and quite determined not to listen unless she was cured. She went as she came, but thank God with this difference, that He had spoken to her while waiting, and though He had not granted her cure, He had given her His peace and His salvation. She went home and witnessed bravely for Christ in spite of opposition and persecution, and God used her to win several of her family to Himself.

Four of the children belonging to the school carried on in connexion with the hospital became catechumens. Weekly visits were paid by Miss Leybourn to the Leper Settlement.

There were signs of improvement in the district lying to the west of the city, especially at Ngo-ka and Ging-meng, but at Ming-dian, where the Rev. Ho Sëü-Hok resided, the congregation was dwindling away. To the east advance was evident at Li-mui, Hai-kau, and Seu-tau, and especially at Deng-huong, where a schoolmaster was stationed during the year.

The language teacher and two of the pupils at the Girls' Boarding-school at KENG-TAU, which was under Miss F. E. Oatway, were carried off by the plague, but happily they had clearly shown by their lives that they were true servants of Christ. An increased love of the Bible and of prayer was evident among the girls, nearly all of whom took part in the prayer-meetings. Miss I. Suttor, of the New South Wales Association, and, after her return from furlough in Australia, Miss E. Mort, of the Victorian Association, devoted themselves to itinerating in the district. In many of the remoter villages traces of the work of other missionaries were found; one and another, for instance, said that they had heard the Gospel from Archdeacon Wolfe and Miss Wolfe when they moved about the country in former days. A marked change took place at several places which for some years have given no sign of spiritual life. At one, where only one Christian man used to meet the catechist at night for prayers, the room was generally filled, and at another, where once the women refused to be taught, eight of them were baptized, and several others put themselves under instruction. Among the other cheering incidents of the year was the testimony given in one village by a Christian leper, who with a bright and happy face declared, 'As regards this world I have no hope, but as regards the next I have the sure hope of eternal life through my Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.'

A leper's hope.

A new building was opened for the Women's School at TANG-TAU, on the Island of Haitan, where Miss E. J. Harrison and Miss A. M. Hitchcock resided, in the autumn of 1905: it can accommodate as many as fifty women. Some of the scholars in the past have been betrothed girls, who were rather too old to enter a girls' school. One of them, who was married in 1904, had been betrothed when very young to a Heathen. At first her husband made fun of her when she engaged in prayer, but in course of time his wife's earnestness, and possibly other things as well, made such an impression on him that he gave up his idols, and three members of his family as well as several other families in his village became inquirers. Much sickness prevailed on the island, and Miss Hitchcock, who was responsible for the dispensary work, mentions several cases in which sore trial came upon the Christians through the deaths which occurred. One instance is narrated as follows:—

A wife's earnestness impresses her husband.

> The father of the sick boy, an old man, is a Christian of not very long standing, quiet and earnest; his mother is not very satisfactory as an inquirer, showing no real desire to learn. They both commenced coming to church because two or three of their sons had died, and the hope of the mother was that the remaining three would be protected. Only one of these seemed at all interested, the others continuing to worship idols. When I saw the sick boy he had been treated by Chinese doctors, but it was soon only too evident that he could not get better. The elder sons were determined to go and ask the idols about their brother, but the father interfered and tore down the paper from the door. For this he was taunted by his sons and told to go to the church and pray: if his prayers were answered all would be well; if not, and the boy showed no signs of improvement, they should please themselves about performing the idol-worship. The poor man came to the catechist in great distress, and seemed on the point of breaking down under the strain, so we promised to send a Bible-woman over to be with his wife. After the Bible-woman had been at the house an hour or so, one of the sons suggested her returning home, as they had decided to do the idol-worship in the house and could not while she was there. Also on no account was she to tell the Kuniongs. When the father heard what his wife and sons had done, he said, 'It is better for the boy to die. God's Name has been disgraced, and if he lives the thanks will be given to the idols.' He died two days afterwards, but in spite of much persecution from his family this old man has stood firm.

'If my children are taken I can be sure they are with Jesus.'

Another woman in the town buried two little children within ten days, one of them her only boy. When they were ill her neighbours came and said, 'If only you would go to the idols the children would certainly get well.' She had her own way of reasoning, and replied, 'I will not pay out one cash of money for idol-worship. If they are taken I can be sure they are with Jesus, but I should have no comfort if they died and I had worshipped the Devil.' With such trials to face, the converts found the visit of Mr. Diong, the evangelist, specially helpful. So many attended the meetings that the church was several times crowded to its utmost capacity, and there was reason to believe that many persons dedicated themselves afresh to God's service. Some of the women and girls expressed deep sorrow for sins which they had not realized as sins before, and over and over again at the gatherings for prayer was the expression heard, 'I never knew Your love was so great.'

A new sense of the love of God.

The work on the island of Tong-seng was hindered by a dismissed catechist, and on Chau-sen, also, there was cause for anxiety, but a few hopeful inquirers came forward.

Ko-sang-che.

The Women's School at KO-SANG-CHE was conducted by Miss A. McClelland during the first half of 1905, and by Miss M. E. Wolfe, after her return from furlough in the summer. The attendance in the autumn was small, but a very loving spirit prevailed among the students. The girls' day-school did not flourish, but the Dispensary, under Miss K. Andrews, a trained nurse, continued to draw a large number of patients. Several incidents occurred which showed growing confidence on the part of the people. In former days they used not to come for treatment until they had first tried their own doctors, but now, especially in serious cases, they often go direct to Miss Andrews, and sometimes even refrain from combining the treatment of Chinese medical authorities with those prescribed by her.

Dispensary.

Miss I. Suttor, of Keng-tau, travelled about among the villages of the district, and met with many who spoke of the teaching they had received at the dispensary as having been the means of leading them to worship God. A woman, who was first influenced for Christ at a mission-school, was baptized.

HING-HWA DISTRICT.

The Church Council of the Hing-hwa District is entirely self-supporting, excepting for a grant of $120 towards the salary of the Chinese pastor. The Christians are responsible for the pay of the eleven catechists—indeed, it is a rule that no catechist shall be appointed to a village unless the people will maintain him—and for the rent and repairs of their churches. Ninety adults were baptized during the year.

Hing-hwa. Theological Class.

There were seventeen students in the Theological Class in HING-HWA CITY, conducted by the Rev. C. Shaw, who was in general charge of the work of the district, and some of them assisted on Sundays in taking services in a village where the converts were not sufficiently numerous to support a catechist. Much of the teaching in the Boys' Boarding-school, with its fifteen pupils, was given by Mrs. Shaw. She also carried on a Bible-class for women workers and other Christian women who were able to read, while Mrs. Van Someren Taylor was responsible for the station class, five of the members of which were baptized. The Congregation, under the pastoral charge of the Rev. Sioh Su-Sieng, included the mandarin mentioned in last year's Report (page 366) as being a catechumen: he was baptized in January, 1906.

Medical Work.

In the Medical Work Drs. B. Van Someren Taylor and F. Sanger had the assistance of Misses A. F. and F. A. Forge, two trained nurses, and Miss C. M. Taylor ministered to the patients so far as her study of the language would permit. More than 600 patients were received in the Women's Hospital.

The work at Dang-seng, which has revived of late years, prospered under the care of the excellent catechist, and was stimulated by two ladies of the C.E.Z.M.S. once more taking up their residence at the place. Much interest in the Gospel was aroused in a neighbouring village, and some forty of its inhabitants regularly went to the services at Deng-sing, another out-station. The congregation at Ang-tau, a large seaport six miles from Hing-hwa, became too large for the church, and a somewhat similar state of affairs prevailed at Yang-kao, another important seaport. Three new out-stations were opened, two of them on the island of Nang-nik.

Sieng-iu.

In the absence of the Rev. S. J. Nightingale, on furlough, Mr. Shaw was Acting-Chairman of the Church Council at SIENG-IU, where the Rev. Ting Chung-Seng was the Chinese pastor.

KU-CHENG DISTRICT.

The Rev. J. R. S. Boyd, of the Canadian C.M.S., examined the forty-two day-schools in the Ku-cheng district of which he had the oversight, and was more than ever convinced of their great value as a missionary agency. Twenty-five per cent. of the scholars passed, a feat which involved obtaining at least eighty per cent. of full marks in each subject.

Ku-cheng.

The Boys' Boarding-school in KU-CHENG CITY was re-opened early in 1905 with thirty-three pupils, but it had to be closed again in the summer owing to the increasing prevalence of the plague. A catechist was engaged in work among the lepers, a number of whom were almost ready for baptism. The despair in their lives is illustrated by the words used by one of them in conversation: 'If any friends come to see me they stand for a while; they will not sit on the same bench with me; and they soon go. I do not reckon myself as a human being.'

'I do not reckon myself as a human being.'

A sad state of affairs prevailed at Sang-bo-cai, where the congregation was scattered and the church fell into disrepair, and at Ang-iong, the oldest of the out-stations, matters were even worse. At one time almost the whole village became at least nominally Christian, and the idol-temple was closed, but latterly gambling, opium-smoking, and other sins have prevailed among the Christians, and some of them have openly subscribed towards the repair of the temple. At Lau-chio-seng the simple faith in the Saviour manifested by an influential man on his deathbed, led his son, a Chinese graduate, to declare himself a believer.

Converts subscribe towards repair of an idol-temple.

KIEN-NING DISTRICT.

An important step in the direction of self-support was taken in the Kien-ning district, for the newly-established Church Council raised more than enough to pay the salary of the Chinese pastor. Some special services held at the beginning of 1905, and attended by people from different parts of the district, were fraught with blessing to many, and the opportunities for evangelistic work were greater than ever before. Forty-four adults were baptized, a larger number than in any previous year.

Increased number of baptisms.

Kien-ning.

In the summer nearly one-third of KIEN-NING CITY, where the Rev. H. S. Phillips, the superintending missionary, resided, was destroyed by fire. Five lives were lost and much distress occasioned, but although the people in general were solemnized, they looked in their trouble to the idols and not to the living God. Five men were in the Training Class for those who hope to serve as mission-agents, and the attendance at the Boys' Boarding-school, under Mr. C. W. Reeves, gradually rose. Five of the lads were baptized, and two of the seniors among them were placed in charge of country schools. When Dr. H. R. Pakenham left on furlough in the spring of 1905, the work of the Hospital devolved almost entirely on Dr. Ngoi, a Chinese medical man, though Dr. H. M. Churchill was able to render some help. Four of the men among the patients were admitted into the visible Church. One, a well-known fortune-teller, had been addicted to the use of opium, and entered the hospital to gain help in breaking off the habit. Mr. Phillips says of him and his wife :— Hospital.

> When first the Gospel's light illumined the woman, and she insisted on giving up a life of sin, this poor fellow threatened to drag her before the magistrate and commit suicide; but in the end better counsels prevailed, and this poor opium slave, who had once previously tried to break off opium in the strength of medicine alone and grievously failed, now put his whole trust in that Saviour Who can really snap such bonds. This point settled, the next thing was how to make a living. The woman had already taken a post as cook, but for the man the way was more difficult. After a while the scholar's gown (which by a fiction attaches to the office of fortune-teller) was laid aside. Buying a pair of baskets and a load of rice-bowls, a brave start was made to earn an honest living by hawking bowls in exchange for old clothes. Baptism of former fortune-teller.

The man was baptized by the name of 'Keeping to the light,' and was the means of bringing thirteen others to be cured of the opium habit, some of whom in their turn became earnest inquirers. At one time an ex-Buddhist priest appeared to be a changed man, but unhappily he resumed his indulgence in opium and went back to his old mode of life. General evangelistic work was carried on under more favourable conditions than for many years past.

Many of the missionaries took part in itinerating, a form of work to which Mr. J. Blundy devoted himself entirely, and to which the Chinese pastor, the Rev. Diong Ing-do, gave a good deal of his time. At Ciong-bau, where there is a branch dispensary, the catechist was quite a transformed man after the special meetings referred to above, and both there and at Nang-wa the people flocked to the lantern services which Mr. Blundy held. In a village near the latter place a man was met who had put away his idols and commenced to worship God. He first heard the Gospel at Nang-wa; then one day when visiting Kien-ning City he learnt a little more; and next he bought a Bible and began to study it. This led him to destroy his idols and observe Sunday, and when his village was visited the people, who speak of him as 'the worshipping-God man,' came together in large numbers to listen to the Gospel. Two persons were baptized at Pu-chin, the firstfruits in that city, and two new out-stations were opened in that part of the district—at Ching-ho, twenty-three miles north of Puchin, and at Hu-lin-gai, eleven miles to the east. At the latter, an important centre of trade, there were about fifty inquirers. 'The worshipping-God man.'

KIEN-YANG DISTRICT.

Kien-yang.

The women missionaries at work in the Kien-yang district, under the superintendence of the Rev. H. S. Phillips, were Misses M. E. Molloy, of the Victorian Association, I. B. Ramsay, and F. L. Coleman, and they were joined in the autumn by Miss M. E. Sears, of the Victorian Association, who had been taking furlough in Australia. Five women came to the station class which was held in the spring of 1905, and Miss Ramsay had a few Christians whom she instructed regularly, but most of the people in KIEN-YANG CITY, though perfectly civil and friendly, were indifferent to the Gospel. In the villages they were more responsive, notably at Wong-kang, forty-five miles from Kien-yang, on the borders of Kiang-si, where the women were exceptionally intelligent and anxious to be taught. Early in the year Miss Molloy spent six weeks at Tsung-ang, receiving many visitors in the house of some Heathen who received her as their guest. Later on she conducted a station class at Sin-chung, which was attended by some women who came from the adjacent Province of Kiang-si.

MID CHINA MISSION.

China, north of lat. 28°, became the sphere of a separate episcopal jurisdiction, 'North China,' in 1872, Dr. Russell, of the C.M.S., being the first Bishop. In 1880, after his death, it was divided into two, North and Mid China, and Dr. G. E. Moule, of the C.M.S., became Bishop of the latter See. The Protestant Episcopal Church of America appointed a Bishop to supervise the congregations connected with that Church in China in 1844, who resided first at Han-kow and then in Shanghai, and in 1901 a second for Han-kow. Shanghai was occupied by European missionaries in 1844; Ningpo, 1848; Hang-chow, 1864; Shaou-hing, 1870; T'ai-chow, 1892; and Chu-ki, 1894. In the earlier years of the Mission much success was, by the Divine blessing, achieved in the numerous towns and villages around Ningpo. Later, in 1877, the Gospel was introduced under striking circumstances into the Chu-ki district from Hang-chow, and again in 1886 into the district of T'ai-chow from Ningpo. Many of the Christians in these districts have manifested exemplary Christian steadfastness and zeal.

Bishop Moule's movements.

Bishop G. E. Moule, who has been appointed Honorary Fellow of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, and has completed forty-eight years of missionary service, had many causes for anxiety in the administration of his diocese in 1905. Not least among them was the action of some of the pastors in interfering with the Chinese officials in matters of dispute concerning members of their flock, which led to the acceptance of the resignation of one of the clergy and the suspension of another. The Bishop was called upon also to take a considerable part in the work at Hang-chow, where, after the departure of the Rev. G. W. Coultas, there was no resident clerical missionary who had passed the language examination. In the discharge of his official duties the veteran Bishop travelled nearly 2,000 miles, which represents a much longer time occupied in journeys—ninety days as a matter of fact—than would be taken in covering the same distance at home.

The Mid China Synod.

The meetings of the Mid China Synod and of the Conference of the Mission were held at Ningpo in the autumn. The first day of the Synod was set apart as a 'Quiet Day,' the addresses being given by five of the Chinese pastors. Bishop Moule writes:—

> I knew these five Chinese priests for good and thoughtful men; but I was grateful to God and to them for the unexpectedly serious, wise, and spiritual tone and matter of the addresses—three very short, the other two longer—which He enabled them to give us. In short, the spiritual help of the addresses and prayers of the first day and the second and third mornings, seemed to go with us through the whole week, lifting the tone of the English discussions of Conference not less than that of the Chinese debates of Synod. I do not undervalue our English 'Quiet Day' with its Communion and its Litany; but I can remember no Conference week in which we seemed so distinctly to receive help from our Lord.

Death of the Rev. H. Gretton.

The Rev. H. Gretton, Rector of Otley, who was on the staff of the Mid China Mission from 1866–77, labouring at Hang-chow and then at Shaou-hing, died in London on October 19th, 1905.

Reinforcements.

The Mission has been reinforced by the following:—The Rev. Herbert Clements, of Islington College; Miss Emma Margaret Gill, of Mildmay, trained at The Olives; Miss Selina Morris, of Willenhall, trained at The Willows and Highbury; Miss Elizabeth Maria Reed, of Bethnal Green, trained at Highbury and Bermondsey; and Miss Mary Ann Wray, of Burneside, trained at Highbury, The Willows, and Bethnal Green. The name of the Rev. Tong Ming-Fu, who was admitted to Deacons' Orders in August, 1905, has been added to the list of Native Clergy. The Committee have accepted the resignations of the Rev. W. G. Walshe, for family reasons, and of Miss M. J. Godson, on her marriage.

The Rev. C. J. F. Symons is the Secretary of the Mission.

I. PROVINCE OF KIANG-SU.

SHANGHAI.

Shanghai. THE staff of the Society at SHANGHAI consisted of the Rev. J. B. Ost, the Acting-Secretary of the Mission, and Mrs. Ost; the Rev. Dzing Kyi-Doh, the Chinese pastor, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. H. Moule, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. H. Moule, and Miss E. Onyon. For some Episcopal oversight of the congregation. time past the question of the position of the Congregation has been under consideration. At a meeting of the missionary Bishops of the American and English churches in China (including Bishops Moule and Hoare) held in 1903 it was suggested that that congregation, like all other Chinese Christians of the Anglican communion in Shanghai and the rest of the Province of Kiang-Su, should recognize Bishop Graves of the American Church as their Bishop. The Society's Committee admitted that the position of the congregation was anomalous, but, as other anomalies both have been and will continue to be tolerated, they pleaded that the unanimous wishes of the Chinese pastor and congregation and of the C.M.S. missionaries in favour of that congregation continuing as heretofore under the jurisdiction of the Bishop of Mid China might be conceded. The Committee's views were communicated by the Archbishop to the presiding Bishop of the American Episcopal Church, and the reply in due course reached Lambeth. After giving much time and thought to the matter, the Archbishop intimated that he saw no adequate ground for departing from the arrangement suggested at the meeting of the missionary Bishops in China. The relation of the congregation to the Society's Mission is not necessarily affected by the Literary Work. change. The Literary Work of Mr. A. J. H. Moule consisted in translating the Religious Tract Society's Commentary on the New Testament, and adding to the Phrase Book on which he has been at work for some years. He was cheered by several testimonies from other Missions as to the usefulness of the Commentary on the Old Testament, which he completed in 1904.

The average attendance at the Anglo-Chinese School, under Mr. W. A. H. Moule, rose from eighty to ninety, and many of the boys displayed much interest in the Bible-lessons. Monthly meetings of the Old Boys' Society, which has about eighty members, were held, and good reports were received of a number of former pupils. Two day-schools were carried on in the city under the superintendence of Miss Onyon, who, together with Mrs. Ost, engaged in Work among Women. A former member of the station class was baptized, together with five men and another woman. One of the converts was specially diligent in trying to induce her neighbours to attend church, and met with some success in her efforts. Twenty inquirers were under instruction at the close of the year.

II. PROVINCE OF CHEH-KIANG.

NINGPO.

Archdeacon A. E. Moule conducted the English Services at Ningpo held on Sunday mornings, and usually preached at one of the city churches in the afternoon: in addition he presided at the monthly gatherings of the catechists working in the district, and at the clerical meetings held about six times in the year and attended on the average by four English and seven or eight Chinese clergy. Trinity College contained eighty students at the close of the year—six in the Theological Class, ten in the Preparandi Class, twenty-one in the Normal School, and forty-three in the Preparatory School—in the work among whom the Principal, the Rev. W. S. Moule, had the help of the Revs. Sing Tsae-Seng and Mô Kw'un-Yü, and of two other Chinese masters, of whose faithful co-operation he speaks in high terms. Nine boys of the Normal School were accepted by the Conference of the Mission as schoolmasters, and several men of the Preparandi Class had almost completed their course when Mr. Moule wrote his annual letter. One member of this class, who was called to his rest, when he applied for admission made the remark that he was sure he would sin less if he knew more of the Gospel. Mr. Moule had eight elementary schools under his supervision, nine of the pupils of which received baptism during the year. The Girls' Boarding-school was under the care of Miss A. Maddison, while Mrs. W. S. Moule conducted a Women's School, which had from seven to ten members. The latter writes of one of the students, whom she describes as one of the slowest and at the same time one of the most painstaking women she has ever had under instruction, as follows:—

Ningpo.

Trinity College.

> It is most difficult to make her understand anything of the meaning of what she reads or hears. However, we heard of this very woman that after her first term in the school her heathen mother-in-law begged that she might come for another term, as she had so greatly improved and was not nearly so quarrelsome as she used to be. Just lately, when obliged to go to the hospital for a time, she begged to be put into an inferior ward, that she might have more quiet for her studies, 'for,' she earnestly assured me, 'the learning is much more important than the illness.'

'Learning is more important than illness.'

Elementary day-schools for girls were superintended by Mrs. A. E. Moule and Mrs. W. S. Moule. A child attending that in the charge of the former won the consent of her heathen parents to her baptism, and other pupils were found to have taken the Gospel message to their non-Christian homes. Work among Women in the city was carried on by the ladies already mentioned and by Mrs. W. H. Elwin, Mrs. T. Goodchild, and Mrs. E. A. Walker. The oldest of the Bible-women, generally known as 'Eunice,' died suddenly, leaving a gap in the ranks of workers which it will be hard to fill. She and her two brothers were the firstfruits of Shaou-hing. Her Chinese colleagues had mixed experiences in their visiting, meeting with civil attention when accompanied by any of the women missionaries, but often having to put up with hard words and trying rebuffs when alone. The ladies also conducted several classes for heathen children, one of which had from seventy to eighty members.

Medical Work.

Drs. R. Smyth and A. F. Cole were engaged in the Medical Work, though the latter was unable as a new arrival to do more than take part in seeing the out-patients and assist in the operations. An X-ray apparatus was installed at the hospital with the help of a donation of $600, given through the Tao-Tai of Ningpo and H.B.M. Consulate. The Printing Press published a Jewish History from the Captivity to the present day, besides some minor works.

The Native Church Council, of which the Rev. W. H. Elwin was chairman, was involved in much perplexity as to how to fill the vacancies caused by the resignation (referred to above) of one of the Chinese pastors and the retirement through old age and infirmity of another. Over forty persons attended the station class which was held in February, 1905, and is worked under the auspices of the Council.

Pastorates.

The pastorates connected with the Council number four. The Ningpo City Pastorate, under the Rev. Wong Yiu-Kwong, has two large churches, and the Christians connected with the College and the Hospital belong to it. The country districts lying to the east of the city are included in the Ningpo Country Pastorate, which at present is vacant. At Moh-ts-in, on the East Lake, one of the centres of this pastorate, two of the women were instrumental in winning their husbands to Christianity. Archdeacon Moule tells an interesting story of one of these women, who had long been tried by her husband's unbelief, but rejoiced at length at his becoming a sharer in her faith. He writes :—

A Christian captain.

The husband is captain and part owner of a large fishing-smack with a crew of ten or eleven men. These vessels are engaged in sea, often in deep-sea, fishing, and are absent more than half the year, with occasional breaks. The start and return of the craft is a lively and striking sight. It is always (the start) accompanied by religious, fully idolatrous observances, with special vows and offerings at the temples, and a great roar of crackers in honour specially of the Goddess of Mercy, the Sailor's Patron, the Star and Queen of the Sea.

This year this new-made Christian captain resolved with his wife to abandon all idolatrous and superstitious practices, and to seek God's blessing alone. They told the crew, and to their thankful surprise they all assented. The junk was sculled to the jetty near our church, and they all landed and attended a special service in the church, commending themselves body and soul, and their ship, to God's care. It was a glad sight for the Christians; and the Heathen round did not scoff, they merely said, 'We will watch and see what luck you have, and whether it is any use praying to your God.'

The red-cross flag hoisted.

Then a trouble arose. The crew said that there was one thing they could not forego—their flag. They always looked to it first as a kind of charm and pledge in storm or danger. It had on it the name and a tracing of the face of their god. 'Well,' replied the captain's wife, 'you shall have your flag. But your old flag can't help you; it speaks of and points to a false god who can never still the storm. The Lord Jesus can, and walk on the sea, too. And He did more; He died for you on the cross to save you. Have your new flag, then, with a red cross on it, and think of His great love and trust in His power.' This was done, and the old flag is stowed away in a cupboard.

Later reports tell of a successful season under the new flag. One of the oldest and most faithful of the Christians at Yu-ko-da-ao died during the year. In the Z-ky'i Pastorate lies the city of that name, containing a population of 35,000, and Tsong-gyiao, a town of 15,000 people. Misses E. Green and I. Hughes (of the Victorian Association) visited the Christians of the latter town, often having opportunities at the same time of preaching the Gospel to the Heathen who came to look at the foreign ladies. Thus on one occasion while the ladies were in the house of a woman, the only Christian in her village, the neighbours crowded in, and many of them remained for two hours listening to the good tidings. The Bible-classes for the Christians which were held at several centres were well attended, and the people seemed especially to appreciate the Old Testament stories as telling of men who, like themselves, lived and served God in the midst of Heathenism. The Church at Loh-ko-bu grew steadily, and among those who expressed their desire to throw in their lot with the Christians was a priest who read the New Testament through in a fortnight. At Ha-p'u much anxiety was caused to the Rev. T. Goodchild by the conduct of the first person in the district to embrace Christianity, and in less degree by the persecution to which the members of the infant Church were exposed. Two persons received baptism at the hands of the catechist during their illness which was expected to end fatally, and four others were received into the visible Church. In the San-poh Pastorate, under the Rev. Song Vi-Sing, a girls' boarding-school was opened at Kwun-hae-we for the children of converts, non-Christian children being admitted as day-scholars, and gained the missionaries an entrance into several homes. There were signs of an awakening at Long-deo-dziang, where for some years little fruit has been gathered, while at Ming-ngoh-dziang the desire of the Heathen to hear what the foreigners had to say was so great as to constitute a difficulty in the way of teaching the converts.

Evangelistic Work was carried on by many of the missionaries over the area covered by the pastorates—indeed it is difficult to trace any clear line of demarcation between the pastoral and evangelistic work, for, as already intimated, opportunities of reaching the Heathen often occurred while the workers were for the moment chiefly concerned with teaching the Christians. On this point Archdeacon Moule writes:—

> The spread of the native Pastorate in no perceptible degree at present releases the Society to leave these districts and go farther afield. The pastors are all surrounded by vast masses of Heathen. If they are faithful the care of the Christians must absorb a large part of their time and energy. So we (C.M.S. missionaries and C.M.S. Chinese agents) are hard at work in each pastorate and beyond, and with the thankful will of the pastors.

Work among young men.

Of the efforts to influence the non-Christians, Mr. Elwin's work among the young men and lads attending the important prefectural school in Ningpo calls for notice. They went to him attracted by the prospect of croquet or ping-pong, or to borrow books from a little lending library, and he read a chapter from the Gospels with them in English and Mandarin. He says that they are most open-minded, and specially mentions a lad of sixteen, Wong Nyiang-Tseng by name, whom he first met four years ago, and whom he described in his annual letter for 1904 as not believing in idols nor ancestral worship, and as having serious thoughts about Christianity. This youth, who has gone to Japan, wrote to Mr. Elwin, saying, 'There are many temptations here to sin, but I hope you led me out of sinful way to believe in Jesus Christ.' Speaking of the Bible, he added, 'I read it every day and believe it.' Public preaching was held daily in the chapel in Archdeacon Moule's garden, the chief worker there being Matthew Tai, who was so greatly used at Chu-ki nearly thirty years ago. Three mission-rooms were opened in the thickly populated district stretching from Tsong-gyiao to the neighbourhood of Dziang-ding, which was under Archdeacon Moule's care—his old itinerating sphere more than forty years previously. At one of these rooms sixteen inquirers were speedily enrolled. An instance of the superstition of the people which occurred in this part of the district is thus narrated by Miss Hughes :—

One evening as I was walking home I saw a very sad sight—a procession of three women, the first one carrying a basket full of paper money and a lighted lantern. As she walked along she lit the paper money and dropped it on the path. The second woman carried a gong which she struck constantly, while she called some one's name. The third woman carried a live fowl under her arm, wrapped up in a garment; she, too, called for some one. All three looked very sad and hopeless. When I saw them I knew that some one in their home was very ill, and in an unconscious state, probably dying. When this occurs the Chinese think that the soul of the invalid has gone out of him and is wandering about somewhere, and therefore they go out with a lighted lantern, paper money, and gong, and try to induce the soul to enter the fowl, which is wrapped up in the sick one's garment (to deceive), and if they succeed they carry it back to his chamber, when the soul immediately re-enters the invalid and he recovers!

Trying to tempt back the soul of an unconscious invalid.

Miss M. E. Turnbull, who resumed her work in the villages when the return of Miss Maddison from furlough relieved her of the charge of the Girls' Boarding-school in the city, speaks of great readiness to listen on the part of the people, and tells of two women who put themselves under instruction with a view to baptism at Zin-zi, a busy village some three miles from the Lake. The first was the landlady of the house in which missionaries have for some years stayed when working in that region. She had refused to let the house any longer, the reason being that her son had become subject to fits, and her neighbours declared that the evil spirits brought the calamity upon her because she let her rooms to Christians. Miss Turnbull went to see this woman, and writes :—

The talk I had with her showed me she was really halting between two opinions. The influence of her heathen neighbours had been very strong. At the same time, something told her there was truth in what the Bible-women said about the power of Christ. The story of the demoniac boy in Mark ix. had, I found, specially impressed her. She went so far as to admit that when I was talking to her, or the Bible-women were talking to her, she really did believe, but said that doubts returned as soon as we had gone. This made me suggest to her that she should use the same prayer as the father in the story she had heard, 'Lord, I believe. Help Thou mine unbelief.' She promised that she would, and the next day told us that her heart felt more at rest. She spent a long time listening to the Gospel, besides asking that her boy might be taught a prayer which he could use himself.

Halting between two opinions.

In the evening she said she felt she began to understand the doctrine in a way she had never done before. That night the crisis came. The boy woke up feeling ill and begged his mother to go and call the Bible-women, but she refused to do so. She said, 'If they come they will only pray to God, and we can do that for ourselves. You and I will pray.' They did so, and the threatened attack passed off completely. This confirmed the woman's faith. Next evening, what was our delight to find that she had burnt her kitchen god, and destroyed everything she had which was idolatrous! Not only so, but she had refused to obey a summons to join in some heathen rites connected with the worship of the ancestors, and had boldly told her mother-in-law that she meant to be a Christian. It only remained to break her vegetarian vow, and she did that the next day. Her boy has now been to the Ningpo hospital, and has benefited by the stay, though he has not been completely cured. We trust that like his mother he has really grasped the truth, and that they will ere long be baptized together.

Breaking the vegetarian vow.

After our landlady had broken her vegetarian vow, we hoped much for another woman in the court, with whom this was the great obstacle. She, too, had long been familiar with the Gospel, but feared the ridicule that she would meet with if she broke her vow. For several days one could see that a struggle was going on in her heart, and I longed to help her. Finally, one morning as I sat at breakfast in my room upstairs, I heard her voice below, and a sudden idea seized me. Trusting that the hour of victory had come, I hastily arranged a piece of bread and a little bit of sardine on a plate, and called her upstairs and asked her to partake. She hesitated for a moment, but I urged her not to put off any longer doing what she knew was right. I am thankful to say the decisive step was taken, proving that she had no longer any faith in the accumulated merit of years of vegetarianism, but was ready to put all her trust in Jesus Christ.

Seven Christians among 30,000 people.

Some medical itinerations were made by Drs. Smyth and Cole, the former on one tour working among the villages of the northern plain. He was impressed with their immense number, five lying within a radius of one mile and containing about 30,000 people, of whom not more than seven are Christians; with the consequent importance of the work of Trinity College in training Chinese agents; with the general neglect of the spiritual welfare of the women and children, in many households the father being the only Christian; and with the friendly attitude of the people in general, and the gratitude evinced by those who had been successfully treated in the hospital.

Literary Work.

Archdeacon Moule's Literary Work consisted inter alia of the translation of Goulburn's Personal Religion, and the preparation of a new and more attractive edition of Great China's Greatest Need and of references for the Wen-li edition of the Old Testament. Mr. W. S. Moule translated Kellogg's Expository Commentary on Leviticus, and Mr. Elwin spent some time in preparing a course of Sunday-school Lessons on the Epistles, while Pastors Song and Yü carefully revised those on the Gospels.

T'AI-CHOW.

T'ai-chow.

When the Rev. and Mrs. E. Thompson left for England in March, 1905, the superintendence of the work in the T'AI-CHOW district, with 1,100 baptized Christians (twenty-five per cent. of whom are women) and services regularly held at thirty different centres, devolved upon the Rev. W. J. Wallace. There were unhappily some cases of backsliding among the converts, who are under the pastoral charge of three Chinese clergy.

Hospital.

Sixty persons were baptized during the year. A new Hospital, with accommodation for fifty in-patients, was opened in the autumn of 1905, but too late to materially affect the number of cases treated; the attendances of out-patients, however, were more than 1,500 in excess of those in the previous year. Dr. S. N. Babington, who was in charge of the medical work, tells of a fisher lad who at one time seemed so slow of comprehension that it appeared impossible to get him to understand about the Saviour, but who when leaving the hospital said, 'I will believe in Jesus, and will tell my friends about Him.' The Girls' Boarding-school, under Miss A. Gilbert, had twelve pupils, as many as could be received: five of them were to be baptized soon after she wrote her annual letter. Various classes for Christians and for the Heathen were held, and the women were visited in their homes, while once a week there was a reception for Chinese ladies at the mission-house.

The five Bible-women labouring in the country districts were superintended by Miss A. O. Stott, who spent most of the year itinerating. She stayed for three weeks at Da-zih, to the north of T'ai-chow, and had so many women come to the classes which she held that her rooms proved too small and she was obliged to ask the pastor to allow her the use of the church. In the T'in-t'e district, which also lies to the north, there appeared to be a considerable spirit of inquiry, and five women were under instruction for baptism. Miss Stott was heartily welcomed at Tu-gyiao, and the women, very few of whom are usually present at the services, attended well while she was there. Just before she left the out-station one of them said to her, 'If this truth is as important to receive and believe as you say it is, why do you not always stay here and teach us until we thoroughly understand it? It is so difficult for us to take it in all at once.' By arrangement with the workers of the China Inland Mission work has been set on foot at T'so-ky'i. The place was visited by Mr. Thompson in 1899, but after that date, as it was found to be within the C.I.M. sphere, the people were urged to join that Mission. They, however, elected to adhere to the communion of the Church of England, and when Mr. Thompson went there again in 1904 he found that nearly all the inhabitants of the village were inquirers. Two whole families were baptized and twelve persons were admitted to the catechumenate. A visit was paid by Archdeacon Moule to T'ai-chow with a view to investigating the desirability of extending the work to Ky'in-meng, a large fishing and trading village of some 5,000 inhabitants, about sixty or seventy miles from the border of the Fuh-Kien Province. The Rev. W. Robbins, having passed his second language examination, has been appointed to supervise the Society's work in the southern portion of the district.

'It is so difficult for us to take the teaching in all at once.'

SHAOU-HING.

The Rev. W. Browne, who was transferred from Chu-ki in February, 1905, to take charge of the work at SHAOU-HING when the Rev. H. Barton came home on furlough, describes the latter city as being in a special sense wholly given to idolatry in that so many of its inhabitants earn their living by the manufacture of paper money and other articles used by the Heathen in their worship. The fact that so many are directly and vitally interested in idol-worship has doubtless been to a great extent the reason for the comparative slowness of the spread of the Gospel in the city. During the first half of the year a dispensary was conducted by the doctors attached to the staff of the Hang-chow hospital on two days in each month, but the pressure of work on Dr. Main made it impossible for him to spare any of his colleagues after June. The school for boys and the two for girls were but sparsely attended, but their efficacy was shown in at least one case in which, when the mother of one of the pupils was visited, she stated with pride that her daughter read a portion of St. Mark's Gospel to her every day and repeated in her home what she had been taught at school. Miss E. F. Turner and Miss I. S. Clarke held a station class for Christians and inquirers for a few days early in the year, and the latter conducted Bible-classes and classes for inquirers, and was in charge of the local branch of the Gleaners' Union. In her efforts for the edification of the converts she was closely associated with the Rev. Tsong Sieh-En, the Chinese pastor, whose wife and mother both passed away during the year. Miss Turner bears testimony to the earnest Christian character of Mrs. Tsong. She says:—

Shaou-hing.

A city wholly given to idolatry.

A beautiful life.

> The mother of a large family, she was unable to do much outside work, but she 'ordered well the ways of her household,' brought up her children in the 'nurture and admonition of the Lord,' and set an excellent example to the other Christian women. I never heard her say an unkind thing about any one, and on every side one hears the same testimony that she never indulged in gossip. As one thinks of her beautiful life and helpful influence one is constrained to say, 'What hath God wrought!' for when her husband first became a Christian (some twenty or more years ago, I believe) she was very angry, and vowed that she would leave him if he did not give up this new religion! At that time Mr. Tsong was the only Christian in his family, all of whom were strongly opposed to the Gospel, his mother and wife being especially bitter. The fact that his changed life and earnest prayers were the means of leading both of these to the Saviour, and that now every member of his own family is a Christian, speaks volumes for the reality of his faith.

Efforts to evangelize the Heathen were made by means of meetings at the preaching-chapel, visiting the women in their homes, receiving callers, &c. At Zia-ko-gyiao the antagonism of two men who had enrolled themselves as inquirers from a desire to gain help in some lawsuit, and when they failed in that returned to idolatrous practices and became bitter enemies of Christianity, prejudiced the work. All kinds of dreadful stories about the converts were circulated in the village, and the people were assured that if they allowed the colporteur to visit them evil spirits would follow them into their houses and the spirits of their ancestors would be driven away for ever. Fifteen adults were baptized.

Mr. H. C. Wooldridge, who was transferred from Chu-ki to Shaou-hing early in the year, Mr. P. J. King, and Misses M. E. Gillard and A. Davies had most of their time occupied with the study of Chinese.

HANG-CHOW.

Hang-chow. Medical Work.

The Medical Work at HANG-CHOW, under Drs. D. D. Main and A. T. Kember, is on a large scale, the in-patients at the hospitals during 1904 (the last year for which statistics are to hand) numbering over 1,000, and the out-patients more than 19,000. In addition 147 people were received into the Opium Refuge, many of them having attempted to commit suicide on account of some trifling quarrel. An instance is mentioned by Mrs. Main, who wrote in August :—

Suicide out of spite.

> Some nights ago, one of those breathless, gasping nights when sleep comes by fits and starts, there was a terrible noise at the entrance of this house of women shouting and yelling ; but above all there was a deep voice of a man weeping and wailing as if his heart would break. The 'amah' of the opposite house had taken opium to poison herself because her mistress had found fault with her for allowing her charge—a little child—to trip and fall. The amah could not 'bear' it and to spite her mistress did away with her own life, so as to bring trouble on the family. The woman was brought to the hospital, but it was too late to save her. On the next day, instead of allowing the coffin to be taken in by the gate leading to the house, a large hole was made in the wall—which was quite three feet broad—at the side of the entrance, and the coffin was put through it, and brought out again for burial, after which the hole was immediately built up! This mode of doing things was to deceive the evil spirit, which would not be able to find its way into the house where the poor creature ended her life, and so the life of the mistress would be practically safe from the ill-consequences of the suicide. And so it is that life is thought nothing of, and death less, by the Chinese, if by these means they can take revenge on their neighbours.

Dr. Main states that to his knowledge there are many families in the city whose opium bill is over $2,000 a year, while at least $10,000 worth is consumed in some of the yamens. There were about thirty inmates of the Leper Hospital. One of them, who for some time had worked faithfully among his afflicted companions, was called to his rest. The Convalescent and Fresh Air Homes were instrumental in affording benefit to several sufferers from tuberculosis. The twelve students belonging to the Medical Class approached the completion of their five years' course. In December eight persons were baptized, six of whom had been won for Christ by the medical work, while two had been brought in through the services held in the hospital on Sundays.

The number of pupils at the Anglo-Chinese School, of which Mr. T. Gaunt is Principal, increased slightly, and was thirty-one in the last term of the year, but in December five lads had had to be expelled. Mr. Gaunt gives the following description of the course of education at the school:—

> It is divided into three parts, the Chinese names of which may be translated 'Generally Intelligent' (the lowest class), 'High Grade,' and 'Extended Learning.' The 'Generally Intelligent' and 'High Grade' classes are each divided into three forms, and the 'Extended Learning' class into two, the work of each form being supposed to take a year. When a boy passes out of each of these classes he gets a certificate, and the two branches of instruction, Chinese subjects and Western subjects, are kept entirely distinct: so that if a boy takes a full course in both branches he ought to get six certificates before leaving the school—the Chinese lay great stress on certificates.
> From what I have said above about the two branches being kept distinct, it follows that a boy may be in one class for Western subjects and in another for Chinese subjects, and this often happens. The English language forms a part of the Western subjects studied, as also does daily Bible-teaching.

At the end of 1904 one boy received his certificate for the 'High Grade' in Western learning, and three that for the 'Generally Intelligent' Class. The admission—an exception to the general rule—of ten sons of Chinese Christians was partly responsible for the success which attended the formation in the school of a branch of the Y.M.C.A. of China.

Girls' Boarding-school.

Bishop Moule superintended the three boys' schools in the city, one of which contained fourteen boarders, and Miss J. F. Moule was in charge of the Girls' Boarding-school. A station class and a Summer School were held by Miss M. Vaughan for the benefit of the women. The Congregation in the city was under the charge of the Rev. Yü Hyien-Ding, who was privileged to admit seventeen men and women into the visible Church on one day in the autumn. Miss M. Laurence, formerly on the staff of the Society in the Mid China and Japan Missions, who while teaching English to the family of the Governor of Cheh-Kiang finds many opportunities for missionary work, and was the means of leading one of these converts to Christ, writes:—

> At her final examination her answers were quite remarkable. Pastor Yü asked her if she had quite made up her mind to follow Christ, and she declared that she had. He then related a harrowing story of the persecution in Shan-Si, when a whole family one by one was had up before the magistrate and given the choice between Christ and death, and denial and life, each choosing the former. The pastor then asked, 'Suppose such times came here, what would you do?' to which she instantly replied, 'I should do the same'; and when asked how she could make up her mind to do so, she answered that that would be very short suffering, whereas if she denied Christ she would have endless suffering. The pastor said, 'I think that arithmetic is very good.'

'That arithmetic is very good.'

Evangelistic Work in the city was carried on by Miss E. Goudge, who accompanied the Bible-woman in her visiting. The young woman in whose behalf she asked for prayer (see last year's Report, page 384) continued steadfast, and her husband received a catechumen's card, but it was impossible to arrange for regular instruction to be given him, and if his wife attempted to teach him he resented it, thinking that she was 'stepping beyond her bounds' when she told him that any act was 'contrary to the Jesus doctrine.'

Work among the upper classes.

On her return from furlough in the autumn of 1904, Miss D. C. Joynt was asked to make an effort to influence the women of the upper classes. At first she tried to teach them at the mission-house, and from time to time they were invited to listen to an address illustrated by lantern slides. These gatherings were largely attended, and apparently were most successful, but Miss Joynt soon found that in order to reach the Chinese ladies effectually she must go to their homes. To begin with, the formality with which she was received was rather dispiriting, but it gradually wore off, and she says that by almost all the families which she visits regularly genuine affection is shown towards her. She adds, however :—

Though there is this kindly feeling shown to myself, I cannot but see that the dead wall of opposition to the Gospel is almost, if not quite, as impenetrable as it was in the days when intercourse such as I here speak of was impossible. 'I thought I would escape this by being late,' whispered one day to her sister a haughty young woman—girl I was going to call her, but, though only eighteen, she is mother of two boys!—as she took her place at the table and listened (?) while the story of the wondrous love was being told. This is only one instance of the feeling manifested in these homes—that is, in some. Thank God, not in all, for in many cases the English 'lesson' is dropped and the time is given to the Bible-reading, which is the condition on which the English is taught.

Concerning the results of her work, and of two evils which she specially observed, Miss Joynt writes :—

With some ladies I am able to take a regular course of Bible-reading, and this in homes where they had never seen a Bible is something to praise God for. In the heart of more than one of these ladies I feel sure He is working. 'Oh how I wish I had the happiness in my heart that you seem to have. How can I have it?' said one most interested young married woman during one visit. I learnt afterwards that not only was her husband a great opium-smoker (he died a few weeks ago from it), but she herself, as so many of these wives do, had succumbed to the temptation. Oh the awfulness of this opium-smoking! I knew nothing of it, comparatively, while among the poor, but now there are few homes I visit where the two crying evils of wealth are not visible—opium and polygamy. 'All gentry smoke opium,' said the young head of one of the houses when I remarked on the nature of the apartment into which I was shown one day—his foreign-built opium 'den.' And in this house I am treated with the utmost courtesy and kindness, the ladies, too, showing a real desire to know more and more of the 'Jesus doctrine.'

The 'awfulness' of opium-smoking.

The work in the River district, superintended by Bishop Moule with the help of the Rev. Dong Dao-Fah, was carried on by Misses Vaughan, A. Graham, and G. Lewin. At Wang-dza, where a new church was opened, the girls' school had twenty-four pupils, half of whom were boarders. Three of the girls received baptism, and an earnest spirit was manifested by the elder scholars in particular. Several of the Christians, who are scattered about in the neighbourhood, manifested praiseworthy zeal in endeavouring to win their friends and acquaintances for Christ, notably a woman, the first convert, at Iao-k'e, where there were some promising openings. A woman, eighty-two years of age, was baptized at Nyien-u. For a long time she had refused to accept Christianity, but at length she gave up her Buddhist rosary, and having been duly instructed was received into the visible Church, taking a name which signifies 'Evening Light.' Her daughter, grand-daughter, and great grand-daughter, all of them baptized Christians, were present at the service. Several women were baptized at Ts'in-ts'ao, and the mother of one of them was led to accept salvation by Christ.

Miss E. Parker, one of the recruits of 1904, was able to do little beyond study the language. Besides those already mentioned the Revs. H. Castle and J. E. Denham and Mr. H. B. Morgan resided at Hang-chow.

CHU-KI.

Chu-ki. In February, 1905, the Rev. W. Browne and Mr. H. C. Wooldridge were transferred to Shaou-hing, but the former continued to supervise the work at CHU-KI, and Miss E. F. Turner, of Shaou-hing, also made a tour in the eastern portion of the district. Two of the three pastorates of Chu-ki are almost entirely self-supporting, but there are very few women among the converts and inquirers. The character of some of the Christians evidenced a work of grace in their hearts, and an old man is specially mentioned, who, though unable to read or write, yet has experience of the power of prayer, and is diligent in using such talents as he possesses for making known the Gospel.

WESTERN CHINA MISSION.

The Province of Si-Chuan was occupied by a party under the Rev. J. H. Horsburgh in 1892, but for more than a year it was impossible to rent houses in any place not already occupied by other Societies. The cities of Chong-pa, Sin-tu, Mien-chuh, Mien-cheo, and Ngan-hsien received resident missionaries in 1894; Shih-ts'uen in 1895; Wei-cheng in 1899; Chong-kiang, Teh-yang, and Tsen-tao-ch'ang in 1903. The Rev. W. W. Cassels, a missionary of the China Inland Mission, was appointed, on the nomination of the C.M.S., Bishop in Western China, and was consecrated on October 18th, 1895.

The prevalence of opium-smoking.

A SERIOUS obstacle to a rapid extension of the Gospel in the province of Si-Chuan is the great prevalence of opium-smoking, a habit in which it is said that eighty per cent. of the population indulge. With reference to this evil the West China Missions Advisory Board, representing all the Protestant Missions working in the Provinces of Si-Chuan, Yu-Nan, and Kwei-Chow, passed the following Minute at their meeting held in May, 1905:—

> At such a time as the present, when this Empire is in some measure awakening to her position among other nations, and the intelligent classes of the people are beginning to take an interest in the real welfare of their country, it would appear to be the duty of Christian Missions more than ever to urge upon the Chinese the necessity of taking measures to combat the evil.
> Missionaries have long realized that one of the worst enemies of China is opium, and have persistently used every means possible to rescue its victims, and, by strict Church legislation and discipline, to prevent the abuse of the drug. No one known to smoke opium is allowed to become a full member of the Church of any Mission. Most Missions observe the rule that no one who smokes, buys, sells, or grows the drug may be admitted. But the effect of all this is scarcely appreciable, the good market for the drug being too powerful an incentive to increased production. The prospect is one of finding ere long that few of our hearers are altogether free of complicity in the traffic.

Winter School for Chinese helpers.

A Winter School for the benefit of the Chinese helpers in the Mission was held at Ngan-hsien for ten days in 1905. Twenty-eight men were present, representing all but two of the stations, and four lectures were delivered and two devotional meetings conducted each day. The course concluded with a vivâ voce examination.

Death of Mr. A. Lawrence.

The death of Mr. A. Lawrence, the news of which arrived as last year's Report was going through the press and was there briefly recorded, occurred at Pao-ning on June 3rd, 1905. He joined the Mission in 1897, and was stationed first at Chong-pa and then at Ngan-hsien. In 1903 he settled at Sin-tien-tsi and there commenced a Diocesan Training Institute for evangelists intending to work under the C.M.S. and the C.I.M. This was subsequently removed to Bishop Cassels' house at Pao-ning, where he carried on a most happy and successful work.

Reinforcements.

The Mission has been reinforced by Mr. Thomas Caldwell, who laboured in the Sierra Leone Mission from 1896 to 1904 and resigned in the latter year on medical grounds, but was re-accepted in 1905, and Mrs. Caldwell; and by five of the year's recruits, viz., the Rev. Harold Gathorne Crabtree, M.A., Christ's College, Cambridge, and Ridley Hall, Curate of Aston-juxta-Birmingham; the Rev. Harold James Howden, B.A., Clare College, Cambridge, Curate of St. Margaret's, Brighton; Mr. Richard Alexander Whiteside, a short course student of Islington College; Miss Susannah Elizabeth Bryers, of Everton, Liverpool, trained at Highbury and Bermondsey; and Miss Emily Florence Kathleen Doyle, of the Victorian C.M. Association. Miss R. L. Edwards has been transferred to the Western China Mission from British Columbia. The resignation of Mr. W. J. Fleming on medical grounds has been accepted by the Committee.

MIEN-CHEO.

Mien-cheo.

At MIEN-CHEO, where the Rev. A. A. Phillips, the Secretary of the Mission, was in charge, the opening of the new church, which was mentioned in last year's Report as approaching completion, was attended by an increase in the congregation and by a greater use of Chinese agency in the preaching. The year commenced with thirteen names on the register of the 'School for Western Learning,' conducted by Mr. A. E. Seward, the pupils being the sons of the gentry. One of them went up to the provincial examination at Chen-tu, and on his return with the degree of B.A., he posted up at the front door of the mission-house a large placard of crimson paper, announcing that he had graduated at the capital after studying at the school. This advertisement brought the school into notoriety, and within a fortnight eleven new boys were admitted. Among the pupils were two sons of a gentleman who came with them to study English. It is said that he truly believes in the Saviour, but lacks the courage to throw in his lot with the Christians, who are far lower in the social scale than himself. The lad mentioned in last year's Report (page 386) kept up a correspondence with Mr. Seward from the capital, where he taught English in a small school. Both the primary schools for girls in the city and also that for boys, which was opened during the year, were superintended by Mr. P. J. Turner, who also assisted Mr. Phillips in his secretarial duties. One of the girls was baptized. A pupil of the Boys' School, who had induced his widowed mother to attend church, abandoned idolatry and avowed his faith in Christ, but he died without being baptized. Mr. Seward carried on the men's dispensary, and by charging a small fee was enabled to defray current expenses and also pay off a deficit of 17,000 cash. The medical work among the women was in the hands of Mrs. Phillips. Twice a week the guest hall, which will accommodate more than 100 persons, was crowded with men assembled for lantern lectures on the life of Christ, and at the Chinese New Year it was frequented by large numbers of women who came to call on Mrs. Phillips and Miss E. D. Mertens. A number of Chinese ladies were visited in their own homes, a few of whom were desirous for regular instruction. Ten adults were received into the visible Church.

Baptisms.

One of those baptized at Mien-cheo was a doctor of great repute at Yang-kia-tien, where the congregation grew rapidly, thanks to the labours of two Chinese, Mr. Ho, an official of the town, who, however, had married two wives before his conversion and consequently is debarred from receiving baptism, and Mr. Liu Kueh-Fah, a farmer, and at one time a vegetarian. Mr. Seward, who paid three visits to the out-station, wrote of the latter in December :—

> Just six years ago he purchased a New Testament. He kept it on the top of a cupboard for five years for fear of ridicule. Then he took it down and read it and re-read it again and again, and taught it to his three daughters, being convinced of its truth. He joined himself to the little band of worshippers in Mr. Ho's inn. His mother then died, and he was burying her with the ritual of the Taouist religion, when Mr. Ho, hearing of it, took up a Bible, hymn-book, and Prayer-book, and running to Mr. Liu's house in the country pointed out to him his inconsistency, which he had not realized. He had already promised to give about £2 to the Taouist priests to perform the ceremony, but he dismissed them. Mr. Liu's relatives, hearing of this, assembled, but could not dissuade him from burying his mother after the Christian manner. Mr. Liu now prepared a feast and invited his relatives, and it was decided that the £2 should be given to a doctor to sit for several market-days in the market to examine poor patients and to write prescriptions free of charge. From this time onward the little church grew by leaps and bounds: there are now over eighty attending services regularly, and Mr. Liu acts as their leader and conductor of services by common consent.

Taouist priests dismissed.

The people at Yang-kia-tien purchased some ground and a quantity of timber with a view to erecting a church. A second out-station was opened at Feng-ku-tsin under somewhat peculiar circumstances. In the past the people have manifested a strong determination to keep foreigners out of their town, but in 1904 a placard was posted in Mien-cheo, purporting to emanate from Feng-ku-tsin, intimating that the people of that place intended to come on a certain day and destroy the mission-premises. Some of the leading men of Feng-ku-tsin feared that they would be held responsible for this, and a deputation accordingly waited on Mr. Phillips, begging him not to bring the matter before the authorities, and promising to render assistance should he wish to obtain premises in their city. With their help a shop was hired on the main street, with a couple of rooms behind it, and opening services were held there by Mr. Seward in April, 1905. For some time previously people had been visiting Mien-cheo from the new out-station to inquire about Christianity, and these were delighted to have services conducted in their own town. One of them was among the adults whose baptism has been recorded above, and three others were admitted into the catechumenate during the year. An invitation was also received to commence work at a place called Chiao-leo-tze, where some sixty persons expressed their desire to be enrolled as adherents, and hired some premises to serve as a mission-house. It appeared, however, that their chief motive was to escape the oppression of the Roman Catholics, and there were few if any signs of a real work of grace in their hearts.

WEI-CHENG.

Wei-cheng. Miss C. Carleton was joined at WEI-CHENG in January, 1905, by Miss A. J. Edwards, with whom she had been associated in work in the British Columbia Mission in former years. The congregations which assembled on Sundays were as large as the little chapel could accommodate, for there are seats for eighty-eight, and the average attendance during the year only fell short of that number by two. Some women came from a distance of six miles to be present at the services, this involving their absence from their homes from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. The boys' day-school, too, in the work of which U In-Hao, the student helper, took part, flourished, and the dispensary was evidently appreciated. Eighteen adults were admitted to the catechumenate, and four, a man and three women, were baptized, but there were many things which saddened the hearts of the missionaries, notably the cooling of the zeal of a once earnest catechumen who ceased to attend the classes.

CHONG-PA.

Chong-pa. The service in September, 1905, at the re-opening after its enlargement of the church at CHONG-PA, where the Rev. and Mrs. D. A. Callum and Mr. and Mrs. W. L. L. Knipe were stationed, was a time of great rejoicing, for five adults were then baptized. The converts were of varied occupations: one had been a vendor of opium pills; another was an inn-keeper; a third a servant in a Chinese gentleman's family; and the others were servants of Mr. Knipe. Several of the inquirers were interesting men. Among them were a fairly well-to-do man who owns a draper's shop, and the amanuensis, at one time a spiritualist, engaged in writing out the revised translation of the Prayer-book, on which Mr. Knipe was engaged. About 700 patients received treatment at the dispensary, some of them paying several visits. In the district also there were many encouragements. Several inquirers, including a schoolmaster with forty pupils who offered his schoolroom as a place for worship, came forward at Siang-shui, about thirteen miles from Chong-pa, while from Peh-miao-tsi, whence some of the people walked the fifteen miles to the city to attend the services, came thirteen of those who were received as catechumens during the year. The latter is a new out-station, and another was opened in the city of Chang-ming, five miles to the south of Chong-pa, the centre of government of a district containing several market towns, where twenty-six men were enrolled as hearers. The missionaries write of two of them:—

One man, who is fairly well off, wishes to join the Church in order to escape from the power of evil associates. When he was young and wild he had joined a secret sect called the Ko Lao Hwei, and until now had not been able to free himself from the connexion. He said, 'I dare not leave them, for should I do so, they will trump up charges against me and swear my life away. But if I come and believe the doctrine, trust Jesus, repent of my sins and join the Church, I can tell them that, having repented and joined the Church, I am unable to associate with them any more.' Now he is one of the most regular worshippers, and shows signs of a changed life.

Another man, Li Kueh-Yen, was about to divide his land between his wife and children and become a Buddhist priest, in order to escape the sorrows of life, which were weighing heavily on him. But he heard of a more excellent way. Some one said, 'If you want peace, believe in Jesus and join the Church.' And so he came, and has been received as one of the 'hearers.' He has bought a Bible, hymn-book and Prayer-book, and studies them. He is gradually breaking off his opium by means of prayer and medicine.

'If you want peace, believe in Jesus.'

SHIH-TS'UEN.

The Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Hickman and Mr. E. R. Williams resided at SHIH-TS'UEN, where ten men and four women were baptized in December, 1905. The missionaries visited T'iao-hong, where are some zealous converts, and also Siao-pi-ti. Near the latter place the son and four grandchildren of one of the Christians were admitted into the visible Church.

Shih-ts'uen.

NGAN-HSIEN.

The missionaries of the Society at NGAN-HSIEN were the Rev. O. M. Jackson, who was absent from the city a good deal visiting other stations of the Mission, and Mrs. Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Hamilton (until April, 1905, when they returned to their former work at Teh-yang), and Miss A. J. Pownall, a trained nurse, of the New South Wales Association. The boys' school had between twenty and thirty pupils, and the girls' school, in the management of which Miss J. H. Schneider, an independent worker, took some part, fifteen, about half of whom were boarders. The dispensary, at which a small charge was made for treatment, was the means of bringing many within reach of the Gospel who would not otherwise have come near the missionaries. Ten adults were baptized. Among them were two women in whose homes idols still remained at the beginning of 1905; it is true that their husbands were Heathen, yet notwithstanding this the women had sufficient influence to have the idols destroyed had they resolved to do so. Mrs. Jackson writes:—

Happy effect of a fire.

One day the house of one of these was burnt to the ground, and she lost everything she possessed. We got her and her children in here for a few days, and cheered her up as best we could. By-and-by, after the first shock was over, she said with the first smile we had seen since the fire, 'Well, the idols have gone, anyhow, and we shall have no more.' She has gone steadily on since. In the case of the other woman there was a robbery. Thieves broke in and cleared the contents of one room. Helped by one of the Christians, she took down the idols, feeling this calamity was a special call to her. Her family made no serious objection.

The Christians manifested much zeal in persuading others to attend the services, and agreed together to pray that 100 persons might be added to the number of adherents during the year. Partly in consequence of their efforts the congregations increased so greatly that the church had to be enlarged.

Regular visits were paid by Miss Schneider to Tsao-hai-gai, where she dispensed medicines and taught the women. The number of adherents grew, and one of them, who died, left instructions that no idolatrous ceremonies were to be performed at her funeral. Her wish was respected by her friends. Several men were admitted to the catechumenate at Ho-pa-chang, one of the county towns. Mr. Jackson accompanied the colporteur on some of his journeys in the districts, and twice delivered his message from the stage of a temple theatre.

MIEN-CHUH.

Mien-chuh.

At MIEN-CHUH, where the Rev. Dr. W. Squibbs was in charge, a day-school for girls was opened, which was attended chiefly by the children of Christians or catechumens, though there were a few other pupils as well. Mrs. Squibbs, who was responsible for the management of the school, also conducted classes for the converts, while Miss A. Wied took those for the members of the catechumenate. About 4,000 visits of out-patients were registered at the dispensary. In order to help some of the Christians who showed a desire for the better observance of Sunday, some tablets were made, with gilded characters on black lacquer. Those for cash shops or banks had the inscription, 'To-morrow is Sunday: no business will be done,' on one side, and 'To-day is Sunday: no business will be done,' on the other, while those for ordinary houses of business bore the latter inscription only. These were presented to those Christians and catechumens who undertook to stop all business on Sundays and announce the fact to the public. While in this matter some of the converts displayed a praiseworthy spirit, Miss E. Casswell says there was not among the community in general any deep conviction of sin, their witness was feeble, and their love to God and to their fellow men cold. Mrs. E. A. J. Thomas and Miss Casswell held classes for women not yet admitted as catechumens. Six men and five women were baptized during the year, and twenty-three adults were admitted to the catechumenate. Dr. Squibbs gives the following account of some of the new converts:—

Baptism of a preacher of the Sacred Edict.

One young man named Hu was a professional preacher of the Sacred Edict, which is the depository of moral instruction for the masses, compiled by one of the early Emperors of the present dynasty, and contains much that is good. But when converted and enlightened he felt that the moral instruction and exhortation were so hollow and baseless, not to say false and wrong, having no living power, that he relinquised his calling and became a bank clerk. His mother, who was baptized with him, is a doctor with a small practice among women and children, and we have reason to believe that, in her way, she does the work of a medical missionary.

Another of those baptized was a young man named Lo. His attention was first arrested by a leaflet that he bought as we were preaching on the street. He then came to the dispensary to be treated for a simple ailment, and the spiritual impression already forming was deepened as he saw that our practice corresponded to our preaching. The good work went on, and he became a diligent reader of the Scripture. He gave up the little private school he was already teaching and became our fellow-worker in our boys' school. His mother and his wife were baptized with him. We are thankful for his steadfast consistency and quiet earnestness.

An out-station was opened at Shih-fang, a county town seventeen miles from Mien-chuh, where opium selling and smoking are very rife, even among those professing interest in the Gospel. These people raised some money, rented premises to serve as a place for worship, and even employed an evangelist on their own account, but many of them appeared to have material ends in view in seeking to enter the Church, and the Chinese Christian who was placed in the town seemed to be regarded as an 'irksome restriction.' One man, however, destroyed his Tai-shan stone—a stone about the size of a milestone, surmounted by an image to which incense is burnt and adoration paid daily by the owner. He invited Dr. Squibbs to his house, and after prayer had been offered, the man overturned the stone and placed it over a gutter with its face downwards so that its back might serve as a stepping-stone. Mr. E. A. J. Thomas paid several visits to Shih-fang and to some other smaller places in the district. Much of his time, however, was taken up with studying the language, a task which engrossed the Rev. H. H. Taylor also. The latter, speaking of the trials of the newly-arrived missionary and of his compensations, uses words which may be commended to those proceeding to the mission-field for the first time. He writes:—

An idol overturned and made a stepping-stone.

Compensations of a newly-arrived missionary.

Worst of all for a young missionary it is to see work going on and to be unable to assist, and to have to seek help on a hundred and one occasions because he has not the words with which to express his thoughts. To have the thoughts of a man, and not even the language of a child is hard indeed. Yet it is undoubtedly a healthy discipline for us if we take it as part of the training God would have us pass through in order that we may be better fitted for the work to which we trust God has called us. The withdrawal of ordinary means of grace throws us more unreservedly on Him Who is the Author and Giver of grace. The loss of the Christian fellowship and communion, which were so sweet and helpful in days gone by, cannot but be felt, but it helps us to realize in greater fulness what we are so slow to learn, that there is one rule and one rule only for Christian living, that which our Saviour Christ Himself has taught us, 'Abide in me and I in you.' There is another thought also which has been much in my mind the last few days while struggling with the language and alternating between hope and despair, and that is, that an experience like this, if met in faith, helps us, though at an infinite distance, to realize something more of the 'great love wherewith He loved us,' Who, though the Fountain and Source of heavenly light and wisdom, condescended to become a babe, and to increase not only in stature, but in 'wisdom,' and in favour with God and man.

Mr. J. G. Beach left Mien-chuh at the end of 1904 to escort Mr. Fleming to the coast, when the latter left for England on medical certificate. Mr. Beach was afterwards asked to go to Tsen-tao-ch'ang to superintend the building of a sanatorium for the Mission at that place.

TSEN-TAO-CH'ANG.

Tsen-tao-ch'ang.

At the beginning of 1905, Miss L. S. Digby and Miss M. C. Knight were together at TSEN-TAO-CH'ANG, but in March the latter left on furlough and Miss F. A. B. Kempson was assigned to the station to be Miss Digby's companion while learning the language. Mr. J. G. Beach, as already stated, was called upon to supervise the building operations, but he found time to take some classes and engage in direct evangelistic work. Twelve adults were baptized, and fourteen were received as catechumens, but some of the latter were not as earnest in the matter of Sunday observance as they should be, and one, unhappily, resumed his former habit of taking opium as a remedy for some physical disorder. Mr. Wang, the former Taouist, whose baptism was recorded in last year's Report (page 392), left for one of the out-stations of Mien-cheo, where he devoted all his time to preaching and teaching. The girls' school had nearly as many boys as girls among the pupils! Two of the children were the means of leading their elder brothers to become hearers, and at the prayer-meetings, which at their own request were held on alternate Sundays for children only, many of them joined in praying for their heathen parents and relatives. Mr. Keo, the evangelist, whose wife was the teacher at the school, was diligent in preaching and selling Christian books.

TEH-YANG.

Teh-yang.

On the departure of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Gill from TEH-YANG on medical certificate in the spring of 1905, their place was taken by Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Hamilton, who returned once more to their old station. A school for boys and another for girls were set on foot, but the number of pupils was but small and the Chinese teachers did not give satisfaction. Classes were held for catechumens, many of whom were business men, and inquirers, and a sewing-class for women, which so many desired to attend that the number of members had to be limited to forty. Mrs. Hamilton with the Bible-woman visited regularly in the city. They found the homes of the people much more open to them than before, and had no difficulty in gaining a hearing for their message. Indeed there were signs on every hand that the contempt once entertained in the city for the missionaries as well as the fear with which they used to be regarded in the country had passed away.

One of the Teh-yang catechumens went over regularly to conduct the Sunday services at Lioh-p'ing, where the inquirers had built a little chapel. Whenever Mr. Hamilton visited the place the people crowded to listen to the preaching, and it was difficult to induce them to disperse.

CHONG-KIANG.

Mr. T. Simmonds resided at CHONG-KIANG.

SIN-TU.

The SIN-TU district, thirty miles long and from fifteen to twenty wide, contains a population estimated at 350,000. Among these the Rev. and Mrs. W. Andrews and Mr. W. Munn (who had to give most of his time to language-study) were the only missionaries, while the Chinese helpers consisted of a catechist on probation and an uneducated woman who, however, was of real service. The mandarins of the three cities in the district were outwardly friendly enough to the missionaries but showed themselves thoroughly hostile to Christian work, and this fact may have accounted for the lack of inquirers which was observable. Services were held on Sundays at Kin-t'ang, and the people came together readily for the preaching. Sin-tu.

Mr. Munn, however, says:—

> It is easy to get crowds: they come out of curiosity. Our great need is the power to hold them. I am having my eyes opened considerably as to missionary work. When one is at home, one is apt to think of the Heathen as starving—crying out for the Bread of Life with an importunity most touching and intense. To the heart of a Christian, of course, his need does this; but it is far from literally true. The Chinaman in the street will listen just as readily to a man uttering platitudes from their Sacred Edict as he will to a missionary preaching the Gospel—aye, more readily if the former will make him laugh.

A new out-station was opened at Han-cheo, a city twice the size of Sin-tu. A few years ago repeated invitations were given to commence work there, but when the time came much opposition was shown. One of the two local catechumens was arrested on a 'mere shadow of suspicion' a few days before the formal opening of the mission-room, and called upon Mr. Andrews with chains round his neck and with two warders in attendance. He was released after being detained for three months, chained up to a stone pillar among the worst of criminals. This action on the part of the authorities frightened away many who had previously displayed some interest in Christianity, but it had the good effect of keeping men from coming to the missionaries with a view to deriving some personal advantage or obtaining help in litigation. Seven adults received baptism, and the door of evangelization was widely opened, but Mr. Andrews says that he received hints that restrictions were shortly to be imposed upon Chinese helpers.

JAPAN MISSION.

For 230 years, in consequence of the political intrigues of the Jesuit missionaries in the sixteenth century, Japan was absolutely closed to the outer world. In 1853 the long-sealed Empire began to open to European influences, and since that time the country has made most extraordinary progress in the adoption of Western civilization. Still more recent is the toleration now fully accorded to Christian effort. In 1889 a new constitution, formed somewhat on the lines of that of our own land, was promulgated. At the first General Election under this constitution, held in 1890, fourteen Christians were elected to seats in the House of Representatives; and a Christian was subsequently appointed Speaker. In 1899 new treaties came into operation by which the country was thrown completely open to foreigners, though they are not yet permitted to hold landed property.

American missionaries arrived in 1859, but for several years they could do scarcely any direct evangelistic work. In 1869, just after the wonderful revolution which restored power to the Mikado, the first C.M.S. missionary landed at Nagasaki. He also could only use quiet and indirect methods of making known the Gospel, and the few converts vouchsafed to his labours were baptized secretly. Since 1874 the Mission has been gradually extended and strengthened. In HONDO, the Main Island, Osaka and Tokyo were occupied in 1874; Gifu, 1890; Fukuyama and Matsuye, 1891; Hamada, 1893; Hiroshima and Toyohashi, 1896; and Nagoya, previously worked by the Wycliffe College, Toronto, Mission, became a C.M.S. station in 1896. In SHIKOKU, Tokushima was occupied in 1888. In KIU-SHIU, Nagasaki was occupied in 1869; Kumamoto and Fukuoka, 1888; Oita, 1894; Kagoshima, 1895; Kokura, 1898. In HOKKAIDO, Hakodate was occupied in 1874; Kushiro, 1889; Sapporo, 1892; and Otaru, 1897.

Arrangements were made by Archbishop Tait for the establishment of an English Bishopric in Japan, and his successor, Archbishop Benson, nominated the Rev. A. W. Poole, C.M.S. missionary in South India, to be the first Bishop. He was consecrated October 18th, 1883; but in the mysterious providence of God he was permitted to labour for a few months only; he died in July, 1885. He was succeeded by Bishop Edward Bickersteth, of the Cambridge Delhi Mission, son of the then Bishop of Exeter. In 1893 the Committee undertook, on the invitation of Bishop Bickersteth, to support two new Bishops for the southern and northern islands respectively. Accordingly, on March 4th, 1894, and on June 29th, 1896, the Rev. H. Evington and the Rev. P. K. Fyson, C.M.S. missionaries of twenty and twenty-two years' experience in this Mission, were consecrated—the former Bishop in Kiu-Shiu, and the latter Bishop in Hokkaido. Soon afterwards Bishop Bickersteth agreed with Bishop McKim, of the American Episcopal Church, upon a division of the Main Island into the Dioceses of North and South Tokyo, Kyoto, and Osaka. Bishop Awdry was appointed to the Diocese of Osaka in 1896, and was transferred to South Tokyo on the death of Bishop Bickersteth in 1897, being succeeded at Osaka by Bishop Foss, of the S.P.G., which Society undertook to provide their stipends. Bishop Partridge, of the Protestant Episcopal Church of America, was consecrated to the Diocese of Kyoto in 1900.

Effect of the war on missionary work.

DURING the last two years one of the questions most frequently asked with respect to missionary work in Japan has concerned the effect upon it of the war. Reference to the subject occurs in the account given below of many of the stations at which the Society is represented, but here it may be noted that a great impression has evidently been made by the work of the Young Men's Christian Association at the front, towards the expenses of which the Emperor and Empress graciously contributed £1,000. Some of the representatives of the Association were allowed free privileges to visit anywhere among the soldiers, and were repeatedly urged to give the men their message of comfort. The following account of the experiences of one of them was written in the spring of 1905 :—

Mr. Kawasumi was received by General Kuroki, who heartily commended the work of the Association secretaries. Other high officers went out of their way to facilitate his work and urged that more secretaries be sent to the north from Yinkow as a base, and promised to do all that they could to help their 'comforting' work. By special request Mr. Kawasumi addressed an assembly of officers, including the division commander, upon a religious topic and was urged to come again. At this meeting there were tears in several eyes. Mr. Kawasumi writes:—

'The men at the front wish addresses more than supplies. When I prayed at the end (of a certain address) they were very solemn (respectful) and expressed deep gratitude. I was permitted to preach and console at the front.'

Friendly attitude of Japanese authorities.

The friendly attitude of the authorities towards Christianity was evidenced in many ways—by the facilities afforded to the missionaries for work among the soldiers, and also by the fact that the Christian women among the nurses on the roll of the Red Cross Society generally received quick promotion. On one occasion Miss A. C. Bosanquet asked a nurse whether there were any Christians in her band, and she said, 'No, I think not now. The Christians are all made into head nurses, and taken away!'

Decay of Buddhism.

The increased favour in which Christianity is held even by those who have not embraced it, is accompanied, if the testimonies of Buddhists themselves are to be accepted, by the gradual dying out of that religion, notwithstanding the efforts recorded in last year's Report (page 398) to revivify it. One of their journals contained the following passage on May 3rd, 1905 :—

Numerically speaking, Buddhism far outranks Christianity; but, by reason of actual work accomplished, the balance of power is in favour of the Christians. General hatred against Christianity is passing away, and the belief that it is better adapted to the new condition of things is daily gaining ground. Buddhist customs and rites are becoming more and more alien to the interests of society, and the priests are often the subject of public ridicule. The war correspondents declare the unfitness and inability of the Buddhist priests, and the more thoughtful of these priests who are at the front lament bitterly their co-workers' ignorance, senselessness, and idleness, which have caused the soldiers to ridicule them and also to become tired of them. The enormous amount of yen 200,000 has been expended by the Honganji (the largest Buddhist sect in Japan) for the work among the soldiers, but it is far inferior to the work of the Christian association, whose expenditure amounts only to a few thousand yen. The work of the Christians has attained such success that it has reached the Emperor's ear; while that of the Buddhists is always attended by debts and disturbances.

In another Buddhist journal occurred these words :—

Buddhism the religion of families only.

Religion in Japan, as far as households are concerned, has become quite formal. The head of each house decides what religious ceremonies shall be performed on certain occasions. This does not imply that he himself believes in a creed or that any members of his family take the slightest interest in its teaching. It is one of the many family traditions that the heads of households still scrupulously follow. So that in most cases Buddhism, though the religion of families, is not the religion of the individuals composing a family. The connexion of the priesthood with the laity is almost exclusively that of the performers of ceremonies to those who, in obedience to custom, pay for their performance. Beyond its connexion with customary ceremonies, what hold has Buddhism on the nation? None whatever. Its so-called adherents do not take the slightest interest in its teaching.

'There never was a time when we needed religion more.'

And to much the same effect Mr. Masatoro, an eminent Buddhist, and head of the Bureau of General School Affairs, expressed himself, saying 'No one who knows what Buddhism is to-day can do other than grieve over its forlorn state. Its revival seems next to impossible, and yet there never was a time when we needed religion more than to-day.'

Bushido doomed.

Some have thought that Bushido, concerning which so much has been written of late, and an examination of which appeared in the C.M. Intelligencer for October, 1905 (page 721), can serve as a national religion. But the Rev. G. H. Pole, the writer of the article referred to, asserts that its power as a system of morality has been and is very largely exaggerated, and that it is ridiculous to attribute the remarkable successes and extraordinary achievements of Japan during the past thirty years and in the late lamentable war solely to the effect of Bushido. Moreover, as Mr. Pole proceeds to point out, Bushido is doomed. He says:—

> The late Hon. Kenkichi Kataoka, for so many years the Speaker in the Japanese House of Representatives, and himself a living embodiment of the best that is in Bushido, was wont repeatedly to say that it is no longer able to meet the moral needs of his countrymen, and that nothing but Christianity can.
> Dr. Nitobe himself (a Japanese writer on the subject) tells us that Bushido's 'days seem to be already numbered.' 'Principalities and powers are arrayed against the precepts of knighthood.' 'The irresistible tide of triumphant democracy is alone powerful enough to engulf the remnant of Bushido.' 'Morality ushered into the world with the sound of bugles and drums is destined to fade away as "the captains and the kings depart."' 'When the conditions of society are so changed that they have become not only adverse but hostile to Bushido, it is time for it to prepare for an honourable burial.' 'Now its days are closing—sad to say, before its full fruition—and we turn in every direction for other sources of sweetness and light, of strength and comfort, but among them there is as yet nothing found to take its place. The only other ethical system which is powerful enough to cope with utilitarianism and materialism is Christianity; but as yet it has not divested itself of foreign accoutrements.'

In this connexion Miss A. C. Bosanquet writes:—

> It remains to be seen whether the war will bring out the unquenchable thirst of the awakened human soul for the living God, or whether we shall have a hard time afterwards from those who maintain that the cult of the Emperor, of ancestors, and of Bushido are all-sufficient and have won the day. Certainly all of us who have been in contact with the soldiers lately can testify that in this war-time very many do feel, individually, the need of something more. The results of the hospital and railway-station work prove very much in this direction most touchingly.

Certainly all of us who have been in contact with the soldiers lately can testify that in this war-time very many do feel, individually, the need of something more. The results of the hospital and railway-station work prove very much in this direction most touchingly.

Miss Tapson, too, relates the following incident :—

Bushido 'not enough.'

I said the other day to a lieutenant on a man-of-war in the harbour now [at Hakodate], who has been coming to us lately, 'There are some people who think that a country like yours can do without Christianity, that Bushido almost takes its place: what do you think?' and he said emphatically, 'Taranai,' which means, 'Not enough.'

A 'no-Church funeral.'

Perhaps, however, nothing better illustrates the need of Japan than an incident recorded by a missionary, who one day met a funeral in which the attendance of a priest of any sort, as well as the usual display of religious paper and flower ornaments, was conspicuously absent. It was the funeral of the wife of a teacher at one of the schools, and when inquiry was made as to what these peculiar rites might be, one of the Japanese workers replied, 'That is a no-Church funeral.'

Enough has already been said to demonstrate the urgency of the call to the Church of Christ to spare no effort in making the Gospel of light and love known to the millions of Japan. But it remains to point out that the call is emphasized by the influence of Japan on China, which has been referred to in the chapter on the South China Mission (see supra, page 281), The Chinese Recorder of July, 1905, stated that fifteen Japanese professors then held office under the Chinese Government, and that from 150 to 200 Japanese subjects were engaged in various educational institutions in China. In addition, in the previous February, there were 2,400 Chinese students in Japan, representing every one of the eighteen provinces except Kan-suh, many of them supported financially by their Government or by the viceroys of various provinces. One of the lessons to be deduced is, of course, as Archdeacon Moule points out, that higher education in China should be sedulously promoted, but another is that increased efforts should be put forth to win the Japanese. For the latter purpose men of special qualifications are required. The Rev. F. W. Rowlands wrote in March, 1905, when on furlough :—

Strong leaders wanted in Japan.

A few days before we left Japan, I asked one of the best of our Japanese clergy to tell me what he felt to be the great need of the Church just now. With apologies for being so candid, he said, 'While we greatly admire the evangelistic spirit of the missionaries, we feel that they are not able to help us to solve the intellectual problems which are confronting us. We need some men of first-class intellectual as well as spiritual power, to be able to train some strong leaders for our Church.'

United Conference of missionaries.

In May, 1905, a United Conference of missionaries of all Protestant Societies working in Japan was held at Arima. A spirit of unity and love pervaded the gathering, and prayer for guidance was abundantly answered. Although some difficult questions came up for discussion, there was a complete absence of friction and dissension.

Synod of the Nippon Sei-kō-Kwai.

A short time before the Conference the Triennial General Synod of the Nippon Sei-kō-Kwai took place at Tokyo. The six Bishops were present at the Synod, and also Bishop Turner of Korea. A set of new Canons on Discipline were accepted for the first time. Great desire was expressed for a Japanese bishop, but how an independent income was to be secured seemed an insoluble problem. A friend in England has since given 10,000 yen towards this object.

Death of Mrs. A. Lea,

Two names have been removed by death from the list of the Society's missionaries in Japan. Mrs. Lea, wife of the Rev. A. Lea, of the Canadian C.M.S., died at Sandhurst, Berks, on July 19th, 1905. She was married in 1895.

and Miss B. J. Allen.

On October 16th Miss B. J. Allen died at Lichfield. She was a cousin of Miss A. E. Allen, of the Uganda Mission, and went out to Japan in 1895. Nagasaki was her first station, and there she worked until she came home on furlough in 1899. On her return to Japan in the following year she was assigned to Kokura. She reached England on medical certificate exactly a month before her death. Miss E. M. Keen, who was closely associated with her during her last years of work in Japan, writes :—

> Miss Allen's great physical and intellectual powers, her passionate love for winning souls, her untiring energy and warm, sympathetic heart—these were some of the traits which made her such an exceptional friend and counsellor. Up to the very last she was at work ; for only a few days before leaving Japan, when too weak to walk so far, she insisted on going in a kuruma to the military hospital, and though feeling sick and faint the whole time, spent two or three hours talking to the wounded men, who were eager to be taught. 'I couldn't refuse them,' was her plea for coming home utterly exhausted.

'I couldn't refuse them.'

Reinforcements.

The Mission has been reinforced by Miss G. S. Stevenson, who laboured in Japan from 1898–1900 and now has rejoined, and also by the following:—the Rev. Joseph Ferris Cherry, of Islington College; the Rev. John Charles Mann, M.A., Glasgow University, and Ridley Hall, Cambridge, Curate of St. Luke's, Maidstone; Mr. Victor Ernest Anderson, of the Victorian Association; Miss Audrey Margaret Henty, of Belgravia, trained at The Olives and Bermondsey; Miss Alice Christina Jessie Horne, of Stanford Dingley, Berks; and Miss Fanny Louise Thompson, of Boston, trained at The Willows and Bermondsey. The Rev. Robert Henry McGinnis, B.A., Toronto University, who went to Japan under the Missionary Society of the Church of Canada in 1900, has been accepted as a C.M.S. missionary in local connexion. Miss A. L. Archer, who has worked in the Mission in local connexion since 1899, has been taken into home connexion by the Canadian C.M.S. The names of the Rev. D. T. Terata, who was ordained on the Society's title in 1887, but in 1897 resigned to take up work under the Japanese C.M.S. in Formosa, and has now rejoined the Society; and of the Rev.

Nuki Chikara, who was admitted to Deacons' Orders in December, 1905, have been added to the list of Japanese clergy connected with the Society. On the other hand, the Mission has suffered a great loss by the appointment of Archdeacon H. McC. E. Price as Bishop in Fuh-Kien. In addition, the Committee have accepted the resignation of the Rev. V. H. Patrick; and the Rev. M. Tomita has resigned in order to accept an invitation from the American Bishop of Hawaii to take up work among the Japanese in his diocese.

The Rev. H. J. Hamilton has been appointed to succeed Bishop Price as Secretary for the work on the Main Island; the Rev. A. B. Hutchinson is Acting-Secretary for that in the diocese of Kiu-Shiu, and the Rev. J. Batchelor for that in the diocese of Hokkaido.

I. MAIN ISLAND.

1. DIOCESE OF OSAKA.

OSAKA.

Osaka. Divinity School.

THREE of the students of the Divinity School, OSAKA, of which the Rev. G. Chapman was Principal, graduated in July, 1905, one being located to Gifu, another to Matsuye, and the third to Osaka. A fourth left to work for a year at Sapporo and then return to the school. One of the students who served in Manchuria was wounded in the head at the battle of Mukden, and was unable to do full work when he returned as the bullet which lodged behind the ear had not been extracted. The school year began in September with sixteen full students, one of them a post graduate student, two in their third year, three in their second, and ten in their first. Two of the last-named had to be asked to retire. The men twice spent a week at Gifu, carrying on evangelistic work, and good accounts of them were received from the Rev. G. C. Niven.

Boys' Boarding-school.

The Boys' Boarding-school profited by the appointment of a Japanese Christian, Mr. Asano, as head-master, and by his genuine and sympathetic interest in the spiritual work among the lads. Seven of the sixteen Japanese masters are now Christians. Some special evangelistic meetings which were held failed to attract many of the boys, but all the masters were present at them. A few lads were baptized, and the Principal, the Rev. C. H. B. Woodd, reports that some half-dozen catechumens were under instruction at the close of the year.

Girls' Boarding-school.

The Girls' Boarding-school was enlarged by the addition of a new wing, containing a chapel, museum, &c., which was opened in February, 1905. One of the first uses to which the chapel was put was for some special meetings conducted by Mr.

Kawabe, the Japanese evangelist, whose work among the girls was so richly blessed at the beginning of 1904 (see last year's Report, page 400). The effects of the gatherings held in that year, so far from evaporating, had continued and deepened, but it was felt that a renewal of the effort might strengthen those who then gave themselves to Christ, and bring out into the light some who then were uninfluenced. So it proved. Many were convinced of sin and led to faith in the Saviour, and some who were won at the earlier gatherings were enabled to show greater zeal and faithfulness. Miss Tristram, the Principal of the School, whose place when she left for England in August was taken by Miss J. C. Gillespy, writes of two of the girls as follows:—

Special meetings.

One of them, though she had obtained her parents' consent for her baptism, had feared to say much to them about her faith, but now wrote to her father, telling him that she was going to be altogether for God and of the great joy that had come into her life, and urging him and her mother to think on the subject and become Christians. Her father wrote her a short note, telling her to return home immediately. She wrote very humbly, asking him to let her stay a little longer, and if possible, to finish the course, but he simply replied, saying now she need never return, nor consider his house her home, and he would send her no more money. It was a great blow to her, but a friend has made herself responsible for her expenses, and she promises to be a very efficient worker, and for this we hope to train her, for she has real ability and strength, as well as sweetness of character, and seems as though true love for Christ were constraining her.

A convert cast off by her parents

One of those who for the first time saw Christ as their Saviour created such astonishment at home by her love and gentleness, instead of the temper she had been in the habit of showing, that her mother asked what had happened, and she told them Jesus had come into her heart, and made her want to love every one. She was taken away from school soon after that, and we seemed to have lost sight of her, but one day last autumn, she came to see Miss Gillespy, and though she had had no one to help her showed signs of having grown in faith for she had stuck to her Bible and to prayer, and she brought a request from her parents, who had before been opposed, that they might be taught Christianity.

Miss Tristram adds that two marked consequences of the meetings were the upgrowth of a missionary spirit among the girls, as evidenced in a desire to win their relatives and schoolfellows, and of a spirit of prayer. The spiritual work among the girls went on throughout the year, and great blessing rested upon the daily Bible-teaching as well as upon the special effort. Miss Gillespy wrote in the autumn:—

School-girls ask for baptism.

I gave out at prayers that I was restarting the baptism preparation class, and asked all those who wished to join to come to a little preliminary meeting last Monday. I expected about ten, but thirty-seven came! It was one of the happiest hours I have ever spent in my life. This is the direct outcome of the daily Bible teaching, not of any 'special mission.' We had a talk together on the forgiveness of sin and victory over sin, and then I asked all those who were sure their sins were forgiven to give thanks; many prayed—such touching little prayers—and then as it was getting late and the stream of praise still went on, I asked all who might wish to to pray together, and all over the room a little murmur of prayer arose.

A little later twenty-five of the children were admitted as catechumens at a special service in the school chapel. Miss Gillespy says :—

> It was a very impressive scene. All the girls assembled, except the infants. One Chinese girl who had lately come to the school was also admitted. She came and begged to be allowed to be admitted with the others. She heard at a mission-school in Hong Kong four years ago, and when she came to talk to me she said so sweetly, of course in Japanese, 'I do love Jesus and I know He has forgiven my sins.' It seemed rather wonderful that an Englishwoman should be able to speak to a Chinese girl in Japanese of a Saviour's love.
> Since the first meeting many others have come one by one to ask for baptism, so, in spite of some having dropped out, forty-one girls and a teacher are regularly attending the preparation class.
>
> I have had the joy of preparing seven of the elder girls for confirmation. Five of them were baptized after I came to the school, so I know them well, and it has been a great joy to have opportunities of special study with them.
>
> There is a spirit of longing and expectation among the girls. I told them a little about the wonderful work that is going on in schools in India, and I think some of the girls have been stirred up to pray as they never did before for their schoolfellows.

A spirit of expectation among school-girls.

It perhaps seems surprising that with such a work going on in the school, non-Christian parents should be willing for their girls to attend; but it is clear that they are willing, and that they are fully cognizant of the facts. In order to prevent any misunderstanding on this point Miss Tristram invited all the new girls, about 100 in number, together with their parents and guardians, to meet in April on the day before the school year commenced, and then she and the head Japanese teacher spoke, pointing out the objects and principles of the school, and saying that one of the greatest needs in Japan was women of pure, noble character, such as the parents wished their daughters to be made, that the only foundation for such character was faith in Christ, and that, therefore, all were requested to attend the daily Bible-lesson as a condition of being pupils in the school. Miss L. L. Shaw and Miss E. E. Thorp assisted in the work among the 300 girls, of whom nearly eighty were boarders.

Congregations.

Such time as Miss Tristram could spare from her duties at the school was devoted to ministering to the women connected with Holy Trinity Church, of which the Rev. N. Fukada was the pastor, one meeting a week being held for Christians and another for inquirers. The care of the congregation of the Church of the Saviour was in the hands of the Rev. P. G. Kawai, and the Rev. W. Soki was quasi-pastor of the Jonan Church, under the supervision of the Rev. G. W. Rawlings, until the end of the year, when he was transferred to Tokyo. The congregation increased considerably; the small debt on the church was cleared off, and the people undertook to pay for the support of a man in Priests' Orders instead of for a Deacon. Among those baptized at the church was a man named Uyeno Tsurukichi, who, when only a child, began a career of crime, and at the age of forty had spent nearly half his life in prison. While a convict in Hokkaido he heard a good deal about the Gospel, but at the time he paid little attention to it. During his last term of imprisonment, however, he heard that books on religion could be purchased by the prisoners, and he procured a copy first of the New Testament and then of the Old Testament, and began to teach himself to read. Mr. Rawlings writes :—

A convict teaches himself to read the Bible.

> At the end of a year's study he had slowly and with great difficulty read St. Matthew's Gospel. 'Then,' he says, 'by the power of the Holy Ghost I obtained wisdom and faith. I was not led by any one, I was not taught by any one, but in three years by my own study I had read through the whole of the Bible. Among the Scriptures which took hold of me was 1 Cor. xv. 36. "Thou fool, that which thou sowest is not quickened except it die." Then the old Tsurukichi died and a new Tsurukichi was born. When I was released from prison before, there was earthly rejoicing, but now my heart was filled with a heavenly joy, and I determined to be a true servant of God.'

On his release from prison he was careful to keep away from his old evil companions, and was directed to the Jonan Church. There he attended the services regularly, and after months of testing was baptized on Whit Sunday, 1905. There were fewer baptisms than usual at the Church of the Resurrection, where the Rev. Y. Mori was pastor, but the number of catechumens was exceptionally large. Three Sunday-schools were held, with an aggregate attendance of about 170 children, and Miss R. D. Howard, who laboured among the women, says that the converts were characterized by a 'unity and wholeheartedness' which she had not known before.

When the Rev. C. T. Warren left for England in May, 1905, Mr. Rawlings became responsible for the superintendence of the Evangelistic Work. Meetings were held with many signs of blessing five nights a week in the Warren Hall; Bible-classes and English classes for various sections of the Japanese community were conducted by several of the missionaries; and efforts were made to utilize the opportunities of influencing the soldiers. The work among the latter at the railway station (see last year's Report, page 404) earned the compliment of close imitation by the Buddhists, who even went so far as to procure a 'baby organ,' though they did not think it necessary to play the same tune as they sang! Men wounded in the war were visited in the hospitals, and many cases came to the ears of the missionaries in which the good seed thus widely scattered brought forth fruit. Miss Shaw, for instance, tells of a soldier who attended her men's Sunday-school class. He was wounded at 123 Metre Hill, was sent to the hospital at Osaka and heard the Gospel, went back again to the front, and there became a Christian. She speaks of him as an earnest Christian who takes a fearless stand for Christ. Miss E. M. S. Huhold spent much time in work among the 20,000 Russian prisoners in the barracks at Hamadera, a seaside place one hour by train from Osaka. Some magic lantern meetings, with a Bible lesson at the end, were held for them, the slides being shown out of doors by means of electric light and being seen by some 18,000 men, though of these comparatively few could understand what was said. Arrangements were made, too, for the administration of the Holy Communion to the Lutherans of their number, and some 30,000 Russian tracts, as well as a number of copies of the Psalms in Ruthanian, the mother-tongue of some of the men, but a language prohibited in Russia, were distributed. The attitude of the Japanese authorities was most cordial and friendly throughout, and one at least of the officers of that nationality with whom Miss Huhold was brought in contact put himself under instruction.

The monthly evangelistic paper, The Light of the World, had a circulation of about 6,000 ordinary copies, besides which 10,000 half-copies were issued for distribution among the soldiers.

HIROSHIMA.

Miss A. C. Bosanquet was the only European missionary at Hiroshima between July, 1905, when the Rev. J. Williams left for England on medical certificate, and December, when Miss M. P. V. Gregg returned from furlough, but the Rev. D. T. Terata resumed his work at the station in September after an absence of eight years as a missionary in Formosa. The distractions caused by the war hindered the growth of the congregation, but though the conduct of some of the numbers fell short of what could be desired, that of others gave grounds for thankfulness. Many of the women 'worked nobly,' and seven new Sunday-school teachers were found from among the seventeen adults who were baptized during the year. Among those received into the visible Church was a hospital-ship nurse, two of whose companions became catechumens. The work among the soldiers was continued with the help of Mrs. Richardson, an English volunteer nurse, who resided with Miss Bosanquet. The latter, in the course of an account of this work which appeared in the C.M. Intelligencer for August, 1905, gave the following description of the impression made upon some of those among whom she laboured :—

> The days just before embarkation have been turning points for some, we know. Ogura San came three times to my house, on his way from Kanazawa to the front. He was longing to hear all he could in those last, precious hours, and though he hardly knew anything when he first came, he went off quite joyfully, saying that now he feared nothing. When we heard how terribly the 9th Division suffered at Port Arthur we were anxious about him, but he came safely through the siege, and is now farther north. He writes very often, and almost always says, 'I do not forget Jesus Christ,' or something to that effect. 'I do not forget Jesus Christ.'

Mr. Woodward last year, and Mr. Williams this year, have baptized two soldiers on the point of departure—one from Tokyo, at the special request of himself and a missionary there; one, this February, from my Sunday afternoon Bible-class. The latter was in the artillery, studying to be a surgeon's assistant, and was not sure how soon he would be called to active service. As it turned out, he had to start the Friday after he was baptized; it was his last Sunday. I shall not soon forget his last evening, which he spent with me by special permission, unexpectedly granted, and his happiness and eager appreciation of the different Psalms and Bible passages which I suggested to him for future study alone. On board ship he wrote that he was always singing 'Onward, Christian soldiers, marching as to war!' He sends long letters, sometimes in English, sometimes in Japanese, and clever sketches. In one letter (Japanese) he says, 'When the camp is quiet at night, and I turn to the lamp and read the Bible, love and heaven, everlasting, unbounded, seem to rise before my eyes, and my heart becomes peaceful. How can it help being at rest when I read, "Come unto Me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest," or "Though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for Thou art with me"? And then, when I pray "Our Father," how strong become my spirit's hopes and aspirations, it is beyond the power of words to tell.' 'Heaven seems to rise before my eyes.'

One man whom I met in hospital, recovering from typhoid, a Christian in heart, though not yet baptized, spoke enthusiastically of what the New Testament had been to him when he read it by the bright autumn moonlight, a little apart from the other men, on the wide plains of Manchuria. 'The Bible has been my comfort through my illness here in hospital,' he said, 'but it was best of all there!'

Some time ago we had a magic-lantern meeting at a nurses' hostel, and a little later were begged to repeat it at another hostel; they particularly wanted 'The Life of Christ.' Afterwards a nurse who spoke to us first that night came to see me, and before long asked for baptism. She had learnt a little of holy things long before, but for two years had had no spiritual help, and did not know where to go for it. Every night she went to sleep miserable because of her many faults. Then, quite unexpectedly, she had the joy of that magic-lantern meeting, and felt, as she said, that 'God Himself had come to meet her.'

FUKUYAMA.

At Fukuyama, where the Rev. and Mrs. H. Woodward and Miss L. A. Galgey resided, six members of the congregation were called to their rest. One of them, who bore bright witness to the Saviour during his last illness, asked shortly before his death that his relatives might be taught about Christ. His pleading and the testimony of his life led his father to attend services regularly, and eventually, after a struggle, to close his shop on Sundays and become a catechumen. Three of the Christians had to be put under discipline for marrying heathen wives, and one for collecting subscriptions in aid of a heathen festival, but on the other hand some of the younger converts evinced remarkable earnestness and consistency of life, especially one of the Divinity School students, whose home is in Fukuyama, and who exercised a good influence over many students and also over his relatives, leading some of the latter to modify their attitude of Fukuyama.

Sunday-school children decide for Christ.

hostility to Christianity. The meetings for Christian women, the cooking-class, and various classes for young people, as well as four different Sunday-schools, were continued as in the previous year, and Miss Galgey says that many of the members of the senior classes of the last named have decided to be Christians. In one way and another the missionaries were in touch with a number of people belonging to the upper classes, but the latter were deterred from joining the Church by the low social standing of the Christians, and, alas, still more by their inconsistent lives.

The unfaithfulness of some of the converts, notably of a man once the mainstay of the evangelistic work there, who divorced five wives in rather quick succession, and proceeded to take a sixth, militated against advance at Fuchu also, but there were grounds for hope in the good number of children who attended the meetings held for their benefit. There is a small community of Christians living a little outside Tomotsu, but the people of the town itself paid no heed to the Gospel.

HAMADA.

Hamada.

A Japanese clergyman, the Rev. T. Makioka, was in general charge at HAMADA. The new church, which was opened in 1904, proved a great boon, and the behaviour of the congregation is said to have been more reverent than before. Additional accommodation was required for the Sunday-school, the building used for that purpose being so crowded that, although the boys were assembled in another place, Miss F. M. Fugill was obliged to cease from asking any more children to attend. Five married women, who attended the women's class, were baptized, including the wife of a judge, of a clerk in the law courts, and of a custom house official. The last-named woman went back for a time after deciding to embrace Christianity, because she was unwilling to give up the world and its pleasures, but happily returned. Fruit was gathered in, too, from the girls' class, one member of which was received into the visible Church. Among the other classes was a cooking-class, conducted by Miss J. Mackie, composed of ladies belonging to the best houses in the town and of all the women teachers of the Girls' High School. The members invited the missionaries to a farewell feast at the beginning of the year, as the latter were about to leave for England, but declared that they would keep the class together against their return. Unhappily it did not appear who was to conduct the Bible-class which is held in connexion with it. Mr. Makioka and Miss Fugill ministered to the wounded soldiers in the hospital as they found opportunity.

At the beginning of 1905 Miss Mackie spent seven weeks at Masuda, where a police-constable and another adult were baptized. Two persons were received into the visible Church at Oda, where an earnest High School teacher has her home, and one or two others were under instruction.

MATSUYE.

Matsuye.

The work at MATSUYE and in the surrounding district was under the superintendence of the Rev. W. R. Gray until June, 1905, when he took up his residence at Yonago, leaving the Rev. O. H. Knight in practical charge of the work in the province of Idzumo. The latter speaks highly of the faithfulness of Nagano San, the lay catechist, a member of an old Daimiô family, who bore out the promise he gave twelve years before when he was expelled from the Middle School because he refused, as a Christian, to worship the Emperor's portrait. Nagano San at the beginning of 1906 left on three years' leave of absence to take up work among Japanese sailors in London. Owing to the shifting character of the population, and the fact that several of the members were called out to the war, the congregation did not increase much, though several persons were added to it by baptism, including three young men, two of them won by Sato San, the itinerating tinsmith mentioned in the Report for 1903–4 (page 403), and the other by the young man there described as once 'deep in sin,' who was led to Christ by the tinsmith. These young fellows, like Sato San, were diligent in utilizing the opportunities for evangelistic work with which they met while prosecuting the business of tinsmiths, into which he received them. Mr. Knight was unable to continue Mr. Gray's custom of teaching English in the Middle School, but he held a Bible-class for some of the students. Miss King-Wilkinson, an independent missionary, carried on work among the boys of the Normal School, two of whom were baptized during the year, and two lads belonging to the Commercial School, in which until recently the missionaries have been unable to gain an entrance, were under instruction for baptism. The manner in which one of these latter lads was led to become an inquirer is of interest. Mr. Knight writes :—

Itinerating tinsmiths preach the Gospel.

'It was like this,' he said. 'When I was quite young, I was sent to a priest to study the Chinese classics, and took the opportunity of digging into Chinese religions, i.e., Confucianism and Buddhism. But the more I studied them, the more I felt they were purely man-made, whereas I suspected that in order to be real, a religion must come from heaven. Then I went to the Commercial School, and there I found that nobody believed anything at all, so I too became a no-religion man. But all this time I was dissatisfied, and one day I was wondering to myself, why is it that Westerners as a rule have the reputation of being more trustworthy than Japanese? Surely this ought not to be. And then the thought struck me, I wonder if it is their religion. I will go and find out anyhow what this Christianity is. So I went to the preaching-room, and was so much impressed by what I heard there that I stayed behind to hear more: the rest you know.'

A 'no-religion man.'

For the benefit of the students of these schools and of other youths a Young Men's Christian Association was inaugurated, which soon had thirty members; while special meetings for the general body of students were held on such occasions as the Emperor's birthday. General evangelistic work went on regularly at the preaching-room, where two catechists are placed. One of them was formerly destined for the Shinto priesthood, and the other, at one time an 'ignorant, drunken, lazy rascal, who would fight a person as soon as look at him,' is now meek and gentle, and has a special gift for reaching people of the lowest classes. Miss Head, who, like Miss King-Wilkinson, is an independent worker, gave herself largely to the schoolgirls, some of whom were led to faith in the Saviour but could not induce their parents to consent to their baptism. A striking conversion which occurred during the year was the indirect fruit of Miss Head's efforts among the girls. Mr. Knight relates the circumstances as follows:—

A striking conversion.

One day two young women were attracted to the preaching-room. For several nights they stood at the door, too frightened to come in. After much persuasion Miss Head and her helper got them inside, and for many weeks they attended. Then Miss Head managed to get them to her house, and for months they came regularly to her meetings, until it might be said that they were really trusting Christ. If they were hindered from going out they met together in their own house to read and pray. They also gathered the other children, and taught them hymns. About a month ago a relative of theirs who had been in prison was discharged. This man had been convicted of some frauds on the post-office and sentenced to nine years' hard labour. By good conduct he had obtained a reduction of his term, and after serving eight years was out on ticket of leave. Without God and without hope in the world, friendless, discouraged and ashamed, he nevertheless thought he would just call at his relative's house, and leave a note to say that he was once more a free man, before going off to his own village sixty miles away. When he got to the house he felt a strong inclination to go in, but shame restrained him, and he thought he would simply leave the note and go away without making himself known. Three times he hesitated, and then finally went in. It happened to be a night when the two girls were unable to go to the meeting, and they were singing hymns with the children. When he heard the sound, he inquired what it was, and on being told that it was a Christian hymn, he went into the room where they were, and asked about Christianity. So they got out their Bibles and read to him the story of the Prodigal Son, explaining it as best they could and urging him to believe and be saved. He was extremely impressed, and asked to hear more. But they told him they were only poor women, who did not understand much about it themselves; 'If, however,' they said, 'you go to Mr. Nagano, he will tell you all about it.' So off to Mr. Nagano he went, and there he heard all about it so effectually that he believed, and accepted Christ as his Saviour at once. He bought a Bible and other books, and went off to his village rejoicing in God. Letters have come from him since then to say that his sins are forgiven, and peace reigns in his heart. 'I am a new man,' says he. 'What eight years of prison could not do, Christ has done in a moment.'

The indifference of the people at Hirose, fifteen miles from Matsuye, led Mr. Knight to ask the Christians to devote at least three minutes every day to prayer for their own village, and the result was soon seen in the conversion of two men and an old woman, while three students also came forward as inquirers. The agent in charge at Hirose, Mr. Adachi, who receives no remuneration for his work, is said to have a remarkable affection for his Bible. Mr. Knight writes:—

A well-marked Bible.

The other day I was sitting in his house talking, and seeing just opposite the fire-proof room, attached to every Japanese house, which usually contains their valuables, I casually inquired, 'Have you got any works of art or valuable pictures in there?' 'No,' he said, 'in the old days I used to collect such things; but now I have no desire for anything but this,' and he pointed to his Bible, which is so marked and scored that one can scarcely read the original print.

There was considerable promise at Kizuki, a place until recently anything but hopeful, where one of the teachers in the Primary School is a Normal School student who was baptized in 1904. One of his colleagues is a catechumen, but the head-master of the school, a man baptized and confirmed twenty years ago, makes no profession of Christianity at all. From time to time Mr. Knight visited a village five miles from Kizuki, where a new lighthouse was erected and put under the charge of a Baptist Christian from Hokkaido. His wife set a working party on foot, and gathered together some thirty women to whom she proclaimed the Gospel. Mr. Knight one day asked this man for an explanation of the fact that so many lighthouse men are Christians, and he said that when lighthouses were first adopted in Japan an Englishman was employed to establish them, and he placed Bibles and tracts in every new lighthouse with which he had to do.

An Englishman's influence in lighthouses.

As already stated, Mr. Gray took up his residence in the summer at YONAGO, with a view to the more effective supervision of the work in the province of Hoki as well as on the Oki Islands, fifty miles from the mainland. The congregation grew rapidly, and the accommodation provided by the church was so insufficient that the people opened a fund for erecting a new building. The attitude of the non-Christian officials and members of the educational institutions was most friendly, owing, Mr. Gray thinks, to the completion of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance, but while they were, many of them, intellectually convinced of the truth of the Gospel, they yet failed to face the question of their responsibility concerning it. One result of this favourable attitude was that the people of the neighbourhood began to lose their hold on 'local heathen superstitions,' as some of them termed Buddhism and ancestor worship. With the permission of the Government a Christian kindergarten school was opened, with one of the Society's Bible-women as teacher. Through the children who attended it, most of them belonging to the upper classes, Miss Sander and her helpers gained admission to many non-

Yonago.

Christian homes which they had been unable to reach before. Among those baptized at the station was a woman, eighty years of age, of whom Miss Sander gives the following account:—

A convert's prayer.

She clung tenaciously to her kamidana where her dead son's and her ancestors' tablets were kept, but at last she let them go and found peace in Jesus her Saviour. She is a poor old thing, living alone in a tiny hut. Her daughter, comparatively well-to-do, has no real love for her, and would let her starve, but a Christian woman living near helps her a little. The latter went in one cold, wintry day and found her without fire or food, but looking very cheerful, and making no murmur. The snow was lying twelve inches deep, so she could not go out on errands as usual (her only way of earning a little money), but she said, 'I thought how lovely God's snow was, so I took some in my hand and ate it; and felt quite strong and had no more hunger.' Her prayers were very original at first: 'I beseech Your Honour to bestow upon me Your favour for the sake of the honourable Jesus.' Now she prays like a little child. She cannot read. We have taught her the outline of the Gospels by means of pictures.

Sakai.

On her return from furlough at the close of 1904 Miss E. Nash was assigned to SAKAI, where the Rev. P. T. Arato was the Japanese pastor. A member of the men's Bible-class was baptized, and also an old lady, blind and lame, who was first influenced in favour of Christianity by the kindness and love with which she was treated by her Christian grandson. Another lady, sixty years of age, put away the idol which she had worshipped earnestly for fifty years. A class for schoolgirls was set on foot, and the children's meetings were hopeful. Sixteen catechumens came forward during some evangelistic meetings which were held at a place called Neu.

In all nineteen adults were baptized in the Idzumo province, and twenty-two in that of Hoki.

TOKUSHIMA.

Tokushima.

The Rev. S. Heaslett, who was in general charge at TOKUSHIMA, the Society's station on the island of Shikoku, reports that the converts were able to make their promised contribution to the Pastorate Fund, and that Mr. Nuki Chikara, who had been acting as catechist, was accordingly ordained as their quasi-pastor at the end of 1905. Some meetings for the deepening of the spiritual life were held in the autumn by the Rev. W. P. Buncombe, and his visit to those among whom he had worked in former years was productive of much blessing. There are, however, two great hindrances to the progress of the Christians, for some of the men among them hold loose views concerning the Deity of Christ, and others are negligent in attendance at church services. The Sunday-schools were under the special care of Mrs. C. F. Warren. She mentions a lady, a relative of one of the girls in Miss E. Ritson's Bible-class, who one day brought her little girl, saying that she had heard of the Sunday-school, and asking that she as well as her daughter might be taught. A Young Women's Christian Association was set on foot, the president being the wife of a bank clerk, the treasurer the wife of a judge, and the secretaries teachers in two of the chief schools in the town. Meetings were held twice a month, and about fifty persons were usually present, most of them being pupils or teachers at the Girls' High School. Two of the latter were baptized, and several others as well as some of the girls appeared to be on the brink of decision for Christ. Several other classes were held for women and girls, and Mr. Heaslett, with the help of Mrs. Heaslett, carried on one for Normal School students. It had an average attendance of over twenty; three of the members were baptized and confirmed, and four others asked for baptism. Some evangelistic meetings were conducted by the Revs. C. T. Warren and P. G. Kawai, of Osaka, in the spring, and evangelistic work was maintained regularly at the preaching-hall in Sako Machi. In past years the work at that centre has not been encouraging, but two men were received into the visible Church in 1905, who were brought in by its means. Mr. Heaslett regards the people as having lost almost all prejudice against Christianity, and many of them as having begun to regard it as worthy of their attention, and in this connexion writes:—

Teachers and students baptized.

> The attitude of a number of people is very well illustrated by the remark of a man who attended a meeting at Sako Machi preaching-room a few nights ago. The catechist had said in his address, 'If a man does not eat yokan' (a sweetmeat made of boiled and mashed beans and sugar) 'he cannot tell whether it is sweet to the taste or not: so with Christianity, you cannot tell if it is good or bad until you try.' The man, who seemed to enjoy this bit of exposition, if one were to judge by his face, which expanded as he listened into a broad smile, afterwards said, 'I haven't yet tasted, I'm smelling!' There are many people here in Tokushima whose attitude might be summed up in these words. We hope they may go on to taste and see that the Lord is good.

'I haven't yet tasted.'

Three men were baptized at Muya, and several inquirers came forward at Wakimachi, but at Tomioka the removal of the church from a neighbouring village to the town, together with the ill-health of the catechist, prevented much progress. The number of adults received into the visible Church in the island was eighteen. Among them were a woman and her daughter, the former of whom had at one time greatly opposed Christianity.

2. DIOCESE OF SOUTH TOKYO.

TOKYO.

Tokyo.

After speaking of the impetus given by the war to the spread of Christianity in Japan the Rev. W. P. Buncombe proceeds in his annual letter to refer to the changes which he observed at Tokyo, where he was stationed, in the attitude of the converts towards foreign missionaries. He writes :—

The missionary not in favour.

The missionary is not, at present, in such high favour as formerly, and this is the case not only in non-Christian circles but also in the Churches. The Presbyterian and Congregationalist Churches have both declared themselves as having no connexion or co-operation with the foreign Missions of those bodies, and although they disclaim any anti-missionary feeling, yet it is openly said that it would be better if most of the missonaries should return to their own land (America). In the Sei-kō-Kwai there has nothing openly been said at all corresponding to this, nor is it easy to see at present how the Japanese of the Sei-kō-Kwai could take up such a stand, since self-support is far behind that of the two above-named Churches; yet the feeling that 'we must soon get free of the control and direction of foreigners' is growing in the minds of many of our workers and members. And the whole atmosphere has changed: neither we nor our advice are welcomed now as we used to be, and the attitude and tone towards us seem to have changed greatly. Probably we, here in Tokyo, feel this more than those in the provinces and country stations, but movements in Japan generally begin in the capital and extend to the country.

Doubtless the feeling that the Japanese as a nation and as Churches are capable of managing their own affairs, and ought to do so financially and in every other way, has been much quickened by the war. The declaration of independence on the part of the Presbyterian and Congregationalist Churches has fired the imagination of many of the young men, and some are saying that those Churches are much nobler than ours, and young workers, even in the prayer-meeting, thank God for the movement and pray that we may soon follow.

A great Revival, in which the Spirit of God should fill the Churches with consecrated Christians and bring multitudes more of really converted souls into them, would probably mean the formation of a great united Church of Japan, or at any rate of lessening of the present number of different Churches, and also make further foreign missionary work here unnecessary. But at present there is still more than room for us to work, and need too for more workers.

Congregations.

The Rev. M. Tomita was pastor of St. Paul's Church until the autumn, when, as already stated, he resigned. At Emmanuel Church the Rev. V. H. Patrick was in charge, and when he returned to England the Rev. W. Seki was transferred from Osaka to act as quasi-pastor of the congregation under the superintendence of Mr. Buncombe. One of the Japanese workers, who was associated with Mr. Patrick at the church, was called upon to go to Korea to labour in the Japanese church at Fusan.

Fruit of work at the Whidborne Hall.

Evangelistic Work was continued at the Whidborne Hall and at the second mission-hall at Fukugawa, but, though twenty-eight adults were received into the visible Church as a result of the efforts put forth at the former hall, Mr. Buncombe felt that the work was harder and less fruitful than in previous years. After the riots in Tokyo, which occurred upon the conclusion of peace with Russia, the preaching there was suspended for a week, but happily none of the Society's property was damaged by the agitators. Misses O. Julius, K. M. Peacocke, G. A. Reid, and H. G. Langton, engaged in Work among the Women. The two last named abandoned the Hostel for Girls, feeling that they had not time to give that attention to the inmates which was desirable, and devoted themselves more fully to classes and visiting. The Sunday-school for ladies' children procured them admission to five new houses, and through the helpful influence of the head of the Commissariat they obtained introductions to the wives of a number of officers. Three of these seemed to be 'almost persuaded,' and three girls who had been taught by the ladies were baptized. Another of the year's converts was a Chinese student, the young man mentioned in the Report for 1903–4 (page 385), who came to Mr. Buncombe with an introduction from Mr. E. A. Hamilton, of the Western China Mission.

Sunday-school for ladies' children.

During the absence of the pastor, the Rev. T. Katada, who was serving as a corporal with his regiment, the services and evangelistic work at Yokaichiba were carried on by the Church members. Miss K. M. Peacocke visited the out-station every month, and conducted meetings for the women and children. The latter were specially cheering, and several of the girls who were baptized had first learnt about Christ at the Sunday-school. A similar report is given of the children's work at Choshi, a town with 40,000 inhabitants. At Omigawa Miss Peacocke had some encouraging meetings. The work there centres round the hospital, where, from the doctor downwards, all are Christians. Other out-stations are Boshu, the southern portion of the Chiba ken or county; Hojo, a seaside resort; Naga, a small town three miles from Hojo; and Onuki, where there are some sixty Christians.

Former Sunday-school children baptized

The total number of baptisms in Tokyo and the surrounding district was ninety-one.

GIFU.

Gifu.

During the fifteen years which have elapsed since work was commenced at Gifu exactly 300 baptisms have taken place, but owing to deaths and removals, and also, it must sadly be confessed, to the falling away of some of the converts, the number of Christians at the station does not much exceed 100. After the Rev. A. Lea, of the Canadian C.M.S., left on furlough in March, 1905, the congregation for a while decreased, but several inquirers came forward later in the year, and the attendance at the services correspondingly improved. The Rev. G. C. Niven, who succeeded Mr. Lea as superintending missionary, gives the following account of some of the candidates for baptism:—

> One of them is a school-teacher. He first heard about Christ in a Sunday-school conducted by Miss Payne in Gifu, but after ceasing to attend that school he gave no more heed to such things until he was recently aroused by reading a religious novel in Japanese called The Fig-tree, and this ultimately led to his conversion, and, happily, his family are now likely to follow his example. Another young fellow, baptized the same day, is the first of his family to confess Christ, and has come out in the face of considerable opposition in his home. The young man was aroused by visiting the preaching-place, and was ultimately led to decide by some special preachings last autumn conducted by the students of the Osaka Divinity College.

Blind School.

There were twenty-three pupils in the Blind School under Mori San. Mr. Niven was invited to lecture to the students of the Normal School, and though he was not permitted to give a purely Gospel address, since the meeting was in the school buildings, he was yet able to impart a good deal of Christian teaching as he spoke on 'English Scenery and Famous Places.' More systematic efforts to reach the students than were possible by such lectures were made by means of a class conducted by Mrs. Niven, while Miss M. L. Pasley, of the New Zealand Association, and Miss E. M. Walter were responsible for other classes for women, girls, and children. There was a good deal of opposition to the work and some petty persecution, and now and again the girls were prevented from coming to the missionaries. Two, however, asked for baptism. The parents of one refused their consent, but those of the other, who lives at Kano, were not so antagonistic, and Miss Walter hoped to accept an invitation to visit them, and so gain an entrance in that prejudiced suburb of Gifu. The attendance at the children's meetings at Ogaki grew, and at Takatomi several men were admitted as catechumens: one of them was received into the visible Church, but the remainder either left the neighbourhood or proved unsatisfactory.

NAGOYA.

Nagoya.

The attitude of the people of NAGOYA, where the Rev. H. J. Hamilton, of the Canadian C.M.S., who for the last half of 1905 was Acting-Secretary for the work on the Main Island, resided, was more favourable towards Christianity than in former years. There was a considerable increase in the sale of Scripture portions, hymn-books, &c., and the teachers in the Government schools, who as a class have used their influence against Christianity, were more ready than in the past to receive instruction. Some thirty, either of them or of Normal School students, belonged to one or other of the various English and Bible classes. A possible factor in the changed demeanour of some of the inhabitants may have been the Kindergarten School, which was set on foot by Miss M. M. Young, who, together with Mrs. Hamilton and Miss E. M. Trent (all the ladies being of the Canadian C.M.S.), carried on work among women and children. The school began with ten children, and by the close of the year had fifty-seven names on its rolls. The Christmas entertainment given by the children afforded a good opportunity of preaching the Gospel by their means to a number of parents and friends, and Miss Young also had admittance to many of the homes from which they came. But while there was less hostility than in the past, there was plenty of room for greater receptiveness and less antagonism to the Gospel, for several inquirers were held back from baptism by the opposition of others. Thus an elderly lady was forbidden by her husband, a Government official, to be baptized, because he did not like the idea of a Christian funeral; an officer's wife was prevented by her parents from visiting the missionaries because they feared that she might become a Christian; and two young men in the country districts were kept from being baptized, one by his parents and the other by the postmaster who employed him. Some even of the educated people, too, entertained strange ideas concerning Christianity, as appears from the following extract from Mr. Hamilton's annual letter:—

Inquirers held back from baptism by relatives.

A school-teacher from the country came to my house to ask for teaching. 'I am not a Christian,' he said, 'but I would like to look into Christian teaching and then see whether I can believe or not.' I gave him a couple of booklets, and he bought a New Testament, and promised to go to the nearest Christian worker to have his difficulties explained. This young man's questions showed that there are still some strange misunderstandings as to Christianity. 'I believe,' he said, 'that Christians have to sing hymns. Now,' he added, 'I have done my best to learn singing, but cannot manage even one tune. Will that be a bar to my becoming a Christian?'

A strange idea concerning Christianity.

The workers enjoyed facilities for visiting the men in the military hospital, but there were few apparent results from these efforts. Sixteen adults were received into the visible Church.

TOYOHASHI.

In the early part of the year under review some difficulty was experienced by Miss A. Roberts in obtaining any Japanese to assist her in the work among the women of TOYOHASHI, where the Rev. J. M. Baldwin, of the Canadian C.M.S., was the superintending missionary, but at length a woman came forward who worked without remuneration and was anxious to become a fully-qualified Bible-woman, and another helper was sent from Yonago. Cooking, English, and knitting classes were held weekly, some of the money earned at the last-named being devoted to the fund for a new church. Some special evangelistic meetings were conducted at Ono, and were the means of the conversion of a man who afterwards displayed much zeal in making the Gospel known.

Toyohashi.

II. DIOCESE OF KIU-SHIU.

THE general report of the work in the Diocese of Kiu-Shiu says that notwithstanding the disadvantage under which the missionaries and Japanese agents of the Society laboured through the concentration of the attention of the people on the war, on the issue of which their future as a nation depended, the tidings from the six stations are almost without exception full of encouragement and hope. It dwells especially upon the impetus given to the work by the visit of two Japanese evangelists, references to whose meetings will be found under the various stations.

NAGASAKI.

Nagasaki. The work at NAGASAKI was carried on by the Japanese clergyman, the Rev. S. Ushijima, and Misses Alice M. Cox, A. Griffin, and O. M. Crawford, under the general superintendence of Bishop Evington. The congregation at Holy Trinity Church lost thirty of its most earnest members through removal, but it was reported that many of them were doing good work elsewhere. Those who remained, however, contrived, though not without much difficulty, to keep their contributions to the Pastoral Aid Fund from falling off. There is a second congregation at Shindaiku Machi, under the pastoral care of a catechist. The children's meetings were in a flourishing condition, and great blessing rested upon some special evangelistic services which were held in the autumn by two Japanese evangelists, the Revs. Mitani and Mimaki of Tokyo. About forty adults were led at these gatherings to decision for Christ, among them being several who had previously been inquirers. The adults baptized in Nagasaki during the year included a matron set over the girls working in the telephone office, a girl who had been living with Miss Griffin, and a member of Miss Cox's English class for high-school girls.

Some crowded lantern meetings were held at Shimabara and in the adjacent villages, and an old man and his wife were baptized. Miss Cox writes of them:—

The peace of God shines out from their faces.'

> The old lady told us with such a beaming smile, 'Before I believed in God I used to worry over everything dreadfully, but now I leave it all with God, and do not worry at all,' and her husband joined in, saying, 'My wife is a different woman now; she never seems to worry at all.' Truly, the peace of God does shine out from their faces.

Fortnightly visits were paid to Isahaya, where the wife of a Christian policeman was baptized in 1904, but the place is a stronghold of Buddhism and the work is uphill. Shortly after the great naval battle, Bishop Evington went to the island of Tsushima (see Annual Report for 1903–4, page 413), the base of the Japanese fleet, and afterwards wrote of his visit as follows:—

> No catechist has been appointed to work in Tsushima, but my secretary, Mr. Yonehara, made two or three journeys there and went with me in July. We met, taught, and prayed with the Christians. I confirmed three adults and baptized three adults and one child. The rainy weather so prevalent throughout the country made it impossible for an official and his wife to come in from the country, a distance of nearly twelve miles (the river being swollen and impassable), in time for our baptismal service, but they arrived the night I was to leave while we were holding a preaching to the Heathen, and at 11 p.m. I began the baptismal service: they were full of joy at their enrolment in the Kingdom. Their little girl was to have been admitted with them, but they had left her in the inn weary with the long day's travelling. They had started at 5 a.m. and had waded through a swollen stream, the lady having only left her bed on the Sunday previous. The other adult baptized was a teacher in one of the girls' schools, and her mother was admitted as a catechumen. Still another was prevented from being baptized, being detained at the side of a dying relative. Baptisms near the scene of the great naval battle

The work in Tsushima, so far as it touches new ground, is the result of active earnestness on the part of Mr. and Mrs. Ninomiya and some older Christians.

KAGOSHIMA.

Miss H. S. Cockram and Miss E. A. P. Sells resided at KAGOSHIMA, a town of about 60,000 inhabitants, where they had the assistance of the Rev. and Mrs. H. R. Wansey, who were formerly on the Society's staff. The catechist was successful in keeping the congregation together, and carried on the work at the preaching place, where the meetings both for children and adults were better attended than in former years. The children's meetings were the means of leading a man to put himself under instruction with a view to baptism. There were several other catechumens, and six adults, four of them women, were baptized. One was an old lady eighty-four years of age, and another the lady mentioned in last year's Report (page 421) as having been influenced by the consistent life of her nephew. She was confirmed shortly after her baptism, and wrote a little later, saying: 'The whole house seems lighted up with the Lord's presence.' Miss Cockram describes her as diligent in studying her Bible, and most earnest in pleading with her husband and the young wives of the officials whom she gathers together to accept salvation through Christ, and adds that two of this lady's relatives appeared to be truly converted. Kagoshima. The influence of a consistent life.

At the end of the year Mr. Wansey was about to pay a visit to Kanoya and to the Loo-choo Islands, to baptize some candidates and to administer the Holy Communion.

FUKUOKA.

The Missionaries at FUKUOKA, the Rev. and Mrs. A. B. Hutchinson, Miss F. M. Freeth, and Miss C. L. Burnside, were gladdened by the happy results attending the special services conducted by the Revs. Mitani and Mimaki. One object which the evangelists had in view was to stimulate the Japanese Christians, and it is said that after the gatherings there was a deeper spiritual tone among these latter. The remark which apparently used frequently to be heard, 'I have not been reading the Bible lately because I have a new novel,' was exchanged for 'I am reading the same passage over and over Fukuoka.

again so as to take in the meaning;' and one woman whose husband's conduct towards her had led her to contemplate seeking a divorce, gave up that idea, and commenced instead to seek for strength to bear patiently all the rebuffs and scoldings she received and to pray for his conversion. This woman, in one respect, was typical of many others, for the indifference to the spiritual welfare of their relatives, which, unhappily, had characterized the converts, was exchanged for earnest prayer in their behalf. Moreover, some of the Christians did their best to make up for the lack of a Bible-woman in the town, as for instance an old lady who said one day, 'I cannot do much but I can go round and remind the Christians who do not go to church very often and ask them to come.' The English New Testament classes were better attended than in 1904, and a society set on foot for the girls working in the telephone office soon had twenty-five members, five of whom, before the close of the year, had confessed their faith in Christ and were under regular instruction. Five children's meetings were held every week, and were much enjoyed by those for whom they were intended. One lad was forbidden by his parents to go to the Sunday-school because he was becoming too earnest, and another child was baptized. The following account was given of the latter in April, 1905:—

Converts' care for spiritual welfare of others.

Baptism of a Sunday-scholar,

Although she has been ill with consumption for more than a year, Sato Tamaye San was until a couple of months ago a very regular attendant at our little Sunday-school, and one of our brightest scholars. She is just twelve years old. Her father is a prison warder. They are very poor, and all live in one tiny room. Tamaye San's mother died some years ago, so her old grandmother of seventy-four looks after her and her little sister.

Tamaye San has been much worse since the cold weather, and has not been able to get about at all. About three weeks ago, when I went to see them I found the old grandmother in great distress, and neither she nor Tamaye San had had any dinner. The reason was that Tamaye San had heard a crow caw early in the morning. The Japanese are very superstitious, and a crow cawing is the sign of a death. The grandmother assured me that they heard a crow caw on the morning of the day on which Tamaye San's mother had died, and she was sure Tamaye San was going to die that day. I tried to comfort them and explain that the crow had nothing to do with it, and that it was all in God's hands, and also what a happy thing death would be for Tamaye San; and we had a long talk about heaven and meeting again. I am glad to say I left them much happier, and Tamaye San now is more anxious to, as she says, 'go and be with Jesus San' than to get well. Although Tamaye San did not die that day she has continued to get weaker, and two days ago Mr. Hutchinson baptized her in the house. She answered his questions brightly and seemed so happy.

A little later the child's father, sister, and grandmother were received into the visible Church. Several persons were under instruction with a view to baptism, but some held back from open confession of the Saviour. Miss Freeth writes:—

One lady cannot make up her mind to leave off doing worship before her dead mother's photograph. In many houses the ancestral tablets are being replaced by photographs of the deceased and worshipped in the same way. This reverence for ancestors is a tremendous difficulty with new converts. Though there may be no burning of incense before the photograph, the spirit of worship is present, and the bowing the head and offering of tea and cakes must be discontinued before baptism can be administered. The lady mentioned above would be quite prepared to give it all up were she the only person concerned, but in the eyes of her relatives to do so would be equivalent to neglecting the departed, and would call forth their anger and remonstrances. Reverence for ancestors.

The special services at Fukuoka were attended by many persons belonging to Hakata, which is really a part of Fukuoka, where the Japanese clergyman, the Rev. J. T. Ko, labours. Several of them decided to follow Christ, and great blessing was experienced by some who were already inquirers. Miss Burnside says:—

Among the catechumens is one of the matrons in the large General Hospital in Hakata, and her cry was, 'I want to be a new creature. I have not sufficient love and am so short-tempered.' Now she is just full of peace and joy, and she said to me only the other day, 'Formerly, if people I did not like came in it was most disagreeable to have to talk to them; but now if they come I only feel so sorry that they have not this same peace and joy, and I want to help them.' Again, a young girl belonging to my English class said the other day, 'What I realize so much is that God is my Father, and I am so happy. I even think of this in my dreams, and so much so that the other night my aunt awoke me to ask why I was laughing in my sleep.' Bad temper improved.

Mr. Ko endeavoured to get into touch with the upper classes. He called several times on a professor in the Fukuoka Medical University who always gave attentive hearing to the Gospel, and he was told of other professors, besides some doctors and officers, who were anxious to learn about Christ in the hope that in Him they might find that peace for which they had vainly sought. Openings were also gained at the permanent military hospital in Fukuoka Castle, and at the temporary branch hospital which was established for convalescent soldiers. Some 4,000 of the latter heard the Gospel, among whom were two university students, who studied the Bible most diligently. Tidings were afterwards received from Kokura that one of these had come forward professing faith in Christ. Concerning this work among the soldiers, Mr. Ko remarks that they stayed so short a time at the hospital that it was impossible actually to see much fruit, but he adds, 'We believe that some time, somewhere, some of them will become fully followers of Christ.' 'Some time, somewhere, some will become followers of Christ.' Miss Burnside prepared a couple of women for their examination as Bible-women, and one of them, after passing it, was appointed as her helper among the women and children of Hakata. Some thirty houses of non-Christians were regularly visited, besides those in which the householders were Christians.

Work was uphill at both Kurume and Oyamada, partly owing at the latter place to some who had been baptized having reverted to Heathenism. A far brighter account is given of Hiramatsu, where a Christian doctor, Dr. Nishi, loses no opportunity of speaking to his patients about the Saviour. An ex-schoolmaster assists him in evangelistic work in the surrounding villages, and it is estimated that some 3,000 persons heard the Gospel from these volunteers during the year. Miss Burnside speaks of a Christian woman in one of these villages who was much troubled because she had no peace, for, she said, 'I am always talking to Satan.' After a little conversation she added, 'I have such sin. It is not that which people can see, it is my thoughts. They are so foolish that really I am ashamed to talk to God.' Happily she soon found peace in confession and trust, and the next evening after the prayer-meeting she came up and said, 'I have not talked to Satan once to-day.'

Zeal of a Christian doctor.

Literary Work.

Mr. Hutchinson reports the publication of three works in Japanese, on which he has been engaged, viz., The Gospel and its Ministry, by Sir Robert Anderson, A Plain Commentary on the Thirty-nine Articles, with Questions for Examination, and Fifteen Addresses on the Pre-millennial Coming of Christ.

KOKURA.

Kokura.

The staff of the Society at KOKURA suffered a great loss by the death, which has been recorded above, of Miss B. J. Allen, and the Rev. J. Hind reports that through illness and other causes there was some decline in the attendance at services and meetings. Nevertheless, there were twenty-five adult baptisms in the district, more than in any previous year, and these figures are the more striking in that they do not include those of any soldiers. It was among them that the largest measure of success was experienced. The opportunities in the military hospitals were so great and so important, seeing that the inmates hailed from all parts of Kiu-Shiu, that Mr. Hind was led to devote much of his time to utilizing them. He estimated that at least 25,000 men heard and read of Christ in the hospitals, and states that more than 300 persons definitely confessed to either him or Mrs. Hind that they had found peace through faith in the Saviour. Among these latter were included not only patients but also doctors, medical cadets, officials, nurses, and servants. Mr. Hind gives the following specimens of his work:—

Visiting military hospitals.

On October 20th I went to visit in the farthest hospital, and had a talk with the head of a ward, who, although busy, allowed me to talk to him. A week later he came into the room as we were leaving, and I went to speak to him. He was in the position of so many of them, anxious on account of sin, and praying for forgiveness, but thinking it too good to hope for. We walked together to his office, about 100 yards, and then stood and talked for a few minutes, during which the Light streamed into his heart, and his face lit up with the words so many use, 'I understand.' A few questions to him left me in no doubt about the reality of his belief.

'The Light streamed into his heart.'

I then went to see others, believers and inquirers, and began to talk to one who seemed near the truth, and, as so often happens, the next man was all attention, and perhaps his questions helped his comrade, for in a few minutes both came out into the Light. I had some nice talks with those who already believed; there are now about thirty in that one hospital, and it is indeed difficult to find time to build them up and sow seed elsewhere too.

On the 21st I again visited the same hospital. While talking to one soldier the next one joined in, and I found that he was in the Light. As I was leaving the hospital an inquirer stopped me and told me he was to be operated on the next day; I could not leave him as he was, and after a few minutes' talk I was able to go home rejoicing in his new-found happiness. On the 26th we had special preaching in the second hospital, after which the men were asked to hold up their hands if they wished to return to God (the address had been on the Prodigal Son); twenty-seven did so, and they and others stayed for an after-meeting, when forty gave in their names. On the 27th I welcomed back almost the first batch of troops returning from the war, and then went to the largest hospital for preaching. Thirty-three gave in their names. Later in the day I found another patient happy through faith in Christ.

The congregation at Wakamatsu, where Miss Allen used to go three or four times a week, fell off through the removal of several families, but that at Moji increased through the arrival of some converts and through the baptism of others. One of the latter was a bank clerk of some position who had been accustomed to attend Mr. Hind's English and Bible-class. He was first led to read the Bible by noticing the pious habit of 'Robinson Crusoe,' and Mr. Hind says that he has heard of others who were brought to the study of the Word of God through perusing Defoe's book. Miss E. M. Keen had the Nogata mining district as her sphere of work, and went about as need arose from one to another of twelve different towns and villages. Several openings came to her through wayside sowing. She writes:—

Men led to study the Bible through reading Robinson Crusoe.

A few remarks in the train to a fellow-passenger one day led to his writing to ask me to visit his mine, 'as three or four want to hear the Bible.' It was some little time before I could spare a day to go, but on calling at his house I found ten ladies waiting for me (wives of officials in the mine). They eagerly listened to 'the Old, Old Story,' though, as one of them remarked, 'This is quite new to me. How very mistaken and crooked my heart has been!' I left some books with them to read, and they begged me to come again, but I have not yet been able to do so.

Wayside sowing.

Again, a manager of a bank to whom I had once spoken in the train many months since, and who was then quite indifferent, came up a few days ago, as I was waiting at a railway junction, and asked, 'Will you tell me where in the Bible I can find how to obtain peace? I am beginning to realize that nothing satisfies me, and I must turn to religion.' Quickly opening my Bible, I gave some passages which he wrote in his note-book, and on getting into the train he asked me to come and teach his wife.

At a mine which I had visited last year, a head official had told me he could not believe in the existence of God, though as the Bible was good teaching he would like his wife to study it. When I called recently I found a great change in both of them. Whereas before music, pictures, &c., took up nearly the whole of a long afternoon, this time the wife soon opened the Bible and wanted to ask all sorts of questions, and we spent some time reading together; and when her husband came home later on, he too soon turned to the Bible, saying, 'I want to earnestly study this Book, for I must have something to make me walk straight.'

'I must have something to make me walk straight.'

At one mine, where some ladies met regularly for a weekly Bible-reading, four gave their hearts to the Saviour, but had some difficulty about abandoning ancestral worship because of their relatives' wishes. After making the matter a subject of prayer for a little while, however, they were enabled to obey God rather than man. On the other hand the old lady, an earnest Buddhist, of whom Miss Keen wrote in 1904 (see last year's Report, page 424), still clung tenaciously to her idols.

Literary Work.

Mr. Hind completed his translation of Edersheim's Bible History, and of the Bishop of Durham's Outlines of Christian Doctrine, and also compiled a commentary on St. Matthew's Gospel.

KUMAMOTO.

Kumamoto.

In the absence of the Rev. S. Painter on furlough, the Rev. and Mrs. G. H. Moule were without any European colleague at KUMAMOTO. Although Mr. Moule was not technically missionary in charge of the station, that responsibility falling on the Rev. A. B. Hutchinson, of Fukuoka, yet practically he had to act as such. He was obliged to combine with his study of the language the supervision of two small congregations in the town and of the work at three preaching centres, special work in the military hospital, the management of a Bible and Christian literature depôt, and the oversight of the work in the country, and during part of the year there was but one catechist whose services were entirely at his disposal. The little congregation at the Tatemachi preaching-place suffered the loss of the catechist and two members of the Church Committee, all of whom were removed by death. The first named had a peculiar hold on young men, and had sacrificed good prospects of a political career in order to devote himself to preaching the Gospel. One of the elder pupils of the Sunday-school was baptized, and two others were admitted to the catechumenate, while in at least two instances parents became definite inquirers through their children repeating to them what they had been taught at the schools. The Shimmachi preaching-place is situated in the midst of a priest-ridden and difficult business quarter of the town, but since it was opened in 1903 several adults have been baptized there, and in November it was expected that four others would soon be received into the visible Church. Early in the year, after a good deal of difficulty, permission was obtained for work in the military hospitals, and when the Rev. J. Hind paid a visit to the station in the autumn he gave addresses in two of them.

Fruit of Sunday-school work.

Miss A. C. Tennent, who was transferred from Kagoshima to Kumamoto in December, 1904, took part in the work among women and children in the town, and also itinerated in the district. The newly-opened out-station at Yatsushiro unhappily had to be closed, as there was no Bible-woman who could be placed there, and for a similar reason the few Christians and catechumens at Tama-no-gun had to be left without regular instruction.

OITA.

Progress at Oita was rendered difficult by the lack of any Japanese agent, which brought it to pass that when, as often happened, the Rev. and Mrs. H. L. Bleby were absent on an itineration the evangelistic work was at a standstill, while the congregation also suffered. At one time there was some trouble among the Christians through two women who were at variance, but the intervention of Bishop Evington, followed by some special meetings in the autumn, happily resulted in a complete reconciliation. There were more catechumens at Nobeoka than for several years past, and three ladies, the first women in that town to come forward for baptism, were among them. Little change was apparent at Taketa or at Beppu, but at the latter out-station there seemed to be among the Christians a deeper sense of individual responsibility for the souls of others. Twelve adults were baptized in the district. Oita.

III. DIOCESE OF HOKKAIDO.

In the report of the work in the diocese of Hokkaido with which Bishop Fyson has kindly furnished the Committee, he refers to the effects of the war upon the people in the northern island in general and the Christians in particular, and expresses his opinion that the change has been less than might have been expected. He writes: —

I was told more than once by Japanese that as a result of the war there would be a more decided turning of the minds of the people towards religion in general, and towards Christianity in particular. This seemed to be the confident expectation among the Christians, and that in spite of the fact that the enemy with whom they had been waging such a bloody and costly war was nominally, at any rate, a Christian nation. It was what I myself hoped would be the case, but I cannot say that I have observed any such result so far. There has been no influx of outsiders at the regular church services, nor have the audiences at the mission-rooms grown any larger, nor has there been any increase in the number of inquirers, and just now there appears to be a general spirit of apathy and indifference. This may be due to a natural reaction after the excitement of the great war, and it may be too early yet to form a correct judgment about the real, permanent effects as regards the spread of Christianity. A general spirit of apathy.

With respect to the Christians, I do not think the war has had any bad effect in the way of making them proud, or resentful of control. There has been the same quiet self-restraint that was exhibited in the previous year, and the same modest spirit deprecating anything like arrogant elation over the great victories won by land and sea.

Bishop Fyson mentions, however, two respects in which a difference has been made. First the rise in prices which has taken place and the increase in taxation have affected the contributions of the converts to religious work; and secondly, the acquisition by Japan of the southern half of the island of Saghalien has added new territory to the diocese, and brought about fresh opportunity and responsibility for evangelistic work. The authorities have promised a grant of land for a church or mission-room and catechist's house at Khorsakoff, and the Bishop hopes shortly to station a worker there.

Opening for work on Saghalien.

HAKODATE.

Hakodate.

The two Congregations at HAKODATE, one under the pastoral charge of the Japanese clergyman, the Rev. M. Ito, and the other under that of the Rev. D. Marshall Lang, the Secretary for the work in Hokkaido, were increased by several baptisms, but on the other hand several of the young men were drafted off to the war, and some of them never returned. The Training Institution for Men, of which Bishop Fyson is the Principal, contained four students, while Miss A. M. Tapson, who superintended the Training Home for Women, had five girls under her charge. One of them, whose expenses were paid by her father, although he is a non-Christian, and who was baptized during the year, was the means of leading a relative with whom she stayed to become a catechumen, and he in his turn brought in a friend. Miss R. E. Fyson was Principal of the Girls'-school, four of the pupils of which were received into the visible Church. The Ainu Boys' Boarding-school has been given up. English Classes were conducted by Miss M. Brownlow, Miss E. L. B. Norton, and others, and led to the baptism of a teacher in one of the large Government Girls' Schools, two of whose friends also became inquirers. The knitting class for ladies had not a large attendance, but two of the members were baptized during the year, one was admitted as a catechumen, and almost all the remainder became inquirers. This class was carried on by Ishii San, the Bible-woman, who is in delicate health, and whose one reason for desiring that her life may be prolonged is that she may continue to work for Christ. Her sister, who had been staying with her, one day remarked to Miss Tapson, 'She is my sister, but still I must say it. I am amazed at her pure heart.' Testimony to the influence of the Gospel was borne also by the father of one of the members of the class for bigger boys. The lad in former days was the ringleader in all sorts of mischief, and when sixteen years of age was guilty of theft and ran away to Tokyo. But since then his life has been so changed that the father declares there must be some power in Christianity, and readily allows his boy to attend services and the class.

Hospital.

Dr. W. W. Colborne resumed his work at the Hospital on his return from furlough in the spring of 1905, and during the next six months thirteen persons were baptized and seventeen catechumens received in connexion with the medical mission. There was less prejudice among the patients than in former years, and a greater readiness to listen to the Gospel, which the doctor attributed to the work of the Y.M.C.A. among the soldiers in Manchuria. One subject caused him some misgiving as to the value of the medical work, viz., that those who were won for Christ as patients did not display any marked desire to lead others to the Saviour—in this respect, unhappily, not differing much from the great body of converts. There was, however, a bright exception to the general rule, for one girl, by speaking to her neighbours and others, has been the means in past years of bringing about half a dozen persons for instruction. Dr. Colborne asks for special prayer in her behalf, for she lives, he says, in dangerous surroundings. Former patients were visited in their homes by Miss A. Evans, a trained nurse, who assisted at the hospital. In March, 1906, Dr. Colborne became seriously ill, and the medical work had to be temporarily discontinued.

A girl brings six people for instruction.

Several persons were baptized besides those already mentioned, eighteen of the converts being the fruit of the work among soldiers which was described in last year's Report. Mr. Marshall Lang wrote in March, 1905 :—

Baptism of eighteen soldiers.

> Last Sunday was a happy day for us here, for out of the thirty men who have been regularly attending the meetings eighteen, who had enrolled themselves as regular inquirers, were baptized in church by the Japanese clergyman. They had been for some time under instruction for baptism, but matters were brought to a decision in this way. The sergeant who accompanies them, and who from the first became the most eager inquirer, reported that there was a possibility of his being moved up to Asahigawa soon, and he would like to be baptized first. So it was decided for him to be baptized on the 19th. At the meeting the Sunday before, Endo asked the other seventeen if they would not like to be baptized at the same time, and advised them to think it over and let him know. Next day the sergeant told him that all would like it so. Of course we never know how long these men may be here, or when they may be sent to the front. So it came about that all the eighteen were baptized together on the 19th, and a most impressive sight it was. The sponsors were Miss Brownlow (who so kindly comes and plays at the meetings), Endo (who is virtually in charge of them), and myself, while the Rev. M. Ito performed the rite, and preached a suitable sermon on St. John viii. 35, 36. The sergeant said he did not wish to go to Asahigawa, but preferred to wait and try to draw in the other men to the Church of Christ.

Another of those admitted into the visible Church was the daughter-in-law of an old Christian woman who had longed that her son and his family might be brought to the Saviour before she was called to her rest. Her desire was not granted, but her prayers did not prove in vain, though only one other member of the family at present shows any signs of interest in Christianity.

Fruit was reaped also of the work in the district, as, for instance, at a manganese mine at Kunnui, where the manager is a Christian, twenty-four men and women were baptized who had been won through his influence.

SAPPORO.

Sapporo.

The effects of the war were severely felt at SAPPORO, where the Rev. and Mrs. J. Batchelor and Misses A. M. and E. E. Hughes resided, inasmuch as two of the Japanese agents and many of the Christians were ordered to the front, where two shining lights among the latter lost their lives. It was more difficult than before to induce the people to attend meetings, &c., for the women and schoolgirls were busily engaged in making garments to send out to the soldiers. Mr. Batchelor speaks regretfully of the failure of the Japanese agents to get hold of the Ainu. He says that the two races will not mix, and that there is always distrust between them, and adds:—

Distrust between Japanese and Ainu.

> I find that the Ainu—even the best educated among them—do not understand addresses and sermons such as the Japanese catechists deliver before them. They now admit this to me, and have on several occasions requested me to hold special services in Ainu with no Japanese at all. Even this year, at Usu, where the people almost always speak in Japanese to one another, I went by special request to preach in an Ainu hut. I found the place crowded, almost all the old people of the village being present. Upon taking my seat I was informed that I was expected to address them in Ainu! 'Why not in Japanese?' I inquired. 'Oh,' said they, 'we understand Ainu best, and it goes quickest to our hearts.'

Under the circumstances it was felt desirable to attempt to train some Ainu for work among their own race, and by the close of the year Mr. Batchelor had a few men under instruction with that end in view. There were eleven pupils in the Ainu Girls' Home, six of whom were baptized at Easter, 1905. Through the kindness of the Governor-General of Hokkaido, more than half the girls were enabled to go daily to one of the best Japanese schools in the town. Cheering reports were received of former inmates of the Home, and in every case it appeared that they were exercising a salutary influence among their own people. Mr. Batchelor gives an instance of the good work done by one of the present pupils:—

Ainu Girls' Home.

> Just before Christmas the parents of one of the children eight years of age came to pay her a visit and stayed with us in our house. Upon arrival they asked to see their daughter, and we caused her to be sent to them in their room. When it was time for the child to return to the 'home' the mother accompanied her across the yard. No sooner did they get into the fresh air than the following conversation took place:—
>
> Child.—'Mother, do you visit the Buddhist temple in our village?'
>
> Mother.—'Why, child, what do you mean?'
>
> Child.—'Do you ever go to the temple where the idols are? Because, if you do, it is useless. Those idols are not gods. They were made by men out of wood or stone. God lives above us' (pointing to the skies). 'You should worship Him.'

The mother told us of this afterwards. The seed sprang up quickly, for both the father and mother have asked for baptism.

Over 100 sick folk were received in the Ainu Rest House, to all of whom daily Christian instruction was given. Mr. Batchelor commenced, by request, a weekly class for the staff of the Railway Coal-mining Company, devoting one hour to teaching English and one hour to the study of the Bible. The class was attended by from forty to fifty men, a few of them being graduates of the Imperial University of Tokyo. Miss A. M. Hughes stayed for some weeks at Horobetsu, whence she visited a number of villages. The adults baptized during the year, fifty-five in number, included a Chinese student, a Japanese veterinary surgeon, a lady Government school teacher, and a blind man. Miss A. M. Hughes says of the last named:— Ainu Rest House. Baptisms.

> One day I missed the god-shelf from its accustomed place, and upon asking what had become of it, he laughed and pointed to the hearth around which we were sitting, and which I then noticed had been newly boarded. He told me that he had broken the shelf up, and he presented me with the little shrine and the idols which had been his objects of worship for many years. Soon afterwards the family became catechumens, and were prepared for baptism. I believe they are all living consistent lives, and only a couple of weeks ago the blind man asked the catechist to hold a meeting in his little house, as some of the neighbours wanted to hear the teaching which had made such a change in his life.

Notwithstanding these baptisms the statistics show a decrease of 122 in the number of baptized Christians. The apparent falling off is accounted for, Mr. Batchelor says, partly by a re-division of the district which was made, and partly by a general overhauling of the Church books, deaths in the war, and the decrease in the Ainu population.

Miss E. M. Bryant had seven girls living with her at Piratori from December, 1904, until the following April, who composed her Winter School. In the next November, the mission-house having meanwhile been enlarged, she received ten girls, while several other were desirous of being admitted. Piratori.

OTARU.

There was no resident European missionary at OTARU in 1905, and the Rev. D. Marshall Lang had to superintend the work from Hakodate. Twenty adults were baptized, including a judge, the wife of the secretary of the court, and five young men, who were received into the visible Church at Asahigawa. Otaru. Baptism of a judge.

KUSHIRO.

There were 250 baptized Christians under the charge of the Rev. T. Ogawa, a Japanese clergyman, in the KUSHIRO district. Kushiro.

He reports the formation in the town of Kushiro of a Young Men's Christian Association, at the meetings of which the Bible is studied, although most of the members are non-Christians. The work at Abashiri suffered through the death of the Christian manager of a match factory, through whose influence many of the employés had embraced Christianity. The manager who was appointed to succeed him stopped the observance of Sunday as a day of rest. There were some hopeful inquirers among the leading men at Akkeshi. Twenty-two adults were baptized in the town and district.

NORTH-WEST CANADA MISSIONS.

The Society's work in North-West Canada is among the remnants of the Red Indian tribes scattered over the vast country formerly known as the Hudson's Bay Territory, but now included in the Dominion of Canada. In 1822 the Rev. John West arrived at a trading settlement on the Red River, a little south of Lake Winnipeg, and began to gather the Indians round him. Now the Red River district is the flourishing colonial Province of Manitoba, and a large part of the Society's work has developed into the settled ministrations of the Church in the Colony. One of the Society's churches has become the Cathedral of the diocese of Rupert's Land, which was founded in 1849. That diocese was divided in 1872 into four parts, the three new dioceses being those of Moosonee, Athabasca, and Saskatchewan. In 1875 these dioceses were constituted an Ecclesiastical Province with the Bishop of Rupert's Land as the Metropolitan. In 1884 the Provincial Synod divided the diocese of Athabasca, forming the new diocese of Mackenzie River, and at the same time the diocese of Qu'Appelle was formed out of Rupert's Land and Saskatchewan. In 1887 the diocese of Calgary was formed out of Saskatchewan; in 1890 Selkirk, on the west of the Rocky Mountains, out of Mackenzie River; and in 1902 Keewatin out of Rupert's Land and Moosonee. Rupert's Land had for its first Bishop Dr. Anderson (1849), then Archbishop Machray (1865), and now Archbishop Matheson (1905); Moosonee, Dr. Horden (1872), Newnham (1893), Holmes (1905); Keewatin, Dr. Lofthouse (1902); Saskatchewan, Dr. McLean (1872), Pinkham (1886), Newnham (translated from Moosonee) 1903; Qu'Appelle, Dr. Anson (1884), Burn (1893), Grisdale (1896); Calgary, Dr. Pinkham (1887); Athabasca (which is now vacant), Dr. Bompas (1872), Young (1884); Mackenzie River, Dr. Bompas (1884), Reeve (1891); Selkirk, Dr. Bompas (1891); Stringer (1905). All the present Bishops of these dioceses, except Rupert's Land and Calgary, have been missionaries of the C.M.S.

The Society labours in all the above-named nine dioceses; but in that of QU'APPELLE the work is confined to one station, Touchwood Hills, opened in 1857. In RUPERT'S LAND DIOCESE the Society's work was commenced in the Red River district in 1823; and Rainy Lake district was occupied in 1874. In KEEWATIN DIOCESE, York was occupied in 1854; Fort Alexander, 1864; Churchill, 1886. In MOOSONEE DIOCESE, Moose Fort was occupied in 1851; Albany, 1855; East Main Coast, 1877; Blacklead Island, 1894. In SASKATCHEWAN DIOCESE, Cumberland and Devon were occupied in 1840; Stanley, 1850; Sandy Lake (Asisipi), 1875; Battleford, 1876; Prince Albert, 1879; Grand Rapids, 1881; and Fort Pitt, 1888. In CALGARY DIOCESE, Fort McLeod was occupied in 1880; Blackfoot Crossing in 1883; Sarcee Reserve in 1886. In ATHABASCA DIOCESE, Fort Chipewyan was occupied in 1867; Fort Vermilion, 1876; Lesser Slave Lake, 1887; Upper Peace River, 1888. In MACKENZIE RIVER DIOCESE, Fort Simpson, 1858; Fort Norman, 1871; Fort McPherson, 1874; Fort Resolution, 1875; Herschel Island, 1893. In SELKIRK DIOCESE, Rampart House, 1882; Buxton, 1887; Selkirk, 1892; Moosehide (Klondyke), 1897; Caribou Crossing, 1900.

Retirement of Bishop Bompas.

IN the autumn of the year under review Bishop Bompas retired from the episcopal charge of the diocese of Selkirk.* He has been succeeded by the Right Rev. I. O. Stringer, who was a missionary of the Society first at Fort McPherson, and then at Herschel Island, from 1892 until 1901, when he was obliged by ill-health to retire. Bishop Stringer was consecrated at Winnipeg on December 17th, 1905.

Consecration of Bishop Stringer.

Death of Bishop Young.

Bishop Young, whose retirement from the See of Athabasca was recorded in the Report for 1903–4 (page 434), passed away at Southborough on July 12th, 1905. A graduate of Clare College,

* As these pages are passing through the press news is received of Bishop Bompas's death on June 9th.

Cambridge, he was Association Secretary of the Society in West Yorkshire from 1872 to 1875. He went to Rupert's Land in 1875, and nine years afterwards, when Athabasca Diocese was divided and Bishop Bompas elected to keep the northern portion, which received the name of Mackenzie River, Robert Young succeeded him in the See of Athabasca. For twenty years he endured the hardships and privations of that inhospitable region, but latterly his health greatly failed. In 1900 he went out avowedly for the last time to take a farewell of the lonely workers and then to retire. He came home again in 1903.

and Mrs. Reeve.

Another death has to be chronicled, that of Mrs. Reeve, the wife of the Bishop of Mackenzie River, which occurred on March 9th, 1906, at Athabasca Landing. She had been ailing for a short time, but the end came suddenly through heart failure.

Archdeacon R. McDonald has retired from active work after fifty-three years of service in the Mission. Ordained in 1852 by Bishop Anderson, of Rupert's Land, he was first stationed at Islington, and later at Fort Yukon and Peel River. He was appointed Archdeacon of Mackenzie River in 1875. Of late years he has suffered much from ill-health. He has translated the New Testament, the Pentateuch, and the Psalms, the greater part of the Prayer-book, and several other books into Tukudh. Among the other names which disappear from the Society's list are those of the Rev. A. E. Cowley, of the diocese of Rupert's Land, who for some time has been entirely engaged in colonial work, though he kindly continues to act as recording secretary at the meetings of the Society's Finance Committee for the diocese of Rupert's Land; and the Revs. H. Robinson and A. J. Warwick, of the diocese of Athabasca. In consequence of the diminution of the Society's grant the names of the Revs. R. E. Coates, J. F. Cox, and R. Inkster, and of Dr. W. Rose have been removed from the list.

I. DIOCESES OF RUPERT'S LAND AND QU'APPELLE.

Fairford.

THE only names remaining on the Society's list of missionaries in the dioceses of Rupert's Land and Qu'Appelle are those of Archdeacon Phair and the Rev. G. Bruce. The latter for nearly forty-two years has been stationed at FAIRFORD. He has been permitted to baptize more than 1,000 persons during that period, but now, being almost seventy years old, finds the long journeys involved in visiting the out-stations very trying. He reports that the attendance at the services at his head quarters is well maintained, some of the people travelling from twelve to twenty miles in order to be present. Visits were paid to Pucketaychewom, eight miles off, and Gypsumville, twelve miles to the north-west of Fairford, which derives its name from some gypsum mines, and also to St. Martin's, twenty miles to the north-east, and other places.

Archdeacon Phair visited several of the other stations in the diocese, and baptized a young man and several children at Shoal River.

II. DIOCESE OF KEEWATIN.

Bishop Lofthouse, who has kindly furnished the Committee with an account of the work in his diocese, says that there is a great difference between that carried on in the south of it and that in the north. In the south, where the stations are in the midst of, or at least in close touch with civilization, there is much difficulty to contend with, but in the north, where the Indian is found in his natural state, he accepts the Gospel in its simplicity, and earnestly strives to carry out its precepts.

A native pastor, the Rev. E. Thomas, was in charge at Fort Alexander, where the Roman Catholics are in strength. Bishop Lofthouse writes of an old Indian who joined the Church at this station as follows:— Fort Alexander.

> There was evidently something on his mind; he was keeping something back. After a time Mr. Thomas found that he had some 'Indian medicine' to which he was clinging. Mr. Thomas talked very plainly to him, and at last he gave up this treasure. I had the pleasure of opening this. It was amusing, and yet sad to think that anybody could really believe that such a thing had power for either good or evil—a small round tin box most carefully wrapped up with pieces of dirty calico, and sealed with grease and clay. When at last I got it open I found half a dozen small pieces of brown paper, embedded in down, each piece carefully tied up. These, when opened, proved to contain little bits of stone or earth. It was wonderful that any one could be so childish as to think there was anything to do either good or harm in such a thing, yet the old man really thought that he possessed a very great treasure. It had been given to him some years ago by a great 'medicine-man.' 'Indian medicine.'

At the out-stations, Hole River and Black River, the catechists minister to a few Indians.

Two adults were baptized at Lac Seul, the head quarters of the Rev. M. Sanderson, but great difficulty was experienced in carrying on the work among the young. Bishop Lofthouse speaks of the heartiness of the services at the station when he was there at Easter. Lac Seul.

At Long Sault, on the Rainy River, where the Rev. J. Johnston resided, very few of the Indians appeared to care about 'the white man's religion.' Long Sault.

The Rev. C. G. Fox, who was in charge at Split Lake, the 'most hopeful station in the diocese,' reports that about sixty Indians communicated on Easter Day, some of whom had travelled about 100 miles over snowy wastes and through cheerless woods, camping out when night overtook them, and living on such food Split Lake.

Testimony to the work borne by travellers.

as their efforts could procure. He quotes the testimony of some independent travellers, who chanced to visit the station, as to the success of the work. 'We have been greatly surprised,' they said, 'at what we have seen in this part of the country. Had we been told about it we could not have believed it; in fact, we would have thought the picture was overdrawn for the sake of effect. We are thankful to God for what we have seen.' Mr. Fox paid several visits to Norway House.

York Factory.

The residents at YORK FACTORY were faced in the summer by the prospect of severe privations, for the news then reached them that the annual ship had met with an accident, and that therefore the usual supplies would not be forthcoming. The Rev. R. Faries, however, mentions that it providentially happened that deer, rabbits, ptarmigan, and fish were exceptionally plentiful, and in November, when he wrote his annual letter, he was able to say that there was plenty of food. Besides carrying on the work at the station, Mr. Faries paid a visit to the Indians living on the banks of the Sammattawa River, the last of the York Indians to accept Christianity, among whom some remnants of superstition remain. He was grieved to find that they did not refrain from trading on Sundays, and says that the other Indians under his charge are noted for their strict observance of the Day of Rest. A catechist was appointed to reoccupy Severn, but the failure of the supplies obliged him to abandon the attempt to reach his destination. The Rev. W. Dick, a native pastor, continued at Trout Lake, an 'isolated and trying station,' where he has laboured for over twenty years.

'An isolated and trying station.'

Churchill.

The work among the Indians and Eskimo at CHURCHILL was cheering: morning and evening prayers were held in every tent of the former, and the latter appeared most anxious to understand the Gospel. Mr. Faries paid a visit to the station in the spring of 1905, in order to administer the Holy Communion, the Rev. F. Sevier, who is in charge, being in Deacons' Orders. Mr. Sevier resolved to remain at his post, notwithstanding the non-arrival of the annual ship.

III. DIOCESE OF MOOSONEE.

ALMOST immediately after his arrival in his diocese, in May, 1905, Bishop Holmes started off to visit the various stations, and he afterwards kindly sent the Committee an account of his experiences. The names of most of the stations mentioned are familiar to readers of the Report, and a brief account of the work at them is given below, though in some cases the agents are not now maintained out of the Block Grant paid by the Society.

The number of residents at Moose Fort has been greatly diminished of late years through the exodus of so many to Missanabie, and the population is now about 400. The services, which are held in English and in Cree, were well attended, and many of the Indians seemed to be earnest Christians. The Bishop adds, however, that Christianity is fashionable, and that there are, alas, several cases in which it is impossible to suppose that there is more than the form of godliness. The Rev. T. B. Holland was in charge at the station. Moose Fort.

The Rev. W. G. Walton presented twenty-seven candidates for confirmation when Bishop Holmes visited Fort George, among them one of the last of the old conjurors. Some special evangelistic services were held while Bishop Holmes was at the station, and almost every day inquirers came to the mission-house seeking salvation. Other meetings were conducted for the benefit of the Eskimo. Fort George.

The work in the Albany district, which contains 1,350 baptized Christians, was left in charge of a native catechist during the absence of the Rev. R. J. Renison on furlough. The singing and responses at the services are said to be 'phenomenal,' but yet there is much mere formalism among the people. In Mr. Renison's absence three families were won over by the Roman Catholics. Albany.

The Rev. E. Richards, who resided at Fort Hope, reports a happy change in some of the people under his care, notably in a man, formerly the chief of the Indians, who was greatly softened by his son's death. Visits were paid to Marten's Falls, where there are some seventy-five Indians, and Osnaburgh, which has a population of 325. The Indians at these places can receive but little attention, and, as at Cat Lake, which has never been visited by a missionary, are sadly ignorant. Fort Hope.

It was impossible in last year's Report to give any account of the work at Blacklead Island during 1904 in consequence of the non-arrival of the annual letters of the Rev. E. J. Peck and Mr. J. W. Bilby. The conjecture there hazarded (page 438) that the vessel, the Heimdal, which had conveyed the Rev. E. W. Greenshield to Cumberland Bay, had been obliged to winter in the bay proves to have been only part of the truth. It appears that the ship arrived within sight of the mission-station at Blacklead Island in August, 1904, but was unable to enter the harbour, and was carried, with all the winter's supplies sent for the party, by the ice-floes out to sea. The boat was terribly battered, and at one time the captain practically gave up hope of reaching his destination, but by what seemed a miracle to the rough sailors, a way opened for the boat to get to Kikkerton, and there Mr. Greenshield spent the winter teaching the Eskimo. He reached Blacklead Island in the spring, and the Blacklead Island. A perilous voyage.

vessel with its supplies got there in July. Meanwhile there were real privations as to food and fuel. The slender stock of coal remaining when the winter began consisted of slack. For cooking purposes it was necessary to mix this with seal-blubber, the odour from which combination is described as 'something awful,' and the heat evolved was so insufficient that it took an hour and a half to boil a kettle of water. Early in February some sledges arrived at Blacklead Island with stores from Kikkerton, but to Mr. Peck's intense disappointment, four sacks of coal had been left on an iceberg some sixty miles distant, owing to the indisposition of the Eskimo in charge. The fuel was sent for and duly arrived a week later, with thankfulness more fervent than if it had been 'piles of treasure.' The Heimdal afterwards tried in vain to get out of the Sound, and was obliged to return to Blacklead Island, where it became a total wreck and was used for fuel. With the unusually large party of Europeans at the station, for of course the crew of the Heimdal was there, the stores for the winter of 1905–6 were extremely inadequate, and but for the boat, the Theodora, which the Society chartered and sent out in May, 1905, the privations and sufferings of all would have been terribly severe. Happily the little vessel arrived in time, and returned in safety, bringing Mr. Peck and Mr. Bilby home.

In view of much that has been distressing, the Committee have decided, with Mr. Peck's concurrence, to bring away the only missionary now at Blacklead Island, and not to re-occupy the station for the present. They commend the handful of Eskimo converts to the preserving grace of God, and hope that this removal may make it easier to send the Gospel to others of the same race who have never yet heard it.

IV. DIOCESE OF CALGARY.

Blackfoot Crossing.

A good deal of sickness prevailed at Blackfoot Crossing, where Canon and Mrs. H. W. G. Stocken were stationed, and several of the Christian Indians were called to their eternal rest. At the suggestion of Daniel Little Axe, one of their chiefs, the Indians began a collection at the Indian Sunday services, with a view to forming a fund out of which to pay any necessary travelling expenses incurred by their catechists in visiting the Blood Indians for evangelistic purposes. Canon Stocken speaks of an increase both in the earnestness of the Christians, and in the attendance at the services, and reports the baptism of fourteen adults. He writes of two of them as follows:—

> Among the new converts are Mary and Timothy 'Bear Ghost,' husband and wife; the latter the only surviving son of 'Crowfoot,' the last of the national chiefs. The man is blind, and has been won for Christ by his wife, who yielded her heart to the Saviour at the beginning of the year. She was indeed a brand plucked from the burning—a Magdalene. And now in her village, where she was before known by her evil life, she is respected and sought after as a reliable woman, a good worker and an earnest Christian, trying in every way she can to witness for her Divine Master. A brand plucked from the burning.

The Rev. S. J. Stocken was in charge of the Homes at Gleichen. Fifteen of the pupils were baptized during the year.

Archdeacon J. W. Tims speaks in terms of deep thankfulness of the work accomplished by the St. Barnabas's Home on SARCEE RESERVE, saying that nearly all the young people growing up on the reserve either are or have been boarders, and that the influence exercised by those in charge of the Home is all for good. Various classes were held at the station, including one on Sunday evenings for the younger men, who are easily led astray by their seniors. Three adults were baptized, and while some of the older converts occasionally took part in the dances organized by the heathen Indians, others stood firm and showed that they had entirely separated themselves from their old mode of life. Archdeacon Tims mentions as a case in point an elderly man who is a regular communicant. During the summer one of the universities of the United States sent a man to the Sarcee Reserve to study the customs, folklore, &c., of the Natives, and this Indian was engaged to supply him with information. One day the American asked him to sing a song used at one of the heathen ceremonies, but the man refused, saying that he could not do so, for he had been baptized and confirmed in the faith of Jesus Christ, and had put away his old life for ever. Seventeen persons were confirmed on the Peigan Reserve, where the Rev. W. R. Haynes was stationed. Sarcee Reserve. A convert refuses to sing a heathen song.

Archdeacon Tims spent part of the winter in setting up type for Morning and Evening Prayer in the Blackfoot Syllabic character. In recognition of his linguistic work and of his eminent services to the diocese the degree of D.D. has been conferred on the Archdeacon by the Council of St. John's College, Manitoba.

The Rev. G. E. Gale was in charge of the work among the Blood Indians at FORT MCLEOD, where nearly all the Indians are Heathen, even the children educated at the mission-schools having lapsed. Fort McLeod.

V. DIOCESE OF SASKATCHEWAN.

THE Rev. J. Hines, who was in general charge of the work at PRINCE ALBERT, reports the baptism of two adults, but describes the work as very uphill owing to the habit of both whites and Indians of indulging to excess in strong drink. At Sandy Lake, where the Rev. E. Cook, who is in Deacons' Orders, was in charge, the people devoted their gifts on the last Sunday of 1905 to the Prince Albert.

Society. After the service the chief came into the vestry to say that his adopted daughter had been safely delivered of her first-born child. He held in his hand a dollar bill, and said, 'I have already given my contribution to-day, but this is something extra. I am giving this in the name of my grandchild, just a day old, and I pray God she may grow up to be a good woman, and that she may always take an interest in her religion and her church. In giving this dollar as an offering in her name I am only marking out the road which I hope she may follow when she is grown up.' There were still a few Heathen at Nepowewin, but the Gospel appeared to be making some progress among them.

An Indian's thank-offering.

Stanley. Much of the time of Archdeacon J. A. Mackay was spent in superintending the erection of a saw-mill at STANLEY. Daily services were held for the workmen, and the Indians in general showed that they loved and valued Christian privileges. Archdeacon Mackay was in England during the early part of 1905, revising and reading the proofs of the Cree Bible.

Devon. At DEVON, where the Rev. M. B. Edwards resided, there are nearly 700 baptized Christians. Some of them, unhappily, were negligent in Sunday observance, and there was a general lack of earnestness among the people notwithstanding regular attendance at the services.

Battleford. Archdeacon Mackay paid a couple of visits to BATTLEFORD, the station of the Rev. D. D. Macdonald, where the Indian reserves are now for the most part surrounded by white settlers. The usefulness of the industrial school was manifested in the improved condition of the people on Red Pheasant's Reserve where the Rev. R. Inkster resided. The opposition to Christianity manifested by the people of the Assiniboine Reserve appeared to be breaking up, and three adults were baptized.

Fort Pitt. The rapidity of the march of events in North-West Canada is illustrated in the annual letter of the Rev. J. R. Matheson, of FORT PITT, on Onion Lake. He states that when he began work under the Society, some ten years ago, there was no white man within hundreds of miles of his station, excepting a few employés of the Hudson's Bay Company, whereas now the railway runs within thirty-five miles, and settlers are pouring into the country. Savagery and civilization exist almost side by side. One day Mr. Matheson travelled to the north of his district to see a sub-chief. Being enraged, the old man had threatened to become a cannibal (see last year's Report, page 443), and all the Indians had fled some thirty miles for their lives, believing that his heart had turned to a lump of ice, and that he really had the power to destroy every one of them. Mr. Matheson had the pleasure of preaching the Gospel to this man, who, he hopes, will shortly be baptized, and then, within three days, he was sitting in the midst of an educated audience at Lloydminster listening to a lecture. The new church at Fort Pitt was completed during the year under review; the day-school was carried on with from forty to fifty scholars; and the prospects for the winter were bright when Mr. Matheson wrote. 'The Christians seem to be taking an interest in the work,' he says, 'in a way they never did before.'

VI. DIOCESE OF ATHABASCA.

Bishop Reeve, who, in the vacancy of the See, had the oversight of the work in the diocese of Athabasca, visited the various stations, and has been good enough to furnish the Committee with a report.

Lesser Slave Lake.

The work at Lesser Slave Lake was under the charge of the Rev. W. M. Johnston, temporarily transferred from Shaftesbury, until the arrival of the Rev. M. Scott. The latter says that there is a general outward conformity to religion among the Indians, but a lack of 'real, earnest, living Christianity,' and that conviction of sin is greatly needed by the Christians as well as the Heathen. He writes:—

'Everything is on a dead level.'

> Lesser Slave Lake is a stronghold of Satan, and Christians cannot be indifferent to this without great spiritual injury. It is so easy to get used to sin, to associate with worldly people whose lives are well known to be ungodly, and to be indifferent to the fact and make no attempt to save their souls. Thus Christians here are suffering. Everything is on a dead level. No one wants to be disturbed from this lethargy.

Mr. Scott, who has been appointed Archdeacon of Athabasca, visited the reserves in his district, and was everywhere cordially received even by the Romanists.

On the arrival of Archdeacon Scott Mr. Johnston proceeded to Spirit River, fifteen miles south of Dunvegan, where the Presbyterians formerly had a station.

White Fish Lake.

There are still a few Heathen at White Fish Lake, whither the Rev. and Mrs. W. G. White returned after their furlough. About a dozen children attended the school.

Wapuskaw.

At Wapuskaw a number of persons were carried off by an outbreak of whooping-cough. The Rev. C. R. Weaver, who was in charge, speaks of the Indians as diligent in the study of the Bible.

Shaftesbury.

When the Rev. W. M. Johnston proceeded to Lesser Slave Lake, his place at Shaftesbury, on Upper Peace River, was taken by Mr. R. Holmes, a brother of the Bishop of Moosonee. The congregation was but small, although there are about 250 persons in the district who might come to them, and Mr. Holmes attributes the fact to the many changes which have taken place in the workers, no missionary having remained at the station since 1894 for more than four years. Services were held at Peace River Crossing, thirteen miles down the river.

Vermilion. The Rev. A. S. White and his sisters had sixteen children under their charge in the boarding-school at VERMILION. The church was well-filled on the occasion of Thanksgiving Sunday, which is always held on the first Sunday in Advent: twenty-three persons communicated, and the offertory amounted to $66. A new church was built at Stoney Point, ten miles from Vermilion. At the first service in it nearly thirty persons were present, although the thermometer registered 45 degrees below zero. Mr. White made five tours in his district, visiting the scattered Indians.

Fort Chipewyan. The Rev. and Mrs. A. J. Warwick were obliged by ill-health to leave FORT CHIPEWYAN in the summer, and their place was taken by Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Roberts.

VII. DIOCESE OF MACKENZIE RIVER.

Fort Simpson. THE oldest station in the diocese is FORT SIMPSON, where the Rev. J. R. Lucas resided during the year under review. He speaks in his annual letter of great encouragement. The Indians came in from the woods in larger numbers than usual at the New Year and again in the summer, and on one Sunday as many as 140 persons were present in church, while there was an average attendance of forty at daily prayers. In consequence of the unhealthiness of Fort Wrigley, the Indians who formerly lived there have made Fort Simpson their head quarters. Mr. Lucas visited Fort Norman, which has been without a resident missionary for three winters. Almost all the Indians attended the services which he conducted.

Hay River. The people at HAY RIVER enjoyed exceptionally good health, and the Rev. T. J. Marsh, of the Canadian C.M.S., who has spent fifteen years among them, was hopeful that his work had not been in vain. The school still felt the effects of the ravages of measles in 1903.

Peel River. PEEL RIVER was left in charge of two Indian clergymen, the Revs. W. Njootli and E. Sitechinli.

Herschel Island. At HERSCHEL ISLAND the Rev. C. E. Whittaker suffered much anxiety on account of Mrs. Whittaker's ill-health. The church was 'packed' when English services were held, and even larger numbers were present at those conducted in Eskimo.

VIII. DIOCESE OF SELKIRK.

Caribou Crossing. BISHOP BOMPAS, whose resignation of the See of Selkirk, after an episcopate of thirty-one years, has been recorded above, resided at CARIBOU CROSSING, or CARCROSS as it is now called.

The Indians at the station were in some danger of being overborne by the influx of whites, but they appeared to enjoy the church services, although these were conducted in English. Much of the Bishop's time was given to a boarding-school for Indian children, which, however, is not connected with the Society. The recent discovery of gold in the neighbourhood of Carcross is likely to cause a change in the conditions of the work.

Selkirk.

At SELKIRK, the head quarters of Archdeacon T. H. Canham, there was great mortality among the children, though the adult Indians enjoyed better health than usual. The Archdeacon tried to visit the Indians up the Pelly River, but the freight boat was late in starting, and owing to the fall of the river had to return without reaching her destination.

Moose-hide.

Sickness was prevalent among the Indians of MOOSEHIDE, where the Rev. B. Totty was in charge until he left on furlough in September, 1905, when his place was taken by the Rev. J. Hawksley. First there was an outbreak of whooping-cough, and that was followed by what at one time was thought to be small-pox, but eventually proved to be chicken-pox. The influence of the chief of the village was happily exerted on the side of righteousness. He steadfastly set his face against the introduction of strong drink, and was of great assistance in Sunday-school work and in conducting services for his people when they were absent from the station. The lack of occupation for the men constituted a real danger to their spiritual welfare, especially as it was combined with the presence of a number of temptations set before them by unscrupulous white men. Mr. Hawksley endeavoured to meet the evil, and was successful in procuring several orders for snow-shoes, sleds, &c. Mr. Totty paid visits to the Indians on Twelve Mile River, Stewart River, and elsewhere, and found them responsive to his teaching.

Buxton.

The Rev. J. Hawksley resided at BUXTON, or Forty Mile, until the end of the summer, save for a short time in March, when the illness of his wife obliged him to take her a trip of fifty miles over the ice to Dawson, where the nearest doctor resided—a rather trying experience for an invalid! Work was carried on at the station as in former years, excepting that the day-school, which was attended exclusively by adults, there being no children at the place, was closed. In spite of the numerous temptations by which they are surrounded, Mr. Hawksley thankfully reports that there has not been a single case of drunkenness among the Indians during the last four years. Moreover he is able to quote independent testimony to the observance of the Sabbath and the religious life of some Christian Indians, borne by certain travellers between Dawson and Peel River. He writes :—

Strict Sunday observance by Indians.

> On their journey they fell in with several bands of Indians, and in every case, they tell me, the Indians gathered together each evening, and one of their number as leader gave out a hymn which they all joined in singing; then a chapter of God's Holy Word was read; after which they all joined in prayer. On Sunday all work ceased. Morning and evening services were held by the Christian leader, who gave addresses at both services. While they (the travellers) did not understand what was being said, yet by the evident earnestness of the speaker they felt that simple Gospel truths were being uttered in sincerity, and, they added, the reverent demeanour of the Indians during the whole service was a sight they would not readily forget.

Visits were paid as usual to the Natives formerly connected with the Mission who have gone to Eagle City, on the American side of the border, but those to the Tanana, Tetlin, and Lake Mansfield Indians had to be abandoned in consequence of Mrs. Hawksley's illness. The Rev. A. R. Hoare, of the American Church, however, kindly went to these isolated people, and reported a successful trip.

BRITISH COLUMBIA MISSION.

In 1856 Captain Prevost, R.N., drew the Society's attention to the savage state of the Tsimshean Indians on the coast of British Columbia, and a young schoolmaster, Mr. W. Duncan, was sent out. A great blessing was vouchsafed to his labours, and in 1862 the Christian settlement of Metlakahtla was founded. In 1881, however, Mr. Duncan refused to work on the lines of the Church of England, and ceased to be a missionary of the Society, and an unhappy schism among the native Christians resulted. But peace was in God's good providence ultimately restored, though at a heavy cost. Prolonged disputes about the land ensued between Mr. Duncan's Indians and the Government; and in the summer of 1887 Mr. Duncan removed with some hundreds of the Indians to a place seventy miles distant, within the United States territory of Alaska. Since the departure of the disaffected party the conduct of the loyal Indians has been so excellent that the Government Commissioners, sent in November, 1888, to report on the condition of these disturbed districts, stated that the Metlakahtla Church Indians were in happy contrast to all others, and were a credit to their instructors.

The Diocese of British Columbia was subdivided in 1879, and the Rev. W. Ridley, formerly a missionary of the Society in the Punjab, was appointed the first Bishop of Caledonia, the Northern Division. The C.M.S. mission-stations, with the exception of that at Alert Bay, are situated in his diocese. He resigned the See in 1904, and has been succeeded by Bishop Du Vernet.

Kincolith was occupied in 1866; Massett, 1876; Alert Bay, 1878; Hazelton, 1880; Giatwangak, 1882; Aiyansh, 1883; and Kitkatla, 1887.

Conference of missionaries.

A MEETING of the Conference of the diocese of Caledonia, attended by missionaries both of the Society and of the S.P.G., was held at Metlakahtla from May 31st to June 3rd, 1905, under the presidency of Bishop Du Vernet. A provisional constitution for a Diocesan Synod was adopted, an Executive Committee elected, and a Mission Fund with a system of monthly collections established.

Miss R. L. Edwards has been transferred to the Western China Mission.

All but one of the stations of the Mission in this diocese were visited by Bishop Du Vernet during 1905. He held six confirmations, at which 133 candidates were presented.

Metlakahtla.

The work at METLAKAHTLA much resembles that in a parish at home, saving that the services are conducted in the Tsimshean language. The Rev. J. H. Keen, the superintending missionary, says that the lives of many of the congregation, their diligent attendance at the means of grace, and their liberality, showed that their religion was real, but that there were also a number of merely professing Christians. Intoxicating drink is a sad snare to many, and in spite of the efforts of the Canadian Government the Indians often manage to obtain it. Two promising young men belonging to the station were drowned in the Skeena River during the year as they returned with liquor from a neighbouring town.

Girls' Homes.

There were thirty-three children in the White Home, in the work of which Miss M. West had the help of Miss E. J. Soal until August, when the latter was transferred to Hazelton.

Miss R. M. Davies, a trained nurse, was in charge of the Indian Girls' Industrial Home, the inmates of which attended the Indian Day School under Miss H. Jackson. The latter speaks of several of the girls formerly in the Home as showing that they were trying to learn self-control and to act as consistent Christians.

Kitkatla. At KITKATLA, where the Rev. R. W. Gurd resided, the congregation during the winter months numbered ninety-eight, nearly half the total population, but during the remainder of the year the Kitkatlas were absent from the station, leaving only twenty-one persons in the village. Two Bible-classes were conducted and appeared to be valued, and the weekly prayer-meeting which was instituted was well attended until the Indians left for the camps. One of the children belonging to the Sunday-school held by Mrs. Gurd was called to her rest, her last words being two texts which she had learnt at school. Mr. Gurd spent five months at Claxton, a cannery settlement on the Skeena, where he ministered to the mixed community of white men, Japanese, Chinese, and Indians.

Hazelton The Rev. and Mrs. J. Field were joined at HAZELTON by Miss E. J. Soal in August, 1905, and the last-named at once opened a day-school which, by the end of the year, had thirty-six names on its rolls. The services and Bible-class were well attended, and a Sunday-school which was set on foot proved a success. Mr. Field states that the number of whites at the station increased, and that the majority of them came to the services regularly. Twenty-eight persons were baptized, thirteen of them being adults. Of this number eleven belonged to Gishgagas, where Joshua Harvey, a native teacher, was in charge. One of the Christian families at that place took part in some heathen festivities.

Giatwangak. The Rev. A. E. Price, who returned to GIATWANGAK from furlough in July, 1905, unhappily is not able to speak so favourably as Mr. Field of the white men at his station, for seldom were more than five of them present at the services. The young men of the Church Army held evangelistic services in the open-air, but they are said to 'love talking more than doing.' The work among the Chinese at the canneries was in abeyance because no suitable agent could be found.

Kincolith and Aiyansh. Archdeacon W. H. Collison, who is in his thirty-third year of labour in the mission-field, reports great changes on the Naas River, on which the Society has two stations—KINCOLITH, where the Archdeacon resides, and AIYANSH, where the Rev. J. B. McCullagh is in charge. A considerable addition to the number of Christian Indians connected with the Mission was brought about by the reception of some who had previously been connected with the Methodist Mission. Repeated instances of failure of health of the Methodist missionaries caused the Indians to be frequently left without anyone to minister to them, and they petitioned the Society to receive them. Archdeacon Collison tried to persuade them to be faithful to their own Mission, but when some of the weaker members began to drift towards Heathenism he was compelled to take action, since their lapse would be detrimental to the work all along the river. A deputation was appointed by the Methodist Conference to inquire into the state of affairs, and with their acquiescence the Indians were received by the Society's missionaries as already stated. Other large additions to the bands of converts resulted from the trouble at Gitlakdamiks, which was briefly referred to in last year's Report (page 450). The circumstances are thus described by Archdeacon Collison :—

> The illicit manufacture and consumption of fermented liquors by the heathen Indians resulted in serious quarrels at several of their villages. A number of the people lost their lives, some by drowning and others by excessive drinking, while not a few were seriously injured. Mr. McCullagh was compelled to use his magisterial powers to restrain these abuses. By swearing in a sufficient number of the Christians as special constables, large quantities of liquor were seized, as also the distilling apparatus, and a number of the principal offenders brought to justice. This resulted in the breaking-up of the combination, and enabled those who had been compelled to continue in the heathen camps to declare their desire to place themselves under Christian instruction and influence.

The eighteen persons mentioned in last year's Report as having put themselves under instruction were soon followed by others, until the number was tenfold, and within a few months many of them had been baptized, and others, who had lapsed from Christianity, had been restored. Most of the baptisms took place at the spring fishing camps. At one, formerly a stronghold of Heathenism, some sixty Indians were received into the visible Church in a large tent, among them two aged chiefs, for whose conversion prayer had long been offered, and also a leading medicine-man. At another encampment, Fishery Bay, nearly 100 were baptized in the mission-church. At the conclusion of some of the services, after-meetings were held at which many of the converts openly expressed their determination to stand fast in the faith. One fine, stalwart Indian declared that he had passed through an experience similar to that of a snake which, when desirous to rid itself of its old skin, fixes itself in the fork of a tree or branch, out of which it struggles, leaving its old skin behind it. 'Thus,' he declared, 'the Lord assisted me to get rid of my old ways, and the Gospel has clothed me with the new skin or covering of the righteousness of Christ.' The shepherding of these converts is a matter which causes some anxiety, for there are five encampments at which they assemble during the winter, scattered over a distance of some sixty miles.

Sixty Indians baptized in a tent.

An Indian parable.

The Rev. and Mrs. W. E. Collison were stationed at MASSETT, on Queen Charlotte Islands. Massett.

At ALERT BAY, where the Rev. A. J. Hall was in charge until the summer, when he left on furlough, some of the Christian women bravely witnessed for Christ in public. One of them, who is described as 'mighty in the Scriptures,' once addressed 100 Indians who unexpectedly came to the place, testifying afterwards, 'My Saviour was by my side.' There were thirty-four boys in the Industrial School under Mr. A. W. Corker, but the Girls' Home was closed owing to the transfer of Miss R. L. Edwards to the Western China Mission. There are still many Heathen in the district, for Mr. Hall laments that after twenty-seven years' work four out of every five of the people are non-Christians. Alert Bay.

APPENDIX.

I. REPORT OF THE WILLIAM CHARLES JONES INDIA NATIVE CHURCH FUND.

THE interest of this Fund is available for assisting the Native Church Councils connected with the Church Missionary Society in India to employ more evangelistic labourers among the Heathen. Two important conditions are imposed regarding grants. It is necessary, before an application for a grant can be entertained, for a Native Council to show that the Christians whom it represents have actually engaged in aggressive evangelistic work through a native Missionary Society, or that they are prepared so to do. It is necessary, also, that the Council be able to show that at least two-fifths of the cost of maintaining religious worship and pastoral work in its district has been raised from purely local sources, and that a definite sum has been contributed towards missionary work. The scheme also provides that the amount granted from the Fund to a Council shall not exceed the amount set apart by that Council for purely evangelistic purposes, or the amount raised by the native Missionary Society in connexion with that Council.

Grants were made during 1905–06 to the following Church Councils for the support of evangelists:—

	Rs.
Madras Native Church Council	720

VI. NEW ZEALAND.

THE Mission to the Maoris of New Zealand was the second of the Society's Missions in order of time. It was undertaken at the invitation of Samuel Marsden, Chaplain in New South Wales, who landed on the Northern Island, with the first three men—lay agents—sent out as pioneers in 1814, and preached the first Christian sermon to the Natives, from St. Luke ii. 10, on Christmas Day of that year. Other missionaries followed, whose lives, which were entirely in the power of a race of ferocious cannibals, were frequently in apparently imminent danger. The first results were seen in the sphere of industrial progress. Fields of wheat began to appear, horses and cattle were imported, fruit-trees were planted, blacksmiths' shops, saw-mills, and rope-walks were at work, and a few Maori children were gathered into a boarding-school. Impressed by these results Charles Darwin, who visited New Zealand in H.M.S. Beagle in 1835, wrote, 'The lesson of the missionary is the enchanter's wand.'

For eleven years there were no baptisms. The first conversion took place in 1825, that of a dying chief named Ranji. It was not till February 7th, 1830, that the first public baptismal service for adults was held, when a leading chief, Taiwhanga, took upon him the Christian vows. Then followed the marvellous movement which resulted in almost the whole Maori nation being brought under Christian instruction and civilizing influences, and which led the first Bishop, George Augustus Selwyn, on his arrival in his new diocese in 1842, to write: 'We see here a whole nation of Pagans converted to the faith. . . . Where will you find, throughout the Christian world, more signal manifestations of the presence of the Spirit, or more living evidences of the Kingdom of Christ?'

In 1840 New Zealand was made a British Colony. The step had been rendered necessary by the influx of settlers, whose proceedings needed to be kept in order by the strong arm of authority. The missionaries, taking their lives in their hands, had gone to a ferocious race of cannibals; when these, through their efforts, had been tamed and to a large extent Christianized, the adventurers poured in; then the chiefs, on the counsel of the missionaries, acknowledged Queen Victoria as their Sovereign and accepted the treaty of Waitangi, February 6th, 1840. The benefits of civilization were introduced, but so were the vices and the greed of the white man. Continual disputes about the sale and possession of land led to prolonged and bitter wars, which shook the Native Church to its foundation. In 1864 arose the 'Pai Mairire' or 'Hau-hau' superstition, a strange compound of Christianity and Heathenism, which spread with great rapidity among the Maoris. It was a party of Hau-haus who so barbarously murdered the missionary Völkner on March 2nd, 1868.

For more than twenty years after the establishment of the Mission there was no bishop to supervise it nearer than Calcutta. When the Bishopric of Australia (now Sydney) was founded in 1836, the C.M.S. asked the first Bishop, Dr. Broughton, to visit New Zealand, which he did in 1838, and held ordinations and confirmations. After the British sovereignty had been proclaimed in 1840, and the Colonial Bishoprics' Fund established in 1841, the C.M.S. undertook to contribute £600 a year to the stipend of the first Bishop of New Zealand, Dr. Selwyn. In 1854 the dioceses of Waiapu and Wellington were formed, and the C.M.S. paid the stipends of the first two Bishops of the former. On Bishop Selwyn's appointment to Lichfield in 1868, he was succeeded in the Diocese of Auckland by Dr. Cowie, and he on his death in 1903 by Dr. Neligan. All the three Bishops of Waiapu have been missionaries of the C.M.S. The first was Dr. W. Williams, who went out in 1825, before there was a single convert, and he and Henry Williams, his brother, were par excellence the evangelists of the Maori race. When in 1829 Taiwhanga, one of the most ferocious chiefs, asked to have his four children baptized, the infant son of William Williams was dedicated to Christ at the same time. That infant son is the present Bishop of Waiapu, Dr. W. L.

Williams. Between the first and the present Bishop came the episcopate of Dr. E. C. Stuart (1877 to 1895), who is now labouring as a C.M.S. missionary in Persia. The first Bishop of Wellington was Dr. Abraham; and the present Bishop, the third, is Dr. F. Wallis, a son-in-law of the Society's Treasurer, Colonel R. Williams. The intermediate Bishop, from 1870 to 1895, was Dr. Octavius Hadfield. He went to New Zealand as a C.M.S. missionary in 1838, one out of only six graduates of Oxford whom the Society sent out previous to 1841, his college being Pembroke. He was one of the first missionaries to labour in the South Island, where he exerted great influence among the Natives during the troublous years of the Maori War. He was greatly beloved by Bishop Selwyn, and was offered by him the Bishopric of Wellington when that diocese was first formed, but he declined it then and other like offers. He was made Primate of New Zealand in 1889. In 1893 he retired, and died in 1904.

In 1883 a C.M.S. Mission Board, comprising the Bishops of Auckland, Waiapu, and Wellington, and other members, was established to administer the Society's grants, which diminished gradually and ceased (subject to personal claims) in 1902. A Maori Mission Board, working under the Synod, now supervises the work.

The list of missionaries at the commencement of this Report still includes the names of Bishop Williams, by his special request; of Archdeacon Samuel Williams, and the Rev. A. F. Williams, honorary workers; of Miss R. M. Blakiston, supported by the New Zealand Association; and of the Revs. G. Maunsell, and W. Goodyear.

The last-named speaks in his annual letter of an earnest desire on the part of the people under his charge to hear the Gospel, and the Rev. J. McWilliam, who has retired after more than thirty years' service, gives a good report of the Maoris to whom he ministered. He says, however, that many of them have a strange faith in the tohungas, or medicine-men.

PROPER FORMS OF A BENEFACTION TO THE SOCIETY BY WILL.

No. I.—Form of a Bequest of a Common Legacy.

I give and bequeath to the Treasurer for the time being of the Church Missionary Society for Africa and the East the sum of Pounds *free of duty for the general purposes of the said Society such sum and the duty thereon to be paid within calendar months next after my death. And I declare that the receipt of the Treasurer for the time being of the said Society shall be an effectual discharge for the said Legacy.

No. II.—Form of Bequest of the Residue or a share of the Residue.

I give and bequeath unto the Treasurer for the time being of the Church Missionary Society for Africa and the East for the general purposes of the said Society my Residuary Real and Personal Estate [or if a share only of the Residue is intended to be given, then, instead of the words in Italics, say "such sum of money as shall be equal to one-fourth or one-half (according to the intention) of my whole Residuary Real and Personal Estate"]. And I declare that the receipt of the Treasurer for the time being of the said Society shall be an effectual discharge for the said Residue [or sum of money as the case may be]. And as to the remainder (if any) of my general Residuary Estate I bequeath the same, &c.

* If so intended.

NOTICE TO TREASURERS AND SECRETARIES OF ASSOCIATIONS.

End of Financial Year. Final Remittance.

THE COMMITTEE OF THE CHURCH MISSIONARY SOCIETY beg to remind the Treasurers and Secretaries of Associations that the Society's Financial Year ends on the 31st of March, and that final remittances and Contribution Lists should be forwarded before that date.

No Balances shown.

Sums remaining unpaid on the 31st of March are not shown in the Accounts as Balances. The Contribution Lists should therefore agree in total with the amounts actually paid to the Parent Society to that date.

Branches.

Where an Association has Branches connected with it, the Money and Accounts of the Branches must be forwarded to the Treasurer or Secretary of the Association some time before the date for forwarding to London. Branches not doing so in good time shall be considered as self-excluded.

Branch Associations should forward their Money and Lists through the Association with which they are connected, and not direct to the Parent Society.

Contribution Lists and Accounts.

Lists and Accounts (if not sent with the money) must be forwarded not later than April 7th (see last paragraph but one). At the head of the List should be furnished the name of the Diocese, Archdeaconry, and Deanery in which each parish is situate. It is very essential that this information should be given accurately to ensure correct entry in Annual Report. The date at which the Accounts of the Association are closed, and the names of the Local Officers, should be specified. Should no Officers be named it will be assumed that they remain the same as in the previous Report, and the List will be so printed.

Accurate information essential.

Local Officers

Forms of Account.

The Contribution Lists should be written legibly to avoid mistakes in printing, and made up in the manner in which the same are printed in the Parent Society's Report. Forms of Account and ruled paper with directions for filling up the form may be had on application to the Lay Secretary at the Society's House.

Gleaners' Union Receipts (including 'Enrolments,' 'Renewals,' 'Expenses,' 'O.O.M.,' 'C.M.S.') should be forwarded separately to C.M. House and be excluded from the Annual Associations Account.

'Communicants' Shilling Collection.' 'Thankoffering Week.'

Particulars of Contributions of the 'Communicants' Shilling Collection' and 'Thankoffering Week' which have been remitted through Associations should be included in the Contribution List for the year; items of 10*s.* and over to be entered in detail. Should no details be furnished, the total sum contributed will be acknowledged in one line, thus:—

Appropriated Contributions.

Particulars of Appropriated Contributions and Contributions to Special Funds paid through Associations are printed with the Lists to which they respectively belong.

Special Funds and General Fund.

In order that the Society's General Fund Income for the year can be accurately ascertained before the accounts are closed and audited, it is essential that the total amount received through each Association for each Appropriated head of Account, and also for each Special Fund, shall be notified to Salisbury Square not later than April 4th. Should, however, the contribution list for the year have been forwarded by that date, such notification will not be needed, provided the list contains the necessary particulars, which should be in the form of a detailed list of subscriptions, for printing in the Annual Report.

Remittances should be made early in Financial Year.

The Committee take this opportunity of requesting that Local Treasurers will remit to the Parent Committee at the end of every quarter (or oftener in cases of large sums being received) any sum in their hands, over and above the amount required to meet disbursements, &c., the balance being remitted when the Local Accounts are closed for the year. This course would tend to equalise in a greater degree the Income and Expenditure in the earlier months of the Society's Financial Year, and save the Society a considerable yearly sum.

RESPECTING REMITTANCES.

Remittances.

Remittances may be made through Local Bankers, and their correspondents in London, to the account of the Society at WILLIAMS DEACON'S BANK, Limited, 20 Birchin Lane, London, in which case it is requested that advice of the same be sent by post addressed to the Lay Secretary.

Or Drafts may be forwarded direct to the C.M. House, payable to D. MARSHALL LANG, Lay Secretary of the Church Missionary Society, and crossed WILLIAMS DEACON'S BANK, Limited, acct. C.M.S.

Post Office and Postal Orders should be drawn on the General Post Office, and be made payable to D. MARSHALL LANG.
